VOL. 103 NO. 44 | NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1973 | PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Municipal Election Tuesday

At least half of Newton's 52,000 registered voters are expected to go to the polls Tuesday to vote in the city's 1973 municipal election.

At stake is Newton's first four-year term for mayor, all 24 seats on the Board of Aldermen and eight seats on the Newton School Committee.

The mayor, aldermen-at-large in Wards 2, 4, 6, 7 and 8; ward aldermen in Wards 3, 4, 5, and 6; and School Committee members in Wards 2, 5, 6, and 7 have opponents. Two School Committee members, Francis Frazier of Ward 1 and Richard Douglas of Ward 3 chose not to run for another term. Newcomers face each other in those two School Committee races.

Incumbent Mayor Theodore D. Mann, finishing his first term, faces William Carmen, who has sought the office of mayor three times now. Carmen and Mann faced each other in the 1971 general election.

Mann in last month's Preliminary Election got 6,937 votes to Carmen's 5,493. Their totals represented respectively 54 and 43 per cent of the total vote cast.

Mann came out on top in five of the city's eight wards, Wards 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. Carmen took Wards 1, 2 and 3 in the Preliminary.

The challenger beat the incumbent mayor by a margin of 600 votes in Ward 1 and the mayor, in turn, buried his opponent by a margin of more than 1,000 votes in Ward 8.

The third candidate, eliminated in the Preliminary, got a total of 339 votes.

The October election was the city's first run-off and was mandated by the new City Charter. In prior years, any number of candidates could seek an office on the November ballot.

The Preliminary narrowed all races down to two candidates per office.

Voters in Newton elect, city-wide, 16 aldermen-at-large, all eight members of the School Committee and their individual ward alderman.

In Ward 2, Alderman-at large Edward L. Richmond is the only incumbent on the ballot. Ald. Peter Harrington, elected a state representative last year, is not seeking reelection as an alderman. The three challengers for Alderman-at-large in Ward 2 are Terrence P. Morris, Barbara M. Schiller and Douglas J. Howard.

Nicolo V. Nardone is the challenger in Ward 4. Incumbent Aldermen-at-Large David W. Jackson and Louis Egelson are both seeking reelection.

Aldermen-at-large Michael Antonellis and Sidney T. Small are also both seeking reelection in Ward 5 and face no challengers. Small, elected in 1971 in Ward 6 moved to Ward 5 earlier this year. Incumbent Lois Pines, now a state representative, is not seeking reelection as an alderman.

The move opened up the race in Ward 6 and voters will choose between three people for the two at-large seats in that ward. Incumbent Michael Lipof and challengers Ethel Sheehan and Joan Saklad vie for the posts in this ward.

Ward 7 has the full compliment of four candidates for the two at-large seats. Incumbent Jason Sacks reelection. The other three candidates are Mark A. White, Dominic J. Taglienti and Melvin Norris.

Ward 8 incumbent Aldermen-at-large Eliot K. Cohen and Wendell Bauckman face a challenge from Leland White, Mark White's younger brother.

On the School Committee, four of the six incumbents running have challengers.

In Ward 2, incumbent Eleanor Rosenblum faces S. Leonard Spitz. Sumner Silton is challenging incumbent Joan Needleman in Ward 5. Robert Cohen is seeking the Ward 6 seat now held by Herbert Regal, and in Ward 7 incumbent Dorothy Reichard faces Harry W. Resnick.

Ward 4 School Committeeman Manuel Beckwith and Ward 8 School Committeeman Alvin Mandell are unopposed this term.

In Ward 1, newcomers David J. Mortimer Jr. and Henry Delicata vie for a seat on the School Committee and in Ward 3 voters will chose between Gerard Byrne and John J. Keefe.

In Ward 3, incumbent Richard J. Bullwinkle is running against Paul Daley this year, and in Ward 4 incumbent Richard J. McGrath, completing his first term as a ward alderman, is challenged by Leonard Frisoli.

Both incumbents came out on top in the Preliminary.

Ward 5 Ald. Edward Uehlein faces Susan Schur and in Ward 6 incumbent Ernest F. Dietz has Theodore Gross for an opponent.

Year-Round Daylight Time Favored Here

A year-round Daylight Savings Time would alleviate the current energy crisis and increase safety to Newton's children, Mayor Theodore Mann said this week in a letter to Massachusetts senators.

In urging Sens. Edward W. Brooke and Edward Kennedy to work for passage of the year-round program, the mayor stressed that Eastern Standard Time puts a strain on the power supplies of the community that would be reduced if the time of sunset were delayed one hour.

Mayor Mann further commented that the time delay on darkness would also aid in reducing traffic accidents due to the quantity of evening traffic peaking after dark.

Many young people who are involved in after-school activities away from their homes, under a year-round Daylight Savings program would not be forced to travel home for dinner in total darkness, the mayor added.

Mayor

William Carmen

Theodore D. Mann

(Mayor) Management consultant; B.S. in business administration from Boston University; post graduate work at Tufts; former alderman, chairman of the Newton Housing Authority.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. Other alternatives are federal funding and a special bond issue.

HOUSING: Yes. 300 units "for waiting Newton families." Must be built on renewal sites such as Maguire Court in Newtonville.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste, transportation, purchasing, water and sewer systems "to protect the environment and result in large savings to taxpayers."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Only so far as administrative and business practices are concerned–not in the area of educational matters."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By inviting representatives of neighborhood groups into the decision making process. "Their opinions must become meaningful, not token."

(Mayor-incumbent) Boston public schools, B.U. and B.C.; treasurer, Mass. Mayor's Association; vice-chairman, Mass. Police Training Council; former state representative, alderman, director of the Newton Mental Health Committee.

OPEN SPACE: "I would support a property financed program to expand Newton's open space resources."

HOUSING: "I have demonstrated my commitment for family housing by obtaining funding from the Mass. Dept. of Community Affairs for Newton's first such units, as well as additional subsidized housing."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: "Where benefit in efficiency and cost can be achieved." E.G. Newton-Waltham first in the nation solid waste regional demonstration; health, public safety compacts.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Autonomy and responsibility are inseparable." True control is in the hands of the electorate.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "My appointments to the NRA are clearly designed to make the authority more responsive to neighborhood interests." I expect and have instructed my appointees to expand the role of neighborhood residents in its deliberations."

Municipal Election

The polls open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and voting continues until 8 p.m.

About 10,000 Newton voters will be voting at new polling places in the Nov. 6 municipal election, according to Election Commission Executive Secretary Alan Licarie.

All voters were sent a card before the preliminary election informing them of their correct ward, precinct, and polling place.

This year for the first time if a voter's name cannot be verified at the polling place, an election official will call by phone a special Election Commission crew in City Hall, instead of requiring the voter to go to City Hall for verification.

If the name is verified by phone the voter will be given a certificate allowing him or her to vote.

If the name cannot be verified by phone, then the voter will have to go to City Hall in person. If the name is then verified, the voter may vote at City Hall instead of having to return to the usual polling place.

Lasell Names Fund Advisers

Mrs. Briggs W. Buchanan, Mrs. Hudson S. Green, Mrs. C. Peter Johnson and Mrs. Joseph M. Yanofsky, all of Newton, have agreed to serve on the campaign committee for Lasell Junior College's Capital Campaign "A Program for '76."

Lasell, the nation's oldest junior college, has embarked on a $5.5 million dollar campaign to raise funds for facilities, faculty endowment programs, financial aid programs, property and building acquisition and educational resources.

The "Program for '76," which has received one half million dollars since it began last spring, will end in 1976, the year of the college's 125th anniversary.

Tipping — especially on a cruise ship . . . Is there any set rule about this? . . . Well, Cruise Directors sometimes hold meetings on this for passengers . . . The $1.50 formula still holds true . . . However, it can be adjusted . . . The room steward only makes your bed once a day; the table steward has you for three meals . . . Alderman-At-Large

Robert J. Gaynor

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Attorney. B.A. in history from B.U., doctor of laws from Washington College of Law of American University; member, aldermanic Franchises & Licenses, Recodification, Public Buildings, Solid Waste and City Planning Committees.

OPEN SPACE: I favor the additional acquisition of open space; however, each should be considered on its merits. It may be possible that other governmental agencies are interested in acquiring land for open space in Newton resulting in smaller tax burden on Newton residents.

HOUSING: Some low income housing is desirable, but each proposal should be considered on its own merits.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Waste disposal, public and mental health, air and water pollution, traffic control.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. School Committees should have less power to determine the school budget. The absolute size of the school budget should be determined by the Board of Aldermen with the advice of the School Committee.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Neighborhood residents should have some veto power over the redevelopment proposals as a whole. Consideration should be given to recreation and open space uses as well.

Joseph McDonnell

(Alderman at large, incumbent) Lawyer. Chairman, aldermanic Public Works Committee. Member, aldermanic Street Traffic and Land Use Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Would support a program to acquire open space for conservation, park and recreation purposes by bonding up to $3 million. "This could be less than $1 on the tax rate."

HOUSING: Yes. All evidence shows we need at least 120 units, preferably on scattered redeveloped sites, and not on open space. Has supported all family housing proposals.

REGIONALIZATION SERVICES: Public health services, pollution control, and solid waste disposal should be given consideration because of the nature of the problems and the possibility of superior methods of handling them.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Despite the historic role of fiscal autonomy in the development of strong public education, it should now be reexamined, with control by a two-thirds vote of the Board of Aldermen given careful consideration.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Extensive public hearings must be given any future plans by the Redevelopment Authority itself before adoption of any plan.

Edward Richmond

(Alderman at large, incumbent) Lawyer; B.S., M.A., Boston College; J.D., Boston College Law School; chairman, aldermanic Cable TV Committee; member, mayor's advisory committee on cable communications; member, aldermanic City Planning, Public Buildings, Franchises & Licenses, Solid Waste, Drug, and Recodification Committees; member, Design Review Committee; served as chairman, Designer Selection and Design Review Ordinance Committees.

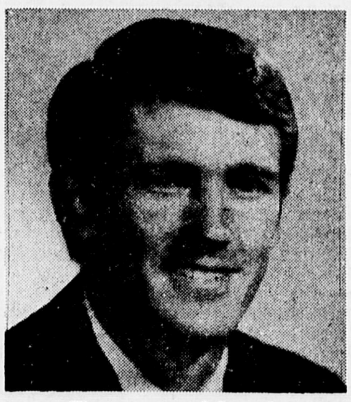
Barbara Schiller

(Alderman at large) Citizen activist, research associate, housewife. Newton Junior College. Founding member, Newton-Wellesley-Weston Council Office for Children; Newton Centennial Committee; Newton Ambulance Task Force; School Bus Safety Committee; associate, Wellmet.

OPEN SPACE: Either a flat $1 tax or a $2 million bond issue, depending on plans of Conservation Commission and Planning Department.

SCHILLER — (See Page 10)

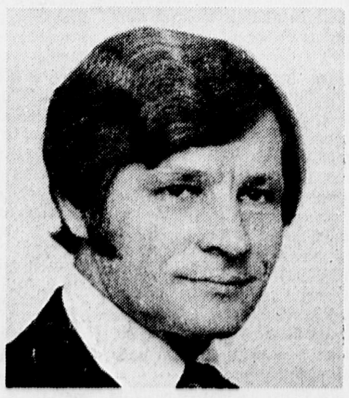


Terrence Morris

(Alderman at large) Administrator, Mass. Commission Against Discrimination. A.B., Holy Cross College; Boston College Law School, one year. Steering committee, Newton Coalition for New Policies; past president, Newton Jaycees; former ward chairman, Newton Citizens for Education.

OPEN SPACE: Favors adding $1 to tax rate because "cost of land rarely depreciates. Acquisition by speculative developers inflates land costs and puts pressure on city to allow development. Municipal acquisition affords greater flexibility."

MORRIS — (See Page 10)



Douglas Howard

OPEN SPACE: "The acquisition of open space by the city does not provide the taxpayer with the best investment of his dollar. There are many homeowners in Newton who need every tax break they can get."

HOWARD — (See Page 10)

Robert Tennant

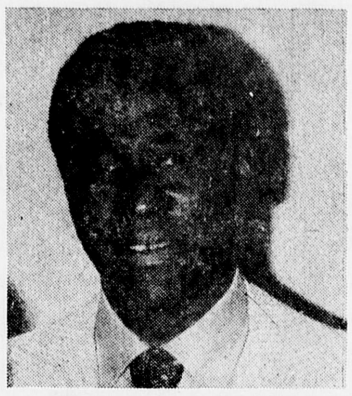
TENNANT — (See Page 10)



Matthew Jefferson

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Electrician. Boston Trade School, Hampton Naval Training; executive board, Middlesex N.A.A.C.P.; chairman, aldermanic Street Traffic Committee; member, Land Use and Public Works committees.

OPEN SPACE: No. Although I believe that the acquisition of additional open space is important, I do not think it would be wise to add further to the taxpayer's burden.

HOUSING: Yes. I would still abide by the finding of the Board of Aldermen that we need at least 200 units of low-income housing, located "anyplace where other housing is

Ward 4

Nick Nardone

OPEN SPACE: "I believe that if the city of Newton can purchase open space that is worth, for example, $200,000 say for $200,000 this is great. I would not want to see the city pay more than the fair market value."

HOUSING: Believes the city needs old-age housing more. Did not say number of units or where.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: All except fire and police should be regionalized.

NARDONE — (See Page 10)

Louis Egelson

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Technical staff MITRE; faculty, Northeastern; B.S. from Harvard, M.B.A., Harvard Business School; member aldermanic Finance, Legislation & Rules committees; chairman, aldermanic Education Committee.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, and perhaps more, but only as a guideline until all parcels designated as "high priority" have been acquired. Then, we should take another look.

EGELSON — (See Page 10)

David Jackson

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Chief electrical engineer, General Egnineering Division, United Engineers & Constructors; B.E. from Yale; chairman, aldermanic City Planning Committee; member, aldermanic Public Works and Street Traffic committees.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, for the future land needs for Main Library, swimming pools, open green areas and other future land needs such as subsidized housing.

JACKSON — (See Page 10)

Editor's Note

Questionnaires were sent to all candidates for office, regardless of whether or not they are opposed in next week's election.

Mayoral and aldermanic candidates received the following five questions, listed below with and indication of how they are identified in each candidate biography.

..Candidates were also invited to submit their pictures.

The questions and their designations are:

OPEN SPACE: Do you favor the addition of $1 on the tax rate annually for the acquisition of 'open space' by the city?

HOUSING: Do you think Newton needs low-income family housing; and if so, specifically how many units and where should they be located?

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: What municipal services do you think should be regionalized? Why?

..FISCAL AUTONOMY: Would you favor some limiting of the fiscal autonomy of School Committees? If so, how? (School Committee candidates were asked the identical question).

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: How can the Newton Redevelopment Authority better serve the interests of the neighborhood in which it operates?

Rotary Celebrates Golden Anniversary

The Golden Anniversary of the Newton Rotary Club will be celebrated on Nov. 20 with a dinner and ball at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Auburndale.

Music and entertainment will be provided by a well-known jazz group, Dr. Ryan's East Bay City Jazz Band. This group of eight professional musicians features Jane Campedelli as vocalist.

General chairman for the anniversary celebration is Wallace Moyle and he will be assisted by Thomas Larsen and William Rockwell, Jr., vice chairmen.

History editor is Jack Hoover. Master of Ceremonies is Richard Thompson. They will be assisted by a committee composed of John Balcom, Anthony Bibbo, William Brines, Joseph Craven, Alan Epstein, John Fox, John Hurney and Thomas Keevy.

The committee meets prior to the regular Rotary Club meeting, now at Valle's Steak House on Route 9, at noon on Mondays.

Presidents and their Rotary-Anns of local clubs originally sponsored by the Newton Rotary Club have been invited. Representatives from Needham, Concord, Chestnut Hill, Brookline, and Wellesley are expected to attend the anniversary celebration.

The presidents and their wives from other Rotary Clubs in the metropolitan area have also been invited to attend.

All previous and present Rotarians are also invited to attend and tickets may be secured from David Nixon, secretary, 425 Newtonville Ave., 969-3240.

Dwight Colburn, recently deceased, was Newton Rotary Club President 25-years ago when the club's Silver Anniversary was observed with a party at the Brae Burn Country Club, followed by a dinner and dance at the Normandie Room at Norumbega Park, now occupied by the Marriott Motor Hotel where the club's Golden Anniversary will be celebrated.

AJC Welcomes Cease Fire

"The American Jewish Committee warmly welcomes the news that a cease-fire has been established in the Middle East, hopefully ending the tragic destruction of life unleased by the Egyptians and Syrians on Yom Kippur," said Sherman H. Starr, chairman of the Greater Boston Chapter of the American Jewish Committee (AJC)

"Of almost equal significance, Starr said, is the link in the agreement that ties cease-fire with movement toward direct negotiations, for we are painfully aware of the four wars that have brought havoc to this unhappy part of the world during the last 25 years."

Speaking on behalf of his group, Starr said the AJC is mindful that the most generous United States support equipment to the Arab aggressors, was responsible for getting this cease-fire initiative going. "We are deeply grateful to the United States Government for this, and know that such support of Israel will be made available whenever necessary," he said.

"As the situation moves cautiously from the military to the political the AJC prays that the way will be found to contain once and for all the hatreds and misunderstandings that in the past have all but guaranteed periodic renewal of hostilities," Starr concluded.

Founded in 1906, the American Jewish Committee is this country's pioneer human relations organization. It combats bigotry, protects the civil and religious rights of people at home and abroad, and seeks improved human relations for all men everywhere.

Music Series Begins

Newton College Music Series will present an evening of Chamber Music with Boston's Solisti Da Camera, an ensemble of musicians dedicated to the performance of this style of music.

It will take place Nov. 2, 8:30 p.m. at 785 Center st., The Country Day School, Newton.

The Graphic Endorses

Next week's Newton election has a host of good candidates whose qualifications and aspirations merit success at the polls. Deciding among them, in some cases, is easy. In other cases it is as difficult for us as it is for many of the voters.

But the elective process depends on everyone's decisive choice.

Here in the opposed races are the Newton Graphic's choices:

FOR MAYOR

THEODORE D. MANN — His realistic approach and unmatched experience are assets that will be needed as the city's first four-year term mayor.

ALDERMEN

WARD TWO

EDWARD RICHMOND and TERRENCE MORRIS. In his first term Richmond was not shy about supporting open space and cultural affairs and participated beyond his own committees. Morris appears better informed than his competition and displays a sound enthusiasm.

WARD THREE

RICHARD J. BULLWINKLE has the vigilance and asks the questions that should be asked. Often casts himself as Newton's "devil's advocate" and this has been extremely beneficial.

WARD FOUR

RICHARD J. McGRATH is unrivaled in wanting to improve the public works department. Some say McGrath has a lot to learn, but he does not appear unwilling and ready to do just that.

WARD FIVE

SUSAN SCHUR anxious to fill the seat that some say has been empty too often.

WARD SIX

MICHAEL LIPOF shows genuine concern for youth and has initiated action when it was needed.

ETHEL SHEEHAN: sincere advocate of housing and recreation. She also has a great deal of political know how in the best sense of the term.

ERNEST DIETZ has the interests and needs of Newton Centre people at heart. And in the past they've known it.

WARD SEVEN

JASON SACKS acts and legislates independent of party affiliation. Not afraid to make known exactly whose side he is on. And loyalty itself is a plus factor in these times.

MELVIN NORRIS has a genuine concern for the Newton Corner area.

WARD EIGHT

ELIOT COHEN is our choice as Newton's leading alderman. In that chamber, and even, beyond his influence and intelligence are assets to the entire city.

WENDELL BAUCKMAN is the city's aldermanic link between the past and the present. Valuable.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

WARD ONE — DAVID MORTIMER tends to be solidly down to earth in the educational atmosphere that sometimes slides away from reality and need. He knows who needs help and tries to get it done.

WARD TWO — ELEANOR ROSENBLUM shows that school buildings should be functional and fundamental in the whole learning process.

WARD THREE — GERARD BYRNE long involved and interested in the city's educational facilities and programs. Election would make his interest official.

WARD FIVE — SUMNER SILTON has a fresh approach and, with direction, it will be beneficial.

WARD SIX — ROBERT COHEN has the talent to bring the committee nearer the norm which represents all interested residents, not just a few.

WARD EIGHT — ALVIN MANDELL appears to be the outstanding member of the committee. He knows exactly what the School Committee function really is.

There are some unopposed candidates we would like to mention. In Ward One Joseph McDonnell, Robert Gaynor and Andrew Magni have evidenced competence and concern that rates high. In Ward Two Thomas Concannon has in-depth knowledge of what's really going on in the city. Matthew Jefferson in Ward Three has views and insight that will be even more valuable in the days ahead. In Ward Four David Jackson bends over backwards to be fair and he's not afraid to let you know who he speaks for.

In Ward Five Sidney Small and Michael Antonellis are unopposed as aldermen at large. But their efficiency has not gone unnoticed.

Alan S. Barkin is unopposed as a Ward Eight alderman, but he ranks high in the esteem of those who look for results from that chamber.

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Exactly one year ago, I took over as editor of the Graphic. It's an easy anniversary to remember; it's Halloween again.

The transition is not without its lighter moments.

I, for one, get mail addressed to the following people: Cynthia Black, Cynthia Block, Cynthia Brown (from someone who knew it was a color, but not which one), Sidney Black and even Synthia Blacke.

I prefer the ones that come addressed to Cynthia Black with a salutation reading Dear Sir. . .

Completely Black

Anyone interested in precinct results can drop in at the office next Wednesday or Thursday. We will have charts available. Ward totals will appear in the chart in the Nov. 8 paper.

The League of Women Voters is sponsoring its annual Candidates' Night tonight. Last month, I gave them credit for moving the candidates' nights up to facilitate coverage by the newspapers. I did so in error. The Preliminary Candidates' Night was held on a Tuesday, but this one's on a Thursday again.

The League notified me of my error and said they had discussed changing their candidates' nights in future elections. Next year, we may see a story on the final candidate forum in our papers.

Were there more candidates' forums this year than in the past? It seemed to me virtually everyone was scheduling a candidates' night. It seemed everyone was also sending out a questionnaire.

It won't take readers long to notice this week that the bulk of our paper is devoted to our candidate questionnaire. We were extremely pleased with the response to it and are missing only one biography, Andrew Magni's.

To the curious: Yes, we have ordered a new sign for the office and it will be here in about two weeks. We're sensitive on this subject and everytime we're teased, we flush with embarrassment.

Troy's Smart-Alecky Answers To Dwight Hurt His Own Cause

Jerome L. Troy, who was striving to retain his status as judge during a hearing before the Governor's Council, did not help his cause with his smart-alecky answers to questions put to him by Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight.

Troy's replies to Dwight's inquiries ranged from flippant and sarcastic to insulting. That would hardly be expected from a man seeking to create the best possible impression on the public.

Judge Troy, of course, had a right to accuse Dwight of bias, but an observer could only wonder at the manner in which Troy worded his assertions.

For example, Dwight asked Troy whether certain charges against him were of a criminal or civil nature. Troy responded: "The charges are clearly civil in nature, and if you have any question, inquire of your teleprompter behind you." (Troy was referring to a legislative legal aide who sat near Dwight during the hearing.)

Troy also attacked Dwight's method of questioning him. "You tend to make statements instead of asking questions, and I find it difficult to respond to them," Troy told Dwight. "You are biased and prejudiced and are coloring the record."

Later, as Troy seemingly was trying to avoid making a direct answer to a question put to him, Dwight requested him to speak to the issue. "You're interrupting me," Troy declared. "Whenever I'm making a point, you interrupt me, and I think your interrupting me shows your bias."

Richardson May Return Home To Run For Office Next Year

Elliot L. Richardson is expected to come back to Massachusetts next year and start strengthening his political fences in preparation for a bid for either the Presidency or the U. S. Senate in 1976.

Richardson, who went out of the Nixon Cabinet with his head high and his banners flying, has a few political options open to him, but not many.

He could challenge Governor Francis W. Sargent in the GOP primary and quite likely defeat him because of the growing public dissatisfaction with Sarge's performance.

Ironically, Richardson helped to save Sargent from defeat at the 1966 Republican State Convention.

John A. Volpe, then Governor, had bestowed his political blessing on Sargent in the latter's quest for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

However, Representative Francis W. Hatch of Beverly, now the Republican leader of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, a position in which Sargent placed him three years ago, made a surprisingly strong fight against Sargent at the GOP convention.

Volpe called for help from Richardson, who was attempting to remain neutral in the Sargent-Hatch clash, and Richardson moved his large and energetic organization into the contest behind Sargent.

That turned the tide. Sargent won the nomination which was to prove a stepping stone to the Governorship when Volpe left Beacon Hill to become Secretary of Transportation.

Richardson and Sargent are distant cousins, but they never have been close politically.

What Richardson could do if he desires to hold elective office in 1975 and 1976 would be to seek the Republican nomination for Attorney General in Massachusetts next year.

Attorney General Robert Quinn is giving up the office to run for Governor, and the post Richardson relinquished when he left Beacon Hill to become Assistant Secretary of State at the start of Nixon's first term will be up for grabs.

It would be a step down for Richardson to become the Bay State's Attorney General after serving as U. S. Attorney General, Secretary of Defense and Secretary of HEW. But it would give him a base of political operations if that is what he wants.

Richardson sold his Brookline home after accepting a position in the Nixon Cabinet. But that should not pose any major problem for him.

He is an independently wealthy man who did not have to worry about how he would support his family when President Nixon instructed him to fire Archibald Cox.

Richardson was able to submit his resignation rather than sacrifice his principles and then go out jogging with his dogs and an easy mind the next morning.

His problem will be to keep himself and his name before the public after the present furor over the Watergate tapes, the firing of Cox and his own resignation subsides.

Richardson shapes up now as a potent candidate for the 1976 Republican Presidential nomination. If he fails in that effort, he could seek Ted Kennedy's seat in the Senate if Ted is the Democratic nominee for President or even challenge Ted if he runs again for the Senate.

It would be to Richardson's advantage to hold public office as he prepares to do one of those things, and the Massachusetts Attorney Generalship may be the answer.

Rep. Sacco Says New Prison Rules Are "Height Of Folly"

Representative George L. Sacco of Medford, who probably will be the Democratic nominee for Attorney General next year, has warned Governor Sargent that escalating tensions and relaxed precautions at the Walpole State Prison may soon plunge that institution into new chaos.

Sacco criticized recent changes in regulations at the maximum security prison as the "height of folly." He blasted a decision by new state corrections officials to suspend the rule requiring that all visitors to Walpole be searched for contraband and weapons. The new system provides that visitors may be searched only upon "probable cause."

The Medford law-maker also pointed out that a full-range of privileges for the prisoners has been restored, including additional visits, children's visits, lawn visits, canteen and yard privileges and the reopening of vocational shops.

Sacco asserts that the discontinuance of the searches has resulted in a sharp increase in the weapons and contraband taken into the prison by visitors. He adds that the new privileges have not produced greater cooperation by the inmates whose response, he declares, has been the slaying of two more prisoners, two more escapes and a continuing series of mounting demands.

"Under these circumstances, the Superintendent's suspension of visitor searches would appear to be the height of folly with potentially disastrous consequences," Sacco informed the Governor as he urged the immediate reinstitution of visitor searches at the highly explosive prison.

Harrington And Bartley Fill Thankless Roles As Leaders

A lot of hard work, drudgery and headaches are involved in presiding over the Massachusetts House of Representatives and State Senate.

State Senate President Kevin Harrington and House Speaker David M. Bartley have done exceptional jobs in their respective posts and have combined to improve the image of the Legislature to a substantial extent.

Their tasks are usually demanding, thankless ones, and there are times when both Harrington and Bartley must ponder the possibility of moving into positions which pay more money and provide fewer worries and heartaches.

Rumors were circulated recently that the hard-working, serious-minded Harrington might resign from the Senate to accept a position as a professional educator, a field in which Harrington is recognized as an expert. Beacon Hill would have lost an exceptionally capable public leader if that had happened.

But the latest word from the State House is that the towering Harrington, once a great college basketball player, has decided to continue as Senate president and not shift to any other position.

That is regarded as good news by most experienced Beacon Hill observers. The Massachusetts Senate never has had a more conscientious member than Kevin Harrington.

Tapes Could Destroy Nixon Or Restore Confidence In Him

For the present, at least, there seems no real likelihood of any serious impeachment proceedings against President Nixon as a result of his decision to release the Watergate tapes in their entirety.

In fact, there is real doubt that a majority of the members of Congress would have had the stomach to plunge the United States into the great crisis which would have developed from the President's impeachment if he had held to his intention to surrender only relevant portions of the tapes or to his original insistence that he wouldn't give them up at all.

But political observers can only wonder how long it will be before Nixon heads into another crisis which will shake the nation during this stormy first year of his second term in office.

There does seem to be some basis for the theory that President Nixon was primarily interested in getting Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox out of his hair even at the expense of having two outstanding men such as former U. S. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson and his deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus, go over the side.

The next big question is what the much argued-over tapes will disclose, particularly as to any advance knowledge by President Nixon of the Watergate break-in or any subsequent participation by him in the attempted cover-up. They certainly should show whether Richard Nixon or John Dean has told the truth. They could destroy Nixon or restore public confidence in him.

Law Change Seen To Mark Armistice Day On Nov. 11

Monday of last week may have been the last time we celebrated Veterans' Day on the fourth Monday in October. Next year we may be observing Armistice Day instead on Monday, Nov. 11.

A strong sentiment exists among veteran organizations for going back to the old Nov. 11 date, regardless of the day of the week on which it falls.

Veterans complain that there is little significance to the celebration on the fourth Monday in October.

Members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress also report that a move probably will be made to restore daylight saving on a 12-months-a-year basis if there is a shortage of heating oil this winter.

Daylight saving is now discontinued the last Sunday morning in October because of the farmers, but Bay State Congressmen point out that the farmers managed with two hours of daylight saving for conservation purposes during World War 2.

'A Difficult Job Well Done'

Editor, Newton Graphic:

An elected official who does an honest, credible job for his constituents is hard to find at any level of government today. And when we are fortunate enough to elect such a man, we must watch him at election time as he tries to repell the rumors and misinformation circulated by someone who has decided that he wants that job.

Such is the situation in Newton's mayorality race this fall. For the past 18 months, I have watched the workings of the mayor's administration with great admiration, and for the past six months, I have watched Mayor Mann's opponent try to dispute the many advances that have been made during this administration. But these advances are indisputable.

For example, for the first time in my memory, our tax rate has decreased. There are several sound reasons for this decrease.

1) Newton received federal revenue sharing money;

2) The county costs on the cherry sheet were favorable to us;

3) Snow removal costs were very small this year;

4) Our operating costs were kept at a minimum by sound fiscal management.

The mayor's opposition does not like this tax decrease. (I don't blame him. It makes Mayor Mann's administration look very efficient.) And so the opposition hints that and increase may be expected next year because of this year's decrease. I have investigated this rumor and have discovered that the tax rate for the first half of next year has already been set. It will be half of this year's rate, and there's no evidence to make us doubt that the factors that worked for us this year will work for us again at the end of next year.

But the tax rate is just one accomplishment to Mayor Mann's credit. There are many others. Now there are new meaningful social and financial programs for the elderly.

Ecology theories have been put into practical use through leaf composting, paper recycling and the cleaning of the Charles River, just to mention a few. The crime rate, like the tax rate has decreased, and every citizen can contact the police in an emergency by using the newly installed police call boxes throughout the city. The young, the old and the needy all have a place to go to for help since the mayor established the new department of human resources.

I must sound as if I'm giving a speech, but if the mayor was doing such an excellent job in private industry, he would get a raise and a promotion. Instead, he must constantly defend his accomplishments to anyone who chooses to attack them.

I wouldn't change our adversary election process, I just think that once in a while we should stop and say, "thank you" for a difficult job well done. And I am sure that on November 6th, the people of Newton, by their vote, will also say "thank you" to Mayor Ted Mann.

Support Honesty In Government

Editor, Newton Graphic:

This Tuesday, Newton will elect its first four year mayor. It's an important decision, and each individual should make it carefully.

As Newton taxpayers, I feel we owe it to ourselves to reject the Mann Administration's political maneuvers that gave us the largest tax increase in Newton's history last year, and a token reduction from that over-charge this year.

There's no mystery behind why the mayor refuses to answer questions about next year's tax rate.

He's borrowed money to meet the city payroll, done nothing to insure equity in revaluation, and ignored federal warnings of large fines unless something is done to improve the incinerator.

Ted Mann knows that the citizens of Newton will have to pay for these shortcuts after election day. I've heard some elected officials declare that the increase in taxes could be as high as $20. Even Mayor Clark of Waltham has said that the kind of tax gimmicks Mr. Mann has tried this year are almost "immoral and unfair."

Tuesday's the day to show our elected officials that we'll no longer tolerate these kind of games with our tax dollars. I hope each citizen will consider the facts, and then vote for honesty in government.

Traveling Meals

Editor, Newton Graphic:

In recent news stories dealing with the Mayoralty campaign, one of the candidates claimed credit for a program which is still in the embryo stage. I refer to the "Traveling Meals Of Newton" program.

It is my understanding that this much needed aid to those incapable of providing meals for themselves is the brainchild of the clergy of the churches and temples of Newton Centre, and that no money is coming from the City of Newton.

My purpose in writing this letter is not to take Mayor Mann to task, but to keep this worthwhile program from foundering for the lack of funds. I fear that if people believe the money is coming from "City Hall" they will not respond to the fund raising program of "Traveling Meals Of Newton" now underway.

What Happened To Basic Skills?

Editor
Newton Graphic:

I am tired of the double-talk; on T.V. advertisements and others; by politicians; by public relations experts; and by "professional educators," who have used our classrooms as laboratories for a testing ground for theories and programs, which after ten years have been deemed by the Ford Foundation as impossible to evaluate in terms of being successful or unsuccessful.

Double-talk is a pollutant of our language, of the symbols whereby we communicate meaning. If we accept it without thought, we accept half truths or outright lies.

For many years I was double-talked into believing that my children would learn to spell, punctuate and write English, without drills, spelling tests or grammar. My 11th grader never did learn. And what are Social Studies if an 11th grader (honors graduate of a Newton Jr. High), does not know that Congress is made up of the Senate and the House of Representatives? Neither did he ever learn any American georgraphy.

No academic discipline can ever be successfully taught by denying its underlying structure. Neither math, chemistry, physics, nor English can be understood, unless one has some understanding of its structure.

Newton parents, do not be double-talked into believing nonsense. In a structureless, chaotic society, our students are crying for some direction. Please return to them the legacy of some traditional learning methods which have withstood the tests of the ages.

As a believer in public education, I must confess that my own children are now in private schools.

Three years ago, the principal of Newton High said that interest in Latin was waning and we would probably not see the return of it in our time. If as parents you disagree & do not accept this idea, or any other (and I know there are many of you, because I have heard you mumble your discontent), then voice your concern to the school principals, the School Committee, the superintendent and the teachers.

As parents and taxpayers, the mandate is yours. Stand up and be heard. Voice your concerns through these channels. Do not accept the double-talk without evaluating it.

School Department May Need $500,000 More For North High

A controversy over the relative worth of the monthly status report of the Newton Public Schools' Support Services Division led to the revelation that the city may need as much as $500,000 to complete the New North High School.

Labeling the document a "non-report," committee member Richard M. Douglas of Ward 3 objected "to a pattern all too familiar by which problems are not brought to our attention."

"I am desperately trying to get factual reports that advise the School Committee of existing problems," stated Douglas.

School Committee Chariman Manuel Beckwith of Ward 4 joined Douglas and instructed the school administration to "communicate the committee's exasperation" to John Gilleland, director of Support Services. Gilleland was on vacation and missed the meeting.

"This report isn't even bare bones. It is less than bare bones," explained Beckwith.

Several other committee members agreed verbally with Douglas, but indicated they would let his remarks stand as their own opinion of the controversial report.

Douglas took special issue with the first item of the report with dealt with the status of construction and equipment purchasing at the New North High School.

In that portion of the report, the School Committee was informed that the "various (equipment) requests and needs will be tabulated, staff recommendations on priorities noted for review and appropriate budget action taken.

"Some examples," continued the report, "are library air conditioning and asbestos shielding."

It was the last sentence that raised the wrath of Douglas who stated that "some is not enough."

According to Douglas, the report was written on Oct. 19, and since that time, he and his colleagues have been deluged with complaints about the heating and cooling systems at the new school.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink then offered the School Committee what he termed "a rough detailed report" of monies already spent on equipment purchases and equipment still to be ordered.

In doing so, Fink raised the possibility of an additional $500,000 needed, over and above already approved monies, to completely equip the still to be finished, but occupied, building.

"Of the total money approved," Fink explained, "$424,361 has already been spoken for."

"The school department thus has a balance of approximately $75,639 to finish equipping the high school," he continued.

"However," Fink added, "we estimate that to complete unmet needs for public spaces in the building we will have to come up with $202,483.53."

Additional equipment requests for the rest of the high sschool including the technical vocational areas raises the needed amount to $477,628.

"That's what happens to an $18 million building with only an appropriation of $500,000 for equipment," Fink explained to the School Committee.

Douglas added that the possibility of an additional $500,000 to complete the building did not represent "a failure or forsight on anyone's part, but a denial of our original request."

"An appropriation of $1 million is normal for a building of that size and cost," Fink explained in obvious reference to the School Committee's original request.

"I have instructed the high school principal to provide us with a breakdown of equipment needs so we can provide for them in next year's budget," Fink added.

Public Buildings Commissioner Emil G. Larson then addressed himself to Douglas' original objection to the Support Services report.

"If you would like," Larson asked, "I will elaborate" on the status of construction at the new school.

According to Larson, the heating system was finally installed properly over this past weekend, all fire alarm boxes are being replaced with more difficult to tamper with devices, and the library air conditioning problem will be solved between now and next spring.

The heating problem was the result of improperly calibrated valves which were overriding the thermostats throughout the building, and they have all been recalibrated, according to Larson.

"We are," he continued, "on a skakedown cruise and have to expect some problems."

"It will take three full days of below 40-degree weather to produce a final check on the heating system," he told the School Committee.

"The fire alarm boxes are being replaced by devices which contain glass shields over the activating arms and the cost will be borne by the city because they were not in the original specifications," Larson explained.

At this point Ward 8 committee member Alvin Mandell added, "this makes one question the forsightedness of people who developed the specifications."

Larson also told the School Committee that the air conditioning problem in the library would be solved with the introduction of a $10,000 cooling coil, another item not included in the original specifications and therefore paid for by the city.

In other unrelated action, Ward 7 committee member Dorothy Reichard presented an intermim report on the bus transportation problems confronting the school department and won approval for her motion to extend the period of free bus service until Jan. 31.

"We just did not have enough time to complete a thorough report, and the complexities of the situation demands more study," Mrs. Reichard told the School Committee.

The City Engineering Department is currently drawing up new maps to delineate limits and these will eventually be used by Dr. Vincent Silluzio of the schools' Research Division to determine paying and non-paying students for the bus service.

The School Committee also voted to request approval from the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor for an exchange of parcels of land with the Recreation Department at the site of the Davis School on Waltham St. in West Newton.

The proposed swap would facilitate renovation at the school. The School Committee would transfer 16,000 square feet of its land for 15,000 square feet of recreation land.

The change would allow construction of a school addition and a parking lot while the School Committee would be responsible for relocating a baseball diamond.

Conservators Begin Norumbega Talks

The Newton Conservation Commission will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 7, at 8 p.m. in Room 220, City Hall, for an exchange of information and ideas with Frederick Fish of Kanavos Enterprises concerning the remainder of Norumbega Park bordering the Lakes Section of the Charles River in Auburndale.

Exploration and review of past and current attitudes relative to the Norumbega land are part of the Commission's objective to complete the Charles River portion of its open space plan by the summer of 1974.

With a grant from the Ford Foundation and matching money appropriated by the Board of Aldermen, the Conservation Commission and the Planning Department have engaged a professional planner, William D. Giezentanner, to provide the technical assistance for detailed preparation of the Charles River frontage and pathway plan.

The Waltham Conservation Commission has also received a Ford Foundation grant to plan a Charles River recreation system. The landscape architecture consultants, John Wacker and Associates, have been hired to do the Waltham work.

Meetings of the Conservation Commission are open to the public.

Pianist Presents School Recital

The Music Department of Newton North High School proudly presents Arthur MacKenzie, internationally known pianist, in a recital on Tuesday, Nov. 6, in the school auditorium at 1:45 p.m. to which the public is cordially invited.

He has just returned from his annual tour of Europe where he gave concerts in Scotland, England, Holland, Austria, and Belgium.

Included in his program on Nov. 6, will be pieces he will be presenting at Jordan Hall, Boston, on Nov. 11, and at Carnegie Hall, New York, on Nov. 16.

New York Times reviews in the past have acclaimed him "as a major keyboard talent" and "phenomenal."

In the future, Westminster will be releasing a recording by him consisting of works by Chopin, Scarlatti, Scriabin, and others.

Towers Agreement Nears Decision

Barring another set of unforseen events, the Chestnut Hill Towers and the Newton Community Development Foundation will have completed and signed an agreement for the provision of low-income housing in time for a vote by the Board of Aldermen next Monday (Nov. 5) on the Towers' request for extension of permissive use.

The Towers, a luxury condominium complex of 428 units to be constructed in Chestnut Hill, was found to have been operating without permission since 1971, when the 1966 permissive use granted by the board expired, and in September was ordered to stop work on the site.

In its efforts to have the permissive use extended, the Towers offered to participate in conjunction with the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF), in the provision of 50 units of housing on a parcel of land adjoining the Towers property and owned by NCDF — the so-called Hamlet St. site.

Twenty of the housing units were to have been offered to the Newton Housing Authority for its subsidized leased housing program for low-income families. The remainder of the units would have been rented to moderate-income families or at market value.

As this proposal neared final agreement by the Towers and NCDF, Towers developer Albert Goodman, who had been out of the country during earlier negotiations conducted by lawyers Richard Lovell and Christopher Connolly and co-developer Mario DiCarlo, attended a Land Use Committee meeting on the Towers.

Goodman called the agreement that had been worked out by NCDF and the Towers, and signed by DiCarlo, "totally unacceptable."

Goodman's counteroffer was either to build housing on a DiCarlo-family parcel on Rowe St., West Newton, or to give the Newton Housing Authority $150,000 to help it build its own housing.

Goodman repeatedly said at Tuesday night's meeting that he does not want to deal with any private enterprise, that he would rather pay $150,000 and not be involved in building any housing.

Several aldermen have wanted to attach a written condition to the extension of permissive use that would guarantee compliance with whatever agreement was arrived at, but Goodman said that any such condition would "kill" the $30 million financing arrangement he had with a Philadelphia bank.

The financing was due to expire on Oct. 31, but Goodman managed to obtain an extension until Nov. 15 in order to give the Board of Aldermen time in which to act on the extension.

The new agreement presented to the Land Use Committee this week offers three alternatives. First is the setting up of a limited partnership with NCDF that would give NCDF full control of the design, construction and operation of 50 units of housing.

The Towers would pay NCDF a total of $150,000, $37,500 after the Towers permissive use extension is granted and $112,500 when NCDF successfully obtains financing for construction from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.

An alternative, if NCDF is not able to obtain financing commitment within 18 months or has not started construction within 24 months, the Towers would advance $150,000 to assist in construction of 50 units of housing on Rowe St., 20 of which would be for low-income families and administered by the Housing Authority.

The last alternative, if the first two fail, is that the Towers Trust would pay $125,000 (or $150,000 if no advance has been paid to NCDF) to the Newton Housing Authority.

Some points in the most recent agreement remain to be smoothed out even after the six-hour Land Use Committee meeting this week, but most members expect that on Monday night a signed agreement will be presented.

The outlook on the final vote is cloudy. Alderman Joseph McDonnell said Tuesday night that he will still offer his amendment to the proposed board order of extension to forbid sale of more than 350 units of the 428 Towers apartments unless the Towers has complied with terms of the agreement.

Some other aldermen are opposed to construction of the Towers on ecological or traffic grounds.

It's Time For Flu Shots

Sniff! ! It appears that this could be a banner year for that annual pest we know as the flu. The State Department of Public Health tells us that effects from two strains of influenza will probably reach epidemic proportions this winter.

The London strain of Influenza A first made its appearance in Massachusetts last winter. It continues this year and will strike particularly those communities which were either spared or had a relatively small incidence of this disease last year. A new Hong Kong strain of Influenza B most likely will make an appearance in Massachusetts this winter after about three years of absence.

Flu seems to come on suddenly, but actually takes one to three days to develop. The inhaled virus invades both upper and lower respiratory tracts. Common discomforts include headache, muscular pains and lack of appetite. Other irritations are puffy and burning eyes, blocked hearing, dry cough, sore throat, nausea and fever. Temperature goes up quickly during the first day . . . usually to 101 or 102. Then it reaches a peak probably not higher than 103. The fever lasts from three to seven days.

Decrease in the fever may usher in more nose stuffiness, worsened cough, and perhaps some pus in the discharges from nose and throat. From that point on, recovery is swift, though fatigue and a loose cough for a few weeks is common.

For most people, doctors say to stay in bed as long as the sickness is severe . . . and probably for two days after the fever is gone. The temperature of the room should be moderate and the humidity should be kept high. Flu sufferers with a high fever should take a lot of fluids and perhaps something like aspirin to ease the pain and bring down the temperature. Of course, the family physician can prescribe the best course of action.

Vaccination each year is the only satisfactory way to prevent or control flu. Immune or antigenic shifts and changes in structure of the virus render past vaccines useless. This leaves large population groups susceptible to infection even though they were vaccinated previously.

This year's influenza vaccine is approximately 60 to 70 per cent effective in preventing an attack of the disease. However, should one develop flu after receiving the vaccine, the disease is likely to be milder. Total immunization includes two subcutaneous injections about two to four weeks apart. The flu will strike in this area around Thanksgiving, so vaccinations should be scheduled for completion by mid-November.

Flu lowers body resistance. Yet, children and healthy adults who follow their doctor's advice almost always experience an uneventful recovery with only minor after-effects, and do not necessarily need the vaccine. Uncomplicated influenza practically never kills but often paves the way for respiratory invasion by other organisms. This most common complication is pneumonia.

Most important, the flu tends to have a snowballing effect on people already suffering from chronic disease. One disease leads to decreased body resistance leading to another disease. Risks for this group are quite high.

Gustave A. Laurenzi, M.D., president of the Massachusetts Thoracic Society, advises "total immunization against flu each year for the following groups:

A. People of all ages who have chronic debilitating conditions such as emphysema, broncho–pulmonary disease, arteriosclerotic and hypertensive heart disease, congenital and rheumatic disease, and tuberculosis.

B. Persons with diabetes and other chronic metabolic disorders such as renal insufficiency.

C. Pregnant women.

Anyone above the age of 50 years.

E. Those who provide essential community services.

Again, the family physician can best decide if you should get the vaccine."

Influenza vaccine is produced in chick embryo and should not be given to those who react allergically to eggs or egg products. Any acute respiratory disease or other active infection is sufficient reason for postponing immunization.

If you want to receive the vaccination, call your doctor or your local health department. For more information on influenza or lung disease in general, contact your local Christmas Seal organization, the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Homeopathy is the branch of medical science which combats disease by using substances which produce effects on the body like those of the disease itself.

"Hockey Afternoon" Nov. 8 Will Aid Children's Lobby

Governor and Mrs. Francis W. Sargent will sponsor an afternoon of hockey at the Boston Garden, Sunday, November 18, at 2 p.m., featuring Bobby Orr and a first-time competition between the U.S. and Canadian Junior Hockey League teams.

All proceeds of this "hockey afternoon" fundraiser will go to the Massachusetts Children's Lobby, a non-partisan children's rights organization which monitors and promotes legislation effecting child care, drug programs, battery and abuse and services for exceptional children.

Entertainment will be provided by sports writers and broadcasters who will take to the ice between game periods and provide a "Humor hockey" competition.

Bobby Orr will coach the New England all stars, the best 15-19 year-old Junior Hockey players from the New England area. Canada will be represented by Quebec's Repentigny Olympic team. A scholarship to Bobby Orr's hockey camp will be awarded as a door prize.

Tickets can be bought at the Boston Garden or through the children's Lobby, 3 Joy street, Boston. They will also be sold at the house of Sports at 566 High street, Dedham.

OPEN SPACE: Acquisition must be part of a total budget and tax picture. "I favor open space acquisition and wish evaluation on a parcel by parcel basis."

HOUSING: "My principal concern at this time is for the low and moderate income people we now have in the city fighting to maintain privately owned residences."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: We are studying regionalized trash disposal. No general conclusions can be made at this time.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "By electing a School Committee that has a sense of fiscal responsibility."

OPEN SPACE: No. More study needed of land available and its cost before any commitment of funds.

HOUSING: Yes. The number can be determined by deciding whether the housing would be for present Newton citizens. Should be built where rehabilitation is need and where old buildings can be demolished and replaced with new housing.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Most particularly waste disposal. Might be the only answer to city's long-range needs.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. "I would continue autonomy only in the areas of teachers' salaries and school programming." All other fiscal areas should be brought under a scrutiny other than that of the School Committee

HOUSING: "At least 300 units throughout the city, with no one site to have more than 35 units. Prefer infill or rent-subsidy housing."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: "Wste disposal, because the state is already pressing us and finding fault with the way it is done in the city." Also health services; more efficient on regional basis because of high costs.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. "I hear a lot in the city about our tax base. It may be time to sacrifice some of our tax base for open spaces to get a balance in the city."

HOUSING: Yes, about 120 units. We should not put a stigma on it by calling it "low-income housing." The Housing Authority could start by purchasing single or double lots on finished streets where there are no betterment costs, so there is no "hassle" to building this type of housing.

MARK WHITE
HAS BEEN WORKING
FOR NEWTON . . .

Discovered violation of zoning law and caused Board of Aldermen to review Chestnut Hill Towers in terms of its ecological, financial, and traffic impact.

2. TO PROTECT PROPERTY TAX PAYERS—

By working on a class suit to recover the gain realized by the banks on property tax money held in escrow by the banks. If successful this suit will result in hundreds of dollars being refunded to Newton taxpayers.

3. TO DEVELOP NEW TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM —

Proposed Dial-A-Ride which encourages use of mass transit and discourages dependence on the automobile.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Over the years the School Committee has demonstrated fiscal irresponsibility. The most expensive school buildings do not necessarily make the best citizens."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "They should find out what the voters want and then strive to achieve it." City should be run like a business, and while it cannot make a profit, should not run in the red.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: "My thoughts are still in formation and not yet clear. Need for regionalization cannot be separated from kinds of regional control, if the only available regional structure likely to be available is either inadequate, unresponsive or uncontrollable."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. Limit annual rate of increase of cost per pupil to rate of increase in cost of living.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By trying to act like a service corporation which has to sell its services instead of like an authority.

OPEN SPACE: Yes.

HOUSING: "I would suspect that more than 200 units are now needed . . . I would support the concept of low-income housing in two family homes in any location in the city which is currently zoned for two-family housing."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal, because no one municipality can afford the costs necessary to incinerate according to state air-pollution standards. Also certain recreation facilities, such as conservation and wetland acquisitions, and transportation.

FISCAL AUTONOMY No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: In general by acting as a municipal, not a state–level, agency.

HOUSING: "Ward 2 contribution: 8 units at 613 Watertown St., 20 units at Security Mills property, 4 units at 931-939 Washington St., 20 units on Maguire Ct., 12 units on site of Newton Junior College; 6 units at 360 Crafts St.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Collection and disposal of solid waste; purchasing, to achieve economies.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Not in favor of limiting. "Present system of electing School Committee gives the voter-taxpayer sufficient means of controlling irresponsible spending."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Should give the project area advisory committee veto power subject to reversal by unanimous vote of the authority. Neighborhood residency should be requirement for at least one Authority member.

HOUSING: Yes, but no one knows how much is enough. Scattered and kept unidentified within moderate income neighborhoods.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Specialized or impersonal services such as rubbish disposal or traffic control that can be provided more efficiently because of low demand from, or complex interfaces between, individual municipalities.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Favor limiting absolute autonomy only to direct educational expenditures and allowing other operational items cut by two-thirds vote of aldermen.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "Authority has been aloof and dictatorial. Must work closely with the people affected, listening to their concerns and applying sensitivity and responsiveness, plus willingness to make reasonable compromises."

HOUSING: Newton should fulfill its obligation and present plan in providing the required low-housing in order to compete effectively for Revenue Sharing funds.

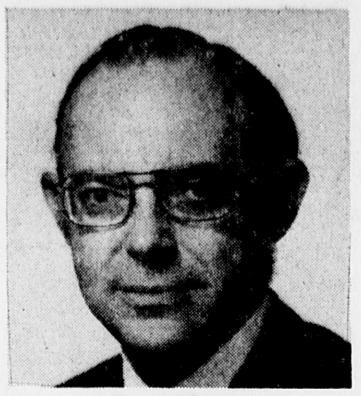
REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste — expanded beyone Newton-Waltham; Police and Fire services should not be considered at this time.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Providing the State Legislature would allow budget control, I would support limiting the fiscal autonomy of the School Committee.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Should implement programs for the citizens of Newton in order to inform them of the functions of the NRA and the issues before it.

Alderman-At-Large

Ward 8



Eliot Cohen

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Attorney, B.A. from UMass; J.D. & LL.M. in Taxation from B.U.; president of the Board of Alderman; former vice-president and chairman of the Legislation & Rules Committee; member Public Works and Street Traffic Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, "subject to the terms and conditions of the acquisition itself and the nature and location of the space involved. "I do not favor a compounded $1 increase in the tax rate every year.

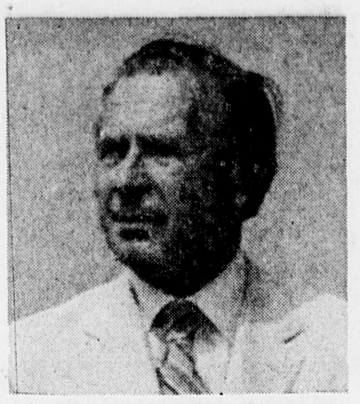
REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste; purchasing and storage of materials and supplies.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes, with reference to new construction, repairs and capital improvements of school buildings. Mayor and Board should have right to cut or eliminate the appropriation requested and School Committee should have the right to override the reduction by a two-thirds vote.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "By being sympathetic, understanding, and listening to the views of the neighborhood, together with the neighborhood councils organized for the specific redevelopment in question. Action taken by the Authority should be in conjunction with the views expressed by the neighborhood group."



Wendell Bauckman

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Sales representative and consultant; Norwich University, Boston University, president emeritus of the Board of Aldermen; member Finance and City Planning committees.

OPEN SPACE: Yes.

HOUSING: 200 units, scattered

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

Leland White

(Alderman at large) College student. Boston University. Newton Coalition Steering Committee; president, Newton Youth for Change; Newton Fair Housing member.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. All existing open space should be purchased by the city and put into a land bank.

HOUSING: Yes. Townhouses (two or three units in each) could be built on land now occupied by condemned or abandoned structures.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Police, recreation, mass transportation, health and drop-in centers, public works, street and road maintenance, sewers and solid waste. More efficiency.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "A more diverse set of members should be appointed to the NRA." Future appointments should be based on qualifications and "not patronage from the mayor."

located provided sufficient space is available."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste, "provided reasonable means could be worked out that would satisfy both the needs and interests of the communities involved.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. I would do it similar to the way we fix other budgets, but with two exceptions: the Board of Aldermen should have authority to restore cuts made by the Executive Branch; and the authority to increase or decrease the budget by a three-fourths majority vote.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By making an honest effort to find out what the people want; by talking out differences that might exist; by involving as much of the neighborhood as possible in the planning stage; by proceeding with a mutually agreed plan consistent with good planning and adherence to governmental regulations.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. The City Planning Committee is now requesting funds for appraisal of 100 acres to be possibly acquired by 1975 by $1-2 million bond issue.

HOUSING: Yes. "Scatterization, possibly duplex units (low density) in as many locations as would be suitable, i.e. zoning availability plus structural planning."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste, in the distant future "after present incinerator has proved its usefulness." Also distant planning of regionalization of school systems." 'No man is an island.'"

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Limiting, yes. Checks and balances by Board of Aldermen and-or mayor to get best value of tax dollar for best school system possible."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "By paying closer attention to the thinking and requests of qualified citizens in the neighborhood affeeted, yet not being controlled by local groups or political pressures."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal and mass and intercity transportation.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "I would favor limiting fiscal autonomy of the School Department's budget for maintenance of school buildings and the Division of Administration and Business Services."

OPEN SPACE: Favors open-space acquisition, but can't answer dollar amount. Look for federal and state funds.

HOUSING: Newton needs both low-and moderate-income housing. The "10 per cent rule" will increase inventory. Rehabilitation is an alternative. location and number part of capital improvement program.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Recreation, transportation, CAT, possibly solid waste disposal. Regionalization can bring economic, social and ecological benefits. Problems of surrounding communities can and do affect Newton.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Yes. Amend state law to allow aldermen to consider school budget within context of total municipal budget and return or turn down exessive budget requests."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By being responsibe to neighborhood concerns and encouraging neighborhood input to reduce possible polarization. NRA appointments should keep neighborhood concerns in mind.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "By getting to the original intent of redevelopment, taking blighted areas and develop them in a fashion that would blend in with and serve the needs of the neighborhoods."

preserve our remaining open space in accordance with the Conservation Commission report.

HOUSING: Yes. Number of units to be determined by the Planning Dept. study-developments of five units maximum per development contingent upon land availability, environmental and aesthetic considerations and neighborhood input.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Purchasing, solid waste, health and firefighting–to save tax dollars by greater efficienty.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: There should be greater neighborhod input by appointing to the NRA a member of each area affected.

vice-chairman, South Side, Newton Democratic Committee; chairman, Ward 6 Democratic Committee; Lector, Sacred Heart Church.

OPEN SPACE: "Yes. Each of us will thus be paying an equal share for the enjoyment of nature and for prohibiting further exploitation of the environment."

HOUSING: "Definitely–200 units suggest upgrading of blighted areas, such as Waltham St., West Newton, 10 units."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal, computer sharing, police and fire protection, purchasing, junior colleges. Better use of equipment and manpower, resulting in cost advantages.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "Too many sad cases of politics mingling with schools." Board of Aldermen now has control over construction of buildings.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "No. It is limited now by elections. If the people don't like it, they can 'turn the rascals out.' "

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "By better public relations. Goals are often the same but the communications gap is what causes the differences."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Not sure what services, but will "be open to new ideas."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Closer communication between the Board of Aldermen and School Committee may be the answer. "You can't strangle the School Committee without hurting the city."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Change membership to include 2 members from each village in which the authority will operate...The taxpayers in each village should have the last say on any new developments in their villages.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Believes in quality education and keeping "education out of politics," but wants to ensure accountability and central accounting of costs and benefits for entire budget. Suggests two-thirds aldermanic review.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: NRA should learn from urban-renewal projects elsewhere–close working relationship with community groups, sensitivity to their needs and relocation preference are mandatory.

Impeachment Resolution

A resolution urging the Massachusetts congressional delegation to work for the impeachment of President Nixon and another asking its support of an appointment of an independent special prosecutor were passed this week by the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee.

The first, offered at last week's meeting of the full Board of Aldermen by Ald. Richard McGrath, failed to obtain a vote to suspend the rules and was thus referred to the L&R Committee.

In discussion this week, Ald. Louis Egelson advocated the amendment of McGrath's resolution to delete the alternative of resignation of the President.

McGrath's resolution states, "Whereas, the actions of President Nixon have developed a crisis in the government which is unprecedented of the history of the United States...

"Whereas, the actions of President Nixon indicate that he is not able to ease the crisis but is persisting on a course that seemingly can only result in disaster for the government of the United States...

"Be it resolved that we the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newton, reluctantly but urgently ask the Massachusetts delegation to the Congress of the United States to initiate and-or fully cooperate with the efforts which will result in the impeachment of President Nixon."

The second resolution, composed at the L&R Committee meeting, calls for the congressional delegation to support action "favoring the appointment of a special prosecutor for the Watergate grand juries, independent of the Executive branch, and that said prosecutor be so empowered with statutory authority to pursue this investigation freely and in lawful manner."

Another resolution, proposed several months ago by Ald. Robert Tennant, which would "give praise to those who labored to find the key to this new era of peace, honor, and hope," was denied 5-2 by the committee.

All items will be voted on at the Nov. 5 meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

OPEN SPACE: Favors city acquisition of open spaces, which "should be accomplished by long-range planning and acquisition over a period of time, payment to be made as the need arises."

HOUSING: The need has been demonstrated. "As many sites as possible scattered throughout the city, and redevelopment by the Housing Authority of existing structures."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Library, public works, incineration, leaf composting, transportation, water and sewer. Will "produce better efficiency and reduce costs."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "No."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By closer communication with the residents affected "so that the authority can understand the problems and consequences of their action."

Fleurs des Siecles by Gorham

These exquisite floral arrangements of enameled and jewel-finished metal flowers have been designed by brilliant American designer Jane Hutcheson. Taking inspiration from 17th and 18th century Vincennes Porcelaine floral pieces, found now only in museums and private collections, she has created a new American art form of great value today--of greater value tomorrow.

Reminiscent of the jeweled treatment utilized by Faberge the great Russian court jeweler, in decorated enameled object d'art, each piece, each leaf and flower has been hand-assembled, handcrafted and hand-enameled.

Each flower and miniature jeweled cluster is mounted on slim gold plated wire, giving vibration to the arrangements which are created by artisans under the direction of Mrs. Hutcheson. Arrangements are color and style coordinated to fine containers reproduced from 18th century porcelains and crystal imported from all over the world.

The Fleurs des Siecles collection embraces all ages. Each arrangement in the presentation group is a work of artistic creativity. Truly an item for the collector of fine art.

Mad About Hats

Hats are back.

The current vogue of shorter, less teased hair has prompted the return of no-nonsense hats. Long a favorite, the fur kind that is so flattering is reappearing in both fake as well as the "real thing." Everything from fun hats to elegant satin turbans will protect ears and scalp from icy winds this winter.

Of course if you knit, you can whip up a pull-down head-hugger while watching your favorite television show. And if you happen to have two skeins of Bernat Berella Dreamspun (or a similar type yarn), a pair each of straight knitting needles Nos. 5 and 7 (or any size needles that will give the stitch guage given below Basic Rules) you might want to knit the following attractive head-hugger. But first, some basic knitting rules, courtesy Bernat Yarn:

Fashions By Ruth Lenson

BASIC RULES

Stitch Gauge

The term "Stitch Gauge" is the most important part of all knitting directions, since the sizing of any knitted garment is planned on this gauge. You MUST work to the gauge which is given or your finished work will not be the size indicated in the directions.

Stockinette Stitch

K 1 row, P 1 row alternately when working on straight needles. When working round and round on a circular needle or double point needles, knit every round.

Garter Stitch

Knit every row. It will take 2 rows to make 1 ridge.

Ribbing

On the first row work in the ribbing pattern given. On all other rows, K over K sts and P over the P sts.

To Slip A Stitch

Whenever the directions specify a sl st, always insert the right hand needle in the st to be slipped as if to P, unless otherwise indicated.

Joining Yarn

ALWAYS join a new ball of yarn at the beginning of a row.

Markers

When work specifies the use of a marker, use a small round paper clip for this purpose. In working, always slip this marker from one needle to the other.

K . . . . . knit	dec . . . . . decrease
P . . . . . purl	tog . . . . . together
st(s) . . stitch(es)	inc . . . . . increase

GAUGE: 4 sts equal 1 inch 10 rows (5 ridges) equals 1 inch

Directions:

Using smaller needles and 2 strands of yard, cast on 100 sts. K 12 rows (6 ridges) in garter st. Change to larger needles and continue in garter st until piece measure 5 inches. SHAPE TOP: Row 1: *K8, K2 tog, repeat from * across row - 10 sts dec. Rows 2, 3 and 4: Knit. Row 5:* K7, K2 tog, repeat from across row - 10 sts dec. Rows 6, 7 and 8: Knit. Row 9: * K 6, K2 tog, repeat from * across row - 10 sts dec. Continue in this manner to dec 10 sts every 4th row until 10 sts remain. Break off yarn, leaving a 12 inch end. Pull yarn through remaining sts and draw up tightly. Sew seam.

Non-knitters can purchase these colorful knit hats for as little as a dollar, and a visit to your nearest Army-Navy store might net you an authentic French beret.

Sweaters being the most fashionable statement of the season, team nicely with big bulky knit caps or kitten-soft cashmere pull-ons. These styles are great worn with pants as well as skirts or dresses.

More tailored clothes call for the Great Gatsby era type little felt cloches and small brimmed hats. It's the tilt this year that makes hats look exciting.

There was a time when a visit to the millinery department meant that an anxious saleswoman hovered and finally felt compelled to tell you, "Sorry, but you've placed your hat too far off your face," and then painstakingly settled it carefully on the correct corner of your head.

Not any longer. It's up to you this year to pull the brim or cuff way down to your eyebrows, tilted rakishly or perched on the back of your head. As a matter of fact, the hat fabrics are so pliable you don't have to wear your hat the same way two days in a row.

The veil is in vogue again. It was first shown a year or so ago by Kenneth, the New York hair stylist king. He came up with a collection of hair and make-up "looks,"

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

A recent letter from a reader bemoaned the fact that her raised coffee cakes came out like "lead" and that though she is married for nine years and is an excellent cook, she can't bake as she would like to, was "desperate" and would love to master the art of baking with yeast.

Cheer up! If you're patient, willing to follow simple directions, there is truly no reason at all why you can't produce golden loaves of bread and magnificent coffee cakes. If you are one of those who has never experimented with yeast baking, an exciting experience is in store for you. You will not only save on the family budget, you'll also enjoy one of the finest taste treats the world has to offer.

If you have an electric mixer, you can use it for beating in the first part of the flour (a spoon and strong arm can also do the job). Gone is the tricky step of dissolving active dry yeast in water; now yeast is added with the dry ingredients. Following are some typical questions and their answers:

QUESTION: Why are all yeast baking recipes vague regarding the measurements of flour?

ANSWER: A flour "range" is given rather than an exact amount because temperature and humidity affect flour's absorption of other ingredients. Use the least amount recommended and make additions gradually.

QUESTION: How do I know when I've added enough flour to make a "soft" dough?

ANSWER: You've added enough flour when the dough pulls away from the bottom and sides of the bowl. Adding too much flour results in a heavy baked product.

QUESTION: Kneading is a problem. How do I knead and when do I stop kneading?

ANSWER: Kneading is the energetic step that changes the dough from a soft, sticky mass into a satiny smooth, non-sticky, elastic ball. Stop kneading when the dough is at this stage—you will also see little blisters on the surface. Proper kneading technique consists of a "fold-push-turn" action. Form the dough into a round ball; use your fingers to fold half the dough toward you; then using the heels of your hands, push the folded dough away from you with a rolling motion. Give the dough a one-quarter turn on the board and repeat the folding and pushing. Kneading usually takes 5-10 minutes. As you knead, add only enough flour to keep the dough from sticking to the board and your hands. Knead firmly but do not tear the dough.

QUESTION: Where do I put the dough to rise?

ANSWER: Yeast doughs rise best between 80-85 degrees. If the kitchen is cool, set bowl of dough on a rack over hot water or put bowl of dough in SLIGHTLY PREWARMED oven (do not heat oven when bowl of dough is inside). CORNMEAL YEAST BREAD

5½ to 6 cups all purpose flour
1 cup yellow cornmeal
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
2 cups milk
¾ cup (1½ sticks) margarine
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs
melted margarine
sesame seeds (optional)

In a mixing bowl combine 2 cups flour, cornmeal and yeast. In a saucepan combine milk, margarine, sugar and salt; heat until warm (120-130 degrees). Add to flour mixture; add eggs. Beat ½ minute at low speed, scraping bowl constantly, then beat for 3 minutes at high speed. Add 1 cup flour and beat 1 minute longer. Stir in enough remaining flour to make a soft dough (dough will pull away from the bottom and sides of bowl). Turn onto lightly floured surface and knead 5-10 minutes or until smooth and satiny. Place in lightly oiled bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover with foil or plastic wrap and towel; let rise on a rack over hot water until doubled (about 1 hour) punch down; divide in half. On lightly floured surface roll each half into a 9x12-inch rectangle. Beginning with 9-inch edge, roll dough tightly; seal final seam well with thumbs. Place in two 9x5x3 inch greased loaf pans, seam down. Brush with melted margarine; sprinkle tops with sesame seed (if desired). Cover and allow to stand in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 35-40 minutes, until loaves are golden brown. Turn out of pans onto wire rack to cool. Makes 2 loaves.

GOLDEN HONEY ROLLS

3¼ cups all purpose flour
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ cup cooking oil
2 tablespoons honey
2 eggs (reserve 1 egg white)

TOPPING

one-third cup sugar
2 tablespoons margarine, softened
1 tablespoon honey
1 reserved egg white

Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup; level off. In large bowl, combine 1½ cups flour, yeast and salt. In saucepan, heat milk, oil and honey until very warm (120-130 degrees F.) Add liquid and eggs to flour mixture; blend at low speed until moistened. Beat for 3 minutes at medium speed. By hand, stir in remaining 1¾ flour. Dough will be soft and sticky. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size; 45-60 minutes. Generously grease two 8 or 9-inch round cake pans or a 13x9-inch pan. Stir down dough, beating for 30 seconds. Drop tablespoonfuls of dough side-by-side in single layer in prepared pans, making about 10 rolls per pan. Combine Topping ingredients and drizzle half over rolls. Cover; let rise again in warm place until doubled in size, 20-30 minutes. Drizzle remaining Topping over rolls before baking. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake 25-30 minutes until golden brown. Immediately remove from pan. Makes about 20 rolls.

Another organization cookbook arrived, and it's a beauty! Compiled by the Easton Historical Society of Easton, Massachusetts and sent by Mr. Kenneth C. Barnes, Brighton, the cookbook is dedicated to Anna C. Ray Ames, born in Nantucket, 1840. In 1860 she married Oliver Ames 2nd who became the 35th Governor of Massachusetts. Some of her recipes are included, in her own handwriting, from her original cookbook started by her as a bride in 1860. Here is a sampling from the cookbook:

SESAME SHRIMP

¼ cup peanut oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1 pound uncooked jumbo shrimp, shelled and deveined
One-third cup toasted sesame seed

Combine 2 tablespoons peanut oil, lemon juice, soy sauce, honey, ginger and garlic. Mix well. Stir in shrimp. Cover and refrigerate for 2 hours, stirring once or twice. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons oil in a skillet over moderate heat. Fry shrimp 1½ to 2 minutes on each side, or until done. Dip each shrimp in toasted sesame seed, lightly coating each side. Place on heated serving platter. Serve hot. Serves 4-5.

We are indebted to Mrs. C. C., Walpole, who writes, "I am sending you a very old, rather homey dessert that has been in our family for ages, it seems. We serve it at our home on Sunday, after a heavy dinner.

SHERRY CUSTARD SAUCE

3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk, scalded
¼ cup sherry
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Beat egg yolks with sugar and salt. Blend in hot milk. Cook over hot, not boiling water until mixture coats a spoon. Stir now and then. Slowly beat in sherry. Remove from heat and stir in butter or margarine. Cool and serve over warm pudding.

Question: A friend recently returned from a visit to California, and she has raved about a dish called "Cioppino" (I think that is the spelling). I would really like to have this recipe because I know I won't be going to California. Thanks. — Mrs. B. C., West Roxbury Answer: One of California's most famous seafood concoctions is Cioppino, a savory fish stew with tomatoes, onions, garlic and herbs. The name, Cioppino, supposedly is a word coined by Italian fishermen who settled in the state and means "chopped a little." This highly seasoned seafood stew is similar to the bouillabaisse of France. A nice chunk of French bread is especially good for sopping up the last delicious drops of the broth.

CALIFORNIA CIOPPINO

½ cup (½ medium onion) chopped onion
2 tablespoons peanut oil
2 cups clam broth
2 cups peeled and chopped ripe tomatoes
1 cup chopped celery
1 carrot, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 bay leaves
½ pound shrimp, shelled and deveined
½ pound scallops
½ pound shucked oysters
1 can (6½ oz.) crabmeat

In a large saucepan saute onion in peanut oil. Add clam broth, tomatoes, celery, carrot, garlic, salt, mustard, oregano, paprika, and bay leaves. Simmer for 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Add shrimp, scallops and oysters. Simmer 10 minutes longer. Stir in crabmeat. Serve. Makes 12 1-cup servings.

Question: Would you please publish a recipe that would be considered a diabetic dessert? If it contains apples, I would be especially grateful. — D. D., Norwood

Answer: The following Apple Bread Pudding is: Food exchanges-serving: two-thirds meat, 1 fruit, ½ bread (carbohydrate, 16.8 grams; protein, 6.0 grams; fat, 3.2 grams) 114 calories per serving.

APPLE BREAD PUDDING

4 slices white bread
1½ cups reconstituted nonfat dry milk, scalded
4 eggs
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Dash salt
Noncaloric sweetener to equal one-third cup sugar
1 medium apple, peeled, cored, and diced
One-third cup raisins

Toast bread on baking sheet in 350 degree oven till golden, about 10 minutes. Cut in ½-inch cubes. Turn into 8¼ x 1¾-inch round ovenware dish. Add hot milk, let stand for 15 minutes. Beat together eggs, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, and noncaloric sweetener till light. Add apple and raisins; stir into bread mixture. Place in shallow baking pan; add hot water to larger pan to depth of ½ inch. Bake at 350 degrees till knife inserted off-center comes out clean, 30-35 minutes. Serve warm or chilled. Serves 8.

Our thanks to Mr. T. A., Needham, who writes: "I suppose everyone has his pet recipe for Scalloped Potatoes, and I'd like to submit mine in the hopes that your readers will enjoy them."

SCALLOPED POTATOES

4 medium sized potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
1 green pepper, shredded
1 carrot, shredded
1 medium sized onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
Chopped parsley
Salt and pepper to taste
One-third cup shredded American cheese

In a well-greased 1½ quart casserole, arrange layers of potato slices, sprinkling each layer with green pepper, carrot, and onion. In a saucepan melt butter and blend in flour; add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and smooth. Add parsley; season with salt and pepper; pour over potatoes. Sprinkle with cheese; bake, covered, in a 350 degree oven about 45 minutes; uncover and bake 45 minutes longer or until potatoes are tender and cheese is delicately browned. Serves 4.

International Persian Rug Weavers
By: Mohammed Mizani - From Persia, Specialist & Authority in Fine Oriental Rugs
Iran — Persian rugs are becoming more popular and valuable. Consider the illustrations below:
A beautiful Persian rug that will be a museum piece tomorrow.
An average Persian rug consists of 300 to 400 knots per square inch. You can just imagine how much time and effort a weaver puts into the weaving of such a beautiful rug. Persian rugs make better investments than stocks. The Dow Jones Averages showed that for the past two years, very few stockholders made a profit on their investments. A few of the Blue Chip stocks registered an annual increase in yield of 5% to 10% but because of inflation, the investors still suffered a loss.
For more information about this work of art, we urge the residents of Lexington to come and see this exciting exhibition and auction and evaluate the beautiful and magnificent object d'art at SHERATON MOTOR INN.

"Good Evening" A Funny Revue

by Marjory Adams

Peter Cook is the tall one and Dudley Moore is the short one and it would be hard to figure which is the funnier. Peter looks as if he came from good respectable farmers who carried their produce to the village market once a month. But he was educated at Radley College and Pembroke College, Cambridge, and was made president of the famous Cambridge Footlights Club in 1959. He even wrote two London shows while he was at college.

Dudley might have worked his way up from being a humble call boy in a provincial repertory theatre yet he won a scholarship to the elite Magdalen (pronounced Maudlin if you live in London) College at Oxford. Veering from a serious study of the organ to jazz, Dudley became interested in show business. And in 1959 Moore and Cook joined forces, and, with Jonathan Miller and Alan Bennett, wrote and performed "Beyond the Fringe" which ran four years in London and three years in New York, Boston, Toronto and a couple of other cities east of the Mississippi. They liked New York too much to go any farther West.

Now they are in this country again, in "Good Evening," a revue which has had a two weeks prior to Broadway showing at the Shubert and which they wrote with the idea of wowing two continents once more.

"But can you make this revue into a film?" I asked curiously, knowing that both of the gentlemen have had movie experience. They really don't know yet. Play it by ear, they answer, and then see. Very few revues have been able to bridge the great differences between the two mediums.

"If this becomes a motion picture we'll have to write it ourselves and that would take too long," complained Peter. "Some of the present material might become outdated."

They have no intention of poking fun at Watergate in their show. "It's much funnier on TV, day by day," says Dudley. "Nothing we could write in jest would be half as amusing as the truth. So why try."

Together they played motor car racers in Ken Annakin's elaborate comedy "Monte Carlo Bust" and the picture laid a very large egg. But Federico Fellini became enamored of Peter, whose face he said, must be in his next film.

"I asked him what the film was about," said Peter, somewhat flattered. "Fellini said the subject matter meant nothing. I asked him what role I was to play, and did I wear a costume or was I to play the part nude. He replied that none of these things mattered in the least. I was a Fellini type and that was that."

"Then he asked for my birth date. When I told him he reacted with horror. 'You are a Scorpio,' he screamed. I can never work with a Scorpio.'

"So that's the reason why I didn't appear in 'Satyricon' which was a disappointment. I'd like to have worked with Fellini."

"Bedazzled and "The Wrong Box" made in England, won them a large cinema public in the more sophisticated cities like London and Edinburgh. But it's their satirical revue humour which has made them a sure success in Australia.

Discussing the differences between English and American audiences, as well as Australians, the two men think the Aussies and the Yanks show their enthusiasm a little more than the English. In Australia, however, if they don't like your act, they let you know loudly. "The Americans are politer, like the English," the actors commented.

The two comedians are near of an age - Peter was born in 1937 and Dudley in 1935. For press purposes they wrote biographies of each other, which is new in theatrical circles but refreshing. Publicity men display little humour in their praise pieces.

According to Dudley Peter would like to be Elvis Presley above all men, has ripped out the front seats of his battered Citroen to indicate to his public that he is a man of simple tastes, and spends his spare time playing the horses or improving his golf game.

In return, Peter says that Dudley probably bribed his way into Oxford, where mingling with his betters resulted in an effete upper class accent; that he studied women with the same enthusiasm he gave to music, and that Mae West was his ideal of true womanhood.

"Like may smallish men - Napoleon and Hitler to name two - Dudley has a superficial charm and warmth that deceives many. Underneath there lurks a demented sadist, capable in private of unspeakable deeds. It is my personal belief that his secret ambition is to initiate World War Three," is how Cook writes of Moore.

"Good Evening" was brought to Boston by Alexander H. Cohen and Bernard Delfont. Cohen has made a specialty of presenting this type of show - and his successes include "An Evening With Mike Nichols and Elaine May," "Maurice Chevalier at 77" and Marlene Dietrich's One Woman Show.

Cinema Capsule

SIDDHARTHA is as beautiful a film as ever brought to the United States from India. Exquisite is a word you don't often see today except to describe jewelry or certain forms of art—it is seldom used in the cinema world. Yet it is the perfect description of this picture.

Based on the idealistic and philosophical book by Herman Hesse, Nobel prize winner from Germany, the picture won the Silver Lion award at the 1966 Venice Film Festival with a cast headed by Shashi Kapoor and Simi Garewal, the most successful and beloved of the native Indian players. Their acting together is poignant and passionate, as they become lovers and finally separate when Siddhartha leaves his worldly joys to turn back to his former quest for soul peace. Some of the most magnificent palaces in Bharatput were lent to Conrad Rooks, the producer, director and adaptor of the work. Especially effective are the scenes of a trek through the forests by the holy men, called Sadhus. This part of the picture is wholly authentic.

Combining spiritual values with photographic loveliness, the story follows the life of a young Brahmin who discovers, after his hair has turned gray and his body has become bent through hard physical labor, that there are no gurus who can teach others what life means. You must find out meaning and peace inside yourself.

Ski Swap At Blue Hills This Weekend

The Massachusetts Junior Ski Club will be holding its second annual 128 Ski Swap at the Blue Hills Ski Area this Saturday and Sunday, November 3 and 4. Over 4,000 items of new and used ski equipment, clothing, and other ski items have been lined up for the occasion—all at bargain prices.

The purpose of the ski swap, according to a club spokesman, is to allow people to come and buy and sell used, but good, ski equipment. Youngsters especially outgrow their equipment in a year or two and can sell their outgrown equipment while buying some new equipment that fits.

To be sure that everyone will find what they need the club, which sponsors a complete skiing program including lessons, transportation, and supervision for local youngsters, has lined up truck loads of new and used equipment from various sources.

The swap will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days and is open to everyone.

Armenian Churches To Mark 75th Anniversary

Armenian Churches in Eastern Massachusetts will mark the 75th anniversary of the founding of the Armenian Church Diocese of America with an ecumenical church service of praise and thanksgiving on Thursday, Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. at the Holy Trinity Armenian Church of Greater Boston, 145 Brattle st., Cambridge.

Presiding at the church service will be Most Rev. Archbishop Torkom Manoogian, Diocesan Primate of the Armenian Church of America. Participating in the church service will be leaders of Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Protestant churches and denominations.

The combined choirs of the Armenian Churches of Eastern Massachusetts, under the direction of Very Rev. Oshagan Minasian, director of the Erevan Choral Society, will take part in the services.

After the church service there will be a public reception in the Holy Trinity Armenian Church Cultural Hall.

The Council of Armenian Churches of Eastern Massachusetts composed of the Holy Trinity (Cambridge), St. James (Watertown), Holy Cross (Lawrence), Sts. Vartanantz (Lowell), and St. Gregory the Illuminator (Haverhill) Churches, under the chairmanship of James Derderian of Methuen is sponsoring the ecumenical church service.

Fr. Papken Maksoudian, pastor of the Holy Trinity Armenian Church of Greater Boston, is chairman of the committee for the ecumenical church service.

The Diocese of the Armenian Church of America was erected in 1898 by His Holiness, Mgrditch I, Catholicos of All Armenians. At the time of its founding, the Armenian Church of America had ecclesiastical jurisdiction over Armenian Church faithful in all of the Western Hemisphere, including North and South America.

In spite of the vast area included in its jurisdiction, the Diocese in 1898 numbered but a few thousands faithful and only one church in Worcester, Massachusetts.

At the present time the Armenian Church Diocese of America has been divided into three autonomous dioceses in New York, Los Angeles, and Buenos Aires with a combined total of over 300,000 adherents and over sixty churches.

Prescription Parents Plan November Meeting

Prescription Parents, Inc., a parent-to-parent group for parents of children born with cleft lip and-or palate, is planning its Nov. 8 meeting to be held at the Plaza Room of the Basic Pediatric Science Research Building at Children's Hospital Medical Center, 320 Longwood Avenue, Boston.

Dr. George Gifford, associate in surgery, Division of Plastic Surgery, Children's Medical Center Hospital, Harvard Medical School, will be the guest speaker, addressing himself to the topic, "Cleft Lip and Palate — the Fourth Dimension." Dr. Gifford particularly is addressing himself to the fourth dimension of growth, the effects of growth upon appearance in the child and young adult.

Prescription Parents, Inc. was founded late in 1972 and has been holding regular monthly meetings for parents and interested professionals since March, 1973. The group welcomes new members at any time; there is no membership charge.

In addition to monthly meetings, which are usually organized around guest speakers, Prescription Parents offers a Big Sister-Big Brother program whereby parents share information, ideas, and problems with other parents from their local area to better understand and help their children.

Many parents have formed committees to research educational services and funding availabilities for children affected with these defects, the second most common major congenital birth defect in the United States.

Prescription Parents has been most fortunate in the time and service given by members of the medical community; serving on the group's Medical Advisory Board are prominent physicians from New England Medical Center, where the group first formed, Children's Medical Center Hospital, Massachusetts General Hospital, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital, among others.

Information about Prescription Parents and about the upcoming meeting is available by calling 482-3396 or by writing P. O. Box 855, Quincy, Mass. 02169.

Boston Ballet Soc. Plans After Performance Party

The Boston Ballet Society announced that its traditional Friday-after-performance party will be held on Nov. 9 at the Back Bay Railroad Station. It is dedicated to Italy and the Italo-Americans.

"We have not had enough space to accomodate all the party-goers in the past, this will be no problem this time. We want the evening to become a grande ballo which everybody can enjoy, friends of the ballet, friends of the South End, and Italians alike," said Miss Betty Gibson who heads the steering committee.

Other members of the steering committee are Contessa Maria di Carpenetto, Dr. Robert Bertolli, Councillor Gerald O'Leary, Mrs. Albert Pagliarulo, Mr. Gino Cappelletti, and Mrs. Frederick Davino.

They prepare to turn the Back Bay Station into a fiesta hall. There's Italian cuisine, and the guests, dancers, and the leaders of the Italian community will join in dancing to Italian music. Dancers Mr. and Mrs. (Laura Young) Tony Catanzaro are being welcomed back to Boston.

This Italian serata is sponsored by the Boston Ballet Society, a non-profit organization devoted to further social contacts and to promote and support the Ballet Company. Under Mrs. William J. O'Reilly's energetic presidency, the Ballet Society is enjoying unprecedented success and popularity.

For earlier in the evening at the Music Hall Theatre, Miss E. Virginia Williams, artistic director of the Ballet Company, has devised a program which is both the opening of the Boston Ballet's tenth anniversary season and a bow to Italy and its cultural contributions to the world. "Tarantella" is presented for the first time by the Boston Ballet to Boston audiences and "Donizetti Variations" is a classic, choreographed to Donizetti music.

Federal Consumer Advocate

Q. Last night I received a long distance telephone call from a land company in Florida that wanted to sell me commercial property and indicated that, at a minimum, I could expect a 20 per cent annual return on my money. This didn't sound right to me. Is there any place I can check it out?

A. You bet! Any land development corporation selling over 50 lots using any means of interstate commerce must register with the Housing and Urban Development Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration. HUD will send you a Property Report on any registered property for $2.50. The address is Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, 451 7th Street, S.W., Washington, D. C. 20410.

Q. I bought our home on a 30-year GI mortgage. An aunt died recently leaving me a small windfall. Is there some way I can use this to pay down on my mortgage?

A. Very definitely. You may partially or fully pay off your GI mortgage at anytime ahead of schedule provided payments are for not less than one monthly payment or $100 which ever is less.

Q. The new safety tops on aspirin bottles are a great safeguard against nosey children exploring cupboards. Will all drugs be required to have safety caps?

A. Ten product categories have been ordered to provide safety closures. The ten were selected as the ones most frequently the cause of accidental poisoning of young children. These ten include all prescription drugs, with few minor exceptions, as well as a wide variety of toxic substances commonly found in the house.

Q. Are any provisions made for product safety legislation on the state and local levels?

A. One of the functions of the Consumer Product Safety Commission is to provide for state legislatures "model bills" concerning product safety regulations. A good example of this was the Safety Glazing Legislation recently passed in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. This brings to 26 the number of states that have passed the new regulations on both patio doors and tub and shower enclosures.

Q. Among my father's last effects was a certificate for 100 shares of Delta Prime Construction Inc., a Delaware corporation, dated January 6, 1923. Does this stock have any value?

A. The Security Exchange Commission recommends you contact the Secretary of State of Delaware as to the status of this corporation. There is a series of publications available called Fisher's Defunct Corporations that might have pertinent information. We know there is a copy in the Kirstein Library, 20 City Hall Annex, Boston.

Q. Does the Coast Guard conduct public boating education courses?

A. Yes, the Boating Safety Division of the First Coast Guard District says that the Coast Guard Auxiliary conducts free public education boating courses each fall and spring. In Boston, call 223-3607.

Q. I'm a small suburban businessman who is solicited frequently for ads in newspapers and police-fire association journals I never heard of. I want to do the right thing but how can I be sure?

A. Ask the solicitor if he has approval of the Better Business Bureau and the Board of Trade, then check yourself. In the Boston area recently, ads were "lifted" from a legitimate Police Association's annual edition and mailed to the firms with the note, "Enclosed is suggested copy for publication in the official Police Journal." The second "publication" was a phoney.

Q. How can a guy enjoy the role of a consumer when he hasn't even got a job? I just got out of the Army after serving two years in the Medical Corps. Any advice?

A. Check your states MEDIH-C program — Medical Experience Directed Into Health Careers. They'll help you on job prospects as well as training and educational opportunities available to you. In Massachusetts: George T. Card, Mass. Hospital Association, 5 New England Executive Park, Burlington.

St. Margaret's Hospital Is Planning 100th Anniversary

The Historical Board of St. Margaret's Hospital Centennial Committee is seeking the public's help in preparing for the hospital's 100th Anniversary, being celebrated throughout 1974.

Do you think you have the most generations born at St. Margaret's? Are you the oldest person living who was born at the hospital? Were you or a family member or friend the largest or smallest baby ever born here? Do you have a human interest story relating to the hospital you feel might interest others?

If you qualify or answer yes to any of the above questions, the committee would be most happy to hear from you.

The hospital is also looking for any old memorabilia, paraphernalia, books, brochures, newsclippings, etc., you may have stored away in the attic.

The committee has a big job ahead of them and are most anxious to get started. Any assistance you might give us would be sincerely appreciated.

Annual International Fair To Be Five-Day Spectacular

Boston's annual International Fair, known to many New England residents as "The Whole World Celebration," returns to Bean Town Nov. 7 to 11. The five-day spectacular will be held at Commonwealth Pier Exhibition Hall (Pier 5) on Boston Harbor.

According to William C. Allison, general chairman, the Fair will attract 50,000 exhibitors, performers and spectators from eight states.

From the moment of arrival to departure, the spectator at this year's Fair is promised a happy, educational and memorable experience. Twenty-five acres of parking adjacent to the exhibition hall will accommodate cars and buses. Those favoring public transportation will be shuttled free of charge to and from Commonwealth Pier upon reaching Aquarium Station on the MBTA Blue Line.

Once inside the hall, a world of international sights and sounds unfolds. Twenty-six nationality and ethnic groups will peform on a giant stage throughout the five days. Included are Armenian, Estonian, Latvian, Lithuanian, Polish, Slavic, Spanish, Swedish and Ukrainian folk dance troupes from Boston, Cambridge and surrounding communities.

In addition, African song and dance ensembles, Scottish Highland dancers and drummers and American Indian, English Country, Middle Eastern, Irish step and figure, and American square dancers will perform. Several groups will teach their dances to the audience in addition to performing.

An entertainment first for Boston and the Fair is appearance of members of the Performing Arts Foundation of New York City. This talented group of young professional artists will present a series of one hour performances of international song and dance. Another highlight will be performances by LaMeri's Ethnic Dance Group of Cape Cod. An international folk orchestra on Friday, a Bavarian orchestra on Saturday, and a Hofbrau band and a Steel Band on Sunday will provide music for dancing in a specially designed garden featuring international wines.

Making his first appearance in the northeast is a "Klompenmaker" or crafter of Dutch wooden shoes from Wisconsin who will demonstrate how such shoes are made in the traditional manner with crude hand tools.

The range of interests in other cultural booths includes glass blowing, candlemaking, Chinese traditional painting, silk screening, crafting of handmade sterling silver jewelry and making of Dutch eggshell ornaments. Booths which will offer the added excitement of providing audience participation include Ukrainian egg decorating where children and adults can decorate hard boiled eggs under the direction of a skilled craftsman, chess tournaments, Japanese origami and Polish paper cutting.

The range of foods from many lands to be sampled includes Indonesian "satay" (beef tidbits on bamboo skewers), Polish "golabki" (stuffed cabbage), German potato salad and American barbequed ribs. Others include Armenian, Bengali, Chinese, Egyptian, French, Greek, Hawaiian, Indian, Irish, Italian, Portuguese, Scottish, Turkish and Ukrainian dishes. For those with a sweet tooth there will be many pastries and an international candy booth.

A special area occupied by the Children's zoomobile will give continuous lectures on ecology, the environment and animal survival around the world.

Tickets are available in advance at reduced rates from the International Institute of Boston, 287 Commonwealth Avenue (Phone 536-1081).

"The Whole World Celebration" is sponsored by the International Institute, a non-profit organization and United Way affiliate. It assists newly arrived immigrants and refugees, offers classes in various languages, and is a center of hospitality to the foreign born and home to groups and clubs organized along ethnic lines.

The visitors, who were on a "Historic Tour" of New England were entertained at the school for luncheon, and were shown the campus. Hillside School was established in 1901 to provide both education and home environment to boys whose parents were unable to care for them. Massachusetts DAR make helping it one of their special projects.

Salvation Army Proves Its Value

The fire which destroyed over 18 blocks in Chelsea and which left at least 1,000 people homeless is rightly considered a disaster of major proportions. Such a disaster puts the ability and effectiveness of relief agencies to a most severe test. On the speed and type of response hang the lives and well-being of people faced with overwhelming tragedy.

The Chelsea fire broke out a little before 4 p.m. on Sunday, October 14. By midnight, according to Major William Hulteen, Chelsea Salvation Army head, an estimated 675 gallons of coffee, 200 gallons of soup, 5,000 sandwiches, and 200 dozen donuts had been served by The Salvation Army through the Chelsea headquarters and seven mobile canteens.

This was just the beginning. The Chelsea Corps Community Center, at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets, has been a constant beehive of activity ever since. No one has stopped working; the door has never been locked; the telephone never stops ringing. Open 24 hours each day for the duration of the present emergency, every effort will be made to serve every need of every person, according to Major Hulteen.

Appeals broadcast over Massachusetts radio and television stations and printed in newspapers brought an immediate response from a shocked public. Contributions from corporate giants sending truckloads of food and clothing were nearly overshadowed by literally thousands of ordinary men and women bringing a shopping bag or box loaded with as much as—or possibly more than—they could spare.

Salvation Army state-wide resources, under the direction of Major Paul Thompson, divisional secretary, were thrown into the battle. Personnel and vehicles from across the state were put on the scene. Volunteers, officers, and employees worked side-by-side, packing groceries, making sandwiches and serving coffee. Open around the clock, the state headquarters located at 147 Berkeley street, is the nerve center for a massive relief operation which is expected to continue for many days to come.

Maj. Thompson, speaking for The Salvation Army—in Chelsea and throughout the state—noted that although the fire may be out, the emergency is not yet over. Many long hard hours of work must yet pass before all the families are resettled in a new home, resupplied with food, clothing, furniture—ready to start over again. "The response from the community," Maj. Thompson notes, "has been truly heartwarming. It is good to know how many people are really interested and concerned over the welfare of their fellow men. And it is good to know that we can rely on the support of the people of Massachusetts to help The Salvation Army get the job done."

United Way Reaches 51% Of Its Goal

The United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign has reached 51 per cent of its $14,500,000 goal, it was reported to 400 volunteer campaign workers at the UW's third luncheon meeting at the Sheraton Boston Hotel on Friday noon, Oct. 26.

Campaign chairman George B. Rockwell' urged all volunteers to maintain the pace of the drive so that victory will be assured at the final meeting on November 15th and "services to people" will continue.

A highlight of the meeting was a skit by the "Raytheon Players," who converted the famed "three little pigs" story into a campaign technique. Employees at Raytheon's Waltham plant reported campaign contributions of $128,000 this year, compared to $92,000 last year.

The United Way's next campaign report meeting will be on Friday, November 2.

Junior Ski Club Announces Winter Program

The Massachusetts Junior Ski Club announced that its winter ski program for local youngsters between the ages of 9 and 17 will continue again this year.

The skiing program which includes ski lessons, transportation, and supervision is now in its fifth year. Buses will pick up the skiers and their supervisors at convenient pick up points in Norwood, Dedham, Newton and Needham early each Saturday or Sunday morning, bring them to the New Hampshire ski areas for a day of skiing and instruction, and return home early the same evening.

All instructions are given by professional ski instructors at the ski area and ranges according to ability from beginners to racing and "hot dog" courses. The program is open to all youngsters in the local and surrounding area. Individuals interested in getting more information on the program may call the club in Needham at 449-3074.

Student Rate At The N. E. Aquarium

One dollar plus an I.D. admits any college student to the New England Aquarium between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, except holidays.

In announcing the all-day student rate, John H. Prescott, managing editor of the Aquarium, noted that "the Aquarium is not only a recreational facility, but also a serious research and education institution." He added that by providing a special rate, it is hoped that every college student will be able to visit the Aquarium.

Free movies are shown weekdays in the lecture room at 2:30 p.m. The movie of the week for Oct. 29 is titled "The Sea." The following week, "Venomous Animals of the Sea" will be shown.

Andrew Magni

No reply.

Ward 2

Thomas Concannon

(Alderman, incumbent) Lawyer, B.S. and B.A., M.Ed., J.D.; member, Finance Committee, chairman, Legislation & Rules Committee.

OPEN SPACE: Yes.

HOUSING: Yes. In excess of 200 units on sites like the Division of Instruction site on Chestnut Street.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Should be studied in connection with police, fire and schools. At least partial regionalization could be achieved in each of these areas.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By having neighborhood people both on the authority and in participation with it.

Ward 3

Richard J. Bullwinkle

(Alderman, incumbent) Manager, medical electronics; B.S. and B.A. degrees from Boston College and Bentley; graduate, Raytheon Management School; member, Finance Legislation & Rules, Education, Cable TV, Drugs & Kenrick Fund committees.

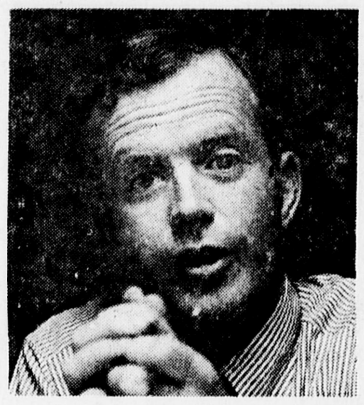
OPEN SPACE: Yes. "The 'land bank' acquisitions will be of much more value in the future if purchased now."

HOUSING: Yes. At least 100 units of low-income housing; the larger need is for moderate income housing. Locations should be scattered and built on "renewable" sites rather than open sites.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: "Some matching of specific committees with specific functions." Solid waste (larger than just Waltham); possibly a Public Safety Region and possible Recreation.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. But if Schopl Committee is unresponsive to citizen's needs, would work diligently for candidates who are responsive.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Be aware of those needs, requirements and desires of the renewal community and respond within reason.



Paul K. Daley

OPEN SPACE: I question the arbitrary figure of $1. "The acquisition of open land is important, but the priorities of any such purchase should be weighed against the impact on the tax rate and taxpayers."

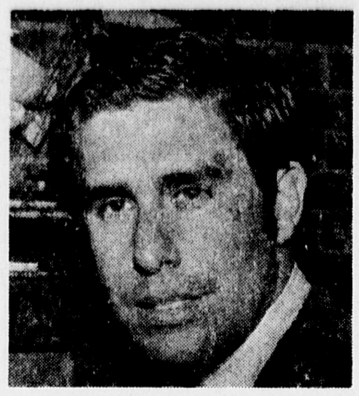
HOUSING: Supports low-income family housing for those Newton residents who need and legitimately qualify for it. "Locations should be based on consultation with the neighborhood involved."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste; "mutal aid assistance by Fire and Police departments is a form of regionalization in which the autonomy of Newton is protected."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "Savings may be realized by careful scrutiny of other school related expenses not contained in the annual operating budgets."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Recent changes in NRA eased relations between it and neighborhood. "Use of local advisory units can assure a minimum of friction."

Ward 4



Leonard Frisoli

(Alderman) Attorney. B.S. in finance from B.C., B.C. law school; Knights of Columbus, Mass. and Middlesex bar associations; former assistant district attorney for Middlesex County; faculty Boston College School of Management.

OPEN SPACE: I cannot summarily favor such an increase to Newton's already high tax rate. Favor outright purchase of such land if fiscally responsible and look toward bonding for such purposes only if necessary.

HOUSING: Present policy of awarding 10 per cent of new multiple dwelling construction Housing Authority and leased housing program should be given an opportunity to succeed.

FRISOLI — (See Page 30)

Richard J. McGrath

(Alderman, incumbent) Irrigation contractor. Attended Boston College. Member, aldermanic Lane Use, Public Buildings, and Franchises & Licenses Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Open areas given high priority by Conservation Commission should be acquired or protected by the city. There are other ways besides acquisition to protect this land, but if left with no other choice, would vote for the $1 addition.

HOUSING: "200-300 multibedroom units scattered throughout the city."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste, public works, some areas of mental health care, but must be handled better than our present attempt at a solid-waste district.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "No, but I would encourage the establishment of a Committee of overseers . . .to constantly. . .evaluate actions."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By allowing the people in the affected areas real participation with the authority.

Susan Schur

(Alderman) Housewife. B.A., Goucher College. Secretary, Newton Democratic City Committee; former vice-chairman Newton Fair Housing; former vice-chairman Newton Americans for Democratic Action; Ward 5 Democratic Committee.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, but reallocate funds if possible. The least we can pay to ensure a good quality of life in future.

SCHUR — (See Page 30)

Edward Uehlein

(Alderman, incumbent) Lawyer. Bowdoin College, Harvard University Law School. Past president, PTA Council; Newton Community Council; director, Newton Community Service; member, aldermanic Finance and City Planning Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Wants to acquire open spaces, but not sure about setting $1 limit.

HOUSING: Yes. "I have stated

Cabot PTA Awards Chefs

All entries were baked and decorated by the students and included such items as bread pretzels, warm cookies, piano cake, eclairs, and mini-cherry cheese cakes.

A grand prize was given to the baked item judged superb on the basis of taste, decoration, and originality. It was awarded to Sean Feeney, 7, who baked a butter pecan pumpkin faced cake.

Other winners were Hope Kirschner, first prize; Andy White, second prize and Charlotte Wiig, third prize; in the K-one to second grades.

In the third and fourth grades the winners were Andrea Walker, first prize; Elizabeth Gancer, second prize; Gabrielle Reyes, third prize.

Fifth and sixth grade winners were Laura Witt, first prize; Noreer and Evelin Carson, second prize; Meri Kriendel, third prize.

The PTA will hold a cake sale outside the school gymnasium on election day, Nov. 6. Coffee will also be available for the voters.

Rotarians Induct Members

At their meeting on Oct. 19, at Valle's Steak House, the Rotary Club of Chestnut Hill inducted two new members, football coach Houston Antwine and Hans Lorentzen, dean at Boston College.

Past President Sid Lee presented the new Rotarians certificates of membership and outlined their responsibilities to the club and community.

The speaker at the meeting was Attorney John Kerrigan, member of the Boston School Committee. He described some of the problems of education in the core city.

On Oct. 12, the club was addressed by John Hayden of the Rotary Club of Boston. He spoke on "Environmental Impact and Ecology."

On Oct. 5, Sam Tyler of "Mass-Action" described some of their work in bringing fiscal responsibility to the state legislature and discouraging the abuse of political power.

Chestnut Hill Rotary will have a "Ladies' Night" on Nov. 11, at the Chateau DeVille in Randolph.

Guzzi Upholds School Freedom

Rep. Paul H. Guzzi (D-Newton) spoke recently before the ninth Annual Joint Conference of Massachusetts Association of School Committees and School Superintendents in Hyannis.

Rep. Guzzi, a member of the Committee on Education, expressed concern over the threat to fiscal autonomy of local school committees especially due to an initiative petition drive by the so-called "10 Men of Massachusetts."

Rep. Guzzi pointed out "the real issue is tax reform. Costs in every municipal sector are growing enormously. The solution lies in finding suitable alternatives to the property tax as the basis for raising municipal revenue.

"At a time when cutbacks in Federal education dollars are being made by an administration which has shown an obvious unwillingness to support critical programs affecting our children, we must implement the recommendations of the Master Tax Plan Commission to shift reliance away from the local property tax." Guzzi said.

Rep. Guzzi also said "The proposed initiative petition drive is an excellent opportunity for those legitimately concerned with education to take the issue of fiscal autonomy to the people in every community in the State."

"However, to shift the decision making process to another group of local government officials because the costs of education are soaring avoids the real issue. Local school committees are elected by the people and are directly responsible to them for control over the schools," he added.

Rep. Guzzi concluded by pointing out "we must recognize, however, that fiscal autonomy is not the solution to the state fiscal crisis. We must work to solve this problem through legitimate tax reform."

You can learn a lot about how your cigarette will smoke.

Cut open one of your cigarettes. Look at the shape the tobacco's in.

Now, look into a Kent.

We blend 24 premium tobaccos and carefully cut them into longer and more uniform strands, so they smoke more evenly.

That's important.

Because with a nice even smoke, you get the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

About 32,000 pesticide products, made from one or more of about 900 chemical compounds, are registered with the Environmental Protection Agency.

Residues from these insecticides, herbicides, plant growth regulators, rodenticides, bactericides, and fungicides appear regularly in our food.

In addition, thousands of other chemicals are added intentionally to our food, in the form of presevatives, food coloring, sweetners, thickening agents, artificial flavoring, synthetic emulsifiers, the growth hormones and antibiotics fed to animals, etc.

And some of the best parts of the food such as the nutritious portion of the whole grains, are frequently processed out.

Although various government agencies monitor additives or residues and set legal tolerance limits, no one evaluates all the chemical accumulation or knows how all these chemicals, working together, may affect us over a lifetime.

Trying to feed a family nourishing food without an overdose of unknown chemicals is complicated enough to drive a housewife to total frustration.

Having wandered through several complicated, and sometimes contradictory articles and books on such subjects, I recommend a very brief, sensible leaflet just published by Concern, Inc., as the simplest guide to minimizing the family's intake of the "chemical feast."

It is impossible for any American to exist without eating strange chemicals along with the food, but by avoiding certain foods and highly suspect chemicals, and by eating natural, unprocessed foods one can lessen the dangers.

Two changes now being proposed would help the housewife greatly in choosing food wisely. One is complete ingredient labeling, not now required by law in such common foods as bread, ice cream, jam, mayonnaise, soft drinks, hot dogs, etc. At present, even if lists of ingredients are given on these items, the lists do not have to be complete . . . and naturally a food manufacturer is tempted to list only those which make the product seem attractive.

Regulations to increase the responsibility and effectiveness of the Food and Drug Administration in monitoring the safety of our food supply are also being considered at the present time. Concern says, "There is no need for a national food policy, coordinated between the Food and Drug Administration, the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Department of Agriculture, the Federal Trade Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency—a policy which will deal with present and future human health as it relates to the safety and quality of food."

For a copy of the brief guide to food, chemicals, and health, send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Eco-Tips No. 6," Concern, Inc., 2233 Wisconsin Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C. 20007.

According to Kenneth, a veil imparts mystery, leaving in its wake a haunting image. Behind the veil Kenneth styled the hair softly. It is a small head shape with the look of thickness and body to the hair. He also stated that women are more interested in hair health because they understand that hair need not be teased into concoctions or a "scouring pad" look and that the neckline need not be "squared off" or shaved up the back in a masculine manner.

The newest veils produce a dramatic emphasis—hats with veils say it boldly—no wispy bits of veiling but bold beautiful designs. For example, Dior's casual mohair knit tam is stiffly veiled . . . Giorgio di Sant 'Angelo's night look includes a glittery rhinestone cloche with full chin-length sooty black veiling . . . Frank Olive's white envelope fedora is banded in black grosgrain with chalk white veiling.

The little black dress is back, accessorized with crystal jewelry or pearls. This look calls for a bit of glitter such as a Lurex turban or satin cloche.

Suggested for the smaller woman, the profile with a flip brim; the turban calls for good cheekbones; the fuller irregular line brim camouflages a large jaw and small brims do wonders for a narrow forehead.

Day or night women will be wearing hats not only because they're an "in" fashion but because they're warm and comfy.

N.A.A. Lions, Patriots in Garden City Game

When two teams engage each other as traditional rivals, they say that past records are out the window. This is what the Suburban League Champion N.A.A. Lions (7-0) must realize as they prepare to travel to Albemarle Playground this Sunday where the defense minded Newton Patriots (4-3) are waiting to pull the upset of the season.

Last season when the roles were reversed, the mighty undefeated Patriots invaded Newton Highlands to hopefully humiliate a winless N.A.A. Lion team. When the final score was totaled, the Patriots were 14-12 victors, but many felt that the Patriots were fortunate to win and badly outplayed.

Last year's Lion team was a young one, and many of those boys are back this season and hope to avenge the loss and regain the "Garden City Cup".

On a relative scale, this game will be as important as a B.C.-Holy Cross, Army-Navy, or Harvard-Yale game.

N.A.A. Lions Win League Title

The N.A.A. Lions won their first League crown since its inception five years ago by walloping the Arlington Spy Ponders 22-8.

The Suburban Pop Warner entry was facing a sky-high Arlington outfit who was playing for a last ditch effort for first place. The loss was Arlington's 2nd of the season and was perhaps their most emotional of the season.

The Lions took the opening kickoff and marched to the Arlington 27 where the drive stalled. After the Lions punt was downed on the 9, Arlington advanced the ball out to the 27 where the Lions defense really popped the ball carrier causing a fumble and a recover for the Blue and Gold. Halfback Rich Proia and fullback Rich Filler took turns bulling the ball down to the 2 where Filler cashed in behind the blocks of John Kane, Andy Toyias and Mike Hernandez. Proia attempted the points after touchdown, but was cut down short of the goal line.

On the first play following the kickoff, Arlington reeled off their biggest gainer of the half, an 18 yard reverse. The play carried to the Lion 35, where tackle Joe Donoghue hauled down the ball carrier.

When Arlington was unable to move on two successive plays, they attempted to pass and tackle Joe Donoghue made an unassisted sack for a 13 yard loss and a punting situation. That threat was the biggest Arlington could muster in the first half.

The Lions didn't score until there were just 28 seconds left in the half, but launched the scoring drive from their own 45 well inside the three minute mark.

Proia carried for 4 yards and got out of bounds stopping the clock. Halfback Paul Butters carried for 11 more yards behind the trap block of guard Andy Toyias, halfback Rich Proia hit end Shawn Daley with a seven yard pickup on the sideline stopping the clock. A big break came when Quarterback Brian Kinsella threw a deep post pattern to Proia who was knocked down resulting in a pass interference call and a 1st down at the Arlington 26.

Then on the first down play Proia carried for 22 yards to the four. The play was made possible by the excellent blocking of guard Jim Schmidlein, tackle Mike Hernandez, halfback Paul Butters and Shawn Daley, fullback Rich Filler and quarterback Brian Kinsella.

However, Proia was stopped for a no-gain and Brian Kinsella managed one yard on a sneak. Then Rich Proia tallied from the three. Kinsella rushed the extra point and the Lions took a 14-0 lead at halftime.

The third period saw no team gaining any significant advantage, although the Lions had one long drive snuffed out at the Arlington 35. Late in the third period defensive halfback Jim Quinn was detected for pass interference.

In the opening moments of the fourth period the Arlington quarterback threw a hurried pass due to an excellent charge of tackle Mike Hernandez. Monsterback Brian Kinsella tipped the ball and halfback Jim Quinn intercepted bringtin the ball out to the N.A.A. Lion 42, though the drive stalled at the Arlington 41, the Lions punted and downed the ball at the Arlington 28.

The biggest run of the day came when halfback Jim McGlennon reeled off 30 yards to the Lion 35. This set the stage for the most bizarre play of the 1973 season. Defensive guard Pete Boisvert, tackel Mike Hernandez and end Glenn Errickson really popped the ball carrier forcing the ball into the air. Def. guard Rich Filler Filler picked off the ball into the air. Defensive guard Rich Filler picked off the ball in mid-air, was spun around by an Arlington player, and started to jaunt 65 yards to paydirt.

However, Rich advanced the ball in the wrong direction an Arlington in confusion was unable to tackle him. Mr. Filler was so psyched that even his own teammates had trouble cornering him. In fact, Filler eluded 21 tacklers on his way to the end zone. This play so confused everyone that even the officials were bewildered. As Rich Filler stood in the end zone no one knew what to do or what to call.

After some delay an Arlington player tackled him. To the astonishment of many, theofficials ruled the play a touchdown for Arlington which raised the words of outrage from Lion supporters. After a 15 minute delay and much deliberation by coaches and officials the final ruling was pronounced to be six points for Arlington. The conversion rush was good and what looked like a breezy 14-0 win to the Lions was now a 14-8 squeeker.

As in the past the Lions have demonstrated poise and clutch and the ability to control the football when the chips are down. This time was no exception. Paul Butters returned the ensuing kickoff 15 yards to the 40. Proia carried for 6, Butters for three, and Kinsella 4 for the first down. Kinsella carried for another 6, Proia for 4 more and Filler for 2 and another first down. Then from the 38 halfback Rich Proia turned right end behind some excellent blocking, dazzled four would-be tacklers and scored the clinching T.D. Quarterback Brian Kinsella faked to Proia on the P.A.T. and kept the ball to cap the 22 point scoring.

The last ditch effort came when Arlington threw a completed pass and defensive HB Rick King outmuscled the blocker to make the stop. The Lion coaching staff was very pleased with the performance of the offensive line, who included: John Kane, Jim Schmidlein, Andy Toyias, Joe Donoghue, Mike Hernandez, Shawn Daley, Jim Proia had Scott Seidman. Rich Proia had an excellent day picking up 119 yards in 17 carries.

The defensive unit also had an excellent day, they include: Glenn Errickson, Jack Forti, Doug Bullen, the best pair of tacklers in the league Mike Hernandez and John Donoghue, Pete Boisvert, Sean Foley, two-way standout Paul Butters, Jim Quinn, free safety Shawn Daley who palyed an excellent game both ways, and linebackers Brian Kinsella and Rich Proia who played hardnosed all day.

With one game to go it can aalready be said the 1973 N.A.A. Lions are worthy of the crown, champions.

Helpful hints for care and keeping of your car: save the melted frost next time you defrost your refrigerator or freezer. This water is as pure as distilled water and much less expensive. Use it in your battery. Water from a dehumidifier is also ideal for this purpose. Never hold a lighted match near filler caps on a battery. Hydrogen gas may ignite blowing battery acid into your face!

It is a very good idea to come into NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 for any parts you may need for your car. We carry the Delco line of quality parts. Late Tiger Score Tips Medford 7-6

By BOB LOW

Putting together an 80 yard touchdown drive in the final minutes, Newton High overcame a 6-0 deficit to defeat Medford 7-6 in a non-league game last Saturday.

Up until the final minute, the afternoon had held nothing but frustration for the Tigers. Twice they had had drives stopped deep in Medford territory when they failed by inches to get a first down; they had not completed a pass; and they were victimized by some questionable officiating in key situations.

GAME SUMMARY

The Tigers held Medford on their first possession and got the ball on their 36 after a punt. Quickly, Newton's running backs got the team moving downfield. It took just six plays for Newton to reach Medford's seven yard line, but there the drive stalled. On fourth down and inches to go on the five, Joe Rondina was stacked up for no gain, and Medford took over.

Once more Medford was forced to punt, and Newton got the ball in Medford territory. However, on fourth down a poor snap from center enabled Medford to get control of the ball on their own 42 yard line.

For the first time in the game, Medford began to move the football. Three consecutive penalties on Newton put the Mustangs on Newton's 35, but a penalty on Medford, their only one of the game, erased a long pass completion. Several plays later, Newton's Steve DeBendetto pounced on a poorly thrown lateral to get the ball back for the Tigers on the 13 yard line.

Newton picked up a pair of first downs, but outside of that, neither team threatened any further in the half, and after the first twenty minutes it was a scoreless tie.

SECOND HALF

The second half was primarily a battle between the defenses. Medford's Bill Flynn recovered a Newton fumble on the second half kickoff, but the Mustangs could only pick up one yard in four tries.

Taking the ball over on their 33, the Tigers were moved backwards by Medford's defense. On fourth down, Robert Rosie broke through Newton's line and blocked Gordon MacNeil's punt (the third blocked punt against Newton in two games). The ball rolled into the endzone where Flynn fell on it for a Medford touchdown. Robert Keefe then made what turned out to be a big play for Newton, by blocking the try for the extra point, and the score remained Medford 6; Newton 0.

In the next few minutes the game developed a pattern; each team would pick up a couple of first downs. Newton reached the Medford 44 where a fourth down pass fell incomplete, and later drove down to Medford's 21 where Cal Moffie was tripped up less than a half foot away from a first down.

NEWTON PENALTY

At that point, however, the pattern ended. The Tigers held Medford, and on fourth down the Mustangs attempted to punt. Gary Breton put on a hard rush, but was called for roughing the kicker when he brushed against the Medford punter who then fell down. The call was hotly protested by Newton but it stood and gave Medford a chance to use up more time as well as fifteen yards.

When Newton got the ball back, they were on their own 20 yard line with less than four minutes left to play. Up to this point the Tigers had moved the ball well, but Medford's defense had been extremely tough in key situations and had stymied all of Newton's passing attempts.

After an incomplete pass, Gerry Keleher got the drive started with a 12 yard run. Bob Kinsella hit John Connolly for ten yards and Newton's first pass completion. Keleher raced for 16 more yards and then Connolly caught another pass to put Newton on Medford's 31. Two plays later, Keleher ran outside to the 20. Two more runs by Keleher gave Newton a first and goal to go on the six with less than a minute to go.

Moffie ran for two yards, and then threw a pass out of bounds to stop the clock. Faced with a third down and four, Coach Norman Walker sent Newton's other quarterback Kinsella, back in for Keleher in order to run a play that had failed earlier in the game.

MOFFIE SCORES

Moffie took the snapl lateraled to Kinsella who then fired the ball back to Moffie who streaked into the end zone.

With the score tied at 6-6, John Connolly lined up to try for the extra point. His kick was partially blocked, but miraculously had enough momentum to clear the crossbar and gave Newton the lead, 7-6.

Medford mounted a desperate drive in the final seconds, but got only as far as Newton's 27. They tried a 44 yard field goal, but the kick was well short and Newton came off with their fourth straight victory.

This week the Tigers return to league play as they meet Cambridge Latin at Dickinson Stadium, Saturday at 1:30.

Tiger Soccermen Win 2,

By BOB LOW

Newton High's Soccer Team assured itself a spot in the Eastern Mass. tournament by recording wins over Medford and Waltham. The wins extended Newton's unbeaten string to thirteen games and moved them closer to a Suburban League crown.

Newton started the week by recording a 3-1 win over Medford. Coach Mike Buzzi, expecting close coverage on star scorer Rudi Viscomi, shifted Viscomi to wing in order to give him more room. The move was effective as Viscomi picked up a goal and an assist to pace the attack.

Jon Eagle opened the scoring in the first period. Viscomi sent a pass to Eagle who trapped it nicely 15-20 yards in front. His shot went into the far corner and made the score 1-0 after one period.

In the second quarter, Frank Bodengraven chipped the ball ahead to Viscomi who deflected it by a fullback and took a high shot that slipped through the goalie's hands.

Later in the period, Sami Fam made the score 3-0 on a freakish goal. He carried the ball down the left wing and put a centering pass across. However, the ball sailed over the goalie's head, hit the post, then the ground and then the post again before it went in for a goal.

Newton held Medford off the scoreboard until the fourth period when the Mustangs scored after a scramble in front of goalie Ricky Olin. However, that was all the Tigers allowed as they recorded a 3-1 victory. Newton has now defeated every Suburban League team at least once.

Three days later, the Tigers walloped Waltham 6-0 and clinched a tournament berth. Waltham held Newton even until late in the first period when Joe Moussalli scored. The game turned into a rout in the second quarter as Newton tallied three times. Jon Eagle banged home a shot from close range, Alan Friedman scored on a long, high shot that rebounded off the post and in, while Tom Burke made good on a penalty shot.

In the final quarter, after Doug Giron had scored Newton's fifth goal, Viscomi scored his seventeenth goal of the year to move within one of the school record. The goal also finished off the scoring as Mark Wasserman and Ricky Olin combined for Newton's eighth shutout of the season and handed Waltham its fourteenth loss in a row.

Guaranteed a playoff spot, the Tigers are now shooting for a first place finish. They can clinch the title if they win either one of their final two games. Cambridge Latin will also be entering the tournament as will Brockton if they can win both of their remaining games. A new 75 per cent rule is making it possible for three Suburban League teams, and not only the top two, to make the tournament.

Unbeaten Stoughton Blanks South 35-0

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

On a cold and windy day at Dickerson Field, the powerful Stoughton Knights crushed the Lions by a score of 35-0.

After viewing the first half, you would never have expected it. After two periods, it was only a 7-0 ballgame. The Lions defense was just tremendous in the first half.

The only touchdown was set up on a 40 yard pass from Bill Kezer to Ralph Pollilio. Pollilio was knocked out of bounds at the 10 yard line of the Lions. Three plays later Jack Gafney banged it over from the two yard line. Bob King converted the extra point.

The third quarter was another disaster for the Lions. This was the quarter that Stoughton chalked up 21 big points.

Their first touchdown resulted from a Walt Fatini fumble. Five plays later Ralph Pollilio scored from the 1 yard line. Bill Kezer threw to Tom Butler for the two point conversion making the score 15-0 in favor of Stoughton. After Stoughton made South cough up the ball, they came back quickly to score another touchdown. Kezer hit Butler again but this time for a 37 yard touchdown pass making it 21-0.

The ensuing kickoff really broke the Lions' backs. Kevin Hoban fumbled the kickoff into the end zone; then, he tried to run it out but was stopped on his own 2 yard line by a gang of Knight tacklers. On first down Fatini fumbled again and Stoughton recovered on the 5 yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Bob King ran it over from the 5, giving the Knights a 27-0 lead. King also kicked the extra point. With the score 28-0, the third quarter finally ended.

Stoughton got their final touchdown early in the fourth quarter when Steve Bishop intercepted a Matt Sabetti pass and ran it 27 yards for the touchdown. King again converted the extra point closing the scoring at 35-0.

Again the Lions big problem was their quarterback. Coach Winkler used three quarterbacks, Tony Lombardo, Jeff Lawson, and Matt Sabetti. All three were unsuccessful in moving the Lions. Lombardo started the game for the Lions but he injured his ankle in the second period.

Injuries again plagued the Lions. Tony Lombardo and Walter Fatini both suffered ankle injuries during the game. On the line injuries forced Rick Toronto and Haskell Kingston to the sidelines.

The defense really didn't play too badly. The Knights never did generate any long drives against them. Linebackers Greg Moan and Aaron Moynihan stopped the outside running attack pretty well all afternoon. Cornerbacks Arthur Murphy and Kevin Hoban outside of the long bomb touchdown shut off Stoughton's passing attack pretty well also. It was the inside running that hurt the Lions.

Sophomore Gerry Freid got his first start and his inexperience showed. Paul Tormey coming off a great game against Bedford had trouble with the inside run also. The other starters in the line like Dennis Anastasia, Pete Maples, Hal Bennett, Matt Sabetti, and Bob Taglenti also had their problems with the tough Stoughton line.

I can't understand why Coach Winkler even played Stoughton this year. There are 9 teams in the Hockamock division. Why he selected the undefeated and defending champions, Stoughton Knights I'll never know. After losing to them 41-13 and 35-0 it wouldn't surprise me if they're not on next year's schedule. It just wouldn't make sense to play them again.

This was the fourth time in six games the Lions were shutout. I think Coach Winkler has two fine running backs with a lot of speed in Kevin Hoban and Pete Nathanson but he doesn't utilize them at all. He doesn't mix his plays the way he should. But you can't blame Coach Winkler for the three Lion fumbles.

Next week the Lions travel to Acton to face Acton-Boxboro. Acton possesses a 5-1 record and they're a pretty tough team. Their only loss was against Wayland last week by a 21-15 score so they'll be hungry when they face the Lions. My prediction is Action-Boxboro by 14 points. So far I'm 2-1 in this department.

By RANDY GRODMAN

Currently possessing a 2-8-1 league record, the Newton South Soccer Team lost its two games last week.

On Tuesday, October 23, South travelled to Bedford, a team which South had previously beaten badly, and lost another heartbreaker-this time by a score of 3-2.

Making the score 1-1, South's Aris Bidianos took advantage of a penalty kick, and South was back in the ball game.

With only four minutes remaining, senior Aris Bidianos tied the score at 2-2 on a beautiful shot from a seemingly impossible angle.

Although South was determined to score again in the overtime, Bedford beat them to it, and made the final score 3-2 by scoring on a beautiful shot in tthe second overtime.

Seniors Larry Benders and Aris Bidianos should be congratulated on their fine performances in the Bedford match.

On Friday, October 26, South hosted a powerful Weston team, and received its seventh one goal loss. Playing under extremely cold conditions, neither team was able to net a score during the first 56 minutes of play; however, with only 3:30 remining in the game, Weston scored on a shot which hit the post, bounced out, and hit South's goalie, and then bounced into the goal. But anyone who thinks that this is a typical way for a Newton South team to lose a contest has not been reading up on his schoolboy sports!

Although South lost the game by a score of 1 - 0, junior John Bamel should be recognized for his expertise, both on and off the field.

Also to be noted for their diligent "line-running" are seniors Matt Bellin, Chet Birger, and Amy Cooper.

The Newton South Junior Varsity Soccer Team has been playing extremely well, and now holds a 5-4-2 league record.

On Tuesday, October 23, South hosted a weak Bedford team, and beat them by a score of 2-1.

Making the score 2-0, junior Howie Appelstein scored on a shot from about midfield which the Bedford goalie misjudged.

Late in the last quarter, Bedford got on the scoreboard by connecting on a breakaway. The final score of the game was Newton South 2, Bedford 1.

As South combined in a great team effort, no one individual can be noted for an exceptional performance.

South Runners Lose

By RANDY GRODMAN

Finishing its season with a disappointing 3-11 league record, the Newton South Cross Country Team lost its last meet on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

The victors this time were Concord-Carlisle, probably the strongest team in the state, and Maynard, whom Newton South had previously beaten.

South's runners had a difficult time on the 2.6 mile course at Mount Ida Junior College, and were shut out by the powerful Concord-Carlisle squad 15-20. However, Newton South lost to Maynard by the respectable score of 25-31.

Placing for South were senior Mike Shockett, who placed eighth all-round and earned the best time for a Newton South runner this year at Mount Ida (13:53); Jeff Karol, who finished ninth, sophomore Dennis Bauke, captain Bob Lein, and senior David Robinson. Senior Ara Shishmanian also participated in the meet.

The Newton South Junior Varsity entered four runners in the race. They were Gary Abramson, Arthur Brown, Russ Kintner, and Stuart Rothman.

On Saturday, Oct. 27, Newton South was one of 26 Class B. schools participating in the State Divisional Meet. Six Newton South Harriers ran on the 2.8 mile course at Franklin Park in Dennis Bauke, Russ Kintner, David Robinson, Stuart Rothman, Ara Shishmanian, and Mike Shockett. Captain Bob Lein was unable to attend the meet due to illness, and academic commitments prevented Jeff Karol from participating.

The top two runners finishing for South were Mike Shockett, placing 47th and Dennis Bauke, who placed 104th. There were 170 runners entered in the race.

Although when noting the team's final record it may appear that all hopes went down the drain, many team members feel that being a part of this spirited group of boys has been a truly rewarding experience.

Going My Way?

Junior College Gets Two Interns

Newton Junior College has accepted two teaching interns in the Department of Humanities for the current year. They are working mainly in the area of Freshman English.

Linda S. Goldberg is a graduate student at Boston University in a C.A.G.S. (Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study) program. A native of Philadelphia, she holds a B.A. Cum Laude from the University of Hartford and a M.A. from New York University, both degrees in English. In addition to her teaching experience, she has worked as editorial assistant at Harper's Magazine and the Ziff-Davis Publishing Company of New York and has done editorial work and research at the Institute for Scientific Information in Philadelphia.

John Cate, a native of Wisconsin, holds an A.B. from Macalester College and will receive an M.A. from the University of New Hampshire in 1974. He has taught in inner city programs for children in addition to varied experience in teaching at the College level, including the position of Departmental Assistant in the English Department at Macalester College.

Cate was a Peace Corps Volunteer in Iran, and has served as a TEFL instructor for Japanese High School English teachers at the University of New Hampshire. In addition, he is the author of many poems which have appeared in national publications.

Ward Alderman

Ward 6

Ernest Dietz

(Alderman, incumbent) Contractor, A.B. from University of Michigan Ed.M., B.U.; Harvard graduate school; former president, Newton Civic Assn.; chairman, aldermanic Public Buildings Committee; member, Franchises & Licenses, City Planning, School Buildings Advisory committees.

OPEN SPACE: "Until specific areas are analyzed in terms of availability and cost, it is unwise to set a definite figure as a commitment."

HOUSING: Yes. Scattered throughout the city in small clusters "to the extent of meeting local demand as a first priority."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Public health, mental health, children's services, trash and garbage disposal, transportation and higher education.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. I support aldermanic control of non-academic salaries and review of the four per cent allowed for maintenance and repair of school buildings under the new charter.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By working closely with the neighborhood in determining all aspects of redevelopment.

Ward 7

David Cohen

(Alderman, incumbent), B.A. degree from Harvard University; graduate, Boston University Law School; member, aldermanic Land Use, Public Works, Street Traffic committees.

OPEN SPACE: "I favor a program of yearly open space acquisition funded by annual appropriation by Board of Aldermen.

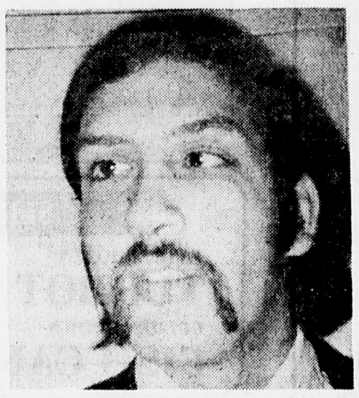
HOUSING: Yes! Sites proposed in the 1968 study, also with advent of NHA's two-family prototype vacant two-family zone sites are appropriate.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal because recycling is more economically workable when done regionally and we're running out of space to dump our incinerated rubbish.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By putting more residents of the neighborhoods to be redeveloped on the Redevelopment Authority.

Ward 8



Theodore Gross

(Alderman) Graduate, Newton South High School, attended Newton Jr. College and Miami-Dade Jr. College; associate member of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. Only until we have sufficient funds to purchase the land that can be used.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Trash collection for recycling, Fire and Police protection and some public works operations.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By allowing the people in the neighborhood to have a say in the way it operates.

Alan S. Barkin

(Alderman, incumbent) Attorney, Brookline High, University of New Hampshire, B.U. Law School; chairman aldermanic Land Use Committee, member aldermanic Franchises & Licenses, Public Buildings committees.

OPEN SPACE: No.

HOUSING: Yes. "I would like to see the 28 units that are on the way built and in operation before we are committed to any more except in the leased housing program."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal and garbage because regionalization is the only answer to our problem.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No, because school costs will continue to go down because of declining enrollment. The dramatic increase in school spending occurred about 10 years ago and should have been taken care of then.

Planning Committee

Annual Camellia Ball To Aid Boys' Town Of Italy

The 28th annual camellia ball to benefit Boys' Towns of Italy will be held on Friday evening, November 16 at the Statler Hilton in Boston. Mrs. Louise Raia Palci, recently appointed as director of the Mass. Chapter of the International Organization for Homeless Children, is general chairman of the ball.

Rubin Epstein, and Ralph Tedeschi are co-chairmen of the Program Souvenir Journal. Epstein is also chairman of the Scholarship Fund Drive in memory of Mrs. Lucia Vollono, socialite from Newton Centre who died last November. Mrs. Vollono had been the originator and executive state chairman of Mass. Boys Towns for the past 27 years until her death.

Mrs. William Pote of Newton Centre, the only daughter of Mrs. Vollono, heads the large planning committee which includes from this area: Dr. and Mrs. Vinzo Comito, Newton; Mrs. Joseph Marcantonio, Westwood, and Mrs. George Peznola, Needham.

Tickets may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Palci at the Boys' Town Office, 33 Broad street, Boston, or from any member of the committee.

Dance To Benefit Charles River Workshop A Success

As a happy guest was heard to remark "At last, people are willing to stand up to be counted when moral and financial encouragement is needed, to provide a way for those with limited capabilities to earn a modest living with dignity." It should be noted, that they not only stood up to be counted, they did the polka, cha-cha and all the modern swings of dancing for the cause, and "for the fun of it."

The first annual dance for the Charles River Workshop was a resounding success last Friday evening at Moseley's on the Charles, and though credit for the outstanding success, must be shared by many, Al Pearson and his wife Joanne, spearheaded the event, working endless hours for smooth sailing.

The Lions Club of Needham gave solid support in selling ticktes, newspapers provided publicity, Roche Bros. Supermarkets donated the buffet and hundreds of individuals purchased tickets and came with the kind of enthusiasm that was contagious.

Last, but far from least, junior hostesses from the Sarotta Club of Needham High, attended guests with graciousness that was a credit to their school, their community and to their generation. The young ladies serving were: Trish Keller, Judy Carey, Mary Corcoran, Maggie Coggeshall, Patty Kane, Claire Lombard, Mary-Jo Lynch, Holly Mick, Donna O'Duggan, Debbie Roche, Tricia Sampson, Renee Sugrue and Sue Tanner.

Earle Mountain, who first inspired the concept of the handicapped working at the Charles River Workshop and has served as guiding light since its inception, drew the winning number for the grand prize, a huge basket of "goodies" donated by The Lambert Rainbow Fruit Co. The Needham Jewelry also offered a door prize of a lovely lady's wrist watch.

Two enchanting centerpieces decorating the buffet tables were artistically created by Joanne Pearson, attracting great admiration with pretty faces painted on huge pumpkins, with velvet ribbons and fresh flowers. It had been planned that the centerpieces were to be presented at the end of the meeting to Ann DiMilla, wife of Guy DiMilla, president of the Needham Lions Club and to Eileen Roche, wife of Bud Roche of Roche Bros. Supermarkets as a gracious expression of appreciation for the outstanding support both organizations have given in the plans for the gala event.

As "Lady Luck" would have it, neither of the recipients were able to accept the lovely gifts in person. Ann DiMilla, though present, was wearing a neck-brace as the result of an accident, and Eileen was unable to attend, due to minor surgery. All the more to be appreciated, the centerpieces were gratefully accepted on their behalf by Guy DiMilla and by Rita Sanford, consumer hostess of Roche Bros. Supermarkets.

Nearing the end of the evening a stirring column of guests spontaneously marched around the hall, winding through tables singing all of the popular themes of the military, and as a grand and moving climax, the entire audience stood to sing in unison "God Bless America" and "This is My Country," a fitting tribute to the occasion, for it, too, is the country of thousands of unfortunate handicapped.

TICKER TAPERING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now that the traditional stock ticker has been replaced by faster electronic devices in the Wall Street office, there is an acute shortage of ticker tape for New York's fabled salute to the nation's heros.

When the next ticker tape parade comes around, officer workers undoubtedly will make do with shredded business machine cards, newspapers and torn telephone directories, says Doremus & Co., of the financial community.

PREMIUM INCOME

NEW YORK (UPI) — The premium income of property and liability insurance companies in the free enterprise world grew by 10 per cent in 1970 to about $150 billion, the new edition of Insurance Facts, published recently, reveals.

Fine Arts Museum Showing Work Of Local Painters

The Museum of Fine Arts and the Institute of Contemporary Art co-sponsor "Boston Collects Boston," an exhibition at the MFA through Nov. 25. Andrew C. Hyde, director of the ICA and guest curator of the exhibition, describes the paintings on view as "the best contemporary work being produced by Boston painters and acquired by Boston collectors over the last five years."

"Boston Collects Boston" demonstrates the working relationship of the Museum with the ICA, a pioneering institution which shows art but does not collect it. This exhibition provides viewers and collectors with an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the artistic creativity of the Boston community.

Drew Hyde selected the work of Natalie Alper, Sharon Friedman, Jacqueth Hutchinson, Joel Janowitz, Todd McKie and Katherine Porter after visiting artists' studios and viewing private collections around Boston. Differing in style, technique and vision, each artist demonstrates an approach which challenges the nature of art.

Natalie Alper works with a spray-paint technique to create color fields of expansive space and fluctuating light. Her work asserts that color, applied in varying densities, provides an exciting visual experience in itself.

Sharon Friedman emphasizes the actual materials used in creating her images. She stains and blots paint and allows it to soak into raw, unprimed canvas. This technique forces the viewer and the artist to relate the technical process to the creative image which results.

The works of Jacqueth Hutchinson present a spontaneity and joy in the handling of paint which engages the viewer emotionally. Her narrow abstract compositions incorporate chance effects and fuse conflicting structural elements into a unified whole.

Todd McKie, whose paintings are the only watercolors included in the exhibition, spoofs artistic styles of the past. He exposes the dilemma faced by contemporary artists who try in their work to break with the influences of tradition.

Katherine Porter imposes a grid-like pattern on her work to test the limits of its structural control in her paintings. With the use of rough, defiant colors, she challenges her own tendency to create "beautiful" paintings.

A sense of loneliness pervades the "realistic" paintings of our environment by Joel Janowitz. Pointedly omitting the human figure, Janowitz uses muted colors to create the mysterious effect of a frozen moment in time, nostalgic and anticipatory.

In conjunction with "Boston Collects Boston," the Museum exhibits "Recent Acquisitions on Paper by Artists Working in New England," in Corridor CC. Demonstrating the Museum's real commitment to contemporary art, these prints represent the degree of skill and variety achieved in works by local artists.

A 20-page catalogue, fully illustrated in color, accompanies the exhibition.

Church Women United Observe Community Day

A program is being planned by Church Women United in Newton for the observance of World Community Day to be celebrated Friday, Nov. 2, at noon at St. Bernard's Parish Hall, 1530 Washington St., West Newton.

The program, based on the national theme, is under the direction of Mrs. R. Curtis Reed, celebrations chairman, and Mrs. William C. Lowe, spiritual life chairman, and will take the form of a musical playlet entitled "Where in the World is My Neighbor?" Among those taking part in the skit are Mrs. Robert Hamilton, Mrs. Proctor W. Houghton, Mrs. William Johnston and Mrs. J. Wendell Yeo who will serve as pianist.

Mrs. Fernand Boudreau, president of Church Women United in Newton, will open the meeting by inviting all to a sandwich-luncheon, at no charge, which will be served promptly at noon. Luncheon arrangements will be handled by Mrs. Peter F. Harrington and Mrs. Richard McGrath, the hostesses for the day. Free baby-sitting services will also be provided, as usual, but mothers are asked to provide a lunch for their own children.

At the recent Community Action Day Meeting of Church Women United Barbara Rubin, president of the Newton Mental Health Association, spoke of the many people who need a helping hand, a friendly atmosphere and a place to live until they can resume their lives normally in society. Mrs. Rubin explained that different types of housing are needed for different kinds of people. After her talk, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

We, the Board of Church Women United in Newton, out of our concern for housing needs, voted unanimously our support of affirmative housing programs that will meet the needs of ALL people in our city.

Therefore, we hereby resolve to implement and actively support building programs for low and middle income housing and more housing for the elderly; open housing throughout the city; halfway houses to meet the needs of people returning from mental institutions; people coping with alcoholism; prisoners returning to the community; facilities to house mental retardation people; housing facilities to meet special youth needs.

Hence, we strongly urge each church, temple, social and fraternal organization to promote and actively support these much needed housing programs.

The Women of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Newton Lower Falls will hold their regular monthly meeting next Tuesday, Nov. 6, at 1 p.m. at the church.

Mrs. Holton Wood will show slides of the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Wood is the Eastern Mass. Regional chairman for the National Cathedral Association.

She is also vice president of the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Diocese and has recently returned from the Triennial Meeting of the Women of the Church in Louisville, Ky., which she attended as a delegate. She is also a recent past president of the Bay Colony Society of Embroiderers and has done many pieces for the Church.

Hostesses for the meeting are Mrs. Robert S. Hoffman, Jr. of Wellesley and Mrs. Russell Rowe of Natick. Devotions will be led by Mrs. Otis B. Robinson of Waban.

Concert To Benefit Church Organ Fund

A program of music for organ and brass will open a fall series of musical events at The Newton Highlands Congregational Church. At 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 4, the first event will feature Carrol Hassman, The Highlands Church organist, and the Commonwealth Brass Quartet.

The Quartet consists of two trumpets, French horn, and trombone, and its players are all members of the Boston University Orchestra. The organ and brass will play Norman Lockwood's "Concerto," Gabrieli polychoral canzonas, and Vaclav Nelhybel's "Three Movements for Organ and Brass."

Hassman and the Quartet will be assisted in the program by percussion and unison chorus. Percussion will be featured in Daniel Pinkham's "Concertante for Organ, Brass, and Percussion." Tympani will also assist the ensemble in two marches by Jeremiah Clarke and in Henry Purcell's "Voluntary in C Major." The unison chorus will join organ, brass, and tympani for the program finale. Flor Peeters' "Entrata Festiva."

The community is cordially invited to attend this program and those that follow it in the series.

The second event is a liturgy of contemporary song and dance to be staged by The Highlands Church Senior High School Troupe on two nights, Nov. 18 and 19, at 7:30 p.m.

Final event of the series is a solo organ recital by Hassman at 4 p.m., Dec. 2. Hassman's program will show off The Church's Hayward Memorial Organ, a 1924 Hook and Hastings.

The programs in this series are presented as a cultural service to the community and to benefit the church's emergency organ fund. There will be no admission fee to the events, but donations will be collected.

Rabbi Riemer Discusses Soviet Union And Israel

"To Russia With Love" will be the title of the lecture this coming Tuesday evening, Nov. 6, when Rabbi Jack Riemer, the spiritual leader of the Beth Abraham Synagogue in Dayton, Ohio, addresses the third meeting of the Combined Adult Education Program of the Newton area Conservative Temples.

Given the current focus on the Soviet Union relative to both Israel and the United States, this talk - to be given at Temple Mishkan Tefila at 300 Hammond Pond Parkway in Chestnut Hill - should be of great and general interest.

Rabbi Riemer is not new to this area in that he has previously been Rabbi of both Temple Beth Hill in Mattapan and of Temple Sinai in Marblehead.

He is the editor of "New Prayers for the High Holydays," and two new books "Jewish Insights Into Issues of Our Time" and "Modern Jewish Reflections on Death" are scheduled for publication in 1974.

In addition, he has served as the editor of "Conservative Judaism" and has published numerous essays in all the major journals of Jewish thought in America, England, South Africa, and Israel.

Finally, and of special relevance to this particular lecture, Rabbi Riemer has visited the Soviet Union on numerous study missions and has lectured in adult education programs on campus and in synagogues throughout the country.

The mini-course segment of this adult education program begins at 8 p.m. Rabbi Riemer's lecture is scheduled for 9:15 p.m. and the cost for this single lecture is $1.50. All students are admitted free.

Lawrence L. Suttenberg of Newton, member of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and Greater Boston philanthropist and civic leader, recently attended the inauguration of Dr. Gerson D. Cohen, new chancellor of the Seminary, at the recent Sunday convocation which marked the opening of three days of inaugural activities. Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller gave the main address at the Sunday, Oct. 21, convocation.

Temple Holds Crisis Service

Dr. Marshall I. Goldman, professor of Economics at Wellesley College and associate at the Russian Research Center at Harvard, will speak on "The Middle East, The U.S., And The Energy Crisis" at the Sabbath Eve Service at Temple Shalom of Newton on Friday, Nov. 2 at 8:15 p.m.

A post-service discussion will follow.

Members of the community are invited to attend the service and hear the discussion on this most important subject of major concern to us all.

Temple Shalom of Newton is located at 175 Temple St. in West Newton.

Norumbega Council Appoints Staffer

Norumbega Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America, announced the addition of Larry A. Bearfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Bearfield, 49 Crafts St., Newtonville, to the professional Exploring Division's staff this week.

Bearfield has been active in Scouting for many years and achieved the rank of Eagle Scout while a member of Troop 331, sponsored by Newton Catholic School (formerly Our Lady Help of Christians). He was also a member of the Order of the Arrow and served as lodge chief and vigil member.

For the past two years, he has participated in many key volunteer positions within the Exploring program. These included chairman of the Explorer Presidents' Association for two years; chairman of Nobstock '72-73 (annual rock concert; chairman of the BiggiE newspaper committee, plus assisting in many other capacities.

A graduate of Newton High School, class of '69 and Vesper George School of Art '72, Bearfield brings not only his knowledge of Exploring to Norumbega Council but also his commercial art ability.

The Exploring program, which is the high school-age division of the Boy Scouts of America, is the fastest growing youth program in Newton, Wellesley and Weston.

Exploring is coed, nonuniformed and concentrates on the practical career guidance of high school students. This is accomplished through the formation of Explorer posts in various career interest and general interest fields. These groups are sponsored by businesses, public and religious organizations and institutions with special expertise to offer to the students.

Since the inception of the new Exploring program two years ago, the membership has grown from 67 members in 7 groups to over 1,000 students in 45 groups. It is projected that Exploring will have over 1,200 members in 50 special interest and general interest Explorer posts by this December.

Henry Delicata

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 1; investment accounting; B.S., Bentley College.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "I believe the School Committee should be free in administration and should not have to answer to any other boards or persons. The School Committee is an independent party and should remain that way."

ELECTION BY WARD: School Committee members should be elected by wards. "The at-large election means that it is very hard and almost impossible to beat incumbents. School Committee elections on a smaller scale, such as the wards, will give the opportunity for others to seek such a position."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "A combination of good fundamentals and innovative programs makes education easier and learning an experience. While new methods and techniques make it easier to relate to students, fundamentals and basic skills are most important."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "There does seem to be some friction between city administration and the schools." Mutual trust and good two-way communication will solve problem.

SINGLE CHANGE: None offhand. "Changes require study and research."

David J. Mortimer

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 1; director of Administration and Finance, Boston Teen Center Alliance, a federally–funded, delinquency prevention program; M.A. candidate, Northeastern University, recreation education with a speciality in therapeutic recreation; A.B., Boston College, political science; member, National Parks and Recreation Assoc.; Member, executive board of the Newton-Wellesley Weston Council for Children; member, Spina Bifida Assoc.; coordinator, Lincoln-Eliot Community School; associate member, American Legion Post 440, Nonatum.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Absolutely opposed to tampering with it. "The public has the opportunity to provide a check on an overzealous or irresponsoble School Committee through the ballot box."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "The present system insures a broad base of representation while de-emphasizing overly parochial concerns."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "I advocate the continuation of the search for new and fresh approaches so that the average student might be stimulated."

ADVERSARY POSITION: The system itself fosters this situation by creating different bodies (mayor, aldermen, school committee) to serve differing constituencies. "Any attempts to change this adversary relationship would diffuse the constituent's right to adequate representation.

SINGLE CHANGE: "All citizens must realize that what is at stake in this election is the renewal or stagnation of the public schools, not the restructuring of the entire system."

Ward 2

Eleanor S. Rosenblum

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 2; (Incumbent); A.B., Cincinnati; M.S.S., Smith; chairman, School Buildings Sub–Committee; Design Review Committee; trustee, Newton Junior College; trustee, Freeport; Lincoln-Eliot, Title I Advisory Committee.

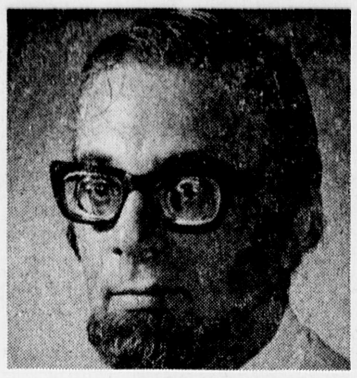
FISCAL AUTONOMY: Do not tamper with it. "The complexities of setting school policies, hiring staff and developing a school budget require the undivided attention of elected officials with no other responsibilities."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "The present system provides good balance between local representation (ward residency) and responsibility to the city-at-large. I do favor staggered terms for members."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: Both are necessary because students differ and choices should be offered in curriculum and organization. "Innovation is a necessary part of improving and enriching content and method."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "The willingness to forgo scapegoating for political purposes and fostering mutual trust are most important." More frequent contact between aldermen and School Committee and an exchange of information would help the situation.

SINGLE CHANGE: "Implementing the recommendations of Arthur D. Little to improve business management procedures is essential." Planning for declining enrollment, deteriorating buildings, Chapter 766 services to the handicapped, and metropolitan cooperation is necessary.



S. Leonard Spitz

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 2; manufacturing manager, Raytheon; B.S. in mechanical engineering; M.S. in management; graduate work in education; professional engineering organizations; college undergraduate instructor for over 20 years.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "I reluctantly support it. Reluctantly, because the voters are denied the right to place responsibility on a single individual. Support, because the unpaid school committee members are less political than the city's chief executive officer."

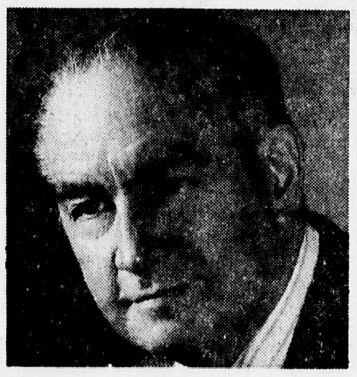
ELECTION BY WARD: No. "I favor the neighborhood school concept, and I consider that ward representatives are more likely to be sensitive to this philosophy."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: I favor "traditional" education. "As a lecturer at Northeastern University, I know that Johnny can't read or write and Susan can't divide. I feel that greater emphasis on the basics and not experimentation will address these shortcomings, although innovation and traditional modes are by no means mutually exclusive or even competing systems."

ADVERSARY POSITION: Nothing should be done to change the adversary roles. "An adversary system builds in desirable checks and balances and provokes individuals on both sides to carefully consider the issues."

SINGLE CHANGE: "I would explore the possibility of a 12-month year for the entire system and an eight-hour day for teachers. If feasible, this would address quality education by providing a' framework of true professionalism for teachers with the attendant characteristics of motivation, excellence and availability. It would simultaneously be cost effective by optimizing facility useage."

Ward 3



John J. Keefe

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 3; New England director of purchasing for R.A.T. Inc.; Our Lady's High School; St. John's College, N.Y.; graduate work at Boston University and the University of Massachusetts; Mayor's Finance Advisory Committee; School Buildings Advisory Committee; Newton Centennial Commission; Mass. Assoc. of Sanitarians; National Restaurant Assoc.; Newton Council No. 167, Knights of Columbus.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. "I feel a more business-like approach should be taken in the purchasing and use of materials required by the various departments within the school system."

ELECTION BY WARD: Yes.

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Both."

ADVERSARY POSITION: The establishment of a better means of communication and a better trust level between the school department and the city administation is necessary.

SINGLE CHANGE: Implement the Arthur D. Little study.

Gerard F. Byrne

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 3; construction specialist; A.B., Boston College; advanced studies, Babson Institute; Davis School PTA President, 1971-1973; former PTA Council first vice president; former member, Mayor's Design Review Committee; Charter Design and Review Committee; secretary, School Building Advisory Board.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

ELECTION BY WARD: The present system is the best." "With an eight man School Committee, all wards are represented by each member, and repetition and long tedious discussions are avoided with decisions reached effectively."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "The Newton Schools should emphasize basic skills taught with imagination and innovative approaches."

ADVERSARY POSITION: Communication is the key. "Each city agency must recognize certain common goals and work towards achieving them.

SINGLE CHANGE: "I would like to see optional forms of education offered at all junior high schools to provide a choice between more conservative educational approaches and a freer type."

Ambulance Bill Passes

Historic emergency medical care legislation sponsored by Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) was signed into law on Wednesday by Governor Sargent with an emergency preamble attached by the Governor.

Rep. Pines stated "Statistics indicate that every citizen in Massachusetts will need emergency medical care some time in the next ten years and this legislation which will regulate ambulance services, requires specific training of emergency medical personnel and technicians, establishes a communications network between emergency vehicles and hospital facilities and sets up an advisory board is one of the most important bills to be passed in recent years."

"It has been tragic that so many lives have been lost year after year because of poor emergency medical care," she continued.

"It is ironic that Massachusetts has the finest hospitals in the world but provides the worst service in emergency medical care, but now we can look forward to providing the best in emergency medical care, too," stated Rep. Pines.

"High quality emergency medical care is the first step in saving lives and in the past most ambulances provided merely transportation for the injured individual and not life saving treatment," she explained.

"I am very pleased to have been instrumental in the passage of this critical legislation," she concluded.

Among the 200 people attending the bill signing ceremony which took place in Doric Hall at the State House were Mr. and Mrs. Roald Osvold of Bolton, the parents of a 7-year-old boy who recently died because of inadequate ambulance service. Mr. and Mrs. Osvold allowed WCVB-TV to use the story of their tragedy in an effort to inform the public of the need for this legislation.

Rep. Louis Bertonazzi (D-Milford) and Rep. Thomas McGee (D-Lynn) were co-sponsors of the new law with Rep. Pines.

Editor's Note

The Newton Graphic sent questionnaires to all candidates for election to the School Committee, regardless of whether or not they are opposed in next week's election.

Each School Committee candidate received the following five questions and responded with their indicated answers. A small biography accompanies each reply.

Each candidate was also invited to submit their photograph.

The questions and their designations are:

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Would you favor some limiting of the fiscal autonomy of School Committees? If so, how?

ELECTION BY WARD: Should School Committee members be elected by ward only instead of at-large from each ward?

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: Should the Newton school system emphasize "traditional" or "innovative" education?

ADVERSARY POSITION: What should be done to minimize the "adversary position" that sometimes occurs between the School Department and the city administration?

SINGLE CHANGE: What single thing would you change about the operation of the Newton school system?

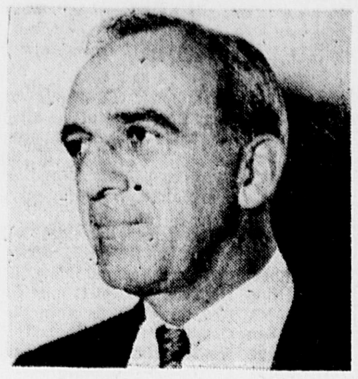
School Committee

Ward 4



Manuel Beckwith

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 4; (Incumbent); executive; Boston University; vice president, Auburndale Village Improvement Society; president, Burr-Williams PTA; president, Newton High School PTSA; Newton School Committee, 1956-1973; chairman, Newton School Committee, 1969-1973.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

ELECTION BY WARDS: No.

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Both should receive their proper emphasis particularly related to a student's ability."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "In many instances this is a natural position."

SINGLE CHANGE: The authority to build school buildings should be given to the School Committee. "The city would have saved many millions of dollars in the last decade alone if the School Committee had been in a position to expedite construction."

Ward 5

Sumner R. Silton

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 5; proprietor of insurance agency; Boston Latin School; A.B., Harvard College; member and past officer of the Waban Improvement Society; present chairman, Traffic and Safety Committee; Little League coach; NAA football coach; commander, U. S. Naval Reserve.

SILTON — (See Page 37)

Joan R. Needleman

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 5; (Incumbent); 80 Puritan Rd.; math teacher, Wayland Junior High School; A.B., Smith; M.A., Radcliffe; LL.B., cum laude, Boston University School of Law; M.Ed., Northeastern University; Ed.D., Boston University; former Brookline Town Meeting member; Sub-Committees of the School

NEEDLEMAN — (See Page 37)

Ward 6

Herbert F. Regal

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 6; (Incumbent); business; A.B., Harvard College; member, Newton School Committee; chairman, Negotiating Sub-Committee; past president, Newton PTA Council; past chairman, Newton Democratic City Committee.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Absolutely not. "To do so would have questions of educatihal priorityes resolved in the hectic political arena of the city."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "A school committeeman elected by the ward might be overly responsive to that ward. He must be responsive to the differing educational needs of all eight wards of the city."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "The system should continue to emphasize both the basic skills and the innovative. Either neglect of the basics or failure to adapt to emerging educational needs would short-change Newton students."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Increase face-to-face meetings between the School Committee and the aldermen, individual with individual, sub-committee with sub-committee, and full body with full body."

SINGLE CHANGE: "Eliminate non-productive field trips. Retain in the regular school program only those trips which save real content and for which students are being adequately prepared. Extra charges to parents for such trips should be eliminated."

Robert Cohen

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 6; attorney; Boston Public Schools; Boston University College of Business Administration, B.S.; Boston University School of Law, J.D.; past president, Newton Young Democrats; past member, Newton Democratic City Committee; vice president, Newton Centre Improvement Assoc.; member, Americans for Constitutional Action; Young Americans for Freedom; assistant trustee, Jackson Homestead; past president, American Trial Lawyers Assoc.; Mass. Chapter.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. "The most appropriate method would be to restrict the budget of the School Committee by amendment to the City Charter so that any increase, without permission of the Board of Aldermen, is limited to a percentage of the prior year's budget."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "A member's interests may be too strongly focused on a particular section of the city without regard to the city's overall welfare."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: Neither should be emphasized over the other. "Neither must suffer because of the existence of the other and both can be very effectively employed in the curriculum."

COHEN—(See Page 37)

Ward 7

Dorothy M. Reichard

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 7; (Incumbent); School Committee member; B.S., Simmons College; advanced studies, Merril-Palmer School, Vassar; former teacher; School Committee Collective Bargaining Committee; Early Childhood Education Committee; Title I Advisory Committee.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "By state law school committees must provide education to all children through effective management and are as accountable as any elected officials to the voters."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "School Committee members must know the needs of the divergent groups in every ward since they vote on issues that affect all children of Newton."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Innovation is essential in meeting different needs of children. However, teachers should be responsibile for providing skills as needed for the development of their students."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Clearer understanding of each others aims, goals, and motives would result in a better sense of trust and a more productive working relationship."

SINGLE CHANGE: "I support the recent research and evaluation which demonstrated that the Newton School Department must provide more adequately for children of lesser ability."

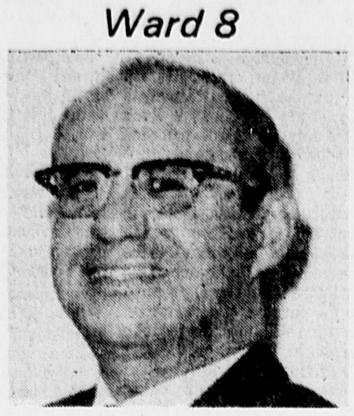
Harry W. Resnick

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 7; engineer; B.S. in electrical engineering, Drexel Institute of Technology; B.S. in electrical engineering, Michigan State University; member Review Board, Boy Scouts of America; manager, Little League, Newton; third vice president, Lions International.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "There should definitely be a limit on fiscal autonomy. A

RESNICK — (See Page 37)

Ward 8



Alvin Mandell

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 8; (Incumbent); project engineer, Raytheon; instructor, Northeastern University (evenings); B.E.E.; M.S.E.E.; Reg. P.E. (Mass.); present School Committee member; Date Processing Sub-Committee; former Charter Commissioner.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "I am philosophically not opposed to a four-fifths aldermanic plus mayoral veto for annual increases above five percent. However, this creates conflicts between existing state statutes requiring judicial clarification."

ELECTION BY WARD: "This problem is better solved by a more responsive School Committee elected by ward only. Charter Commission studies indicated more competition occurs in Ward elections."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Eighty to 85 per cent should emphasize core curriculum to provide solid educational background in traditional subjects. The remainder could be innovative to maintain stimulating atmosphere for students and staff."

MANDELL — (See Page 37)

MDC Closes Grounds At Chestnut Hill Reservoir

The Metropolitan District Commission announced recently the closing of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir grounds to the public effective Nov. 1.

Misuse by many individuals was given as the main reason for the closing. A part of MDC policy has been to allow maximum use of all MDC property but in the case of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir abuses have been noted.

Several years ago an iron picket fence surrounding the property was opened in order that residents of neighboring communities could utilize the grounds for recreational purposes. However, there has been a substantial amount of littering, and a general lack of concern for the property.

The new war in the Middle East halted filming of an ABC special, "Jacob and Joseph," in Israel. Almost 75 per cent of the Israeli crew had to report for military duty, as did four of the nine actors playing Joseph's brothers in this Biblical story.

MDC officials said they will review the situation at a later date if their announced desire to maintain the area in proper fashion receives better support from the public.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Philosophically, I am opposed. Fiscally irresponsibile School Committee members can be eliminated via the mechanism of the biennial election."

ELECTION BY WARD: The current method is sound. "It provides for local representation and yet allows the entire electorate a voice in selection of deserving candidates in all parts of the city."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "I must insist on the basics of education (i.e. reading, grammar, spelling, math, etc.) being accorded priority. Innovation, yes-but only when ostensibly justified and closely monitored."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "School Committee members with the proper qualifications should solve any 'adversary position.' Such qualifications for example would be pragmatic fiscal sense and responsibility and the sincere, strong and unselfish motivation of parents of public school children."

SINGLE CHANGE: "The time is right for the return to the basics of an education."

ELECTION BY WARD: "The schoolcommitteeman should represent the ward he resides in and should continuously keep abreast of his constituency desires. He should also be held accountable to these voters. Therefore, he should be elected by ward."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Innovative programs should be introduced after reasonable doubt has been removed on the overall benefits. However, traditional fundamentals should not be overlooked."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Better communications are necessary. One way of accomplishing this is to plan for joint meetings of the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen."

SINGLE CHANGE: "There are several outstanding issues that require changes in the Newton School system. These are obtaining a quality education to meet all the children's needs, restriction on fiscal autonomy, and maintaining the neighborhood school system in the face of a declining school population."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Improve dialogue. Both sides require more objectivity and respect for the others' viewpoint. A spirit of mutual trust must be fostered."

SINGLE CHANGE: "Strengthen basic curriculum and tighten discipline to provide essential skills of science, language, numbers and orderly thought in order to transmit the intellectual, moral and aesthetic heritage of our American traditions and cultures."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "First a limitation on School Committee spending, and secondly, a more active participation by the Board of Aldermen with the School Committee" will minimize the effect of the position.

SINGLE CHANGE: I favor the "abolition of automatic tenure by re-examination of qualifications prior to granting tenure and modification of teachers' step raises with an empahsis on merit raises."

Cabot School Renovation Okay

Approval of another $25,000 for the renovation of the Cabot School toilet facilities and authorization for a $730,000 bond issue for alterations and additions to the Davis School were voted by the aldermanic and Public Buildings Finance Committees last week.

Also voted was $6,000 for the improvement of the atrium in the new Day Junior High School.

All items will be voted on at the next meeting of the full Board of Aldermen Nov. 5.

The Cabot School problem with the bathrooms started about five years ago "low key," according to Public Buildings Commissioner Emil Larson.

By early 1972, the problem had become acute. The School Committee authorized the necessary work to be done and voted an architect-engineer to draw up the plans.

In August, 1972, the question arose over whose budget, the city's or the School Department's would bear the cost. According to the new City Charter, the School Department is allotted 4 per cent of the previous year's budget for ordinary maintenance and repair.

However, what should constitute "maintenance" and what should constitute "capital improvement" has never been clearly defined, despite several attempts by two city solicitors.

Apparently the Cabot School toilet facilities will be paid for from the city budget for capital improvements.

During the debate on whether the Cabot work could be called maintenance Ald. Jason Sacks quipped, "Not unless you give them new 1927 fixtures."

The existing toilets and plumbing were installed in that year, according to Larson.

The first bids received for the improvement of the facilities were submitted in April, 1973. Approximately $38,000 was the low bid, well oover the original amount of $25 appropriated by the Board of Aldermen in 1972.

The bids were sent out again and returned late in the summer. This time the low bid plus the contingency amount brought the total up to $50,000.

Larson called the facilities "deplorable," and, passing around pictures as documentation, said the school children call the bathrooms the "slum areas."

Larson expects work to begin Dec. 1 and with a completion date during January 1974.

The Davis School addition and renovation, which will give the school four additional classrooms and a gymnasium, has gone up in estimated cost by about $300,000 since 1971, when the project was undertaken.

A spokesman for the architects, Haldeman & Goransson, said at the joint committee meeting that he is "reasonably confident in the last estimate."

Of the total of $730,000 to be bonded, $54,000 is for architects' fees, including $15,000 for administration of the construction contract.

Bids on the Davis construction will be returned on Nov. 8, Larson said, with all work to be completed by June, 1975.

Davis School is the only school in the city without a gymnasium School Superintendent Aaron Fink, who was present at the meeting, said.

The Day Junior High School atrium, an open courtyard in the middle of the building, will be improved by student-built benches and planting of spreading yews and small flowering trees.

The atrium is now locked because, as Day principal Edward Martin put it, the combination of glass window and loose stones around the edge of the atrium, placed there for landscaping and weed control, "is a bad mixture."

Dorrit S. Senior, a landscape architect who is donating her services, has planned the plantings. Professional hand labor will be required to prepare the area for planting, Labor cost will exceed $2,400 because of the inability to get machines into the restricted area, while plant materials were estimated at about $800.

The benches to be made by the students will replace cement benches. Materials for these plus flags, banners, and flag mounts were estimated at $3360.

Committee-Indemnification Insurance, Rules and Regulations, Policy Guidelines.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "The operation of the schools must be kept totally divided from municipal politics. I am definitely opposed to limiting fiscal autonomy."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "Election at-large insures that each member is concerned with the entire school system and not the neighborhood school."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE : It is not "an either or" proposition. "Traditional and basic skills and content can be and are incorporated within innovative pedagogical frameworks."

ADVERSARY POSITION: There is no adversary position between the Mayor and the School Committee. "I believe that more frequent joint meetings between school and city might clear up any misunderstandings before they become magnified."

SINGLE CHANGE: "I would like to see clearer statements of goals of curriculum, criteria upon which successes or failure will be decided, and more specific follow-up of subsequent changes."

At approximately 9:15 p.m., the candidates for mayor will address the public and a question and answer period will follow. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of this session.

The moderator of the general sessions will be Dr. John Montgomery, professor of Public Administration at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. The co-chairmen of the meeting are Sherry Israel and Naomi Schmidt.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization which arranged this Candidates' Night so that the public may become acquainted with the candidates and their views so as to increase informed participation in the city elections.

VW Owner's Security Blanket Raises Standard Of Service

Volkswagen of America's new "VW Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis," includes a comprehensive warranty for 1974 VWs, use of "loaner" cars, guaranteed repairs, "Express Care" for small jobs and VW's unique Computer Analysis.

"Don" Glaser, General Manager, Herb Anderson Volkswagen, Route 1, Norwood, said, the program "gives buyers of 1974 Volkswagens the strongest warranty we have ever offered, plus a combination of additional features to provide them and owners of older VWs a new standard of service and convenience. We want VW owners to know that during the entire time they own a VW, we are going to take care of them."

The most important component of the "VW Owner's Security Blanket" is the 12-month, 20,000-mile – whichever comes first – warranty on 1974 Volkswagens. The warranty protects the owner against defects in workmanship and materials on everything except filters, fluids and lubricants. Tires are covered by a separate warranty.

Glaser said that even defective brake pads or linings, mufflers, windshield wiper blades, light bulbs, points and spark plugs would be replaced during the life of the warranty. Points and plugs will automatically be replaced during the recommended 12,000-mile Computer Analysis checkup at no cost to the owner.

Routine maintenance, required to keep the warranty in effect, is at the owner's expense. It would normally include such services as oil changes and lubrication, adjustments to operating equipment such as brakes, clutch, valves, timing and wheel balancing or alignment. New car purchasers are entitled to free Computer Analysis at VW dealerships – the electronic check-up that lets a car "tell" a technician if anything is wrong.

Glaser said "we decided on 12-month, 20,000-mile coverage rather than the traditional '12 and 12' after research showed that the average VW owner drives his car about 17,000 miles a year. We wanted to make sure that our owners would get a realistic warranty."

In addition to the 12 and 20 warranty, an extended policy protects 1974 VW owners against defects in internal engine or transmission parts until the vehicle is driven 24,000 miles or reaches its second birthday.

If the 1974 vehicle must be kept overnight in the course of scheduled warranty repair work, VW dealers will allow the owner free use of a car under "Our Fault Transportation," another major component of the Security Blanket program. Dealers will be reimbursed by Volkswagen of America when "Our Fault Transportation" becomes necessary. Even after the car's warranty period is over, VW owners whose cars are laid up are protected against being left without "wheels" – they can take advantage of VW's "Service Rent-A-Bug" nominal-cost loan cars, available at most VW dealers.

In addition, Security Blanket includes a six-month or 6,000-mile guarantee – both parts and labor – on all repairs made with genuine VW new or rebuilt parts. It also includes "Express Care," a pledge made by VW dealers that "if we can fix your VW in 30 minutes or less, we'll fix it while you wait."

Glaser said, "We can offer this comprehensive program only because of the quality built into Volkswagens. We believe that the VW Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis complements the quality of our products – giving the Volkswagen owner a total transportation package.

"Our success in America has been built upon the high standard of quality the public has come to expect from our product, and the high standard of service they have come to expect from our dealers. The Security Blanket extends these standards a step further."

STOPPING THE STORK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Much progress has been made in development of the long acting contraceptive first reported in the Michael Reese Medical Research Institute newsletter four years ago.

The current Newsletter says: Changes in the design based on research over these years has brought it closer to the day when it will be available to all women who want it. The basic design, then as now, is a T-shaped intrauterine device (IUD) which contains a hormone, progesterone, which is released slowly and in macroscopic amounts. A prototype of a commercial model of this is being tried in 14 clinical centers around the country and abroad, the Newsletter reports.

Pet Care Corner

By RICHARD W. BRYANT
Director of Education
Animal Rescue League Of Boston

Cats may be agile and surefooted, but their natural curiosity can lead them into danger if you don't take steps to safeguard them.

With a few simple precautions, you can cat-proof your house and yard. When you bring a new kitten home, don't let him out in the yard until you've checked your fence for holes. Inspect your garage and basement for poisons, paints and varnishes, all of which should be tightly sealed and out of reach.

Inside the house, closets, cupboards and drawers are tempting spots for a snooze. Keep them closed at all times but look inside before closing to make sure you are not imprisoning your pet. Flatten dangerous tin cans and screen all high windows. Also, watch out for sewing baskets and dangling cords from electrical appliances, both frequent sources of accidents.

If your bathtub is filled with water, keep the bathroom door closed. Also keep your toilet lid down at all times. Many a curious kitty has had an unexpected and unwelcome bath as a result of a stroll around the edge of a toilet or tub.

Holidays can be especially hazardous to cats. Discarded wrappings from presents — particularly ribbon, cord and string — can cause serious digestive upsets or even ulcers if swallowed. Tinsel and broken ornaments also make a dangerous diet, while artificial snow and mistletoe are actually poisonous.

Aspirin can also be poisonous to your cat. Consult a veterinarian before dosing your pet with any commercially available medicine.

If your cat wears a collar for identification, be sure it is loose enough to slip over his head if necessary or made of stretch material. Tight collars or ribbons around the neck can choke him if they catch on something. Remember, when it comes to your pet's well-being, don't be caught catnapping.

By observing these simple safety measures, you can help ensure a long and happy life for your feline friend.

Q. Mr. A. L. of Arlington asks: How many goldfish should we put in our new 15-gallon aquarium?

A. The general rule in stocking an aquarium is one inch of fish per gallon of water. For example, your 15-gallon tank could hold five three-inch fish or seven two-inch fish. This gauge also applies to stocking outdoor fish ponds, but only larger fish — over three inches — should be purchased for outdoor living. Tiny fish succumb more easily to temperature changes.

Homemade Christmas Cards Creative And Different

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

HOMEFRONT, U.S.A. (UPI) — Happy with clutter up to your knees, fingers stuck with glue and splashed with paint or ink? You're ripe for making your own Christmas cards.

It's creative, it's different, it probably won't save money. But very satisfying—even if you have to put the cards in the oven to dry the week before Christmas because ink or paint is wet—day after day after day.

The points I make are based on experience—years of going right up to the mailing deadline with wet cards or with cards that came apart because too little glue was used.

I have had cards that leak through the envelope, cards (actually Xeroxed letters) that turned out lumpy in the envelopes.

Whatever, it's pure joy getting the homemade Christmas greetings into the mailbox on time. That means getting them there at the latest, Dec. 24. The postmark must be before Dec. 25.

Homemade cards come in three main types. One, the photo. Two, the letter reporting on family happenings. Three, the art card—painted, block printed, pasted, made of felt or even a needlepoint design.

Easiest is the photo card. The biggest problem here: getting the family to agree on a picture. Scenery, people or pets, you've got to get a picture that suits. And then you've got to get enough copies in time. Early November is none too soon to make the selection. Families with little children sometimes dress all in the same outfits—nightgowns and nightcaps and slippers. They gather round the fireplace and each holds a candle. You can vary the costumes but make it something in the holiday mood. Next go to a photo store or an art supply place and get suitable folders for the pictures.

For the Christmas letter or annual report, you'll need an evening or two of brain-picking. Each family member must come up with highlights or his or her life during the past year —acquiring a turtle or getting over the chickenpox, winning a race or losing a tooth. Promotions are okay to mention. But skip any demotions.

Think Positive

Everything in the report ought to be positive. This kind of "card" probably is the least expensive. Once you get it typed—just have it Xeroxed or have copies made some other way. Then affix Christmas stickers here and there to impart a holiday touch. If someone in the family is artistic, a cartoon enhances this type homemade greeting. The letter card has limitations. You can't send it to everyone on the list. The most appreciative recipients usually are relatives, grade school friends and really close acquaintances.

For help with an art card it's best to first visit an art supply store. Your cranium will fill with visions of grandiose productions as you look over easy-does paints, linoleum block printing equipment—rollers, press, ink, papers, cutting tools. After looking, go home and think. Before settling on the design of a card figure the time to produce and the cost. Before going ahead be sure—you can afford the price and the time.

At our house we make linoleum block prints, a Christmas custom that started when our son learned the technique in grade school. We all pitch in on the design, submitting ideas. Some too complicated, are discarded. Last year it all was very last minute—started three weeks before Christmas. We settled on a stylized drawing of the word "Joy."

Each card, hand printed, involves inking the block—a process that cannot be speeded up. It takes from five to 10 minutes at least to print each card. Then each one must be dried. There have been years when we had the cards hanging on lines all over the house until the drying was completed. Ovens are used as a last resort.

If you think linoleum block printing is an art form for your homemade card that art supply store will have available a booklet of simple instruction. The basic block must be carved with tools that are a cross between a surgeon's and a jeweler's tools. Practice makes the carving perfect.

Another art type card involves mounting the major works from youngsters in kindergarten or the primary grades. Their abstract work, cut into Christmas tree shapes and pasted on the front of homemade cards are sure winners.

Persons with a bit of artistic talent—and most have some—can practice with felt tip pens or fast-drying water-based paints, trying to come up with a cheerful holiday design. It may be a stylized tree, a candy cane, an avant garde bell. If you are such a person, practice. When you come up with a design that's pretty, easy to duplicate without too much expenditure, ask the family—does this get your vote for our homemade Christmas card this year?

Keep trying 'til you come up with a design that pleases. While you're making it, put all to work addressing envelopes or writing the message inside each card with a felt-tip pen.

What should you say? Well, there's Merry Christmas, Happy New Year.

But if time is of the essence, how about—"Joy!"

Hard Life On The Farm Changing

By JERELYN EDDINGS

ATLANTA (UPI) — Today's American farmer is a man who controls his environment and enjoys air conditioning, music and carpeting —while he works.

Leading manufacturers of farm equipment, meeting at an industry convention in Atlanta, agreed that farmers are becoming increasingly concerned with comfort and safety on the job.

Robert J. Carlson, senior vice president of Deere and Company, said, "One of the big things that's newest is tractors and combines being built with bodies like cars, with temperature and humidity controlled and low sound levels."

Carlson said his company is manufacturing farm equipment with tape decks, radios and other conveniences that allow farmers to "extend their productivity."

The added comfort "enables them to work at a higher degree of efficiency," he said. Some combines perform as many as five farming jobs simultaneously, including plowing, planting and fertilizing.

R.E. Kidder, vice president in charge of farm equipment at the White Motor Corp., said, "Most tractor-combines are becoming as quiet as living rooms," and 35 to 45 per cent of the combines sold are equipped with the new cabs for controlled environment.

Among recent innovations in farm equipment, Kidder said, are highspeed planting equipment and monitoring instruments to warn the farmer of malfunctions. He said his company emphasizes speed. Some equipment can operate at six miles an hour.

More Horsepower

Kidder said horsepower in the machines is up to more than 100 from 80 and he predicts it will exceed 200 before long.

Fewer farmers are feeding more people than ever before and their work equipment must be made to accommodate the work load.

Darwin G. Kettinger, senior vice president at Massey Ferguson, Inc., said his group makes the largest combine on the market "so one man can do more work."

He said farming today involves less manual work and more efficiency. Some machines also are made with seat belts and roll bars for protection in case the tractor overturns.

"We're also making them easier to service—you can do it from one point with fewer items to check," Kettinger said.

The big, new farm machines "substitute labor with machinery," according to Ben Warren of International Harvester. "Before, if you needed 10 people (laborers), you could hire them," he said. "Now you can't find all those people."

Warren said every farmer feeds about 50 people in the city. "He does most of the work himself, and has to preserve his efforts." So the farmer's work must be made more comfortable to let him spend more time in the fields and produce more at the same time.

The innovations also may induce more young people to stay on the farm, rather than move to the city as businessmen, Warren said. He noted that the average age of today's farmer is 52.

"Anything a farmer can put in a tractor to make his work more efficient, he can afford," said Robert C. Leary of Ford Tractor Operations. He said the innovations are not luxuries, but conveniences.

Leary noted that automatic transmissions, power steering and swivel seats can be built into tractors. He said modern machines are so easy to operate that it is not uncommon to see young, attractively dressed women come outside and do the work while their husbands go in for lunch.

Energy

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — Utah State University has given its students and staff a list of hints on how to cut the school's electricity bill during the energy crisis.

Val Peterson, director of the physical plant, feels the conservation campaign could save a full 10 per cent of USU's electricity and fuel bill—if it gets full cooperation.

His suggestions — applicable everywhere—included:

—Turn off a light if you'll be gone more than 15 minutes.

—Wear a sweater and lower the heat in your office three to four degrees.

—Lower the heat in rooms that receive little use.

—In rooms having several banks of light, see if reading is just as easy with some of the lights turned off.

—Use room air conditioners only when critical.

—Check windows and outside walls for cracks and leaks.

—Remain in offices after regular working hours as little as possible.

—Let custodians clean during office hours.

—Schedule events during off-peak hours to level out energy usage.

Meetings

ATLANTA (UPI) — During the military occupation of Atlanta by Union forces following the Civil War, Maj. Gen. John Pope issued an order requiring the presence of the mayor, a marshal and a force of policemen present at all public meetings of citizens.

The order made the mayor liable to be tried by court martial in the event of a disturbance if he were not present in compliance with the order.

For his own protection, Mayor James E. Williams asked the city council to pass an ordinance, which was adopted, prohibiting citizens from holding public meetings without first giving the mayor 12 hours notice.

BICENTENNIAL OPERA

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Russell Peck, Indianapolis composer, is working on a Ford Foundation grant opera focusing on 19th Century communes in Indiana and Tennessee to be presented as part of the nation's 200th anniversary celebration.

The work is to be called "The New Harmony Opera" after the name of the town that was the site of Robert Owen's commune.

Needled

New Books

To China With Love, by Pat Barr
(Doubleday, $7.95)

This is the well told story of how Protestant missionaries from 1860 to 1900, armed with the strength of their Victorian religious convictions, set out to bring their type of Christianity to a China they regarded as heathen.

Men such as the Cambridge Seven, Gilmour of Mongolia, the Rev. Hudson Taylor and their many compatriots apparently believed that the Chinese would be immediate, willing converts. They were wrong.

They carried Christianity to an empire that predated the birth of Christ, one that had various religious beliefs already intact, with idols of its own. Before the Renaissance, China had in fact been more advanced in technology than the west.

The missionaries faced hazards of health and culture that cost many of them their lives. Their beliefs were questioned, tried and eventually forged in blood in a series of events capped by the Boxer Rebellion of 1900 in which 135 Protestant missionaries were martyred.

Barr writes of the ubiquitous stench of China that should have warned newcomers (who just thought China backward) that among other things this was a land of typhoid, cholera, smallpox; and "that no sort of national public health or welfare authorities existed so that the cleansing and maintenance of waterways, streets, towns depended on the energy or whim of provincial officials, and that in consequence there was not one really good stretch of road anywhere in the Empire."

John E. Barton (UPI)

Daily Life in People's China, by Arthur Galston
(Crowell, $6.95)

Several hundred Americans, doctors, journalists and basketball players among them, have visited China since the thaw in U.S.-Sino relations. Galston, a Yale University botanist, with his wife and daughter was able to spend three weeks living and working with the peasants as "residents" of the Marco Polo People's Commune. Since 80 per cent of China's almost 800 million people make their living from the soil, the insights and observations Galston records are extremely valuable to better understanding China.

(Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, $8.95)

The White House's chief usher (general manager) from 1941-69 has written the most informative book about the private life of the first families yet published by a presidential staff member. It is highly respectful, rather than gossipy, but far from dry, with highest accolades to the Trumans and a new insight into Bess Truman's role in affairs of state.

(Grossman, $6.95)

Based on a report from the January, 1971, conference on professional responsibility, this abosorbing books tells of the men and women who "blew the whistle" on organizations involved in activity they believed dangerous to the public—the General Motors engineer who told Nader Corvairs were dangerous, the FDA doctor who exposed a link between cyclamates and cancer.

The Future of Literacy, edited by Robert Disch
(Prentice-Hall, $6.95)

One nice thing about putting together an anthology of articles discussing what may be the coming death of literacy—it's bound to hit its audience where they live because by definition a book's audience consists of readers. This one is provocative and even contains an article warning of the dangers to the language of corruption and pollution.

Library Participates In Book Fair

Choose your favorite pathway to creativity with a stimulating visit to the Newton Free Library's Booth at the Boston Globe Book Festival, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 2, 3, and 4, at the Hynes Auditorium, Prudential Center, Boston, where a potpourri of creative activities will excite your imagination.

Drama, pottery, music, creative woodworking, photography and chess are the varied activities scheduled for the Newton Free Library Booth, inviting book lovers to use their imagination to find their own pathways to creativity.

Heading the list of special events is a demonstration of the fine points of creative pottery, by Nancy Freeman of the Clay Workshop in Newton, on Friday, Nov. 2 at 6:30 p.m. This skilled artisan will make both hand-built and on-the-wheel pottery, as well as arranging a select group of her works for exhibit.

A second highlight of the Newton Free Library's Book Festival programming is the Young Adult Drama Workshop's premiere performance of A.A. Milne's "The Man in the Bowler Hat," Saturday, Nov. 3 at 2:30 p.m.

The play, directed by Dick Power, is a semi-melodrama selected for its wide appeal to adults and children. The Drama Workshop, which meets at the Newtonville Branch Library throughout the year is cosponsored by the library and the Newton Recreation Commission.

At 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 3, Dan McCabe and Peter Clark, two creative woodworkers, will demonstrate woodcarving, and toy and furniture making.

"Music to Read By" performed by musicians from the Berklee School of Music in Boston, headline Sunday's Newton Free Library activities at 2 p.m.

Throughout the Festival, the Newton Free Library's booth will be enhanced by a first rate continuous slide show arranged by Camera Club members. Club President Leo Myers, as well as Jim Saret, Phil Coyne and other club members will be available to discuss cameras, film and photography.

Chess Club President Andrew Schmidt is bringing along members of the Chess Club, who will engage passers-by in informal games of chess. They will have books on display, and will be on hand to discuss the intricacies of this unique game.

A striking mobile and a bright orange, yellow and brown "pathway to creativity" form an imaginative backdrop for the Newton Free Library booth activities. The decor, designed by Elinor Persky and Jody Baker of the library staff, has been worked out in cooperation with Newton Free Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian.

A selection of "how to" crafts, hobbies and career books and magazines from the Newton Free Library's extensive holdings will be on view.

The Newton Free Library is one of several Eastern Region Libraries participating in the Festival as guests of the Boston Globe. During the Festival, which attracts more than 30,000 people to its three-day programs, members of the library staff will man the Newton Free Library booth and will be available to discuss their creative hobbies as well as the Newton Free Library's multiple resources available to the community.

All Newton Music School Has 3 New Dance Classes

The All Newton Music School announces three new courses in the Dance Department.

Starting Oct. 25, Mrs. Louise Bruyn, who returned to the school after two years of leave of absence, will be teaching a course in MODERN DANCE FOR ADULTS.

This class will include basic modern techniques for gaining in body strength, control, and agility. Individual responses to creative problems will be encouraged and group relationships explored. Previous dance training is not required.

MODERN JAZZ DANCE CLASSES will provide exercise and the opportunity to improve coordination through the development of jazz techniques - steps and routines. There will be courses on two levels. One course is suitable for non-dancers. The students, while exercising, do acquire the feel of dancing rather quickly. The more advanced jazz class is for dancers who want to broaden their dance background.

Adult classes will be offered Wednesday mornings at 9:30 a.m. Graded classes for teenagers will be offered Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m.

The courses will be taught by Ellie Grossman who is a ballet dancer trained by Robert Joffery and Madame Pryeslavic. She has studied jazz ballet with Matt Mattox and Consuelo Atlas. Her class for adults will start October 24th.

Mrs. Katherine Ostrovsky is offering an ADULT BALLET BEGGINNERS CLASS for people who wish to explore ballet technique. No previous training required. The time will be set on mutual agreement.

People interested in those classes will get more information by calling the music school 527-4554 and asking for Mrs. Gombosi or Mrs. Nelson.

Anyone For Bridge?

The Newton Free Library makes a bid for bridge players to join the Newton Free Library Bridge Club Monday evenings, Nov. 5 at 7 p.m. at Newtonville Branch Library, 345 Walnut St.

The Club, which meets the first and third Mondays of every month, is free and open to the public.

Mrs. Edith Brooks Corman of Newton will give bridge instructions at both November Bridge Club meetings.

'Washington Square' Performance Slated

The Drama Club of Newton College is currently in rehearsal with "The Heiress," an adaptation of the novel "Washington Square" by Henry James.

The play will be presented in the Quonset Theatre on the Centre Street, Newton campus at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8 and Friday, Nov. 9. The event is open to the public. General admission will be available at the door.

The drama is set in New York City in the 1850's, and the basic story revolves around a shy, young girl, Catherine Sloper (played by freshman Susan Mara) who falls desperately in love with a delightful young fortune hunter.

Catherine's lack of worldliness prevents her from realizing that the young man proposing is not entirely drawn by her charm. Catherine's father, a successful doctor, is more realistic and forbids the marriage. However, his daughter proposes an elopement which fails to materialize because the young man knows most of her expected fortune will go elsewhere if he marries her. Catherine retires into her own world. But the fortune hunter turns up once more and again proposes marriage.

The substance of the drama lies in Catherine's handling of the situation.

Newton Chorale Presents 'Medley'

The Newton Chorale, under the direction of Mrs. Hans J. Seligman, will present a "Medley of Songs" at the Annual Donor Dinner of the Touro Chapter of B'nai Brith to take place Sunday evening, Nov. 4 in Taunton.

Featured will be original arrangements of Israeli and Yiddish folk songs as well as show tunes and classics. An added attraction will be the violin accompaniment of William Poltorak as well as the piano accompaniment of Mrs. Ralph Dephoure.

Ms. Cirillo Is Guest Soloist

Nancy Cirillo of Newton will be guest soloist with the Concord Orchestra on Nov. 3, 8:30 p.m. at Emerson School, Concord.

For this first concert of the season, Richard Pittman will conduct the orchestra in Brahms' Violin Concerto in D Major," Virgil Thomson's "Wheat Field at Noon," and P.I. Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 2."

Miss Cirillo, who is currently on the faculty of Wellesley College and the New England Conservatory, performs with the Boston Musica Viva, an ensemble founded and directed by Pittman that toured Europe this past summer.

Miss Cirillo studied with Frank Cirillo and Louis Persinger, and attended the Mannes College of Music.

A recipient of the Naumburg Award, the Arrigo Serrato Award in Rome, the High Fidelity Award in Tanglewood, and a Fromm Fellowship, Miss Cirillo has given solo recitals at Carnagie Hall and Town Hall, and has traveled with the Manhatten soloists, the Manhatten Trio, and the New Art Trio.

She has been a part of the Marlboro Music Festival for many years and toured with the group.

Miss Cirillo is married to Mathew Ruggiero, bassoonist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and they live in Newton with three daughters, aged 12, 9 and 7.

This concert is the start of the 22nd season of the orchestra and Pittman's fifth year with the group. Before assuming his present position as instructor in Orchestral Conducting and Conductor of the Repertory Orchestra at the New England Conservatory in 1968, Pittman served on the Conducting and Opera Faculty and as director of the Eastman Musica Nova at the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y.

VOL. 103 NO. 45 — NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1973 — PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Mann Wins; Newton Has 4 New Aldermen

Mayor

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of The Graphic Staff

Theodore D. Mann stepped into the main room of the Sidney Hill Country Club at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday night and 1,000 people began to applaud.

THEODORE D. MANN

They kept it up as the mayor and now mayor-elect slowly threaded his way through well-wishers to the stage in the front of the room. Five minutes of applause for the victor and the man who will serve Newton's first four-year term as mayor, Theodore D. Mann.

In contrast, the scene on the other side of the city was somber. William Carmen, surrounded by 40 or 50 of what he termed "friends," held hushed conversations with those genuinely saddened by his loss in the race for mayor.

Newton voters gave Mann a plurality of more than 3,300 votes. The incumbent mayor got 14,725 votes to Carmen's 11,352.

Mann took Wards 2, 5, 6, 7 and 8. Carmen was the clear victor in Ward 1, as was true in the Preliminary Election last month, with 935 votes to Mann's 1,058. Carmen won Ward 4 by a margin of 196 votes and squeaked past the incumbent by a margin of four votes in Ward 3, 1656 for Carmen and 1652 for Mann.

Mann, as was true in the Preliminary, buried his challenger in his home ward, Ward 8. Mann came out more than 2,000 votes ahead of Carmen in Ward 8. The total was 2,802 for Mann and 751 votes for Carmen.

Mann beat Carmen by 191 votes in Ward 2; by 1,108 in Ward 5; by 548 in Ward 6; 552 votes in Ward 7.

Just prior to Mann's arrival at Sidney Hill Tuesday night, mayoral aide Jim Salter got two telephone calls in rapid succession.

The first came from the mayor, saying that the results were in and he was the victor. Salter called for the champagne to be served in Sidney Hill.

The second call was, Salter said, from Mr. Carmen, conceding the election.

Mann, arriving on the stage smiling, exhuberant and surrounded by his family, described Tuesday as "the most exciting day of my life."

"You people here," he said surveying the crowd, "are the people that have put yourselves out since the very first days in Oak Hill."

"Perhaps one day," Mann continued, "I'll feel what it's like to lose an election. I will ask the person who lost to join with me in making Newton a model for every community in the United States."

MAYOR—(See Page 8)

Aldermen

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Newton has elected four new aldermen, all nominally Democrats, and has guaranteed a Democratic majority in the Board of Aldermen.

In an upset, Democrat Susan Schur won out over five-term Ward 5 alderman Edward Uehlein, Republican.

Other Democrats elected were Terrence Morris, who won the Ward 2 seat being vacated by State Rep. Peter Harrington; Joan Saklad in Ward 6; and Mark White in Ward 7.

Mrs. Saklad edged out Ethel Sheehan by 750 votes in Ward 6, while Michael Lipof, second highest votegetter in 1971, came in a close second to Mrs. Saklad.

Lipof's 1971 vote was a few votes short of 16,000, while this year he got less than 9,500.

Mark White topped the ballot in Ward 7, surpassing veteran Republican alderman Jason Sacks by more than a thousand votes and defeating Dominic Taglienti by almost 2,500 votes and Republican warhorse Melvin Norris by 3,000 votes.

Though the Ward 5 seat vacated by State Representative Lois Pines was taken over by Sidney Small, formerly of Ward 6, the net gain to the Board of Aldermen is one more woman member, with Joan Saklad winning Small's seat in Ward 6 and Susan Schur displacing Uehlein in Ward 5.

There are now two women members of the board.

Top vote-getter among the aldermen was Michael Antonellis of Ward 5, who narrowly beat Robert Gaynor of Ward 1 for this honor. Both were incumbents and both unopposed.

Alan Katz of Ward 8, who announced his withdrawal from the race for alderman-at-large before the Preliminary Election, too late for removal from the ballot, received more than 3,500 votes citywide.

Katz moved to New York in September.

Winners were incumbent Edward Richmond, who kept his seat in Ward 2; Ward 4, which reelected David Jackson and Louis Egelson; and Ward 8, where President of the Board of Aldermen Eliot Cohen and 32-year alderman Wendell Bauckman rebuffed election attempts of Lee White, brother of Ward 7 winner Mark White.

In the races for ward alderman, incumbents Andrew Magni of Ward 1, Thomas Concannon of Ward 2, David Cohen of Ward 7, and Alan Barkin of Ward 8 ran unopposed.

In the contested seats, incumbents Richard Bullwinkle, of Ward 3, Richard McGrath of Ward 4, and Ernest Dietz of Ward 6 ran strongly ahead of their opponents, especially Dietz, who piled up a plurality of 879 votes.

Board Grants Towers Permit

On the strength of a signed agreement between the Chestnut Hill Towers and the Newton Community Development Foundation, plus a board order requiring a bond to ensure the provision of 20 units of housing, the Board of Aldermen Monday night voted 23-0 for extension of the Towers' permissive use.

Site work on the 428-unit luxury condominium, stopped since September when the fact came to light that the permissive use for building had expired two years earlier, cannot resume until the cease-and-desist order is lifted.

City Solicitor Howard Levine said Tuesday that the order will be lifted as soon as the $162,500 bond is given to him, he has passed on the legality of the board order, and Mayor Theodore Mann has signed the board order, making it an official ordinance.

The Towers will still need aldermanic approval of its revised site plan before it can proceed with in-ground work.

The agreement contains a stipulation that the new site plan, necessitated by changes from the original site plan approved along with the permissive use in 1966, will be submitted to the Board of Aldermen by Dec. 1.

NCDF also hopes to have its petition for permissive use and site plan ready by Dec. 1.

The agreement, signed by Mario DiCarlo and Albert Goodman, codevelopers of the Towers complex, and Gilbert Avery, president of NCDF, calls for the construction of not more than 50 units of housing on the NCDF Hamlet St. property, 20 of which shall be made available to the Newton Housing Authority for its subsidized low-income family housing program.

The Towers Trust will pay to a limited partnership consisting of the Towers Trust and NCDF $125,000 when financing is obtained for the housing, and will lend NCDF $37,500 for preliminary exploratory work on building feasibility.

NCDF will be responsible for the development of the 50 units of housing, including obtaining the financing.

If NCDF should fail in its effort to obtain financing within 18 months after the date on which the Towers building permit is reinstated, or if construction has not been started within 24 months from that date, the Towers Trust's obligation to NCDF will be terminated.

However, the agreement is assignable by NCDF.

If NCDF fails, the Towers Trust will pay $150,000 to a landowner in Newton, selected by the Trust, who will have provided 20 units of housing for the Housing Authority within 24 months after NCDF's failure.

If no such housing materializes under this option, then the Towers Trust will pay $150,000 to the Housing Authority or another agency designated by the Board of Aldermen.

Monday night's agreement and vote culminated six meetings of the Land Use Committee with the developers and hallway negotiations during much of Monday night.

At one time last month committee members felt that an agreement was near, only to have Goodman enter the picture and reverse the decision of the Towers Trust.

School Committee

By LEN BATEMAN
Of The Graphic Staff

Two new faces will appear on the Newton School Committee next January, surrounded by incumbents from six of the city's wards, reelected in this week's municipal elections.

In the Ward 1 at-large race, Henry Delicata will replace retiring, long-time, school board member, Francis P. Frazier.

Delicata outpaced opponent David J. Mortimer in five of the city's eight wards to gain a seat on the School Committee.

Delicata, recently married and graduate of Bentley College in Waltham with a bachelor of science degree in investment counseling, will also be the youngest member of the Newton School Committee.

His opponent, Mortimer, was long associated with the community schools program in Newton, but failed to muster the necessary votes in Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, or 8. Delicata racked up a total of 6,802 official votes to Mortimer's 6,241 to gain the vacant, hotly contested, Ward 1 seat.

In Ward 3, Gerard F. Byrne, secretary for the city's School Building Advisory Board, beat his opponent, John J. Keefe, by a vote of 6,816 to 6,005. Byrne will occupy the at-large, Ward 3 seat after piling up majorities in Wards 3, 5, 6, 7, and 8.

Long active in PTA affairs, Byrne was also a member of the mayor's Design Review Committee and the Charter Design and Review Committee.

He is a graduate of Boston College and Babson Institute, and served as president of the Davis School PTA for the past two years. He will replace Richard M. Douglas who declined to seek reelection for the Ward 3 seat in this year's election.

HENRY DELICATA

GERARD BYRNE

The newcomers will be joined on the School Committee by Eleanor Rosenblum who will continue to represent Ward 2. Mrs. Rosenblum beat challenger S. Leonard Spitz by a vote of 9,072 to 4,827.

In the Ward 4 race, School Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith ran unopposed and chalked up a total of 10,824 votes.

The only other, unopposed School Committeeman, Alvin Mandell of Ward 8, racked up a total of 11,670 votes throughout the city. Mandell was the School Committee's top vote-getter, gaining 11,670 ballots in the city-wide election.

First-term committeeman Joan Needleman salvaged a reelection despite a hard-fought campaign from challenger Sumner Silton, father of five boys in the Newton schools.

Needleman, a teacher in the Wayland School system, will continue to represent Ward 5 after beating Silton by a vote of 8,384 to 7,595.

In Ward 6, incumbent Herbert F. Regal handily beat opponent Robert Cohen, a Boston attorney and past president of the Newton Young Democrats.

As was expected, Mrs. Dorothy Reichard trounced her opposition, Harry Resnick, and in doing so established herself as another top vote-getter in the city.

Mrs. Reichard garnered enough citywide votes to place herself behind School Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith and Ward 8 Committeeman Alvin Mandell, both unopposed, and ahead of the remaining School Committee candidates. She won by a vote of 9,828 votes to 4,155 votes, winning all wards in the city-wide election.

Myrtle Baptist Honors Carters

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carter of West Newton have received the Third Annual Award of the Myrtle Baptist Church "for devoted and faithful service to Myrtle Baptist Church."

Mr. and Mrs. Carter, of 28 Curve St., were awarded the Man's and Woman's Award, respectively, for their many years of service, at a banquet Sunday.

John O. Boone, former Massachusetts Commissioner of Corrections, was the featured speaker.

Mrs. Carter is president of the Senior Choir and the leader in a program to buy a new organ for the church. She is also a member of the Home Missionary Society, and according to one member of the church, "has always been willing and able to do anything she's asked to do."

Oscar Carter is a member of the Board of Trustees, the Board of Ushers, and the Men of Myrtle. One of his recent undertakings has been the building of a basketball court for the church youth.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter have been members of Myrtle Baptist Church for more than 25 years.

Boone was given a special award "for devoted and faithful service to those in prison."

In his address, Boone urged unity among blacks. "Unless black people get together we will not have the standards of health and decency we need to survive," Boone said.

"Malcolm X and Martin Luther King, Jr., both went to the mountaintop, but before they could get together they were killed," he said.

Boone continued, "We are not talking about separatism — we are talking about getting strong together."

Mayor Theodore D. Mann brought greetings from the city, and in his short address paid homage to the Rev. Louis Ford, pastor emeritus of Myrtle Baptist Church, saying, "The life of America has been changed by the graduates of Rev. Ford's congregation."

The master of ceremonies for the banquet was Dr. Gayraud S. Wilmore, Jr., Martin Luther King, Jr., Professor of Social Ethics, Boston University School of Theology.

Among those at the head table were Rev. Harold A. Pulley, Myrtle Baptist Church pastor; Dr. Arthur L. Whitaker, Minister of Public Ministries, the American Baptist Churches of Massachusetts; Rev. Alvan N. Johnson, vice-chairman, Black Ecumenical Commission; Mayo Mann; and Matthew Jefferson, member of the Newton Board of Aldermen.

Former awards recipients — Mrs. Christine ("Ma") Moore and James Spikes in 1971, and Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Jefferson for 1972 — were introduced from the audience.

Aldermen Postpone Move For Impeachment Support

A resolution asking the Massachusetts congressional delegation to support or initiate action to impeach President Nixon was chartered (postponed until the next meeting), as was one asking for the appointment of an independent special prosecutor for the Watergate investigation.

Another, praising those responsible for ending the Vietnam War and finding "the key to this new era of peace, honor, and hope," was denied after being held in committee for nine months.

The impeachment resolution was chartered by Alderman Robert Tennant, the author of the long-held "praise" resolution.

An earlier move to lay Tennant's resolution on the table, in effect killing it by postponing it indefinitely, was defeated, many aldermen apparently wishing to clear the docket of the item.

Alderman David Jackson opposed outright denial and said, "Circumstances have changed, I realize, but I think it is most inappropriate to deny now something that was appropriate at the time it was introduced."

Sidney Small jokingly commented, "It's hard to say whether the President would receive this praise before he's impeached, if we pass this."

The vote on asking the Massachusetts delegation to work for appointment of a special prosecutor independent of the President was chartered by Alderman Edward Uehlein.

In other business the Board of Aldermen took the following actions:

—Held the appointment of Otis Robinson to the Newton Redevelopment Authority.

—Approved a land exchange between the school department and the recreation department so that the Davis School can be enlarged.

—Approved an extension of permissive use to the Housing Authority for the land at Victory Field (4 low-income family units) and Thurston Road (50 elderly and 4 family units).

—Approved an increase in taxi fares from a 50 cent minimum to $1 minimum.

—Established a Department of Public Celebrations.

—Approved $6,000 for the completion and decoration of the atrium at Day Junior High School.

—Approved $25,000 for Cabot School toilet renovations.

—Approved appointments to the new Historic District Study Committee and new Cultural Affairs Commission.

City Receives Youth Funds

Acting State Youth Services Commissioner Joseph Leavey today announced that the City of Newton is the recipient of a $23,464 grant for the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

In announcing the grant, Leavey emphasized that money spent for good local youth programming can save hundreds of lives and thousands of dollars.

"By the time a youngster gets to our Department," Leavey stated, "his problems have become difficult for him to manage."

"If we can correct poor behavior early in a child's life," he continued as well as trying to alter the home and school environment which usually lies at the root of such behavior, then we have a realistic chance to reduce delinquency in Massachusetts."

"There is no question that communities need to play more of a role if troubled youths are to get the direction they need," Leavey added.

"I think the people of Newton are fortunate to have a government that is aware enough of youth problems to develop strategies for coping with the situation and to solicit money from us to be used as a resource for their efforts," he said.

The Youth Services Department has awarded the grant on the basis of four guidelines:

the programs are intended for groups and individuals whose behavior is potentially, or actually, delinquent;

the programs must be focused at the points of entry, or reentry, into the law enforcement and corrections system;

the programs are targeted on areas with high, or potentially high, delinquency rates; and the programs must be developed with the involvement of the young people in the community.

The Department has been stressing delinquency prevention and diversion from the court system as part of its increasing reliance on community-based treatment.

Commenting on this change of philosophy, Acting Commissioner Leavey said, "The problem starts in the community. Where possible, that's where it should be dealt with.

"When we were taking kids away from their homes and isolating them in training schools, we were not teaching them how to live successfully in the real world," he said.

"For the large majority of troubled kids who don't need a secure setting, the community is the place where they can be dealt with best and we need to give these children the character strengths they require to avoid getting into difficulties with the police," he added.

"The money we are giving to Newton is one good way of helping this community support troubled children when they most need guidance and support," Leavey concluded.

Dance Sparks Halloween Glow

Newton's traditional Halloween celebration held under the auspices of the Newton Recreation Department was high-lighted by a Youth Center Dance at Warren Junior High School. Parties were also held in seven of the city's elementary schools.

General chairman was Mrs. Robert G. Toher of the Recreation Department staff who assisted the parents in planning the programs which included movies, magicians, parades and houses of fun for the entertainment of the children.

Refreshments for the celebration included 4100 orange drinks and 3000 packages of cookies. Some 450 young people attended the dance at the Warren Jr. High, which featured the musical group, The Powerhouse Blues Band.

The following members of the Recreation Commission were on hand for the festivities: Lincoln-Eliot School, Frank Fitzpatrick; Carr School, Howard Ferguson; Peirce School, Chairman Paul J. Burke; Hamilton, Francis Rice; Countryside and Memorial, Burton D. Levine; and Hyde, Mrs. Worthing L. West and Commissioner John B. Penney.

Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty and photographer Leonard Holt visited parties at Warren, Lincoln-Eliot, Carr and Peirce where they photographed the evenings activities.

Supervisor William J. Barry dropped in on the Halloween observance at the Hamilton School, but spent most of the evening at the Warren dance. Dropping in at the parties at Carr and the Lincoln-Eliot was Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle.

General Chairman, Mrs. Toher and Ralph Hamilton of the Recreation Department staff checked the activity on the south side of the city before going to the Warren dance.

Chief of Police William F. Quinn, Mayor Theodore D. Mann and members of the Board of Aldermen also made the rounds to watch the Halloween programs held throughout the city. Recreation Department spokesmen praised the hundreds of parents who volunteered to make the evening such a success.

Gym programs sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department opened this week at three schools and another is scheduled to begin operating later this month. These are in addition to current programs for young people continuing at Newton Centre and Burr Park.

School centers with gym activity-oriented programs opened this week at the Underwood School, the Memorial School and the Bowen School. All three programs will be in force from 7 to 9 p.m. on the following schedule according to Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty.

Underwood: Fifth & Sixth grade boys on Monday night; Tuesday, Family Night and Thursday, the program will be for fifth and sixth grade girls.

Memorial: Monday nights is reserved for men; Tuesday night for junior and senior high school boys; Wednesday is Ladies' Night and Friday the junior and senior high boys take over again.

Bowen: Tuesday nights, fifth and sixth grade boys, and Thursday, junior and senior high age boys.

On Nov. 26 a similar program will begin operating at the Countryside School. Monday nights will be devoted to fifth and sixth grade girls and Wednesday the facilities will be used by fifth and sixth grade boys.

In addition, the Recreation Department is planning for Family Night programs at the Mason-Rice and the Ward Schools in the near future, in cooperation with the Community School Program.

There are also extensive programs for young people being held at the Newton Centre Playground House and at Burr Park.

At Newton Centre, the Playground House is open from 2 to 5 p.m., seven days a week for general sports activity such as basketball and floor hockey. Neighborhood youth activity is scheduled Wednesday and Friday nights from 7 to 9 p.m.

Burr Park is also open seven days a week from 2 to 5 p.m. as a neighborhood drop-in center. Pool, ping-pong and outdoor football are among the featured activities.

Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry notes that only two weeks of play remain in the Newton Recreation Department's Tag Football League before the playoffs scheduled to begin around Nov. 20.

Defending champion, the Art Carroll team, tops the league standings with a 7-0 record. The Rogans and Stumblebums are tied for second spot with records of 5-1-1, while Capello Bros. and the Troubadours are fighting for the fourth spot with 4 and 3 and 3-2-2 records, respectively.

Barry also reports that the MiniBike Program at the Department's track facility off Winchester street, Newton Highlands is slated to close about Thanksgiving. The program, with Director Paul Patriacca and Safety Officer Bob Braceland has attracted between 45 and 50 riders each Saturday.

Despite the acceptance, Barry says there are still many young people operating their minibikes illegally. He urges all young people and their parents to use the Winchester street tracks where safety is assured. Riding on unsupervised areas is not only against the law, but dangerous as well.

Although the 24-team Men's Basketball League does not begin play until January, Quinn reports numerous inquiries regarding the program. A league meeting will be held soon after Thanksgiving.

Fran Towle says she is still looking for women who want to play basketball. The games which started Tuesday are played at the Day Junior High School beginning at 7 p.m. Following practice sessions, regular games will be scheduled.

Monday a practice session and clinic was held for women interested in playing volleyball. Interested women should call Fran Towle at the Recreation Department, 969-3171.

Officials Huddle Over Fuel Shortage Strategy

By THOMAS GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Newton officials are examining alternatives to this winter's possible fuel shortage while discussions are under way at both City Hall and the school department about the recent fuel price increases and the effect they may have on the city's budget.

City Purchasing Agent Wilfred Derry has revealed that the prices of all three types of oil used by the city have risen substantially over the prices projected in the budget last April 1.

The price of the low sulfur No. 2 oil has risen from .146 cents per gallon to a present .259 cents per gallon, a 77 per cent increase. Number four oil, which was projected for more than half of the School Department's fuel budget, has increased from $4.78 per barrel to $6.89 per barrel, a 44 per cent rise. The price of No. 6 oil has grown from $4.53 per barrel to $5.67 per barrel, a 25 per cent increase.

"We've received notice from Metropolitan Petroleum, our supplier of No. 4 and No. 6 oil, that they are working out an oil allocation program," commented Derry. "I'm sending word to department heads to think about conserving fuel."

"Granite City Coal and Oil gave us a November price increase to .259 cents per gallon on the No. 2 oil, but there was no mention of allocation. The departments handle their own money situations. We try to make them aware of given situations," Derry added.

Several possible actions are being discussed at the school department to combat a possible fuel and money shortage. It is investigating the idea of closing down for a week in the winter and staying open a week extra in the spring.

Officials are looking at how much fuel and money could be saved by such a plan. The schools would not be able to shut down boilers completely, but could reduce heating from what is normally required when school is in session.

Officials are also looking at the possible repercussions of such a plan including changes in vacation schedules for citizens and salaries for employees.

A similar idea being considered is adjusting the schedule of adult education classes at night. It is possible that the classes could be postponed during one of the colder months and extended in the spring to make up for lost time.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell of Ward 8 plans to raise the question of the impact of a possible fuel shortage on buses and school fuel supplies at a future School Committee meeting.

"My thought was to recommend to the Superintendent that we investigate alternatives we have for shifting bus hours for economy and that we try to determine if we can cut down a couple of degrees in the buildings," Mandell remarked.

"We also have to look at the uses of schools after hours and I'd be basically in favor of closing down for a week in the winter and staying open extra in the spring if it produced savings," Mandell said.

"The important question is, 'Do we have to pay everyone for an extra week?' " he asked.

"We're going to be hurting for money in April and May because of raises to employees after the budget was passed," Mandell added.

He was referring to a possible $1 million supplementary budget request to cover salary increases negotiated by the School Committee and teachers this fall.

"I've been told," he continued, "that gas ration books have been printed by the federal government, so the fuel shortage looks more serious than we expected."

"I do anticipate requests for more money for salaries and fuel, but I don't know how much," Mandell concluded.

The city has experienced increases in fuel prices in the past also. In 1971, the price of No. 6 oil increased from $3.75 per barrel to $4.78 per barrel, a 27 per cent increase. The price of coal also rose six per cent in two months. In that case, the School Committee obtained additional money for fuel.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann made a recent recommendation that the temperature in school buildings be lowered from 72 degrees to 70 degrees. This was passed on to the school department and reached the schools effective immediately last week.

Building Commissioner Gene Larson is planning to seek advice from the Health Department on what temperatures will be acceptable in public buildings such as schools and libraries.

"A utility conservation program can only work if everyone co-operates," Larson commented. "If someone puts the thermostat back to 68 degrees, someone else might bring it back to 72 degrees. Other alternatives for conservation include a return to daylight savings time and curtailment of hours."

Ward 6 Alderman Ernest Dietz, chairman of the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee, says that there has been no discussion thus far by the committee of potential fuel shortages.

"I imagine that the schools have enough money to take care of price increases," Dietz remarked. "I understand that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) may be relaxing the sulfur restrictions in oil, and this could free a lot more oil," he said.

A check with the EPA revealed that the Public Health Council has suggested rises in sulfur content from .3 percent to .5 percent in private homes and from .5 percent to 2.2 percent in industry which is the category the schools would fall under. No formal request for an increase has been made yet to the EPA.

A school department spokesman, however, claims that the relaxation of restrictions will not substantially affect costs.

"Any savings which might be gained from using cheaper, more sulfurous oil, would probably be offset by higher maintainance costs and greater fuel demands because of the crudeness of the oil," the spokesman explained.

Flowers Aids Chelsea Relief

Louis F. Saba, state director of Civil Defense and Office of Emergency Preparedness, today announced the appointment of George A. Flowers, Newtonville, to serve as assistant state coordinating office to aid stricken Chelsea.

Flowers, who is serving as Saba's principal assistant, was formerly employed as a federal disaster coordinator for the Office of Emergency Preparedness.

While working for the federal government, he coordinated disaster relief throughout the United States including Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

He was appointed in a similar capacity as a result of a Presidential disaster declaration for the floods of February, 1972, which affected twenty-three (23) Massachusetts coastal communities. The distressed communities and several state agencies received over $7 million in Federal assistance largely through the efforts of Flowers and MCDA staff.

Day Care Bill Passes Senate

The State Senate has passed legislation filed by State Sen. Jack H. Backman of Brookline, chairman of the Joint Committee on Social Welfare, directing the Office for Children to establish demonstration programs of day care services by the Office for Children (S.1877).

This bill would supplement the legislation authored by Backman and enacted in 1972 establishing the Office for Children.

The bill calls for assessment of the most effective means of integrating children with special needs into day care programs with other children. It also seeks the most effective means of encouraging local governmental bodies and private organizations to contribute to the development of day care services. In addition, it also will determine the needs of working parents for day care services.

In Massachusetts, where there are 683,161 children 0-6 years old in 390,000 families, it has been found by the Massachusetts Early Education Project (MEEP) that 28 per cent of all mothers of children in the 0-6 year age bracket work outside the home.

Pines Supports Plan For Education In Prisons

A bill establishing a school district with the jurisdiction over state correctional facilities was supported by Representative Lois G. Pines of Newton in the House this week.

The bill was ordered to a third reading this week on a roll-call vote of 140-89.

"Establishing such a school district, which would encompass the institutions at Concord, Walpole, Bridgewater, Framingham, Norfolk and the prison camps, would provide much-needed educational programs for the inmates at the Commonwealth's prisons," stated Representative Pines. "Massachusetts lags behind the majority of the states in providing educational opportunities for the prisoners and parolees. The Department of Corrections budget allocates only 1 percent of its total funding for inmate education, compared with a national average of 4 percent, Ms. Pines said.

"The Justice Department's 1971 report from the Bureau of Prisons states that good post-release employment will reduce recidivism. Prisons should make offenders more employable at release than at intake, and effective education and training programs will make ex-offenders more employable. If we expect inmates to leave our prisons as employable, motivated citizens, we must provide a broadened educational program. Therefore, I support H 6513, which would establish the administrative system necessary to implement new and expanded programs," Representative Pines added.

The establishment of a Department of Corrections school district would provide educational, training and employment services for inmates, parolees, and persons recently discharged from state correctional facilities; continuing educational programs for state correctional and parole staff; and recommendations to the Corrections Commissioner regarding educational, training and employment services for inmates, paroles and discharged persons of county correctional facilities and regarding continuing education of county correctional staff.

In addition, H 6513 would provide for the establishment of a school committee, composed of 11 members, which would have the power to review and approve all policies and programs of the school districts, and oversee all fiscal business of the school district.

The members of the school committee would include the corrections commissioner, the chairman of the parole board, two correctional or parole staff members, two inmates, two appointees each from educational and manpower affairs, and one appointee from human services.

In reviewing the current status of educational opportunities in the state's correctional institutions the Massachusetts League of Women Voters found that although there are at least 100 full and part-time instructors involved in these program, only 30 are regular full-time paid academic staff. Low salary range and lack of financial incentives to advance result in high turnover of regular staff. The Commonwealth is spending from $800,000 to $1,600,000 less for education in the Department of Corrections then should be expected from the national norms.

Representative Pines concluded: "If we expect our state institutions to provide more than custodial facilities for inmates, the Commonwealth must make a financial as well as a philosophical commitment to improving educational programs in its institutions."

No Circus Antics

When the telephone rings and a phone solicitor asks us to help on the charitable activities of various organizations, the temptation for both individuals and businesses is to dig deep and lend a hand. Especially when it is for something as wholesome and All American as a circus benefit.

For that reason, some people are especially disturbed to learn that there are some apparent phonies operating in the three ring area — people who, in effect, dry up the contributory sources for legitimate money-raising activities.

A case in point was the recent revelations by the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association that it had instituted an investigation into its three-year relationship with the Rudy Brothers Circus. Through its chairman, Chester J. Broderick, the BPPA revealed it had asked the Suffolk County district attorney's office to investigate into some $220,000 it allegedly paid an "advance man" for a charity circus since sponsored by the police union.

Broderick authorized paid advertisements in area newspapers in order to warn the public about a so-called "Christmas circus benefit."

Since then, at the prodding of the patrolmen's association, the investigation has multiplied into a multi-pronged probe of possible hocus pocus.

The Massachusetts attorney general's office, the state tax department, the Internal Revenue Service and the Boston Better Business Bureau all are now in the picture. From it, we are sure, will come a thorough review and picture of these operations.

Already Broderick and the BPPA have stopped the Rudy Brothers Circus from a planned Christmas benefit circus at Boston College. And authorities at BC also withdrew their sanction for the event. This effort utilized a name similar to a nationally known organization until halted.

Most of us are familiar with the charitable activities of the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association, and we sympathize with that organization's efforts to make certain that no hanky panky is involved.

"We are deeply concerned because every penny we raise in this fashion goes back to the youth, the handicapped and the elderly of Boston by means of our various activities," Broderick pointed out.

Many — even those far out in the suburbs — share the concern of the Patrolmen's Association. We applaud its readiness to admit publicly that it may have been duped by smart operators in the past, and its willingness to share that concern with the public.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Newman Flanagan, who is heading one phase of the investigation, summed up the actualities and the fears with one cogent observation when he said, "It doesn't take much common sense to realize that this (the BPPA circus) is a one-sided deal with most of the proceeds going to the circus."

Another police union, in the face of these investigations, has also signed to sponsor this same circus next Spring. Until all matters mentioned above are resolved satisfactorily, we can't help but feel that this time the circus should be skipped.

Kissinger's Boldest Journey

WASHINGTON—The journey that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is now on is surely the boldest and the most difficult he has ever undertaken. He is searching for a peaceful solution of the Middle East conflict, which is rather like the pursuit of the philosophers' stone that alchemists in the Middle Ages considered to have the power to transmute baser metals into gold.

Kissinger has won to a degree the confidence of all but the more fanatical of the Arab states. This was achieved by his marathon efforts to bring about a cease-fire that would end the slaughter.

It was the Secretary's intervention that persuaded the Israelis to stop short of destroying the Egyptian III Corps with 20,000 men on the east bank of the Suez Canal. The army could have been destroyed by direct attack or by denying them food and water in the fierce heat of the desert. Convoys described by kissinger as humanitarian have relieved the Egyptian troops.

FUTURE HATREDS

Kissinger was convinced that destruction of the III Corps would have greatly inflamed blood hatreds and have made a fifth Arab-Israeli war inevitable. This Israeli victory would have been costly to Israel as well as to Egypt. It is the denial of such a "victory," as construed in Jerusalem, that has embittered feeling among many Israelis toward the United States.

But it would have foreclosed any hope of a peaceful solution beyond the confused cease-fire with its indeterminate lines. That solution may, in any event, be beyond hope. The belief in Egypt is that Kissinger is bringing in his briefcase a miraculous answer to the conflict that has seen four wars in one generation.

There is no miracle in the secretary's dispatch box that can bring a quick peace. He must rely on the diplomatic skill he has so often demonstrated — on his ability to persuade Egypt's President Anwar Sadat to have patience in pursing a just settlement that will allow the two peoples to live side by side and gradually heal ancient wounds.

GOLDA MEIR HOPEFUL

By her restraint and her determination to avoid recrimination, Prime Minister Golda Meir in her Washington visit enhanced the hope for peaceful negotiation. Hard-pressed in her own country by increasingly numerous hard-liners angry that victory was snatched from them by their only friend, the United States, she held to the response under repeated questioning that pressure from Washington had not been the reason for ending the war on Oct. 22.

A lot has been written about Kissinger's tirelessness, his ability to fly around the world and arrive at a point of major conflict or negotiation in apparent good humor and prepared to use his skills unimpaired by fatigue and the jet lag. But this journey is surely a test of his capacities — four days in four Arab countries, then Iran and Pakistan, then Peking for three days and return by way of Tokyo.

A gregarious soul who loves power, he is often saved by his sense of humor which, in spite of a very healthy ego, he can turn against himself. Underneath is his profoundly serious view of the choices in this moment of turmoil.

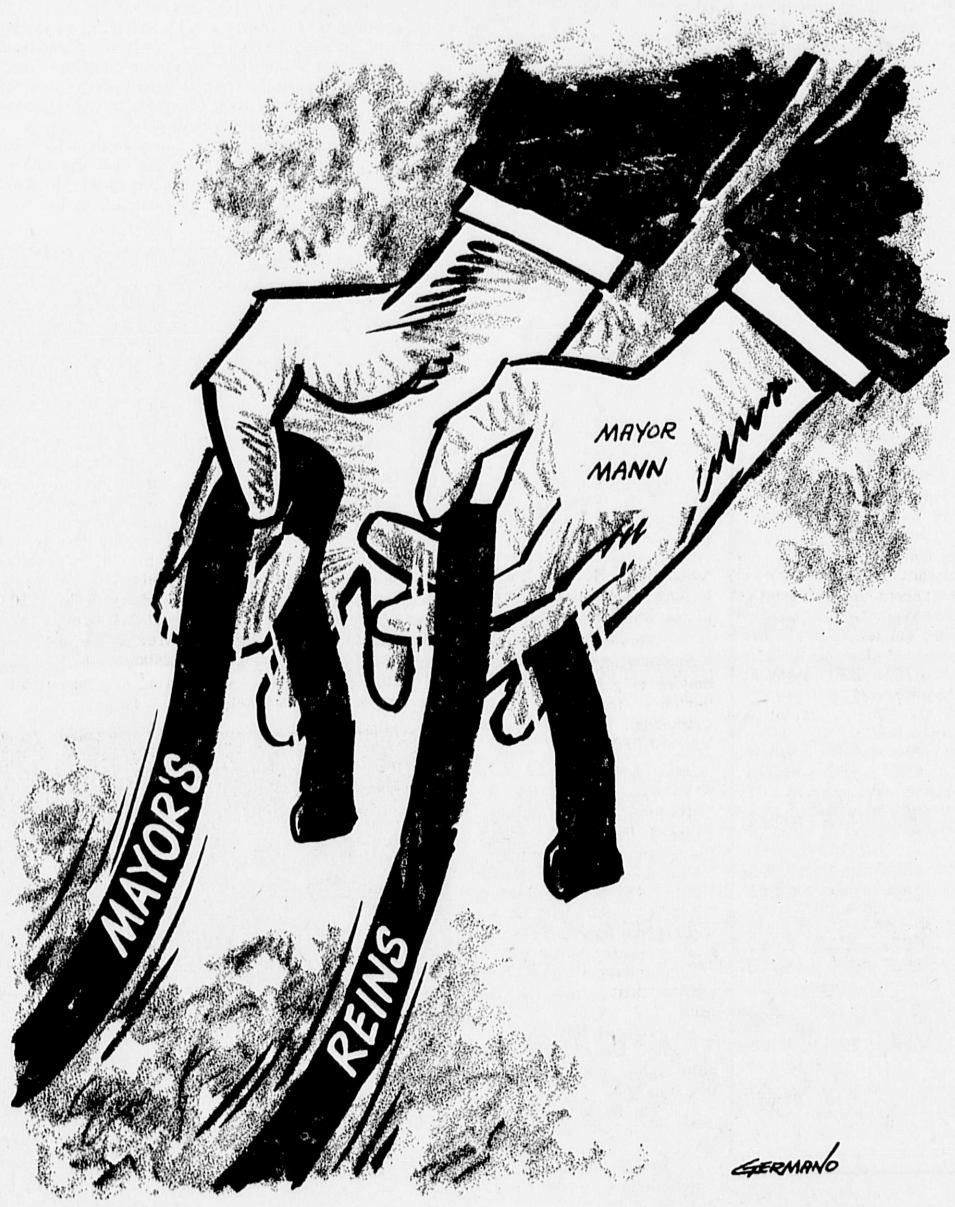
LONELY MISSION

What he said both in his Pacem in Terris speech and in his press conference seems to have made little impression on a people preoccupied with domestic turbulence. Put as simply as possible, he gave it as his conviction that failure of the present efforts for peace in the world — with the Middle East a vital phase of that effort — will mean a return to all-out cold war and defense budgets far greater than the present record levels.

Although some participants take this as the foreordained course, consider what it would mean in more inflation, increased taxes, the starvation of badly needed social services, the whole panoply of troubles that afflict the nation today.

Kissinger cannot look back. He is almost literally on his own. A beleaguered President whose closest allies are beginning to demand his resignation can give him little help. The odds are probably heavily against the success of his present mission. But to wish him ill, as part of the Nixon collapse, is to court the fate he has cogently warned of.

STILL IN HIS HANDS



Washington Window

By Arnold B. Sawislak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When something isn't working right and we can't seem to fix it, the tendency is to grasp at explanations which tell us the problem may be beyond our ability to solve.

So it seems to be with the American scandal of low voter turnout in elections to choose our government leaders. Free elections are what make our system legitimate, but the United States never seems to get as large percentages of citizens to the polls as other countries.

At one time, there was a school of thought among political scientists that low voter participation was a positive sign—a clear indication that citizens were getting the kind of government they wanted.

Now, we are being told that people don't vote because they are alienated, turned off by politicians and the political process.

Public Confidence

The solution is said to be the restoration of public confidence in government and in government officials. And, while some specific proposals are made to deal with campaign finance abuses and conflict of interest by public officials, the clear message is that the problem is a state of mind and therefore extremely difficult to deal with.

It would be ridiculous to argue that the average citizen's image of politics and politicians is not a problem in this country, but that is not the simplest explanation of why so many Americans fail to vote.

An organization called The National Movement for the Student Vote commissioned a survey by the Daniel Yankelovitch organization and came up with this answer: voter registration is the biggest obstacle to voting in this country.

Registration Requirements

The survey results showed that 26 million of the 50 million eligible Americans who failed to vote in 1972 said they would have cast ballots on election day had there been no registration requirements. They also showed that only 26 per cent of the unregistered eligible citizens said they did not register because they did not want to vote.

Registration is the bestknown safeguard against election fraud found to date, and there are few who would call for its elimination. But registration can be made easy or it can be made almost impossible, as was the case for blacks in some states before the voting rights laws of the 1960s were passed.

The Yankelovitch pollsters asked the unregistered voters whether they would participate if they could register by returning a postcard sent to them by election officials. Seven out of 10 favored the plan, and the survey concluded that national voter registration could be increased from about 72 per cent to 80 per cent of eligible citizens by adopting it or some other method to ease registration.

The Senate, after a minor filibuster, approved a postcard registration proposal last summer. But when the bill got to the House Administration Committee, it was tabled, which is tantamount to legislative capital punishment.

Poison Waters

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's enough to drive a person from drink. The drink is water.

It's often been called the real fountain of youth. But a detailed look at pollution of rivers, lakes, estuaries and harbors shows it often is the fountain of disease.

Where does the dirty water come from? One national environmentalist estimates, roughly, that one-third comes from industry, one-third from communities, and one-third from agriculture.

As for what to do about it, he sees clear choices—"There are only two ways of eliminating water pollution. One is laborious cleaning of water that has been befouled. The other, manifestly simpler, is to stop pollution before it starts, to prevent contaminations from getting into waterways."

So writes Gladwin Hill, environmental correspondent for The New York Times, in a new publication from the Public Affairs Committee, a New York-based nonprofit educational organization. It's title: "Cleansing Our Waters."

Hill writes that people are using water faster than nature can refine it. The result is water unappealing, unfit for drink, and sometimes hazardous just to dip in it.

The Potomac River, as it runs past the nation's capital in Washington, is so dirty, he says, that health officials have repeatedly warned that it is hazardous just to dip your hand in it.

Hill says the total amount of pollution entering our waterways annually has been estimated at 804 billion pounds of suspended solids and 137 billion pounds of dissolved solids— more than two tons per citizen.

"All this fluid waste is a staggering burden on the nation," he says. "...recreational possibilities are reduced by billions of person-hours of pleasure and billions of dollars of potential commerce...

"Pollution...has severely impaired the propagation of both shellfish and deepwater species, putting a dent in the nation's food supply and pushing up seafood prices."

Then there's the cost to public health. He says that in the decade 1961-70, there were 130 officially recorded outbreaks of disease in this country caused by drinking water—more than one a month —involving as many as 16,000 persons in individual episodes.

He figures it will cost $8.7 billion a year to clean up water pollution, with federal, state and local governments in the act, plus various private approaches. Even so, he says, it is less than the $13 billion a year reckoned as the largely hidden costs of water pollution to the nation.

His Letter Collection

NEW YORK — High on my list of favorite reading are the letters that customers write to big manufacturers — particularly those that advertise extensively. I collect these letters and I'll give you a few samples.

A lady in Dallas wrote this to a soap company:

"Recently I bought two jars of your deodorant and my husband and I used it and were satisfied until one day we were out in the heat mowing the lawn. Then, after all our exercise, your deodorant began to billow out from us in foam like shaving cream. I just want to tell you how it reacted in case you haven't discovered it."

Then here's the letter of Frank A. Butts of a town in California:

"Gentlemen: If you think my initials, which are the same as one of your fine products, has any advertising potential, would you consider giving me the cost of a set of license plates for my car? I am semi-retired and do considerable driving in the city and state. Thanking you, I remain..."

A man from Oakland, Calif., wrote a letter to a toothpaste company suggesting that it print funny stories to wrap around the tubes and advertise its product as "The Toothpaste With a Story." He recommended that a new story be used each month "so that people will use up the toothpaste they have in order to get another tube next month to read the funny story." He submitted the following story, and said he had "thousands" more:

"A lady ran a boarding house and a friend gave her a 35-pound salmon. She began to feed the boarders salmon three times a day. On the fourth day one of the boarders came downstairs with his suitcase packed. 'Oh, you aren't going to leave us, are you?' asked the lady. 'No,' said the guest. 'I'm just going up the river to spawn!'"

"Why in hell do you not give me one million dollars – tax free? I will not tell no one, not even my wife – and that, my friend, is how I am. '11. Corinthians, 9th Chapter, 7th Verse: For God loveth a cheerful giver.'

"I guess by now you think I am some kind of nut and you would be right because whoever herd of such a thing? Thanks a million for taking time out to read this nutty letter, although I probably will never hear from you."

A lady living in a women's club in Philadelphia wrote:

"My personal effects are under question as to what life situation a government agency wants me in. Will you kindly test your bar of soap to find out if it fits in with anything that might throw off a person's senses.

"The Central Intelligence Agency specializes in aggravating, annoying, irritating, and greasing my combs. Will you kindly give me your findings because I haven't received the federal report yet?"

Peace For Israel

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am an American student currently studying at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

On Oct. 6, the shrill sound of an air raid siren marked the reopening of war in the Middle East. This attack, which took place on Yom Kippur, by the Arab states outraged not only my religious feelings but my human feelings as well.

From the beginning of time, the Arabs have had only one aim and that is to destroy Israel. This is still their aim.

In this war the Syrians and Egyptians claim that since Israel occupies some of their territories they have a "right" to recover them if Israel doesn't give them up. After the War of Sinai (sic), Israel withdrew from all occupied territories to the lines which existed before the Sinai war (the same lines which the Arabs want Israel to give up now) and offered peace to the Arabs. Israel's peace offers were answered by preparations for war.

If the Arabs were not out to annihilate Israel the boundaries would still be those of June 4, 1967. The six-day war was caused by the Egyptians closing the Straits of Eilat for the purpose of destroying Israel. The Arabs could not claim then that they were out to regain territory.

This is my first time in Israel and I feel it is a privilege to be here at a time which will contribute some part in shaping the country's future. But when will the Arab States recognize the basic right of the Jewish people to an independent and peaceful existence among the other nations in the Middle East?

Lower Falls Needs New Plan

Editor, The Graphic:

A new plan is needed for Newton Lower Falls for many reasons:

1. The original plan was conceived dishonestly and now it is obsolete. Mario DiCarlo, and his friends are no longer members of the Newton Redevelopment Authority (NRA). Why should the present members of the NRA and LOPAC be forced to carry the burden of trying to make an obsolete plan workable?

The original plan called for 117,000 square feet of office building on 350,000 square feet of land. The office building would be four stories high and cover only 30,000 square feet of land. A building that size would look like a small stamp on a large, long envelope.

The original plan included the Colantuono house which, after a long bitter struggle, the NRA was forced to redeed to the Colantuonos. In order to save face, the Colantuono house was given back to the original owners and the plan was changed to allow six single houses on the Colantuono side of Moulton St. Very cleverly the federal and state parcels were joined into one piece and restored the long-hidden landlocked accesss. The changed plan calls for the original 117,000 square feet of building on 260,000 square feet of land. The Colantuono home and the six house lots were removed from the original plan and yet the size of the office building square footage is still the same. Why was the Colantuono home taken in the first place?

2. The plans for Newton Lower Falls have allowed many injustices to occur and provide for too many serious future errors.

The plans call for the demolition of the Kenjeska house and its four families in order to make room for the relocation of Mary's Cafe and the Wayside Market. Is that good planning? Mary's Cafe and the Wayside Market should be relocated on the opposite side of Washington St. with the other places of business.

The present plans call for 65 units of housing on Washington St. with the backs and backyards of the houses facing Washington St. Is this good planning?

HUD has frozen all public housing.

Why should public housing be built on Washington St. with all the noise and pollution of heavy traffic? There is a large tract of land on Grove St. for sale that connects with the Redevelopment land on Moulton St. Plans could be made with state financing to provide housing for senior citizens at this location. A small store could be built on grove St. for the convenience of all the residents. This is a beautiful location for building, trees and greenery and no heavy trucking or pollution like you find on Washington St.

Martin Roach was only paid 51 cents a foot or $191,000 for land that the Boston Mutual Insurance Co. and Arnold Haynes had agreed to pay $4 a foot for, or a total of $1,192,000. This is a difference of $1 million. With that amount of money involved many people found it convenient to look the other way.

Roach has repeatedly offered to buy his land back for $4 a foot but his offers have fallen on deaf ears. Roach then tried to have the NRA follow the recommendation of the Department of Community Affairs and have a reappraisal of his land made based on 1969 value. LOPAC also asked for a reappraisal on the Roach land.

Appraisals on the Roach property are well worth studying and then asking, why the big difference in appraisals?

Nordblom & Co., $2.50 a foot; Meredith & Grew, $2.50 a foot; Foster & Co., $4.00 a foot; Alexander Beal, 51 cents a foot; Edwin Keyes for the state DCA, $2.50 a foot.

There are still seven unsold house lots on the west side of Moulton St. for sale at a price of only $1,000 each. These wooded beautiful lots have water, sidewalks, and all improvements. I believe they are the cheapest lots ever sold in Newton at the expense of the Newton taxpayers. Now that HUD is not giving any money for public housing the six house lots on the east side of Mlulton St. could be added to the office park and increase the amount of office space which would increase the taxes to the city.

The state insisted on a reappraisal of the 260,000 feet of land. The appraisal was $4 a foot by Foster and Co.

City of Newton zoning laws permit 260,000 square feet of building on 260,000 square feet of land, or buildings four stories in height covering only 25 percent of the land.

The Newton Redevelopment plan decreased the tax return to the city and also made it possible to sell the land for much less than its true value, as the appraisals were based on 117,000 square feet of buildings instead of the 260,000 square feet of buildings permitted by law.

A new plan could have more building space with most of the parking inside and the limited outside parking in a park-like setting. This plan would increase the tax revenue to the city and make the residents of Newton Lower Falls more pleased.

The hill on Washington St. should be taken down to the grade of Washington St. The fill could be sold for a great deal of money to help pay for the project and also make a more sensible and far more attractive change in Newton Lower Falls.

The original plan was supposed to increase the tax base of the City of Newton, so far it has been a gross failure.

What's The Motto In Our Schools?

School Committee, City of Newton

I have been in communication with a dedicated, conscientious person in the physical education department.

Here is the issue: in the fall, a swimming program at Newton North H.S. was started for junior high girls from the south part of the city.

Too many girls signed up to be handled safely and effectively during a session. So a large number of girls was eliminated through competition, and the setup now is that these best swimmers swim three times a week, with transportation provided, while the rest do not swim at all.

I asked the physical education administrator why these best swimmers swim three times a week, whereas the others do not swim at all. Why couldn't three groups swim once a week each? Her answer was that the team needs to practice three times a week in order to compete with teams from other towns.

She said that the mediocre swimmers will get a chance to swim in February or March, but that transportation was not guaranteed yet, although she was optimistic about getting it through the School Committee.

I have underlined "in order to compete" because this is the nub of the problem; and it is also the nub of a philosophy which I deplore. In our city's school system, you compete to swim; and you may try out for the school musical in 7th, 8th, and 9th grades and never get a part. School policy should be "participate." But it is actually "Win!"

Many of us have had the experience in life of trying out for something, being rejected, and then giving it up. Success breeds effort and success; failure does not breed success, but rather withdrawal.

In specific reference to tryouts for school musicals, why don't we adopt a policy of Veterans' Preference whereby 9th graders are the veterans. We need not give them the lead parts; but let us give them a chance at this thrilling experience before leaving the school forever?

I urge you to praise and reward and pat the backs of those directors of activities who respond to children's enthusiasm, rather than those directors who aspire to Olympic standards and Thespian heights. Let us not encourage a coterie of a few performers and many spectators. School offers a vast proving ground of areas in which to find one's vocation, or just an avocation to fill the leisure hours of the future. The shorter work week will result in even more leisure hours than today.

Can you see that a very basic policy is involved here? The time and place for developing experts is after school at parents' expense, or through scholarship for the superior performers. I have spoken to many parents whose children were left out of this or that activity, and whose enthusiasm subsequently waned. Please use your effort to rectify this situation. I look forward to hearing from you.

Vocation Day Set For Boys

Students at St. John's Seminary College in Brighton have scheduled "a day of sharing and rapping" for high school boys on Sunday, Nov. 18, on the Foster St. campus.

Designed to acquaint prospective seminarians with the life and surroundings of a seminary, the day will include religious exercises, a tour of the grounds, informal discussions — rap sessions — and lunch. High schoolers who take part in the day will also be invited to participate in the seminarians' program of religious education for retarded children.

Chairman of the day is Rev. Mr. Andrew Holdgate, a student at St. John's Seminary College of Liberal Arts. Coordinator of the Vocation Information Center, located in the Seminary, is Rev. Paul T. Walsh, newly appointed vocations director for the Archdiocese of Boston.

"If any high school student or senior which wishes more information," Father Walsh said, "he may consult with one of the priests in the parish or write to Andy Holdgate."

The College is located at St. Clement's Hall, 197 Foster St., Brighton, 02135 (Tel. 254-2610).

Basic Skills Are Taught

Editor, Newton Graphic:

In response to the "Concerned Newton Parents."

Your concern that the basic skills are not being taught in the Newton Public Schools from my point of view are not justified.

Three of my children graduated from Newton South and my youngest is still in the public schools. Three mornings a week I do volunteer work in one of our elementary schools. This does not qualify me as an expert on the Newton School System, but I do have an opportunity to see the basic skills being taught. The teachers and the quality of their teaching has impressed me very much.

We parents are also teachers and perhaps should give more thought and consideration to basics we should be teaching. Those basics called values. Are we teaching our children honesty, integrity, trust, respect for themselves and others? What habits and attitudes are they developing? How well do they cope with frustration, anger, etc.? Have we taught them introspection?

For a change parents could look at the strengths of our school system. A word of appreciation for our "professional educators" would be a refreshing change. Encouragement and support can do wonders for a student and might help our schools too. Excessive criticism is destructive and what hurts the schools hurts my student!

Newton College Wins Award

Newton College has been awarded a $67,500 grant from the Exxon Education Foundation, according to an announcement this week by the college's president Dr. James J. Whalen. The Resource Allocation Management Program grant will support a planning project for the college which will be directed by R. James Henderson of Newton, vice president for business and administration at Newton College. The Resource Allocation Management Program (RAMP) of the Exxon Education Foundation provides funds for selected colleges that wish to develop effective systems for managing their resources. Applicants for RAMP grants, according to the Exxon Education Foundation, must be four-year, degree granting private colleges and universities which are academically strong and which have apotentially sound financial base. With the funds provided by the grant, Newton College will set up a system that will provide a variety of data for those who make the educational decisions. These data will include projection of trends (e.g. enrollment), consequences of alternate choices, analyses of costs, physical plant use and personnel requirements. "The objective of the project is, briefly, to establish both short-range and long-range plans of resource allocation to meet the goals and the objectives of the college," explained R. James Henderson.

Knights Of Columbus Sponsor Testimonial

More than 200 dignitaries, friends and members of Newton Council Knights of Columbus gathered at the Council Home recently to pay tribute to former District Deputy Alfred C. Jasset who also served as the Council's Grand Knight and is currently serving his second term as president of the Home Association of the Council.

Following a brief talk in which he extolled Jasset for the part he has played in community activities, Mayor Mann presented the guest of honor with a citation from the citizens of Newton.

DeMeo stressed the leadership of Jasset as president of the Council's Home Association and his total involvement and success while serving as a State District Deputy and Grand Knight of the Newton Council. Jasset was also complimented for his untiring efforts aiding drives for the Council's Annual Christmas parties at which more than 600 children are entertained, and the Children's Outing held each year and attended by more than 1200 youngsters.

Churches Celebrate National Bible Sunday

National Bible Sunday will be observed in Bay State churches Sunday, Nov. 18, it was announced today by Lewis Foster of Newton Highlands, president of the Massachusetts Bible Society, which is one of the oldest in the world.

Foster, head of the 164-year-old society, said observance of Bible Week, Nov. 18-25, will mark the beginning of a world-wide Bible reading program.

The Bible Society will distribute free more than 50,000 Bible markers and reading schedules for the coming holidays and the coming year.

The booklets will go to churches, colleges, hospitals, prisons, nursing homes, chaplains of military units, and others.

"Man has an unquenchable thirst for news, especially good news," said Foster.

Startling headlines catch our eye, commentators capture our attention, letters excite our curiosity, and the Bible is good news - the world's best seller," he added.

Foster emphasized that the society invites the participation and support of all groups, and all faiths in Bible reading.

Bible reading week each year coincides with America's only non-sectarian religious holiday and is sponsored by the Laymen's National Bible Committee, the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese, the Jewish Committee for Bible Week, the National Council of Churches and the U. S. Catholic Conference.

"We," the mayor told his supporters, "represent every part of the city, every ethnic origin, every religious persuasion, and every color of the rainbow."

"We took on the political powers of the United States; they (Carmen) brought in the heavyweights and we won!"

"This is America in operation right here and now and we want to keep it that way. Our mission is to restore respect for government."

At his gathering in Nonantum at Post No. 440, Carmen spoke philosophically, "I love this city and I ran because I wanted to do something for it," he said.

Asked if he would seek election again, Carmen commented, "Four years is a long time."

When he began his campaign for mayor, Carmen had said this would be his last try for the job. He had sought the office twice previously.

"I have a lot to do now," he said, "I will go back into community service. I've made a lot of friends, and I'm going to keep them."

Students Given Free Museum Memberships

Sumner Rodman, C.L.U. of 94 Vine street, Newton, recently named a life and qualifying member of the 1973 Million Dollar Round Table, has nominated two area youngsters for memberships at Boston's Museum of Science under a unique Student Scientist Program.

The program, sponsored by Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company, allows children nominated by members of the MDRT international professional life insurance sales organization, unlimited free visits to the Museum for a full year.

To expand the Student Scientist Program, it was announced that many MDRT members planned to match the Boston Safe's gift membership so that several youngsters from a single community could enjoy visits to the Museum's shows and exhibits together.

Locally, the Student Scientist Memberships were awarded to the following: Peter Casler, 12 Drumlin Rd., Newton Centre, and Deborah Hellman, 175 Brookline St., Newton Centre.

Fellowship Allows Public Health Study

Fellowship funds from the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation and Kaiser Foundation Hospitals have enabled a Newton college graduate to enroll at the Harvard School of Public Health in a new graduate training program for careers in health policy and management.

Dean Howard H. Hiatt, in announcing the fellowship award, said that the program, designed to meet an urgent need for a new kind of health professional in health care delivery, "could not have been launched this year without the generous and timely financial assistance granted by the two organizations bearing the late Kaiser's name."

"The program's goal," stated Dr. Hiatt, "is to prepare able, socially concerned young people to meet a need for professionals sophisticated in medicine and health on the one hand, and expert in the analytic and managerial sciences on the other."

The local recipient of fellowship funds from the foundation is Steven Eastaugh of Newton Highlands.

AUTO FACTS

By JOHN NAJARIAN

What causes flooding in an automobile? Excessive fuel pump pressure, dirt in the gasoline, or a gas-logged float are among the most common causes. The float may also be improperly adjusted, or the automatic choke may be too rich. When your carburetor needs repairs, or has been flooded too often, the whole unit should be dismantled and soaked in a cleaning solution. Let your mechanic do complicated repairs — the carburetor demands a skilled technician.

NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 wants to remind you that when you bring your car into your local service station or garage for carburetor repairs we will be able to supply them with the best quality parts. Other items carried include alternators, generators and starters. We carry the Delco line. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8-7, Sat. 8-5.

HELPFUL HINT: Car upholstery should be vacuumed often and given an occasional shampoo.

'Christmas In November' At The Norwood Hospital

Again this year, the Norwood Hospital Auxiliary will usher in the holiday season with "Christmas in November," its colorful gift sale and tea to be held in the Draper Lobby of Norwood Hospital Thursday and Friday, Nov. 15 and 16.

Sponsored by the Gift Shop Committee, the sale is a major effort in the Auxiliary's calendar of money-raising events which this year realized a record-breaking $43,000 contribution to the hospital.

Sale hours are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday with Tea served from 2 to 4.

According to Gift Shop Chairman, Mrs. Wallace Orpin of Canton this year's sale, the 20th edition of the annual event, will offer an unusually large and attractive number of articles on display tables in the lobby and in the gift shop itself.

In addition to such perennial favorites as Christmas decorations, home-baked foods and handicrafts, there will be an abundance of items for every member of the family.

Dolls in old-fashioned clothes, stuffed animals, Snoopy articles, clothing games, puzzles and stocking stuffers will be of special interest for small fry as is a brand-new line of children's toiletries. For women there are new perfumes by O'Dine, medium-priced and holiday-wrapped, as well as a festive assortment of lingerie, caftans, jewelry and handbags.

The traditionally elegant Tea, served by Mrs. Astor Bashian of Norwood and the Hospitality Committee will feature delicacies baked especially for the occasion by Auxiliary members.

Mrs. Robert Widdows, Auxiliary President, Mrs. Warren Reynolds, 1st Vice President, both of Nowood, and a large number of Auxiliary representatives in area towns served by Norwood Hospital are assisting Mrs. Orpin and the Gift Shop Committee in their efforts to make "Christmas in November" an outstanding success.

Homebaked foods are being solicited and anyone wishing to make a donation should contact one of the following Town Representatives: in Canton, Mrs. John Harris, Mrs. George Philopoulos; Dedham, Mrs. Richard Spillane; East Walpole, Mrs. Leonard Goodwin; Foxboro, Mrs. Leon Schuyler, Mrs. Gordon Bosworth; Medfield, Mrs. Roderick Bernick, Mrs. John York; Norwood, Mrs. Robert Miethe, Mrs. Joseph Lane, Mrs. Kenneth McLean, Mrs. Thomas Couch; Sharon, Mrs. Bennett Wayne, Mrs. Harry Robbins, Mrs. Richard Wood; Walpole, Mrs. Phillip Ryan, Mrs. H. Douglas Watson; Westwood, Mrs. Nicholas Radzwill, Mrs. John Schramm.

Young People's Concert In North Quincy Nov. 17

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra and the Metropolitan Civic Ballet Center of Newton will present a Young Peoples Concert on Saturday, November 17.

The curtain will rise at 10:30 a.m. in the North Quincy High School Auditorium, at the corner of Hancock and Squantum Streets in North Quincy. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students, and can be purchased at the door.

The Metropolitan Civic Ballet Center is a community ballet center which offers performance opportunities to serious dance students until they are ready to become professional.

Its director is Marjorie E. Medland, who is highly qualified and recognized as a performer and dance teacher in the Boston area. Robert E. Brown, Director of Music at Eastern Nazarene College, is the conductor of the Quincy Symphony.

The Symphony is a community orchestra with members from many communities in the Boston area. Members of both organizations range in age from pre-teenage through adult.

The Young Peoples Concert will feature a discussion of ballet by Miss Medland and will include selections from "The Nutcracker" by Tchaikovsky, "Les Patineurs" by Mayerbeer, and "Overture Classique" by J. S. Bach.

Future performances by the Quincy Symphony will include a Winter Concert on February 12, the annual Youth Performs concert on April 9, and a Pops concert on May 22.

Soccer Talk

Boston Inter, not satisfied with their showing so far this season, is doing something about it. They are now in the process of negotiating with a team in the North American Soccer League for the loan of a few of their players for the Massachusetts Soccer Association's season.

Sal Atria, coach of Inter tells me that such an agreement is not unusual, as the NASL plays during the summer. A lot of the players in that league, who live in this country, play with the consent of their team in the top semi-pro leagues around the country.

The Mass. Soccer Assoc. is currently one of the top leagues in the United States and maybe it would behoove some of the other teams in the first division to look into a similar agreement.

Eugene Chyzewych, coach of the U.S. National Team, will not accompany the team to Mexico and in November to Europe because of business reasons. Gordon Bradley, coach of the New York Cosmos, will temporarily replace Chyzewych.

With all of these international games, both home and abroad, we are building a national team that will be a threat in the 1978 World Cup competition that will be held in Uruguay.

Speaking of the World Cup, W. Germany, Brazil, Scotland, and Italy have all qualified for the 1974 World Cup in Munich.

The CONCACAF (of which the US is part) representative in the 1974 World Cup competition will be determined between November 29 and December 18, 1973, in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, when the six semi-finalists of the CONCACAF region meet in the final tournament. The qualified countries are Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Netherlands Antilles, Trinidad, and Haiti.

The Mobile, Alabama, adult night soccer league program kicked off fashionably on Oct. 4 with three games on new $35,000.00 pitches (fields) and a charming right-winger with the University of South Alabama.

Ms. Patti Coleman, a petite 18-year-old, subbed at wing in the 62nd minute against Springhill College and showed good speed and ball control. Bet Barbara Berin could get into the dressing room to interview Patti.

THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS TOUGH MEAT

Only about one-quarter of the carcass ends up as tender steaks and roasts. This leaves three-quarters of the carcass in less tender cuts which are lower priced. Included in the less tender meat group are chuck, round, fore shank, brisket, short plate, flank and tip. These cuts require a little "know-how" to make them as tender as the higher priced cuts. The less tender cuts are every bit as nutritious and often yield more lean meat per pound because they have less fat.

Tender meats contain little connective tissue; therefore, they need to be cooked only a short time. The less tender cuts, which contain more connective tissue, must be cooked slowly so that the connective tissue will have time to soften.

Cooking meat at a high temperature causes the protein to shrivel and become dry and tough. Low temperature cooking results in little shrinkage and more attractive, juicier meats. So remember, the secret of cooking meats successfully is to cook the meat at a low temperature.

All cuts of meat can be made tender by the proper cooking method. You need low, moist heat, enough cooking time, and letting the chemistry of certain other foods help.

1. Marinating or cooking with an acid (tomato, lemon juice, wine, or vinegar) adds flavor and helps break down sturdy meat fiber.

2. Grinding, pounding, cubing, and scoring do a good job of breaking down connective tissue.

3. Cooking slowly with moisture (pot roasting, braising, simmering, stewing).

4. Meat tenderizers (instant or fifteen minute variety). Be sure to follow the directions on the label. Do not use more tenderizer or leave it on cuts that are already tender.

Watch for my column next week when we discuss "Lemon power".

WHERE YOU POCKET THE DIFFERENCE

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

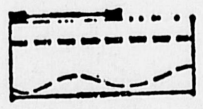
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Your Fashion Questions

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: My wedding will be in early January, held in my home. I want to wear something special, but not the usual "wedding gown." Could you make some suggestions that wouldn't be as costly as gowns are?

A: Many wedding dress firms today make non-traditional dresses as well as the "gown" kind. For instance, you'll find Victorian and country-styled dresses, shirt and sweater styles. They come in such non-traditional materials as angora blend knit, jersey and self-patterned brocades. Most can be used as party dresses later, and they cost no more than any good evening dress.

Q: In January I'm going as a delegate to a club convention. I will give a short talk on the work of our club for the past year. Since we dress in pants or sportswear for our local club meetings, what should I wear to the convention, especially for the talk?

A: If you appear to be too casually dressed at a large gathering, you give the impression that you don't respect the organization. While there's nothing wrong with a well-designed, tailored pantsuit, you won't err if you wear a skirted suit, instead. Wear a simple, off-the-face, colorful hat. They're back in style, provide a pleasant focus for the audience to watch and create a receptive atmosphere for your talk.

Q: At 20, my small size, 5' 3" and about 100 lbs., makes everyone take me for about 16. I'm going to a dinner dance and would like to know what I can wear that won't make people want to pat me on the head?

A: A glitter knit, long sweater dress, with some important-looking modern-styled jewelry, would do it. Not earrings, as they often seem to weight a small person down, but a pendant necklace and several bangle bracelets. Also good: a silky crepe shirt and pleated skirt with a glittered cardigan sweater, a halter dress in bias-cut flow, with cardigan. Of course, your choice should be floor-length, as this makes you look taller, and a simple, uncluttered silhouette is sophisticated.

Q: I just got out my last year's holiday party dresses and find I went for gypsy and peasant stuff that now strikes me as out of date. As they're still good, what do I do with them?

A: True, this year's evening look is simple, even sportswear in feeling. However, if you're at home or in other people's houses for parties, there's nothing wrong with these dresses as at-home wear.

Q: I've been invited to a wedding of a kind which is new to me, held in a hotel at noon, early in December. Reception and buffet luncheon follow immediately. What do I wear?

A: Think of it as a cocktail party and you'll get a conception of what to wear — a satin shirt-dress or a sweater dress or a two-piece knit with a touch of glitter. I would advise streetlength for the hour, but can't say this is so absolute, as I've seen too much wearing of long skirts at all hours to say there will be none there. If you want to wear long, make it simple.

Apricot Cut Velvet

It's The Usual Confusion

An old Chinese curse runs: "May you live in interesting times." If it's a true curse, then the fashion world has been living an accursed life perpetually. Seldom are the times anything but "interesting."

This year, for example, was to be the year of the big coat revival. Fall of 1972 had been unexpectedly good in coat sales, and, of course, stores were caught with short stocks. This year, everyone went all-out to get in a bumper crop of coats. What happened? Mild weather that caused a drop of up to 10 percent in October coat sales from last year. "May you live in interesting times."

For a number of years, manufacturers of cotton, wool, linen and silk were strangling. Only use of natural fibers with man-made in blends saved producers from going under. All over the world, sheep herds dwindled, cotton and flax acreage was reduced and silk production faded to a shadow of its former self. This year, a horrendous energy shortage is foreshadowing curtailment of man-made fibers. A sudden rush is on for natural fiber fabrics, so, of course, there aren't enough. Mills already are sold out for fall, 1974. "May you live in interesting times."

U. S. buyers have been in Europe, viewing the Italian and French ready-to-weat for next spring. For the last few years, they have been praising the "Originality" of European rtw, saying how they found things that American manufacturers were too timid to do.

Well, this time the originality has taken the form of an all-out commitment to mid-calf length. The American buyers, still under the impression that they had a dreadful experience with something called the midi in 1970, nearly died. "May you live in interesting times."

Until this year, dress makers were going out of business on every hand, reorganizing to stay in business, learning how to make pants to keep the doors open. The dress field, it was said, was said, was dying, as women took to sportswear.

As gor getting money to expand, forget it. So who's just been taken over by the Norton Simon, Inc., industrial empire? Halston, known for such stunning surprises as the revival of the shirtwaist dress. What other firms have big business backing? Dress men Oscar de la Renta, David Crystal and Jerry Silverman.

The weak dollar is nobody's idea of a blessing, but it does make American goods cheaper abroad. Seventh Avenue, which in better times, like the 1950's, never thought of exporting, now is bestirring itself.

Bill Blass, Paganne Ltd., Jerry Silverman, Anne Klein, Andrew Arkin, Rembrandt and Goldworm are all getting into foreign business.

Charles Kleibacker Designs

Elegance For The Mature

Designers often are accused of neglecting women over about the the age of 25, but Charles Kleibacker doesn't fit the mold. Not only does he create clothes for those whom he calls "the size 12s who are over 40," he enjoys doing it.

Kleibacker always has believed in clothes as flattery for the figure and face, rather than as an exercise in novelty. No publicity-seeker, he gradually acquired a reputation among fashion connoisseurs for his skill with bias cutting. Since he creates the silhouette for the body, not as something which one fits into if one is lucky, his clothes come under that over-worked word, "classic."

"Real fit," said Mr. Kleibacker recently, "means that a woman can put on a dress and forget it, knowing it will adapt to every movement."

For example, he believes in high necklines for holiday dresses worn by mature women, but never so high as to the choking. He may bare the arm, but give it a graceful cap sleeve, or make sure the armhole is high enough to cover the armpit.

Details are what count, as in his knee-length apricot cut-velvet, with a high front neckline that sweeps over the cap-sleeved shoulders to a graceful dip in the back. The torso is a marvel of subtle bias cut and seaming to accent a good waistline and swing out gracefully to the knees.

For long dresses, Kleibacker favors supple fabrics such as Qiana matte jersey, which he uses in lavish yardage of rich mahogany color. All cut on the bias, it falls in rippling folds from a rounded yoke neck. The cord sash is also bias-cut, passing through the back and tying in front. It makes a completely adjustable dress of pure elegance.

"Most designees create the sample of a style in size 8, then make the larger sizes from that by mechanical process called "grading up."

"But if a style is to look right and fit exactly, a sample should be made for each size. Then subtle adjustments can be made. It's a more costly process, of course, but it's one reason why some clothes are more expensive than others.

Charles Kleibacker sees the over-40 size 12 as a woman who has kept a reasonably good figure, cared for her skin and developed a serenity which shows in her face and in her choice of clothes.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By Barbara Gibbons

Roast Turkey with all the fixin's! Everybody loves it.

Trouble is the "fixin's" are fattening. And too much fuss, particularly if you have a small family. Who wants to bother stuffing a big bird for just a few people?

Our answer to both problems is the "quarter-turkey" prepared the Slim Gourmet way with fat-free dressing and gravy. Our turkey plus dressing and gravy is only 233 calories a serving . . . less than conventional stuffing alone!

What's a "quarter turkey"? It's a sale-priced big bird cut in quarters. All you have to do is watch your supermarket ads for a good price on whole turkeys. Then pick one out and ask your meat man to saw it into four equal parts. . Except in the busiest times, most supermarkets will willingly perform this service for you. Their powerful meat saws can zip through a solidly frozen bird in a few seconds. What you'll get back is a still-frozen, still-wrapped turkey neatly quartered.

The quartered turkey will be cheaper per pound than "small family" birds or boneless turkey roasts. To get the most meat and the least calories for your turkey dollar, be sure to pick a "plain" turkey, not a self-basting" bird that's been pumped full of fattening oil. Why pay a premium price for extra calories?

When you get your quartered turkey home, rewrap each section separately, and label, store and freeze 'til needed. You can roast each quarter separately.

To prepare a frozen turkey quarter for cooking you need to thaw it only enough so that you can remove the paper-wrapped giblets that were packed inside and quartered along with the bird. Or, you can thaw it completely. A frozen or partly frozen turkey take longer to cook, naturally, so realy on a meat thermometer for perfect results.

Whole turkeys can be roasted uncovered because they're protected by a covering of skin, but quarter turkeys should be moist-roasted at a higher temperature in a covered pan. Follow our directions to prepare an easy decalorized dinner with defatted dressing and gravy:

EASY TURKEY WITH LOW-FAT GRAVY AND DRESSING

1 ¼ young turkey frozen or thawed (about 3½ pounds)
seasoning to taste
3 cups water
Dressing:
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup finely chopped celery
4 ounces seasoned bread cubes (2 cups)
½ cup boiling water
For the gravy:
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons arrowroot or cornstarch

Season turkey on all surfaces with generous amounts of onion or garlic salt, pepper and MSG (monosodium glutamate). Sprinkle with meat tenderizer, if you wish, and puncture in several places with a fork. Place the turkey quarter, skin-side-down, in a covered roasting pan. Add the water. Bake in a preheated, 400-degree oven for one hour. (This method helps draw out the fat.)

Remove the pan from the oven. Drain the liquid into a tall glass or jar and place in the refrigerator.

Combine stuffing ingredients and place in a mound in the center of the roasting pan. Place the partly cooked turkey quarter over the stuffing, this time with the skin side up. Lower oven to 325 degrees. Cover pan and bake for an additional 45 minutes to one hour, until a meat thermometer placed in a meaty portion reads 185 degrees.

Skin all the fat from the chilled turkey broth. Combine broth, cornstarch and flour in saucepan. Cook and stir until mixture simmers and thickens. Thin with water if needed. Add seasoning and brown gravy coloring if you wish.

One Touch Of Fashion

With cuffed pants so popular these days, home sewers are making lots more of them. But cuffs can be a problem, especially in getting both legs to match exactly.

Fairgate Rule Company, Inc., has come up with a solution, a Cuff-Wide Rule, available in six cuff widths from one to three inches. The Rule is 12 inches long, to accommodate wide pants widths, and is of aluminum.

On each edge, inch measurements are indicated. The card on which the Rule is packaged carries diagram and instructions for using the Rule. It's a simple matter of three quick measurements, all determined by the width of the rule, folding on the rule lines, tacking and pressing.

The Cuff-Wide Rule is available at home sewing centers everywhere for prices ranging from $1.05 to $2.25 depending on width of Rule.

Georg Jensen, the famed silver and house accessories shop in New York, has a special Grima Gallery for the jewelry of Andrew Grima, the eminent British designer. The current collection is called "Sticks and Stones," because it is based on four-inch sticks of emerald and tourmaline and gemstones sought out by Grima himself in Brazil and Africa.

Pendants which can attach to a simple gold circlet necklace are made of natural sticks of green tourmaline combined with a slice of tourmaline in a resulting banjo shape with a coil of pave diamonds, of sticks of dark green tourmaline held by sticks of white gold accented with pave diamonds and in slices of pink tourmaline rimmed irregularly with gold on which small diamonds are scattered.

Bold colors, polka dots, plaids and stripes will whizz down the slopes this winter as young skiers take to the new bright look in skiwear. In suits, reports "Seventeen" magazine, a short polka dot jacket with striped trim matches a striped jumpsuit, snowflakes scatter over a shirt-jacket that goes with solid pants and a navy parka and pants can take red and green trim. All these for downhill racing.

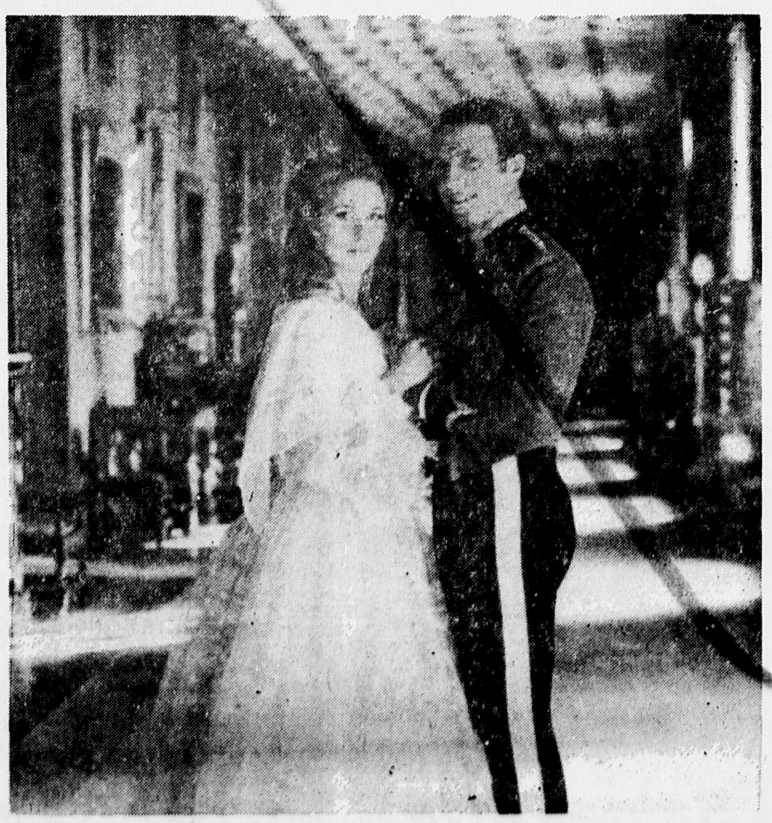
Cross-country skiers tuck jeans or pants inside knee socks, wear bright jackets. These come on bold plaids, white fleece or stripe-trimmed, often looking like baseball jackets. Accessories include newly bright patterned sweaters, colorful long scarves and plaid flannel shirts.

Young after-ski wear features long skirts in checked wool, with white satin or matching shirt, or a deliberately "funky" 1940s look with fluttery sleeves, sweetheart necklines and swirl skirts.

If there is to be a fuel crisis, it may have unexpected repercussions in fabrics. Most man-made fibers are created by the petrochemicals industry, and last year acrylics and polyesters consumed some 10 percent of the petroleum in the United States. (Rayon, a cellulose, comes from scarce wood pulp.)

The result well could be a resurgence in natural fibers. Wool can be clipped again and again from sheep, cotton and flax are plants, and silk needs only a silk worm and some mulberry leaves.

Mankind got along pretty well on these four fabrics until very recent years. The chief problem now is that there is nowhere near enough production for today's expanded population. However, it may not be a matter of choice as fossil fuels run out. Back to basis in fabrics may be the next step in the energy crisis.



A Princess And Fiancee

The marriage of Britain's Princess Anne and Captain Mark Philips of the Queen's Dragoon Guards will take place Nov. 14 at Westminster Abbey. The Princess and Captain Phillips are shown in Long Gallery at Windsor Castle. With her full-length white dress by Zandra Rhodes, Princess Anne wears a diamond tiara, earrings and necklace. ask Susie

By SUSIE McDOUGAL

Dear Susie Mac: I am 30 and very much in love with a man who has been separated from his wife for quite some time. The main problem is that even though neither one of them loves each other, she refuses to let him have a divorce. She doesn't want him but she doesn't want me to have him, either. She knows all about me and is very bitter, although I wasn't the cause of their problems.

She has a strong hold on him because he loves his children very much and wouldn't do anything to hurt them. She says terrible things about me to the children, knowing how much it will hurt their father.

I love him so much and he loves me, but I feel very depressed all the time. I have no desire to live, and if I should lose him I wouldn't go on living without him. I know it's an awful way to feel but I can't seem to help myself. Without him, life has no meaning for me.

I'd be satisfied to just live together if we can't be married. Even though he stays with me quite a bit, he won't move in with me because of his children.

I need help and I don't know what to do anymore. I won't give him up; I love him too much. He loves me but the children will always come first in his life, which I can understand. I'm more than willing to wait for him, but sometimes I wonder what's going to happen to us.

He started divorce proceedings six months ago, but she contested it so he dropped them. Is there any way he can divorce her?

—Miss H. P.

Dear Miss H. P.: Not without hurting his kids: the one thing he says he wants to avoid.

I think you know what's going to happen to you: you just need some help in accepting it. You know your man isn't going to hurt his children by divorcing his wife, but that knowledge doesn't make it any easier.

My first suggestion is to get some counseling. You need somebody to talk to when you get depressed.

Second, find a job you can really sink your teeth into. Do some volunteer work at a hospital or children's home.

Keeping yourself busy with worthwhile things may help you through the rough times.

Dear Susie Mac: What can a girl do when she's pregnant by a guy with whom she is very much in love but who won't marry her?

At times he says he loves me, and then the next minute he says he doesn't, and then slaps me around and chokes me half to death.

—Unhappy Person

Dear Person: Take out a lot of life insurance, becuase it sounds to me like he's going to kill you sooner or later.

Put away your dreams of a honeymoon, kiddo, and face a few facts. You need a place to live, medical supervision and a plan for the future.

And stay away from this bum — if not for your own sake, then for your baby's.

Roche Bros. Plans Holiday Parties For Senior Citizens

Joe Castignetti and Louis Melchiona, have once again donated the facilities of Moseley's on the Charles to the senior citizens of Dedham and have also made it available to the West Roxbury Senior Citizen Club and the Parkway Seniors, as Roche Bros. Supermarkets make plans for another series of Holiday Parties. It should be noted that much credit for the outstanding success of the West Roxbury and Dedham parties last year, was given to Edith Castignetti and Marge Melchionna, who helped with professional assistance throughout the day.

The date set for the Dedham seniors this year is Monday, Dec. 3. Selectman Francis O'Brien has promised to post bus schedules in the paper before the date. Those wishing to attend the Dedham party are asked to make reservations by writing to Carol Neil, secretary to Council on Aging in Dedham, or write to Rita Sanford, comsumer hostess of Roche Bros., Box 282, Westwood. The need to know the number wishing to attend and, those who will depend on bus transportation, is needed as quickly as possible to finalize plans.

The date for the combined groups of West Roxbury is Dec. 4th. The West Roxbury Senior Citizens Club, may make reservations with Mrs. Greta Higley and the Parkway Seniors Club are requested to notify Henry Meyer, 19 Acadia road, West Roxbury.

In the year, since the successful events of last year, many changes have taken place at Moseley's-on-the Charles, promising even nicer background for Roche Bros. guests. Both parrties will start with a Happy Hour at 12 o'clock noon, a sit-down luncheon, music by Syl Melchiorri and His Merry Music Makers, sing-a-long, dancing and prizes. Pat and Bud Roche, and members of the staff will be present to greet guests, as well as, Father Jack Roche, younger brother of Bud and Pat, and a personal "hit" of each party last year. Doors to Moseley's will not be open until 11:45 this year, to allow time for preparation for the parties.

Area Artists On Holiday Heart Association Cards

Sending greeting cards during the holiday season is an old and warm tradition. But holiday cards can carry more than your season's greetings. Through sending Heart Association holiday cards one can send his message of peace and hope. At the same time he can help support the Heart Association's fight against heart disease with the purchase of each card.

This year, the Greater Boston Heart Association offers a selection of two holiday cards. One is an abstract sketch in deep blue and white depicting a bright star in the winter sky. This sketch was donated to the Heart Association by Paul Joseph Herbert. Hebert is a self-taught painter who ives in his home town of South Weymouth, Mass. At 31, Hebert has been painting for 15 years andnow concentrates on Catholic surrealism. A four page portfolio of his pen and ink sketches has been most recently published in the winter issue of Ploughshares, an Art Quarterly.

Clark M. Goff of Sudbury contributed a delicate pen and ink sketch of a new England covered bridge scene. Goff is a graduate of Rhode Island School of Design where he earned a degree in architecute. His architectural background is reflected in his sketches which feature old houses, churches and barns. The Postal Service recently honored Goff by using one of his drawings for a commemorative envelope marking the 250th anniversary of the Old North Church.

———TRAVELS WITH CHARLEY,
BY JOHN STEINBECK.
BANTAM
By SARITA TISSER

"Travels With Charley" is a personal odyssey of the Nobel Prize-winning author John Steinbeck as he discovers America on his own.

Steinbeck's restless urge to travel was present in his youth and middle age. Even in his later years, his desire to travel and see and live among the different people in America was not lessened.

At age 60, with the encouragement of his wife, he set out on his own on a three month journey to rediscover America. In order not to be discovered as a celebrity, Steinbeck found that he had to keep moving, not sign hotel registers, not ask too many searching questions, and so on.

To assist his anonymity, he outfitted a three-quarter ton pickup truck with particular care – he had all his needs taken care of and needed to rely very little for anything on outsiders along the way. His trip elicited much satirical comment from his friends, so he had "Rocinante," the name of Don Quixote's horse, painted on the side of the truck in 16th century Spanish script.

He averted suspicion about why a stranger was traveling around the country by carrying a shotgun and several fishing rods, because hunting or fishing is a recognized purpose.

Because there was concern that he might meet with attack and robbery along the roads, he took one companion on his journey – an old French gentleman poodle, known as Charley. Charley was often the means of starting conversations with strangers, and contributed much to the trip.

The remarkable thing about this journey is the fact that at a time when many men would settle for a slower pace, John Steinbeck decided that it was not enough to remember the past, but wanted to see how America was today – its people, its natural beauties, the varying customs among different peoples. In so doing, he discovered the restlessness of the people, the enormous waste, and the terrible face-to-face experience of racial hostility and tension.

Steinbeck went from Long Island to Maine, through the Middle West, to Chicago, to Minnesota, Idaho, Montana, to Seattle, South to San Francisco, and to his birthplace, Salinas, California – where he found the truth in the old adage "You Can't Go Home Again." He sees Mexico, Arizona, Texas, New Orleans, Alabama, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and finally returns to New Jersey and New York.

During his trip he saw many things that made him proud to be an American and many things that disturbed his terribly. For most purposes, his trip was over in Virginia, even though he was still a long way from home. He had had enough and the rest of the journey back was anticlimactic and a blurred remembrance.

The flavor of this book comes thrugh in Steinbeck's masterful story telling – truth, this time providing the fodder, not fiction. "Travels With Charley" is one of those funny-sad books, but a moving experience in reading.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Massachusetts Audubon Society)

By keeping your birds outside a window, you never have to change a paper in the bottom of a cage.

At this season, it's easy enough to keep a supply of birds outside the window. All one need do is buy a bag of wild bird feed at a supermarket, hardware or grain store. Toss out a couple pounds daily - maybe only a half pound at today's prices - and you're in the bird business.

Much of the luck you may have in attracting birds depends upon the location where you live. In the heart of a city, one cannot expect too much. One never knows, however. Birds show up at unexpected places. Wherever you live, do not expect the instant appearance of a flock of birds following seed scattering. Sometimes it requires a couple of weeks for birds to discover that your home equals a steady supply of free seeds.

Since birds seldom visit garden shops, most of them are not familiar with the mass-produced bird feeder. They are willing to eat seed placed on any cleared area. Some place similar to your porch, for instance. A bird feeder probably pays for itself, however, in the grain it saves from being blown away. When snow falls, the bird feeder especially is valuable since it keeps the grain supply from being covered.

In general, birds appear in greatest volume early in the morning. Make a practice of filling the bird feeder each evening after dark. Then the outfit is ready to work at dawn's early light. If snow falls overnight, the early morning grain supply is very important. Birds need an immediate supply of food to cope with weather that threatens to freeze or starve them.

If possible, place the bird feeder near shrubs or other cover that birds can duck into quickly. A nearby safe retreat gives them confidence - and guarantees that they will find your food supply more quickly.

Many years - particularly in this era of affluence - one can bring great news of something new that can be fed to birds. Unfortunately, this year the only news is the price for grain - it's gone sky-high. Thistle seed is more expensive than a pillow stuffed with the fuzz off of peaches. Regular wild bird feed mixes and sunflower seeds have responded to the devaluation of the dollar.

One may broaden the array of window-side birds by hanging a suet stick or a bag to a tree limb near the window. It will attract woodpeckers and supplement the feeding of chickadees and nuthatcher. Or, if you prefer, you may smear peanut butter into holes bored into a two-by-four and hang it below a tree limb. Perhaps your neighbors will insist that peanut butter chokes birds. They will recommend mixing cornmeal or oatmeal with the peanut butter. The mixture may increase the food value of the peanut butter has the disadthat straight peanut butter harms birds. In any event, suet feeds birds about the same calories as peanut butter and peanut butter has the fisadvantage of attracting squirrels to the feeder.

For more on bird feeding, send a self-addressed stamped long envelope to: Bird Feed, Massachusetts Audubon Seceity, Lincoln, Mass. 01773.

Mixing Drugs And Alcohol Traffic Hazard

Last year more than 55,700 Americans lost their lives in traffic accidents.

This is a reversal of a downward trend in traffic deaths reported in 1970 and 1971. In 1971, the traffic fatality toll was 54,000.

In its annual compilation of street and highway statistics, The Travelers Insurance Companies has noted a new problem–the mixing of drugs and alcohol. These drugs are not in the marijuana to heroin range, but the cold pills, bromides and tranquilizers, a spokesman said.

A person can be taking such drugs for several ailments and acquired from a number of sources. The cumulative effect of the medication when a cocktail or two are added is greater than would be anticipated from any of the drugs taken singly, the spokesman added.

The Travelers booklet, "SPEED" KILLS!, is available without charge from any Travelers representative or office as long as the supply lasts.

The Wind Didn't Stop The Tigers

Oops!

Newton High quarterback Bob Kinsella has a distinct problem. He's just bobbled the football and is trying to recover it before the Boston Latin personnel come sweeping in. Kinsella lost the battle, but Newton won the war as the Tigers beat Latin, 13-6. Looking on is Newton's Jerry Kelcher. (Jim Easton Photo).

BY BOB LOW

In a game that was marked by tough defense and numerous errors, Newton High exploded for a pair of long touchdown plays to defeat Boston Latin 13-6 at Dickinson Stadium, last Saturday.

A fierce wind forced both teams to run the ball rather than risk passing. The Tigers completely shut off Latin's passing attack until the final quarter, and, while they threw only four times in the game, the Tigers gained close to 100 yards in the air.

Boston Latin threatened early in the game. After Bob Kinsella, getting his first start at quarterback, had moved Newton to their 34 yard line he bobbled a snap. He tried to fall on the ball but it squirted loose again and Latin covered it.

Quarterback Pat Daly moved his team on the ground down to a fourth and goal on Newton's 2. However Daly's attempt to carry the ball in was stopped just inches shy of the goal line.

Taking over in the shadow of their own end zone the Tigers got out of trouble with a quick kick. Making full use of a following wind, Gordon MacNeil boomed a 52 yard punt.

Newton moved the ball from their 12 up to midfield the next time they got control, but a Kinsella bomb was held by the wind just long enough for Fran Hickey to intercept for Latin.

After the Tigers' defense held, Cal Moffie came in at quarterback and moved Newton into Latin territory. On first down on the 34, Peter Berquist raced around the right end on a reverse and scored untouched. John Connolly's extra point was good and made the score 7-0 Newton.

The Tigers had one more scoring opportunity in the half. Latin's Joe Mahoney fumbled on the ensuing kick-off and Newton recovered on Latin's 47 yard line. After a penalty a 37 yard pass to Connolly put Newton on the 15. Three runs netted 15 and on fourth down Moffie threw into the end zone where Hickey made another excellent play, knocking the pass away. The half ended with Newton still holding a 7-0 lead.

The Tigers elected to kick off to start the second half, and Latin gratefully took the ball and moved into Newton territory before a clipping penalty stopped them. The Tigers then moved to their 38 to set up the big play.

Cal Moffie took the snap and lateralled to Peter Waxman. Waxman started to run and then suddenly stopped and fired a pass downfield to Ed Hartunian who was standing all alone. Hartunian raced in for the touchdown that made the score 13-0. Newton's try for two points failed when Moffie's pass was knocked down.

Latin finally scored in the fourth quarter. Gordon MacNeil couldn't handle a high snap from center while attempting to punt and Latin got the ball on Newton's 26. Several plays later Daly threw 6 yards to Tim Fitzgerald for a touchdown. Latin's attempt for two points was thwarted by Newton as they stopped Earl McCreary a foot away from the end zone.

Newton almost scored another touchdown in the final moments of the game. A fumble on Latin's 9 stopped a Tiger drive and then Gary Tutungian's return of an interception for a touchdown was erased by a penalty. Latin could not amass another threat and the final score was Newton 13, Boston Latin 6.

It was the fifth consecutive triumph for the Tigers who now have a 6-1 record overall. They have given up exactly one touchdown in each of their victories, but in the last three games the scores have been a direct result of unsuccessful punting attempts.

The offensive line played an outstanding game against Latin and the entire team continued to exhibit its uncanny ability to come up with the big play whether on offense or defense. Senior Running back Gerry Keleher had another great game in the backfield.

This Saturday the Tigers have a crucial game with Waltham. Before they met Brockton last weekend (to whom they lost 26-6), Waltham was the second ranked Division I team in Eastern Mass. The top two teams from each division play a "Super Bowl" game to determine the champion. In order to earn a return trip to the Super Bowl the fourth ranked Tigers must defeat Waltham.

The game will be played at Dickinson Stadium at 1:30 and promises to be one of the hardest fought contests of the season.

North In EMass Quarterfinals

By KEITH GLASSER

Newton North, The Suburban League titlists extended their unbeaten streak to 17 (four ties) with convincing wins against St. John's Prep, 5-0, and Brookline, 1-0, in the Eastern Massachusetts soccer tourney and advance them to the quarterfinals.

On Monday, November 5, the Tigers traveled to Belmont High's Harris Memorial Field to play St. John's Prep of Danvers. St. John's (8-3-3) placed third in the Northern League behind Wilmington (12-1-1) and Andover (12-2).

Newton North (13-1-4) quickly showed their superiority. At 8:06 of the first quarter Phil Rosenblatt intimidated the goalie into dropping the ball and then fired it in. Rudi Viscomi scored only a minute and a half later when he went in alone by making a pretty move to beat a defenseman. He drilled a rocket into the upper right hand corner. St. John's posed no threats in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Newton's forwards, especially Joe Moussali and Rudi Viscomi, kept the pressure in St. John's half of the field. The Tigers scored their third goal and final goal of the half at 13:36. John Eagle put a corner kick into the six yard area which the goalie punched out to Greg Buck standing on the 18. Buck trapped the ball and then lofted a perfect shot over the outstretched hands of the out of position goalie. At the half, Newton led, 3-0.

Early in the third period John Eagle scored on an indirect kick from about eight yards. The Tigers scored their fifth goal at 12:03 of third quarter when Rudi Viscomi scored on a loose ball in front with Steve Forte assisting.

Coach Mike Buzzi emptied the bench early in the third quarter after Newton's fourth goal. Coach Buzzi praised the excellent play of Fullback Bill Bertrand and Halfback Frank Bodengraven. Bertrand continually squelched any St. John's threats by boosting the ball out of the danger area while Bodengraven controlled midfield and the game with his aggressiveness, passing, and heady play.

Tuesday afternoon, with less than 24 hours rest Newton North faced suburban league and cross town rival Brookline (10-4-3) at wind chilled (frozen) Concord-Carlisle High School.

The two teams face each other twice earlier this year with Newton taking the first game 2-0 and the second was played to a 0-0 standoff on Oct. 19. Newton had outshot Brookline 46-10 combined from the two previous meetings. Brookline had beaten Andover 2-1 in the opening round Monday to advance.

Newton controlled the game in the first period as Steve Blauer, Rudi Viscomi, Joe Moussali, and Phil Rosenblatt kept the pressure on and pummelled Brookline goalie Peleg Gao with 11 shots. It was all to no avail as neither team scored.

Brookline was again outplayed by the Tiger's in the second quarter as Steve Forte, Rido Viscomi and Frank Bodengraven were getting off good shots but Peleg Gao came up with save after save by being in the right place at the right time. At the half it was 0-0.

Newton finally scored at 7:41 of the third quarter when Steve Blauer beat the defenseman down the left sideline and passed to Viscomi near the left goal post where he put it away for the only score of the game.

The Tigers controlled the game and outshot Brookline, 26-6, to boost the three-game margin to 66-16. Newton now moves into the quarterfinals at Boston College against the number one seeded team Masconomet Regional (16-0-0) from Boxford.

Coach Buzzi said: "The key to the game was when we went to a five man line because they (Brookline) were posing no threat offensively." This was because Brookline was playing with seven defensemen. He also stated: "The defense did a great heading job and layed well together by backing each other up." The defense consists of Frank Bodengraven, Matt Berry, Bill Bertrand, and Steve Bergin.

"This is the best high school passing soccer team I've ever had at Newton North (five straight Suburban League Titles). I have no prediction but that we could do it (state title) if we get the breaks," stated Buzzi.

Tomorrow night, the Tigers meet Masconomet at Boston College in the quarterfinal match.

Newton Soccermen Win 5th Straight Suburban Lg. Title

By BOB LOW

Newton High's soccer team racked up two wins in the final week of the regular season to win their fifth consecutive Suburban League crown. The victories also extended the Tigers' unbeaten streak to 15 games.

Needing just one victory to clinch the title, Newton traveled to Somerville and picked up a 3-1 win. The playing field was a mess with one end totally unplayable, necessitating drop balls whenever the ball rolled to that side. Coach Mike Buzzi said playing on the field "was really ridiculous."

Nonetheless, the Tigers were able to play their style of game, as they built up a 3-0 halftime lead. Rudi Viscomi started the scoring in the first period. On a free kick fullback Bill Bertrand booted the ball over the heads of the Somerville fullbacks to Viscomi who sent the ball into the upper corner of the net. The goal, Viscomi's 18th of the year, tied the record for goals in a season by a Newton player.

Later in the quarter, Jon Eagle tallied on a free kick. Eagle's shot slipped through the goalie's hands after he appeared to have it stopped. Doug Giron scored in the second period to make the score 3-0.

Somerville scored their lone goal with only a minute to go in the game. Newton outshot Somerville 14-5.

Newton closed out its regular season at Rindge. Outshooting Rindge by an enormous 31-11 margin, the Tigers blasted their hosts 6-0. Ronnie Brown and Barry Silverstein scored in the first quarter before Viscomi got his record breaking goal in the second. Viscomi got the ball on a breakaway and shot from 20-25 yards out. The goalie never had a chance on the shot which was Viscomi's 19th goal. He also established a record for most points in a season at 24.

The Tigers piled it on further in the second half. Chip Lang scored in both the third and fourth periods in between which Cliff Brown also tallied.

Newton finished the season with a league record of 13-1-2. They now enter the Eastern Mass. tournament riding their 15 game unbeaten streak. In that streak, the Tigers have amassed nine shutouts. If the team survives the preliminary rounds of the tournament, they will start playing in the quarterfinals Friday. Last year Newton was knocked out in the first round by Nausset by a 1-0 score.

While the varsity team was rolling over opponents, the J.V. compiled an even more impressive record of 19-0. Coached by Fred Yaitanes, the J.V. recorded 10 shutouts. Franco Tramontozzi was the leading scorer with 12 goals (including eight game winners) and seven assists. Ralph Helms was second with eight goals and four assists. Overall the Newton J.V. outscored opponents by close to a 5-1 margin.

Looking ahead to the tournament, Coach Buzzi pointed out three unbeaten teams, Lincoln-Sudbury, Quincy and Barnstable, whom the Tigers will have to contend with. He also expected tough competition from traditionally tough teams such as New Bedford.

Hopefully this year the Tigers won't be afflicted by the bad luck and overconfidence that shot them down last year in the tournament and will go all the way.

South Soccer Team Beats Wayland 3-0 In Season Finale

By RANDY GRODMAN

A fired up Newton South Soccer Team finally exploded, and the season ended with a bang.

The victim of South's aggression was Wayland High School; the date, Wednesday, October 31; and the place - Newton South.

Winless for their previous six games, South was determined to finish the season with a victory.

Scoring the first goal for the home team was senior Paul Lynn, who headed in a beautiful shot after receiving a pass from captain Billy Goodman. This was in the second period.

Early in the third period, South's Aris Bidianos scored on an unassisted shot from about 10 feet out which followed an indirect kick.

Later in the same period South was awarded a penalty kick, and Aris Bidianos made the score 3-0.

Excelling for South in the 3-0 victory were goalie John Bamel, captain Billy Goodman, and senior Ittai Kan.

Coaches Alan Einhorn and Ophair Caras (Boy, Larry!!) played all the team's seniors in what was the last game of their high school careers.

The team's seniors consist of: Fullbacks Alan Barnett, Randy Grodman, Ittai Kan, Ed Lafferty, David Mark, and Larry Shulkin; halfbacks Billy Goodman, Andy Moore, and Bolly Tartar; and forwards Larry Benders, Aris Bidianos, Jon Firger, Roger Gordon, and Paul Lynn.

The Junior Varsity Soccer Team finished their season by winning their last three games. Their final record is 6-4-2.

On Tuesday, October 30, South hosted a strong Wayland team, but managed to upset the visitors 1-0. South's Carson Milgroom scored on a penalty shot in the first period, the defense proved to be strong, and Wayland was shut out.

There are a few J.V. players who look to be good prospects for next year's varsity team. They are: sophomores Lenny Crieser, Jimmy Goldfarb, Jay Labourine, Brian Levy, Carson Milgroom, and Danny Wisel; and juniors Howie Appelstein, Jay Reubens, and Mark Shuster.

Tiger Runners Finish Season With 4-4 Mark

By BOB LOW

Despite some early season woes, the Newton High Cross Country Team finished strong to post a 4-4 record and finish fifth in a Suburban League meet.

First, the Tigers lost their captain and top runner Dave Kingsbury before the season even started with torn ligaments in his knee. Then Mark Vitelle, who last year was the top runner in the Junior Highs, was injured and set back in his training.

Newton was soundly beaten in its first three meets by Weymouth South, Waltham, and Brockton. However, they came back to take four of their last five meets.

The Runners' first triumph came against Cambridge Latin, a team that is plagued by lack of interest. Latin couldn't even field a complete squad, and Newton easily outran all the Cambridge men.

The Tigers then edged Brookline 28-31. Brookline took the first two places, but Newton's pack took enough of the middle places to earn the win.

The strong pack then provided an upset win over Rindge, but the Tigers saw their three-meet win streak halted by Weymouth North. In their final meet of the season the Tigers destroyed Arlington to even their record.

In the Suburban League meet the Runners finished fifth out of nine teams as Brockton and Weymouth South copped the top two spots. Jonathan Black, Ralph Gott, and Owen Kupferschmid were Newton's top individual finishers, ending up 8, 16, and 23 respectively.

Without an outstanding runner this year, the Tigers were forced to rely on a strong pack to take a lot of middle places. The pack did come through often but the team definitely missed Dave Kingsbury.

Looking ahead to next year, the Runners have to be optimistic. Returning will be Jon Black, this year's number one runner, John Carleo, and Co-captains Tom Hightower and Owen Kupferschmid. There will also be several runners from the J.V., which had a 5-3 record this year.

Had the Tigers been completely healthy this year it would be hard to tell just how much better they would have done. However, considering the injuries and setbacks the 4-4 mark is very respectable. With so many fine runners returning next year the cross country future is certainly bright.

South Runners Place In Dual County Meet

By RANDY GRODMAN

Newton South was one of eight schools participating in the Dual-County League Cross Country Championship. The meet was held at the Bedford Country club last Thursday.

On a cold and windy afternoon, South's runners slipped and slid on the difficult 2.5 mile course which included both going up and down a gigantic ski slope.

All eight schools entered seven Varsity runners. Newton South representatives were: Dennis Bauke, Jeff Karol, Russ Kintner, Bob Lein, David Robinson, Ara Shishmanian, and Mike Shockett. Running for South's Junior Varsity were Gary Abramson, Arthur Brown, and Stuart Rothman.

Trophies were awarded to the first two runners who placed in each race (Varsity and J.V.), and the next five who placed received medals.

The first three Newton South runners who placed were Mike Shockett, placing 11th; Jeff Karol, 22nd; and captain Bob Lein placed 24th.

As a team, South placed seventh, managing only to defeat a weak Lincoln-Sudbury squad; however, Newton South has been at a distinct disadvantage all year due to the ratio of Cross Country team members to the entire student body.

Newton South finished their season with a 3-11 league record, and hopes to improve its record next year under the leadership of newly-elected captain Jeff Karol.

Viscomi Ties Goal Record

Newton High soccer star Rudy Viscomi (22) heads in another goal as the tigers bombed Waltham 6-0. This goal tied the school's season record for goals, which he then broke in the very next game when he notched his 18th. (Gail Blauer Photo).

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Now's a good time to start plants in bottles, jugs, fruit jars, peanut jars, or what have you. This is called "bottle gardening". Don't throw away any kind of glass containers. Even the narrow mouth containers can be used for bottle gardening. Long tweezers can be used to insert plants into them. In fact, we have fashioned a looped "plant placer" out of a wire coat hanger. It lets plants down into narrow mouthed jugs with no problem at all. Plant materials can be found in meadows, swamps or woods now or in early winter. It's an easy way to bring the outdoors indoors. Sprinkle some woods' soil in the bottom of the container and add a few bits of charcoal to keep the soil sweet. You can add any kind of plant available, such as tiny evergreen seedlings, odd bits of bark, lichens, sticks, small flowering plants, mosses, and tiny moss-coated pieces of wood. Small evergreen seedlings can be dug up in the swamps or woods, and planted in leaf mold, where they'll stay alive all winter inside the container. Then they can be planted outdoors in spring.

When it comes to watering, go easy. Terrariums and bottle gardens need small amounts of water, and if you apply too much the plants rot. Remember, the moisture inside the glass recycles itself over and over, losing very little. You may have to water once a month, or even less.

GARBAGE CAN COMPOSTING: How are you coming on your compost pile project? As we mentioned some time back, many home owners are resorting to garbage can composting as an answer to folks in urban or suburban areas who wish to compost kitchen wastes, but have little room or cannot cover properly to discourage insects and animals.

The method is simple. Take a galvanized garbage can with a lid which fits well, and punch several small holes in the bottom. Add three inches of good soil to the can. Add some earth worms. Sink the can in the ground (to the level of the lid), allowing the earthworms to work all winter long below frost level. Some people keep the can in the garage or cellar, with something beneath to catch any liquid draining out. This liquid is odorless and can be used on house plants for the nutrients in it.

Add shredded leaves, kitchen wastes, grease in small amounts, chicken bones, etc. You'd be surprised to see how quickly the stuff breaks down into wonderful humus for your garden.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We have a Zebra plant whose leaves are getting dry around the edges. Please tell us what care it needs."

Ans. Aphelandra or Zebra plant likes a rather moist (not soggy) soil. Set pot in a tray of pebbles and add water to the pebbles. It likes a loose soil. Avoid hot sun, but keep in a bright window. It prefers average room temperature, around 72 degs. F. or so.

Now's a good time to be on the lookout for aphids on your house plants. Also called plant lice or green flies, aphids are small, soft-bodied, pear-shaped insects, some green, but also some are black, yellow or bluish. You see aphids in clusters on new growth, at the base of buds, or on the undersides of leaves. They feed by sucking sap and although they may not kill plants, they can reduce the vigor of them, causing a wilting or distortion of leaves, a hardening of buds, a malformation of flowers and a general stunting of growth. These insects also produce a honeydew material on which a sooty fungus grows, making your plants unsightly. Worse than that, the aphids can act as carriers of virus and bacterial diseases.

Central: Aphids are among the easiest of house pests to control. Some of the old methods of control used by gardeners and greenhouse operators were syringing the plants with water, dusting with rotenone or pyrethrum and spraying with nicotine sulfate (Black leaf 40). Nicotine is still very effective against aphids, and is even more effective if you add a pinch of soap.

DUMBCANE GETS LEGGY: The dieffenbachia or Dumcane is a fine foliage plant, but it has a tendency to get tall and leggy. When it does this, you can easily shorten the plant. Just cut the top off and place it in a jug of plain tap water to root. By cutting the top out, you force new buds to come out from the spindly cane and the plant becomes nice and bushy. You can pot the rooted top in a six inch pot, using a soil mixture of 1 part peat, 1 part sand and 1 part loam.

Another way to handle a leggy dumbcane is to take the long trunk and cut it into four-inch pieces. Place them in a mixture of sand and peatmoss. Each piece will form new roots and top shoots. After rooting has occurred, pot up each piece separately in 4-inch pots, and you'll have a lot of new plants to give your friends.

CHRISTMAS PEPPER: This showy item sold at Christmas time, produces peppers that are hot, but edible. Start plants from seeds from old peppers. They should make good sized plants by the time the Holidays roll around.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Is it too late to cut my poinsettia back and have it bloom for Christmas?"

Ans. Yes. Better let it flower for Christmas, then cut it back. Meanwhile, dropping of leaves is caused by poor light, high temperature, too much water, not enough water and drafts. Keep your poinsettia watered regularly, because it does not like dry roots.

Walpole Footlighters To Present "Late George Apley"

The "The Late George Apley," selected as one of the best plays ever presented by the Walpole Footlighters, is being presented again with evening performances this week through Saturday, Nov. 10 at the Footlighters Playhouse, Scout road, East Walpole at 8:15.

Originally staged by the Footlighters in May 1948, this classic comedy is the group's 129th presentation and will open the 50th anniversary season.

Heading the cast is John Ryan of Walpole in the title role and his wife is played by Annabelle Banton. His daughter, Eleanor is played by Meredity Treadeau, and the young man of whom she is enamoured is played by Dick Cairnes. Tom Farrell has the role of the son, John.

In addition to playing a leading role, Nancy Witherell also directs the production. Barbara Pettis is her assistant.

Roger Pettis designed and constructed the set, which was decorated by Fran Shaw and Sandy Carlson, stage manager.

The realistic costuming was planned and carried out by Eleanor Harding. The lighting is handled by Bill Griglak.

Tickets may be reserved by phoning 668-1988 evenings.

Canada May Cut U.S. Oil

United Press International

Arab threats may force Canada to stop shipments of some oil to the northeastern United States.

The oil in question is refined in East Coast facilities specifically set up to serve the United States.

Canada's energy minister, Donald MacDonald, said Monday that diplomatic contacts indicate the Arab nations still list Canada as "neutral" despite its oil exports to the United States. But he said the Arabs might object to the reexporting of oil to New England since over one-fourth is imported from the Arab states.

The principal refineries involved are in Port Hawksbury, N.S., Saint John, N.B., and Come-by-Chance, Nfld. Their shipments to the United States average 100,000 barrels a day, most of it in the form of heating oil but some of it as jet fuel.

MacDonald said if exports to the United States are banned, the refineries could satisfy eastern Canadian markets, which are expected to have a difficult time this winter meeting heating oil and gasoline needs.

The nine Common Market foreign ministers have passed the buck on a unified stand on Arab oil cutbacks to a European summit conference of presidents and premiers next month.

France and Holland took differing views at a meeting that lasted until early today, diplomats said. French sources said their government wanted a pro-Arab resolution criticizing both America and Russia. The Netherlands, which has had its Arab oil supplies cut off, wanted a statement of European "solidarity" with Holland.

In other news of the international energy crisis:

—Roger Dreyer, executive vice president of the Ohio Petroleum Marketers Association, predicted gasoline rationing would begin in the United States within 60 to 90 days. "It is a dead certainty," Dreyer said.

—California lowered the 70-mile-an-hour speed limit on some freeways to 65 m.p.h. to reduce gasoline consumption.

—Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio) cut gasoline supplies to all customers by 10 per cent, at least for the rest of November.

—Iowa Gov. Robert D. Ray said some Iowa schools may have to close this winter because of the fuel shortage. He ordered thermostats turned down and lights turned off when not needed in the State House.

— Denmark's Provincial Board of Trade told shopkeepers not to turn on Christmas lights until the end of the month. The board also said a total ban on special Christmas lights may be possible.

Dukakis At Amaru's

DEDHAM — Gubernatorial candidate Michael Dukakis will address members of the Dedham Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, Nov. 15 at Amaru's restaurant.

Dukakis, who announced his candidacy for Governor several weeks ago, is a former Brookline State Representative, and also served on the Governor's Council.

His address is scheduled for 7 p.m., followed by dinner at about 7:30.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The new series of historically high-interest savings certificates, authorized by Federal regulators on July 5, carry stiffer penalties if the money is withdrawn before maturity, United States Savings and Loan League says.

Police Investigate Thefts

NORWOOD — A Norwood man has reported the theft of $440.00 worth of tools and a set of binoculars valued at $125.00 from his truck parked in the rear of his home.

Kevin Burk of 1123 Washington Street, Norwood reported that a window was broken in the parked truck to gain entrance.

Police were called yesterday to the G&R Service Company at 609 Providence Highway where auto parts valued at several hundred dollars were reported stolen over the weekend. A window was broken to enter the plant which is in the rear of the old Tobe Deutschmann plant at the corner of Rte 1 and Dean Street.

Peabody Students Hear Consumer Safety Talk

NORWOOD — Mrs. Barbara McEachern, a specialist in the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, spoke to Consumer Education students last week at the Henry O. Peabody School.

In her preliminary presentation, Mrs. McEachern covered hazardous substances, toy safety, poison prevention and labeling, and flammable fabrics.

The Product Safety Commission does not conduct the testing of products. It does, however, have the authority to remove any product from the market. A list of banned products is available from the Boston office.

Shown in a slide presentation were accidents involving exploding glass soda bottles, flammable adhesives including both sprays and contact types, safety closures on bottles, and the effects of flammable materials and garments. Safety glaze glass is now required in Massachusetts as are non-flammable materials and garments for children's sleepwear from sizes 0-6X.

Mrs. McEachern will return on December 1 to give a special presentation on hazardous toys and the importance of toy safety.

Read your tobacco.

You can learn a lot about how your cigarette will smoke.

Cut open one of your cigarettes. Look at the shape the tobacco's in.

Now, look into a Kent.

We blend 24 premium tobaccos and carefully cut them into longer and more uniform strands, so they smoke more evenly.

That's important.

PLANET URANUS

Q. Since the planet Uranus takes forty-two years to reach half of its eighty-four year cycle of all the Signs of the Zodiac, will Uranus oppose my natal Uranus in the year 1975 for me? (Part of letter deleted to conserve space for reply.) I do not understand why it is age 40 for one person; 41 for someone else and 42 or 43 for others (the first step to middle years when deep upheavals occur or steam and fire come together). I was born on March 3, 1933 at 11:30 p.m. in Boston, Mass., the evening of the inauguration of F.D.R. J. H. H.

A. The planet Uranus was at twenty-one degrees and nine minutes of Aries at your moment of birth. It was opposite that point of the Zodiac on November 21, 1972; April 8, 1973 and finally September 8, 1973. It will not oppose the position of your natal Uranus in 1975, nor again for 84 years from 1972 so that should be a worry off your mind.

The planet Uranus appears to move faster when moving from its original position 180 degrees to its opposition then when moving during the latter half of its cycle of close to 84 years as you can see from the following.

It entered Taurus on July 6, 1850, reached exactly opposite (Scorpio) on December 10, 1890 (40 years, 6 months later) and returned to the beginning of Taurus on June 7, 1934 (43 years, 6 months later). Again it entered Gemini June 1, 1858, reached opposite at Sagittarius on December 2, 1897 (39½ years) then back to Gemini August 7, 1941 (a little over 43½ years).

One more example, it entered Cancer June 26, 1865, reached its opposite point (Capricorn) December 20, 1904 (39½ years) then proceeded back to Cancer reaching there August 31, 1948, a little over 43½ years.

Statistics based on many case histories show that this is not necessarily a period when "deep upheavals occur" and certainly not when "steam and fire come together." In many cases it corresponds to original personal talents achieving fulfillment.

"TYPICAL" LEO

Q. Is there any such thing as being a "typical" Leo, etc.? My date of birth was August 4, 1946 at 1:15 a.m. –K.B.

A. Although there are some specific characteristics attributed to each Sign of the Zodiac occupied by the Sun at the moment of birth there are many variations of each Sign. These are due to the Ascendent the Sign on the Eastern Horizon at the moment of birth and the position of the Moon and all eight planets at that time.

Since you failed to state your place of birth your Ascendent cannot be calculated. If you were born close to Boston, Mass. a chart calculated for the above data indicates one who has a magnetic personality, is inclined to be somewhat impulsive and can be quite independent doing what you please, when you please and how you please regardless of the opinions of others.

All your emotions, love, passion, fear or hate are capable of being intense and may take a toll of much of your energies if not controlled. In love and romance you are apt to have your own theories which may complicate matters. Beward of hasty and impulsive attractions and actions.

There is probably nothing wrong with your hearing but you do not always hear what is said. That is, you are not inclined to listen to whatever does not interest you.

Intellectually you are clever, alert, quick and capable of expressing your thoughts in an original manner. You are capable of recognizing opportunities and taking advantage of them.

Others may not find it easy to understand you and are likely to consider you somewhat erratic. You are not likely to forget a favor and will try to reciprocate nor are you likely to forgive an offense and sooner or later will get even since it is not easy for you to forgive.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the complete birth data and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered through this column.

N.A.A. Lions Win Garden City Cup

Sometimes when you think things are bad, they get worse. It takes super-type people to overcome adversity when attaining success, and that is what the N.A.A. Lions football team, Suburban League Champs and now holder of the Garden City Cup have done this year. The Lions defeated the crosstown rival Patriots by a score of 16-0 upping their season record to 10-0.

When the season first began, the Lion coaching staff talked about the potential of this year's football team and explained how difficult things would get as the success factor increased. Four weeks ago Capt. Barry Gale, who was a devastating fullback and very aggressive linebacker, sustained a slight facture of the ankle. Rather than pout, 13-year-old Dave Marcus and 12-year-old Rich Filler pulled their belts in an extra hitch, and have done a very creditable job filing Barry's shoes.

In Sunday's game, midway through the first period, halfback Steve Fleming and Rich Proia have been the dynamic duo of the Pop Warner football world.

It was obvious from the start that the Patriots were going to play a very emotional and physical football game. The game started off with both teams reflecting the tension they were under by turning the ball over three times. Halfway through the first period the Lions drove to the Patriot 19 where they lost the football on a fumble. However, the Patriots fumbled it back on the 11 yard line. With Fleming gone, the Patriot defense keyed Proia. The Lions were only able to advance the ball down to the six and that was the deepest penetration in the first period.

On three successive plays the Patriots were thrown for losses, almost resulting in a safety. However, they were able to punt the ball out of the end zone and the Lions started again from the 18.

Brian Kinsella carried the ball on a Quarterback sneak for 5 yards. Rich Proia carried for 3 more and Rich Filler brought it down to the 8 for a first and goal. However, the war in the trenches was becoming a very physical encounter. Proia was able to carry for two and Kinsella for two more. At this point, the four minute warning was given. Rich Proia then carried down to the one yard line.

It was at this point that the biggest play of the game developed. Quarterback, Brian Kinsella attempted a sneak behind center John Kane and guard Andy Toyias. It appeared to many observers that Kinsella was over, but the officials ruled that Kinsella crossed the goal line after the whistle was blown.

On the Patriots' first play they were nearly dropped in the end zone for a safety. On the second play the Lions were detected for offside. It was the only penalty the Lions were assessed in the whole game. This allowed the Patriots to punt out to the 15 yard line.

The Lions had time for two pass plays and a Rich Proia to Shawn Daley shot just missed connection in the end zone. The score at half time was 0-0. This is where the troops had to rally if they were to maintain a perfect slate.

It was evident though that the Lion defense was an intimidating factor in the contest. The pregame press reports only contended that the battle would be the Lion offense versus the highly regarded Patriot defense.

What no one considered was that the Patriots defense has given up 42 points in 7 games, but that the Lion defense has given up only 26 points. This pattern was evident in the first half as the Patriots were unable to move the ball and did not record a first down.

The Patriots picked up their first first down of the game after the ensuing kickoff when quarterback Mark Ross hit end Chris Flaherty with a six yard pass and John Caira swept for a five yard gain.

However, the Patriots attempted two rushing plays for a net of three yards and when the third down pass went incomplete they attempted a fourth down pass that was batted away by Paul Butters and Shawn Daley of the Lions.

The Lions took over on their own 47 and promptly launched a 53 yard, 12 play scoring drive. The feature of the drive was Rich Proia picking up 31 yards and halfback Paul Butters chipping in with 12 yards in two carries on two key third down situations. Opening the hole for him was guard Andrew Toyias. The play culminated when the Lion offense set up for a power sweep to the right at the three yard line.

However, the Patriots defense realizing that the power sweep was the Lions' most effective weapon stacked their defense to the outside, where the Lion offense made two key adjustments. Tackle Mike Hernandez, halfback Paul Butters and end Shawn Daley all blocked down sealing off the pursuing defense. Meanwhile, left guard Jim Schmidlein, quarterback Brian Kinsella, and fullback Rich Filler provided a seal to the outside.

Halfback Rich Proia with his devastating quickness had specific instructions to cut back sharp and power his weight for the score.

After an afternoon of frustration the Lions were finally on the scoreboard. Then quarterback Brian Kinsella faked a hand off to Proia going right and with the defense keying Proia, Kinsella walked in on the bootleg play untouched for two points making the score 8-0.

The Patriots knew defeat was immenent and promptly threw on first down pass from their own 41 following the kickoff. On second down, Steve Vona picked up a tough three yards. With a third and seven, the Patriots attempted another pass that went incomplete. With a punting situation facing them, Chris Flaherty decided to fake the punt and caught the Lions preparing for a return. Flaherty picked up the first down at the Lion 48.

Two plays later at the 44, the Patriots attempted a quickie pass, Linebacker Rich Proia stepped in front of the receiver and raced 56 yards for the score. Kinsella then hit end Shawn Daley for two points to cap the scoring at 16-0.

It was at this point that the frustration of the Patriots began to show. They were caught on two separate personal foul infractions on the conversion. That about wrapped it up as nothing significant happened in the remaining moments.

The Lion defensive unit, which was superb, included Dave McAvinn and Pete Boisvert at guards, Joe Donoughue and Mike Hernandez at tackles, Glenn Errickson, Doug Bullen and Jack Forti at ends, linebackers Rich Proia and Brian Kinsella and a secondary of Jim Quinn, Shawn Daley and Paul Butters.

Offensively, the Lions line did an admirable job considering the size of the Patriot defenders. Center John Kane, guards Andy Toyias and Jim Schmidlein are all 12-year-olders. Two-way tackles Donoghue and Hernandez were again consistent in opening holes. Shawn Daley was the big man on the wide plays and diminutive ends Scott Seidman and Jim Quinn also played well.

Quarterback Brian Kinsella had a great day running the offense. Rich Filler and Dave Marcus split the fullback chores effectively, Paul Butters did a good job stepping in cold for the injured Steve Fleming, and Rich Proia had an outstanding day considering all factors.

The Lions could possibly be the team of destiny as they prepare for their first playoff game in the Eastern Mass. playoffs.

The Lions drew a bye for next week, and will travel to the North Shore November 18 for a semi-final match against defending Eastern Mass Champs Swampscott, or Lynn. They will be playing this week to determine the N.A.A. opponent.

By virtue of the victory, the Lions regained the Garden City Cup and now boost three shutouts in four seasons against the Pats. one thing is certain, the Lions have earned everything they have won.

It was an equally good day for the N.A.A. Tigers as it topped the junior Patriots 8-0.

This week the undefeated Oak Hill Raiders of the N.A.A. will meet the Brookline Rams in a battle of Pee Wee unbeatens. The game will be this Saturday, 10:30, Newton Highlands Playground.

Acton-Boxboro, Injuries Beat South

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

Playing with sheer guts and relentless determination, the Newton South Lions battled hard but unfortunately came out on the short end of a 14-6 decision to the highly favored Action-Boxboro Colonials. The courageous Lions played the game with seven of their players out with injuries. Captains Art Murphy and Tony Lombardo along with Tom Sullivan, Walt Fatini, Rick Taranto, Haskell Kingston and Scott Groper all were forced out of action with injuries.

Although Coach George Winkler suffered his fifth loss in seven games, he didn't show it by his post game comments. Coach Winkler stated, "I'm really proud of my players; they all gave 100 per cent and they simply refused to quit. I really believe that we're going to give Wayland a real tough battle next week."

By far, the first quarter was definitely the worse for the Lions. They couldn't stop the strong Acton-Boxboro passing attack. Quarterback Joe Harrington had a great first quarter, tearing the Lion defense apart with excellent pinpoint passing. His two favorite receivers were his brother Kevin and Dan Clarico. Quarterback Harrington scored the only touchdown of the period on a one yard sneak. The Colonials also converted the very important extra point giving them an early 7-0 lead.

The momentum quickly changed in the second quarter. The Lions offense with Matt Sabetti at quarterback suddenly started to move the football. Staying strictly on the ground, the Lions marched to the Acton 22 yard line where they were faced with a big fourth down and three situation. From there Coach Winkler decided to try an option pass using his halfback as the passer, and the play worked beautifully as Kevin Hoban hit Peter Nathanson for a very big first down on the Acton 14 yard line.

Five plays later Hoban banged it over from the one yard line making the score 7-6 in favor of the Colonials. The Lions were unsuccessful in trying the two point conversion as Kevin Hoban was stopped trying to run around end.

The Lions also had two other chances to score when Matt Sabetti recovered a fumble on the Acton 10 yard line and Greg Moan intercepted a pass on the Colonial 25 yard line. The offense failed to capitalize on both opportunities. Holding penalties set the Lions back on both occasions.

Early in the third quarter, Dennis Anastasia clearly intercepted a pass but the referee ruled that he and an Acton player had the ball simultaneously. Therefore the ball was awarded to Acton. Coach Winkler was so angry at the call that he actually stormed onto the field and screamed at the referee. His actions cost the Lions 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct.

The Lions were shocked at the call. Coach Winkler said Newton South will never play with those refs again. Instead of having the ball on the other team's 45 yard line, the South defense had to stop Acton from inside their own 30 yard line. Two plays later halfback Grady More scored from the 24 yard line on a beautiful off tackle run up the middle. Pat Kasey kicked the extra point making it a 14-6 ballgame.

There were many encouraging things about the Lions' play that can make you feel very optimistic about next season. Pete Nathanson and Rick Gosman both played defensive backs for the first time all season and showed can both play the position capably. The defensive line played a strong game after looking pretty putrid against Stoughton. Sophomore Gerry Fried, Dennis Anastasia, and Paul Tormey contained the Colonials inside while Bob Taglienti, Joe Donlan, Pete Maples and Hal Bennett contained the outside running attack.

Joe Donlan wanted to play so badly that when he got injured in the fourth quarter he almost went back with an ice pack on his leg. Luckily, alert Captains Tony Lombardo and Art Murphy warned Joe just in time. As usual linebackers Greg Moan and Aaron Moynihan played their steady, excellent games.

Offensively, the Lions again had their problems. Sohomore Matt Sabetti is inexperienced and has a long way to go. It seems Matt is afraid to throw the ball. Halfback Kevin Hoban did just about all the passing. The combination of Hoban-to-Nathanson worked well all day as they connected to give the Lions some big first downs. The Hoban-Nathanson duo should give a lot of people trouble next year.

Bu the key to their success depends largely on fullback Peter Maples. If Maples can run with power and speed next year like many think he can, then Hoban and Nathanson figure to do a lot better. The regular South fullback, Walt Fatini, who missed the game because of an injury, has a lot of power and is an excellent blocker but he doesn't have Maples speed.

This was a game where the players feel they were "cheated" out of a victory; they feel that if the call had gone the other way, they could have won the game. They definitely deserved to win the game, but just couldn't get the big breaks when they needed them to win.

Next week the Lions travel to Wayland to meet another tough Wayland Football Team. This is always a tough battle for the Lions and they don't figure to have much of a chance in this game. So I'll pick Wayland to win by 18 points. Hopefully, I'll be wrong, but I just think Wayland is too strong.

South Girls Finish Field Hockey Season

By RANDY GRODMAN

Finishing their season with a 1-1-8 league record, the Newton South Girls Field Hockey Team tied their last six games.

On Wednesday, October 24, South played the girls from Wellesley High School and tied 2-2. Both Newton South goals were scored by captain Carol Kress on passes from teammate Elise Tofias.

Playing against cross-town rival Newton North on Thursday, October 25, South tied again - this time by a score of 0-0.

The team's last game of the season was played on Nov. 2 against Natick. The final score was...you guessed it! 0-0.

Contributing greatly to the team effort have been captains Carol Kress and Elise Tofias, who both had a season total of four goals each.

Coaches Judy Blanchard and Pam Hixon have helped the team tremendously. The defense has been very strong, only allowing four goals all season. On the whole, this year's team has been a vast improvement from the losing ways of the past. Next year the team may be even more effective, as seven varsity players will be returning.

There are four seniors who should be recognized for their constant effort. Cathy Clark, Susan Gordon, Carol Kress, and Elise Tofias have all performed outstandingly throughout their high school careers.

Moffie Romps

Newton High's Cal Moffie can run as well as throw as he demonstrated in last Saturday's 13-6 triumph over Boston Latin. Both teams were hampered considerably by strong winds, which also chilled the fans at Dickson Stadium. (Jim Easton Photo).

During the recent Sukkot festival, the children of the Temple Shalom of Newton Religious School presented to Rabbi Murray I. Rothman a check in the amount of $1,000 as a contribution to the Israel Emergency Fund to Rabbi Murray Rothman.

Rabbis To Speak At Adult Lecture Series

Two speakers will share the rostrum this coming Tuesday evening, Nov. 13, at Temple Mishkan Tefila in Chestnut Hill for the fourth general lecture of the current Combined Adult Education Program of the Newton area Conservative Temples.

Rabbis Albert Axelrad and Joseph Polak, directors of the Hillel Foundation at Brandeis and Boston University respectively, will talk on "The Changing Jewish College Student."

Both of these rabbis bring exciting interests and background to this topic. Rabbi Polak obtained his graduate degree in Jewish Law and Mysticism from the Rabbinical College of Canada and will be a Danforth Fellow in Israel in 1974.

In addition to his Hillel duties, he is a lecturer in religion at Boston University and a consultant in Jewish legal matters to the Young Israel Congregation of Brookline.

Rabbi Axelrad did his graduate work in Hebrew Literature at the Hebrew Union College, has travelled widely and published in many journals of Jewish interest.

Concurrent with his Hillel activities, he is a doctoral candidate in sociology at Brandeis and a lecturer in Judaism for the Jewish Chatauqua Society. Within the community, he is especially active in the causes of fair housing, civil rights, and Jewish-Arab reconcilation.

The 'mini-course' segment of this adult education program begins at 8 p.m. The general lecture by Rabbis Polak and Axelrad is scheduled for 9:15 p.m. and the cost for this single lecture is $1.50. All students are admitted free.

Retiring Pastor Honored

The Corpus Christi Guild recently honored Rev. John T. Feeney at a farewell reception in the Church Hall. Due to health reasons, Father Feeney has retired as pastor of Corpus Christi Parish.

father Feeney was born in Boston in 1908. He attended Boston College, St. John's Seminary, Brighton and the North American College in Rome. On December 8, 1934 Father Feeney was ordained by Bishop Palica in Rome.

From 1938-1940 he served in St. James Parish in Arlington, 1941-St. Francis Xavier Parish, Weymouth, 1942-1945, St. Patricks Parish Lynn.

Feeney was a professor at St. John's Home Missions in Little Rock, Arkansas, and later at St. John's Seminary, Brighton. He taught fundamental dogmatic theology at St. John's Seminary, Brighton until coming to Corpus Christi in 1961.

He holds an S.T.D. in Anglican eclisiology from the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome, and Litt. D. honoris causa, from Little Rock College, Arkansas. Feeney is also a charter member of the Catholic Theological Society of America.

Msgr. Lawrence J. Riley, S.T.D., Regional Bishop of Boston, sent the following letter in tribute to Father Feeney:

Dear Corpus Christi Parishioners,

I have known Father Feeney for a quarter of a century. For many years we taught together on the Faculty of St. John's Seminary. Father Feeney has an extremely brilliant mind. He is possessed also of a remarkable ability of expression. His knowledge of theology in all its ramifications is profound. His mastery in the fields of liturgy and ecclesiastical history is exceptional: For years he has been recognized as an authority on the Oriental Churches.

These who have known Father Feeney over the years are well aware of these talents. Those who are his close friends know Father Feeney to be a deeply devoted and dedicated priest with a fierce loyalty to the Catholic Church and to its teachings. Basically a shy person, among his friends he is an extremely personable companion and a delightfully witty conversationalist. He abhors sham. His frankness and candidness are external manifestations of his inner genuinity and sincerity.

I am sorry that ill health has prompted Father Feeney to resign the burdens of the pastorate of Corpus Christi Parish. For almost forty years he has served the Church with fidelity and brilliance. It is my prayerful wish that for many years to come he will enjoy the peace and happiness of a well-merited retirement, enriched with an abundance of God's graces."

Receiving the many guests with Father Feeney were Mrs. Frederick Carnes, president of Corpus Christi Guild, Mrs. Sebastian Mignosa, Mrs. James Timoney, chairman for the reception, Mrs. Henry Lundquist and Mrs. James Peghiney.

The senior ushers were Henry Lundquist, James Timoney, David Brodie, Joseph Francis, Orazie Vaccaro, Albert Costa, Philip Callan and Lawrence Dore. Mrs. George Boule' and Mrs. Lawrence Dore were hostesses for the junior guests, Tom and John Carey were junior ushers.

Mrs. David Brodie, chairman of the hospitality committee was assisted by Mrs. Ambrose Rondina, Mrs. Robert Farrell, Mrs. Harold Fairbanks, Mrs. Joseph Carey, Mrs. Italo Amicangiola, Mrs. Richard Holmes and Mrs. Robert Bryson. Mrs. William Graham was in charge of the floral arrangements and Mrs. Michael Gradone was in charge of the guest signing a large illumination, designed and painted by Mrs. Christian T. Wertenbaker and presented to Father Feeney.

Among the guests present were Miss Mary Feeney of Needham, sister of Father Feeney, Msgr. Francis Rossiter, Weston, Msgr. Peter Hart, Somerville, Msgr. Thomas Flynn, Marion Manor; Msgr. Thomas Finnigan, Milton; Msgr. Francis Lally, Roslindale; Msgr. John Grant, Pilot, Boston; Msgr. John Parsons, Waban; Rev. Daniel O'Connell and Rev. Richard Butler, Sharon; Rev. James Byrne, Carlisle; Rev. Thomas Murray, Lynn; Rev. Joseph Downey, Quincy; Rev. Shawn Downey, West Acton; Rev. Joseph McGlone; Rev. Robert Rice and Rev. Wiliam Hamilton and Sister Florescita, Corpus Christi Church.

Jewish Center Expands

New registrants are welcome to join an exciting new program of children's activities at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center.

The program, which takes place on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., includes a variety of fun things for kids — crafts, outdoor games, gym, dramatics, music, and more — all in an informal Jewish atmosphere.

The children help to plan some of their own activities — one day they may take a trip or a hike, the next they may stage a skit based on where they went and what they saw. They helped to decorate the Sukkah at the Center, and the next week they made their own Torah Scrolls for Simchat Torah.

Transportation is available directly from the Newton Schools to the Center and-or home from the Center. Children may bring their lunch and eat it at the Center; drinks are provided. Activities begin at 1:30 p.m.

Further information is available by calling Sue Roberts at the Brookline--Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center, 734-0800.

Printed Landscapes On Exhibit At Art Museum

Printed Landscapes, on view in the Print Galleries at the Museum of Fine Arts through December 16, explores European and American artists' personal visions of Nature from the early 16th century to the present. Expansive alpine vistas, encroaching jungle-like overgrowth, restful pastorales and slice-of-nature details suggest various views of Nature seen in these landscapes.

A recent acquisition, Rocky Landscape with a Church Tower (ca. 1638), by the Dutch master Hercules Seghers, highlights the exhibition. This softly colored etching is the only work by this 17th century innovator in New England collections.

Prints by such masters as Durer, Erhard Altdorfer, Pieter Brueghel, Rembrandt and Alfred Stieglitz are among the printed landscapes on exhibition. Works in etching and drypoint, engraving, lithography, woodcut and photography demonstrate the subtle beauty and strength of the graphic media.

Man had overcome his fear of Nature by the beginning of the 16th century. Artists like Lucas Cranach the Elder and Erhard Aldorfer appreciated Nature's intricacy and revelled in its splendor.

Romantic artists of the 19th century revived their preoccupation with naturalistic detail. In his lithographic masterpiece, The Good Samaritan (1868), Rudolphe Bresdin dramatizes Romantic notions with an opulent setting of monstrous growth.

Other landscapes on view convey a sense of Man's harmony with Nature. In Rembrandt's famous etching The Three Trees (1643), bold diagonals, swirling cross-hatched lines and intense shadows evoke the threatening rains of an imminent storm. Closer inspection of this print reveals pockets of people--sketching, walking, fishing and lying in the grass-incorporated into the gently rolling countryside.

Man in contemplation of natural wonders appeared in much of 19th century Romantic art. In the photograph of Frozen Niagra; H.F. Nielson contrasts tiny dark human figures with the majestic vastness of the icy Falls. Two 20th century photographs in the exhibition depart from the wide angle viewpoint of Niagra to focus on a small element of natural creatinn. The subtle play of light and texture in Edward Weston's Eroded Rock and in Alfred Stieglitz' Lilac Bushes with Grass, Lake George reflect a quiet contemplation of Nature's splendor.

The expressive printed landscapes on view exemplify technical mastery and invite useful comparisons. Currently located in the same wing of the Museum are several exhibitions devoted to the subject of Nature: Audubon's Birds, Exotic Flora, and By Land and By Sea.

Becoming Better Patients

It takes at least two to cure an illness. The doctor and the patient.

Too many people postpone seeing a doctor because they hope in vain that their symptoms will disappear. When the symptoms persist, they are embarrassed about their delay and sometimes are less than truthful with the doctor once they see him or her. Patients may also say they drink or smoke less than they do. And they may hesitate to volunteer facts that could help the doctor diagnose the illness. To help, doctors need all the pertinent information they can get.

One way to be a better patient is to organize your thoughts and the history of your illness before you see the doctor. This gets the picture clear in your own mind, and you're less likely to overlook pertinent points to tell the doctor. It also helps the doctor get to the cause of your problem sooner. And if the doctor's explanations are not clear, ask questions. Doctors don't know when you don't understand if you don't tell them.

Too many patients do not follow the doctor's instructions. Many stop taking medications once they feel better. That may not be long enough. If you have a TB infection, for example, you must take pills every day for at least a year in order not to develop TB illness. Skipping pills, failing to come back for follow-up visits, not sticking to a recommended diet--all these wipe out the good care your doctor wants to provide.

Getting better is a two-way relationship. To find out more about ways to prevent and treat lung disease, contact your Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association at 745 High street, Westwood, Mass. 02090.

Fashions Circa 1800 Modeled

A Fashion Parade of the 1800's highlights the Newton Free Library's eleventh celebration of the centennial at the West Newton Branch, Thursday, Nov. 15, at 7:30 p.m.

More than 35 outfits modeled by both men and women will demonstrate styles ranging from the conservative 1800's to the gay 90's, through the roaring 20's and up to today.

Ball gowns of splendid fabrics with parasols to match, flapper dresses, midis, maxis, and minis and even handmade undergarments are included in the show. Men's styles will be modeled by Frank McDewell.

Mrs. Ruth Helms, the show's fashion commentator, will give a brief description of each outfit and mention some of the highlights of the era.

The Fashion Parade is the creation of Mrs. Mildred Churchill of Watertown, past president of the Auxiliary and present Northeastern United States area leader for all the Auxiliaries to the Goodwill Industires of Morgan Memorial.

West Newton Library's Fashion Parade is coordinated by Mrs. Mildred Churchill and Mrs. Dorothy O'Connor, West Newton Branch librarian, in cooperation with Mrs. Virginia A. Tashjian, library director.

Byron Churchill, the pianist for the show, has appeared in more than 200 shows during the last few years and is the co-recipient of the Volunteer of the Year Award for 1972.

Albro said, "I welcome a return to New England, and a return to committing myself to the dual problem of aging and blindness." A native of Pittsfield, Albro is a graduate of St. Anselm's College. He received his M. Ed. degree from Bston College in 1968. He is a former vice president of the B.C. chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, an education honorary society, and a member of the American Association for Workers for the Blind and the National Rehabilitation Association. Albro, his wife and their two children live in Watertown. The Carroll Rehabilitation Center, formerly the Catholic Guild for All the Blind, is located at 770 Centre st., Newton. It was renamed recently in memory of the Rev. Thomas J. Carroll, who died in April, 1971. Mrs. Vaas began her progessional work for the blind at the St. Paul's Rehabilitation Center for newly blinded adults soon after receiving her M. Ed. degree in peripatology from Boston College in 1962. She returned to B.C. and was awarded a Certificate of Advanced Graduate Studies in the psychology of counseling in 1965.

She then worked on a National Institute of Health study, "Generalized Services for Handicapped People," at the Massachusetts Association for the Adult Blind, and was a counseling psychologist at the Boston Center for Blind Children for three years.

Compost, Recycling Facts In Flyer For School Kids

How to construct a home compost pile and how to recycle various materials are explained in a flyer to be distributed to Newton's schoolchildren and public libraries.

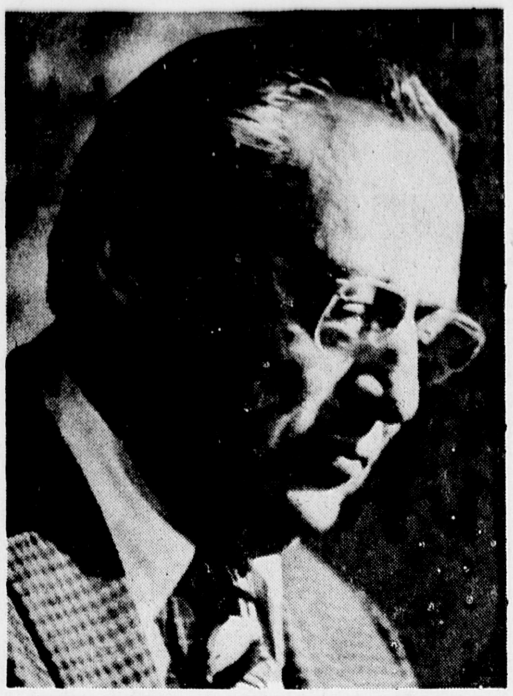
The flyer, "Leaf Composting and Recycling," was prepared by Ms. Betsy Lewenberg, chairman of the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Environmental Affairs.

Ms. Lewenberg said that if instructions in the flyer are followed, a rich compost will be produced that can be used as a mulch, dug into flower or vegetable gardens, or added to home lawns to improve aeration.

Information on where to take leaves, papers, magazines, glass, and cans is also included.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann commended Ms. Lewenberg and the other members of the Advisory Committee on Environmental Affairs, Bertram Martinson, Carole Bershad, Patricia Bishoff, Jan Cadwell, Kay Casten, Lee Castrow, Clifford Dean, Anne Dinsmore, Helen Jackson, Garrison Wilkes, Sharon Francis, Jefferson Cornell and Owen Schwam, on the fine work of the committee on preparing the brochure.

Mayor Mann urged all citizens who can to take part in a home composting program so that more of Newton's leaves may be recycled into a useful product.



MYRON SNYDER was installed recently at the 1973-74 president of the B'nai B'rith Market Lodge. The installation breakfast was held at the Chestnut Hill Country Club.

Medical Society Reviews New Ambulance Law

Members of the Charles River District Medical Society were provided a detailed and penetrating review of the new Ambulance Bill within hours after its enactment Wednesday (Oct. 24) as one of the law's leading proponents addressed the group at its Fall Meeting at the Sidney Hill Country Club.

In addressing the 800-member medical group meeting, Dr. Charles Neave, acting director of the state Office of Health Planning and Statistics, revealed that Gov. Sargent had earlier in the day signed the long-sought-after bill providing for a more uniform and upgraded standard in emergency service throughout the state.

Dr. Neave, who earned citations from the South Vietnamese Government for helping combat a spreading cholera epidemic in the mid-60's, pointed to the several recent disasters in our state as focal points for emergency care strategy planning. The recent Chelsea fire, the Logan Airport plane crash and the loss of a child's life when an ambulance malfunctioned en route to the hospital were mentioned as area's in which greater evaluation and upgrading of procedures could be initiated.

The Acting Director of the state agency told members of the Charles River District medical group that the state Department of Public Health was initiating a three-phase response to the newly enacted Ambulance Bill.

"For almost a dozen years, proponents have battled to have this bill passed and the passage of the law today means that, for the first time, all emergency medical care vehicles in the state must have minimum standards for types of equipment as well as minimum standards for the trained attendants utilizing these vehicles," Dr. Neave told the group which serves the communities of Newton, Waltham, Weston, Needham and Wellesley.

The speaker called upon members of the 800-member medical group to join in planning the components which must be included in planning and organizing a highly mobile and functional emergency medical system.

"Another phase of our plan will be working with Comprehensive Health Planning agencies," he said, "in order to categorize the hospitals' Emergency Departments.

"We also plan to improve communications between the hospitals and their community services as well as programs whereby they, as well as educational institutions, might provide upgraded and improved courses in emergency medical care for civil and voluntary emergency service personnel," he said.

Finally, Dr. Neave invited the members of the local medical group, presided over by Dr. Morris Ringer of Newton, to join in helping support the state agency and hospitals in a public education campaign that will inform the communities of the newly enacted bill.

"The valuable contribution the Charles River District Medical Society will provide in helping the state agency in coordinating these new policies and procedures is invaluable," said Dr. Neave. "Their cooperation in organizing and helping guide emergency services disaster planning is most appreciated," he concluded.

Fire Destroys Centre Home

The Newton Fire Department is still investigating possible causes of a two-alarm fire which, according to police estimates, caused upwards of $60,000 damage to a two-and-a-half story Tudor style house at 927 Centre St., Newton Centre Sunday morning.

The house, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Malloy, suffered heavy damages in both the kitchen and attic. Asst. Fire Chief Harvey Preble said he believed the fire started in the kitchen and spread up the back stairs into the attic.

Police said that five-year old Noel Malloy was found sitting on the front porch of the house when they arrived at the scene. The boy was uninjured.

Three Newton firefighters were injured while battling the blaze. Capt. Thomas Lane of Engine Nine suffered a shoulder injury when he fell from a ladder. Capt. Lane was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by police officers Robert J. Wargin and George F. Chappelle and treated. Capt. Lane is presently recovering at home.

Firefighter Lt. Leslie Spaulding was treated at the hospital for a cut hand and Frank Jordan was treated for smoke inhalation. Police officers Wargin and James R. Veduccio also suffered from smoke inhalation.

The fire was first reported by a passing motorist who pulled an alarm on Ward Street at 9:45 a.m. A second alarm was pulled at the fire station at 9:48 a.m. after a phone call reported the blaze.

When firefighters arrived, heavy smoke and flames were coming from the brick-faced home. The fire was brought under control after 40 minutes.

Responding on the first alarm were Engines One, Three, Four, Six, Seven and Nine, and Ladders Two and Three, and Asst. Chief Phillip Coakley. Fire apparatus from Needham, Waltham, Watertown and Wellesley covered at various Newton stations during the fire.

Children's Zoo Closes After Successful Season

The Children's Zoo in Franklin Park has closed for the season after a very successful summer of fun and education for the children of the grater Boston area. The Children of the greater Boston area. The Children's Zoo was host to 193,467 visitors from opening day, April 28th, until October 28th, the final day of the season, an increase of 23 percent over 1972.

During the summer the two lion cubs, M'toto and Bebe, grew from 10 pound infants to young lions weighing over seventy-five pounds. The black leopards that were there on opening day, Dudley and Denise, started in the nursery incubator at about a pound each and now they are over forty pounds and thirty pounds respectively. Also, Maggie, the female African elephant, arrived from the Dark Continent. Thousands of children young and old, rubbed her trunk and patted her huge ears during the season.

The walk-through area was filled with fat goats and sheep that were kept well fed by countless children who stopped to feed them a bottle of milk or some grain.

The comic routines of the spider monkey delighted scores of children and adults as they performed on the monkey island. The timber wolves, mountain lion and alligators reminded people of their endangered status in the wild. The horse, cows, geese, ducks and pigs brought the country to the city in the New England barnyard exhibit. Hundreds of children got their first chance to touch a snake and find out they are not wet and slimy.

From all over New England birthday parties, school groups, day camps, church groups, and hundreds of other groups found a trip to the Children's Zoo was a very special day to remember, a day where they could meet many of the animals with which we all share the earth. Special days were held for communities and areas all over the Boston area. Special free days were held on Mother's Day, Father's Day, Veteran's Day, Memorial Day, and Labor Day. The Children's Zoo even held a special free "KIDS DAY".

Member organizations from the United Way and The Muscualr Dystrophy Association were welcomed during special days at the Zoo.

And now the long, cold winter is just around the corner and the animals retreat to warmer quarters to wait for the spring and the opening of the Children's Zoo for another season. Next year there will be more baby animals, more special days and more fun for everyone. Many of the animals will continue to help the children of the Boston area better understand the world of wild animals as they make visits to schools and other groups on the popular Zoomobile.

Free Programs On Friday Night At Science Museum

From Africa to the Arctic, with a stop in Holland along the way, and from the Dark Ages to tomorrow — Friday night visitors to Boston's Museum of Science can take in a wide range of free programs during November.

Friday nights are always a good time to visit the Museum, because the admission fee is cut in half after 5 o'clock, but this winter they're a double attraction, with a different free program each week. This month's offerings include something for just about everyone.

On November 9, the little Dutch boy with his thumb in the dyke will take on a new light in a National Geographic documentary entitled "Holland Ahainst the Sea." This 1971 film chronicles the age-old struggle of this lowland country against its persistent neighbor, the sea. It will be shown twice during the evening, at 7 and 8:15 p.m. in Cahners Theatre.

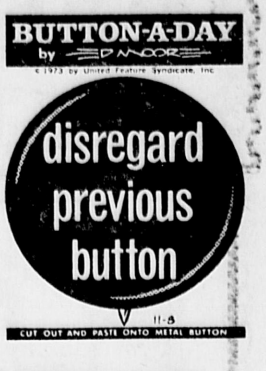
Visitors will be given a glimpse into the Dark Ages on November 16 in "Alchemy to Atoms," a program on the development of chemistry, prepared by the Museum Education Department. Beginning with Medieval researchers attempting to change iron into gold and continuing to atomic chemistry of today and tomorrow, the historical program is illustrated with related experiments and demonstrations. The program is slated for 7 and 8:15 p.m. in Cahners Theatre.

The extremes of Africa and the Arctic will come under scrutiny on November 23, wuth alternate showings of films on African wildlife and on the Arctic and the tundra. These natural history films will be given throughout the evening in Cahners Theatre.

A complete knowledge of some basic principles of -hysics is indispensable to getting today's planes, jets, and spacecraft off the ground. Just what those principles are, and how they affect flight, comes under discussion on November 30 in the lively auditorium program, "Wings and Things." Using many colorful devices, including an actual hovercraft in motion, this Museum program makes the basic scientific concepts not only understandable, but exciting. Takeoff times are 7:30 and 9 p.m. in Cahners Theatre.

In addition to these presentations, the Charles Hayden Planetarium program is given every Friday night, with an additional admission fee of 50 cents.

Museum admission on Friday nights is $1 adults, and 50 cents, ages 5 through 16. The Museum's Skyline Cafeteria is open for dinner from 5 to 8 p.m., and parking iss available in the garage for a nominal fee. By MBTA, take the Lechmere car to Science Park.



Soccer Short

I recently attended, along with John Smith, (Place-kicker for the New England Colonials), a high school game. Because of certain embarrassing situations on the part of both teams, I think that it would be better if they remain nameless. We will call the home team "A" and the visitors "B".

Both teams were pretty rough in their play and one of the two referees stopped play to caution both teams on their behavior. He stated that the next one guilty of ungentlemanly conduct would be put out of the game. A short time later, a player on team "A" called the same referee something you cannot print. The referee then told him that he was out of the game. On his way off of the field, this same player used some more profanity towards the referee. Now, with women and children watching the game, there was no need for this. There is no need for this, period. While this was going on, a player on team "B" slapped a player on team "A" on the face right in plain view of the other referee. Nothing was done about it.

The game ended with a 1-0 overtime victory for team "B". As soon as the final horn sounded, the coach of team "A" was out on the field screaming at the referee. He was so livid with anger, his face turned as red as a beet.

As the referees were making out their reports, he was still yelling at them and one of his players shoved a referee and, they were threatened with bodily harm.

For a man who is supposed to be teaching these boys good sportsmanship, this coach is not doing a very good job of it, because of his actions, he got the boys on his team all worked up. I asked John what would happen if these actions were committed in England. He said that the coach and the guilty players would be banned from soccer for at least a year.

John played pro-soccer in England, so when asked what he thought about the game otherwise, said he would not play in a game like that for fear of being kicked to death. Smith, also said that there were only 2 or 3 real soccer players in the game, the only thing the rest of them know is to kick the ball.

John, by the way, is doing all right for the Colonials. He is their leading scorer, and is 8 for 11 in the field goal department.

The Boston Area Youth Soccer League held its election last week. Those elected were: President - Goran Peterson; Vice-President - Vince Harackiewicz; Secretary - Warren Sheard; and Treasurer - Stan Willox.

Leeds United is still undefeated in the English League.

Damon Purchases Wirth Property

WALPOLE — Damon Corporation of Needham announced it has completed the purchase of the 62.3 acre Wirth property at Route I-95 and Coney Street in Walpole. A master site plan is currently being prepared by the Company to establish building, landscaping and environmental requirements.

Plans include the construction of an initial 60,000 square foot facility to be used for Damon's medical instrumentation division and research and engineering division. Construction of this facility will begin in the spring and will take a year for completion.

Damon officials have indicated their assurance that, during construction, the area's ecology would not be upset and that the Company would make use of the natural topography of the land in planning its development of the property.

In several meetings with town officials, environmental and resident groups, Damon also stated its intention to be a concerned citizen of Walpole and hoped to be able to allow neighborhood children to use parts of its property for fishing, for baseball on a playing field it would construct and maintain, and for skating on natural flooded areas.

The Company will also work closely with the Traphole Brook Protection Association in preserving the ecology of the property and the Traphole Brook which runs through the area.

Damon currently operates facilities in Needham, Westwood, Winchester, Wellesley and Winthrop, as well as in 25 states, Mexico, Canada, Costa Rica, Virgin Islands, Israel and Great Britain.

The Company has 4,700 employees and operates in the areas of diagnostic medical services, medical instrumentation, veterinary products, biological products, pharmaceuticals and reagents, electronic components and systems, and educational and hobby products. Its sales have increased from an originally reported $3.1 million in 1967 to in excess of $100 million today.

Walpole Footlighters To Present 'Late George Apley'

The "The Late George Apley," selected as one of the best plays ever presented by the Walpole Footlighters, is being presented again with evening performances this week through Saturday, Nov. 10 at the Footlighters Playhouse, Scout road, East Walpole at 8:15.

Originally staged by the Footlighters in May 1948, this classic comedy is the group's 129th presentation and will open the 50th anniversary season.

Heading the cast is John Ryan of Walpole in the title role and his wife is played by Annabelle Banton. His daughter, Eleanor is played by Meredith Treadeau, and the young man of whom she is enamoured is played by Dick Cairnes. Tom Farrell has the role of the son, John.

In addition to playing a leading role, Nancy Witherell also directs the production. Barbara Pettis is her assistant.

Roger Pettis designed and constructed the set, which was decorated by Fran Shaw and Sandy Carlson, stage manager.

The realistic costuming was planned and carried out by Eleanor Harding. The lighting is handled by Bill Griglak.

Tickets may be reserved by phoning 668-1988 evenings.

Meeting On Recycling In Hingham Next Tuesday

Recycling groups and interested individuals from all the South Shore towns are invited to attend a meeting of Recycling, to be held next Tuesday (Nov. 13) at 10 a.m. at the Town Office Building, Hingham in the Barnes Auditorium.

Mrs. Martha Stone, one of the originators of Wellesley's Recycling Center will be the guest speaker. Mrs. Stone has recently attended a two-day seminar on recycling at the University of Massachusetts where she conducted a workshop and a panel discussion.

She has some pertinent information and will bring us up to date on the latest recycling developments including regionalizing and present prices being paid by dealers.

David Clapp, Massachusetts Audubon Society's South Shore Field Director, will also assist. There will be a question and answer period following the discussion.

The meeting will adjourn to the Hingham Recycling Center where Drew Morris of Drew-It Corp. in New Hampshire, will demonstrate his aluminum can crusher machine. Morris is presently working on a larger machine for steel and bi-metal cans.

Selectmen and members of the towns' Department of Public Works and Highways Departments may attend.

With natural resources fast depleting and with the energy crisis, it is becoming a MUST to recycle.

For further information, please call or write: Mrs. Donald E. Dupee, 12 Rockwood rd. Hingham, 749-3380; or David E. Clapp, 300 Moose Hill street, Sharon, 784-5691.

Walpole ACLD News

On Tuesday, Oct. 30, Sister Gertrude Cormier, Ed.D., presented the third and last part of a workshop on Early Language Development.

There were slides illustrating the many ways in which language may be developed in the home, where the parents are usually the models. This prepares the child for the time when he goes to school and uses language in a competitive situation.

A 16-minute film summarized the stages of readiness covered by the 3-part workshop. It showed specific ways of encouraging language development.

Sister Cormier pointed out that in the future more emphasis would be placed on avoiding the onset of school problems in the language area, by giving attention to the needs of children in the pre-school years.

Perhaps the important message that we received from the workshop is to realize that as parents and teachers, we are the models, and must learn to give children closure when using language.

If we can do this in the protected setting of the home, the children will have a good foundation for the building of language in school, under more competitive conditions.

Lincoln-Eliot Honors Teacher

The Lincoln-Eliot School PTA played host to over 200 people at a tea given recently in honor of Mrs. Charlotte Wall, third grade teacher at the school and recently named Outstanding Teacher of America.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton presented Mrs. Wall with a special citation from the city, and Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink made the official presentation of the national award.

Principal Robert Jackson of the Lincoln-Eliot School presented Mrs. Wall with a check for $500 from the Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America.

The $500 will be spent by Mrs. Wall to further enrich the multimedia center in the Lincoln-Eliot School.

Mrs. Marie Roberts, assistant principal at the school, presented Mrs. Wall with two bisque doves from the faculty and the PTA gave her a sterling charm bracelet with charms commemorating her career as a teacher.

The Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America sent Mrs. Wall an engraved silver tray.

Sgt. Charles Feeley of the Newton Police Department, a long-time friend of Mrs. Wall, gave the closing address at the reception.

Local Ski Club Forms

A new ski club has been formed for the benefit of junior high and high school students in Newton and surrounding communities.

The club is called Ski-Scape and it provides for its members low-cost supervised transportation to the best skiing in New Hampshire — Waterville Valley.

The club is designed for skiers who do not want to pay for unwanted ski lessons, but like the advantages of paying weekly for lift tickets and transportation at group rates.

For skiers who want to take lessons, they are given by professional ski instructors at Waterville, and range from beginners to freestyle skiing, also at group rates.

Ski-Scape is planning at least ten day trips leaving every Saturday for a fun-filled day on the slopes.

Membership is only $15 before Nov. 20 and $25 afterwards. For more information call David Feinstein at 527-1189.

Award

Police Chief Seeks Citizen Response

Police Chief William F. Quinn, recognizing that upon return to standard time we may have some safety problems accompanying early darkness, invites any citizen to call 244-1212 and inform the department of any safety concerns.

"In the past" the Chief said, "we have received complaints second-hand or through channels, and as a result it was too late to do anything. In addition to keeping a telephone line of communications open, I have established a Box 911 at West Newton post office to accept mailed complaints. These complaints may or may not be signed; however, every signed complaint will receive an answer, and complete confidentiality will be maintained, as only the Chief will open and read all 911 letters."

The Chief went on, "In the event that a person does not care to identify himself or herself, I will still conduct an investigation on each complaint. You may have any kind of a problem, from a minibike to a signal light not working -- keep us informed and I am sure our efficiency will be improved."

"We have enjoyed the confidence of our citizens through "Crime Check" and "Operation Identification," Chief Quinn said, and as partners, have enjoyed a reduced burglary rate. Now I hope we can work upon speed and safety problems. All we ask is that the best possible description and information is forwarded either by telephone or by letter to Box 911."

Grace Church Prepares Centennial Celebration

On Nov. 25 the Grace Episcopal Church in Newton Corner will celebrate it 100th birthday.

This will be no mere party-with-a-hundred-candles, for Grace Church plans immediately to re-dedicate itself, with glorious optimism, towards its second century of service to the community.

Over the past 100 years, Grace Church has seen Newton Corner (then known as Angier's Corner) grow from a village of 1500 to an integral part of the City of Newton itself.

Grace Church was not always at the corner of Eldredge and Church streets for as far back as 1854, Stephen Perry was holding Sunday afternoon services in the front parlor of his home on Galen street. This became so popular that within a year the congregation had moved to the Union Hall in the Nonantum Building, above Dewey's Butcher Shop.

Within another year they had outgrown even the Union Hall facilities and a chapel had to be found. It was finally erected on Hovey street where today Clay Chevrolet stands.

The first rector, the Rev. Copley Greene, was a brilliant man, a doctor and an intellectual, before he entered the ministry. He must have also had considerable private means for at one time he lived at Ware place in Waban.

Soon after taking on his first and only congregation, he had built for him at his own expense a small rectory adjoining the chapel.

When, in 1873, Grace Church moved to its final buildings, his house was given to the Rebecca Pomroy Foundation as the first orphanage in this area to take care of "female indigents under the age of seven."

What ingenuity and compromises must have taken place before the church was finally dedicated on November, 1873. To the contentions of two rival sets of architects was added the problems of draining and filling the low-lying swampy land that had been bought from the Eldredge Estate.

Finally, the city agreed to pipe the water down to the Charles River, the Boston and Maine Railroad ran a spur of line clear down the center of Centre street to bring in gravel from Needham and clean fill from the sides of Mt. Ida; and house lots were sold to wealthy new residents of the area.

Voluminous are the vestry records of those years — hand-scribed, detailed and polished. The laying of the original corner-stone alone takes over twenty pages. The women did much of the work, were graciously thanked in small print by the vestry, whilst the menfolk took the glory.

Mrs. Eldredge is a good case in point. She sold a large portion of her land to Grace Church for a mere 15 cents a foot. Through her the present marble font was sent from Italy and a year later the church received the eight bell carillon that is still heard each Sunday.

As if this was not enough, with the enthusiasm of George Shinn behind her, she became the driving force behind Newton's early "Cottage Hospital;" today the famous Newton Wellesley Hospital.

As a result of all these good works, the vestry petitioned the city to name the new street "in honor of the Eldredge family!"

Over the years, Grace Church grew and prospered. Once, the women almost declared a strike unless they were provided with a parish house. They got it. Then, in quick succession, there was a choir hall built and named in honor of Philip Brooks who preached his last address to the Choir Guild there.

Then a larger parish house and a library were built and in 1912 a rectory was built, at which opening the Rev. Laurens Maclure solemnly carried in a "large and ancient vessel of salt" from Aberdeen, Scotland.

Interestingly enough, a strong Scots strain appears over and over again in the Grace Church congregation. It is no wonder that each St. Andrews Day the choir is ceremoniously piped in at the morning service.

Finally, in 1925, the passion for building came to an end, and Grace Church began to look outside itself. It had grown up. Long before such ideals were the "in thing," there were many of the parish who were anxious for new fields of endeavour and new openings for their philanthropy.

By 1940 they were known as the most "giving" church of the diocese, outside the four great Boston churches, while service-projects as far afield as Haiti and Alaska received their help.

Many communities were caught flat-footed and unaware when the call for "social action" went up in the 1960's.

Grace Church was already working both in the community of Newton Corner as well as in Greater Boston.

It seemed a logical "next-step" on the part of the vestry inspired by Rev. Tom Lehman to open up the buildings of Grace Church itself. A community nursery school headed the change-over in 1967, followed by many other diverse organizations including the Boy Scouts of America, the A.A. and Newton Mental Health.

Spear-heading the movement that called for the use of non-taxable buildings, Grace Church turned over its own rectory in 1971 for fulltime use by the Guidance Centre, and now admits that over forty groups and agencies meet every week within those hundred-year-old walls.

It is therefore small wonder that the membership looks forward to its second hundred years with such pleasure and such confidence. They have so much going for them.

Cardinal Names New Pastor

His Eminence Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, Archbishop of Boston, has announced the appointment of the Rev. Joseph F. McGlone as parish priest at Corpus Christi Parish in Auburndale.

Born in Walpole, Fr. McGlone studied at St. John's Seminary in Brighton and was ordained at Holy Cross Cathedral in Boston by the late Richard Cardinal Cushing in 1952.

Other appointments held by Fr. McGlone include associate pastor, Our Lady of the Assumption, Marshfield; associate pastor, St. Monica's, South Boston; associate pastor, St. Cecilia's, Ashland; associate pastor, Our Lady of Lourdes, Jamaica Plain; associate pastor, Sacred Heart, Lynn; and administrator, Corpus Christi, Auburndale.

Gospel Services Open To All

Everyone is invited to attend nondenominational services in the I.O.O.F. Hall, 49 Hartford St., Newton Highlands, each Sunday at 7 p.m., beginning Nov. 11th.

These meetings are quiet and reverent, upholding the life and teaching of Jesus Christ, and are conducted by Misses M. Carey and M. Egger.

Public Transit A Mess

Virginia Payette Says:

How would you feel if, along with all your other inflated expenses you found out you had to help pay Old Dad's way to work every morning?

Don't laugh. It may come to that. And not only Old Dad's, but fares for hundreds of thousands of commuters from San Diego to St. Louis to Boston.

It's all part of the national mass transit mess, a subject so complicated it would take a book to explain the various problems. (And even that wouldn't do any good, because nobody would read it.)

Basically, as with everything else these days, the problem is money. Especially for railroads that carry workers into big cities to their daily jobs. They are, to put it as simply as possible, going broke.

Nobody can figure out why, exactly. As good a guess as any is that the government has subsidized highway, air and water transportation to take away railroad revenues and now, typically, hopes to cure it by subsidizing the railroads. All this with your money, of course.

Not that railroads haven't raised their fares often enough. Twenty years ago a monthly ticket for Old Dad's 17-mile trip to town cost $12. It's now up to $39. And the ride is bumper than ever.

But, for the moment, at least, the trains are still running. (Sometimes even on time.) Whether they will be next week, or next month, depends on whether Congress votes to bail out the giant Penn Central with your tax dollars.

The plain truth is that the biggest railroad in the country, which sprawls from New Eng. to Missouri and from Michigan to Virginia, is bankrupt. And getting more so with every run. For months now it's been under the care of a federal judge in Philadelphia, who inherited the thankless job of reorganizing it when management gave up. Since then it's been losing millions evey month; its cash on hand is down to $200,000, and its creditors (there are many)are howling for their money.

Congress isn't exactly unsympathetic. Both the Senate and the House have voted $800 million in subsidies to help big-city transit systems meet their daily operating expenses. But President Nixon has threatened to veto it, and the vote was so close nobody has any hopes Congress will manage to override it.

What happens then is anybody's guess. Some of the larger cities may manage to limp along for a while, but the situation with Penn Central is crucial. Any sudden shutdown, insiders say, would be an "unmitigated disaster."

It's the kind of thing nobody wants to think about New York City is already one creeping traffic jam. It simply couldn't handle another hundred thousand or so of extra cars from the surrounding suburbs. There aren't enough buses and subways to do the job, either.

But that's anly the beginning. The rest of the country would suffer, too.

For one thing, Penn Central is one of the nation's biggest coal-hauling railroads. A shutdown experts warn, would make the fuel shortage even worse than it already is. And winter will be here any day now.

What it would do to U.S. industrial output is another nightmare. Some folks estimate a 3 percent drop overnight. Industries dependent on Penn Central for shipment would have to close down, laying off hundreds of thousands of workers.

The situation is so frightening the Interstate Commerce Commission (whose regulations helped create the problem in the first place) says the government will have to bail out Penn Central for the public good "at almost any cost."

Which is probably just what will happen. One way or another, taxpayers are going to be taken for a ride. And it'll be every bit as painful as the one commuters get every day.

There's one small comfort: if everybody drove automobiles to work, what it would cost to cleanup the air makes that $800-million subsidy look like a bargain. And ain't that a heck of a way to run a railroad.

Energy Crisis Visible

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — Buy sweaters! That is the cheerful advice from White House domestic counselor Melvin R. Laird on how to beat the oil shortage. It comes after months of bumbling and hesitation on how to meet an energy shortage plainly visible for at least two or three years.

Gasoline prices are moving up and will go higher. Now the threat of an increase in the cost of natural gas hitting millions of householders across the country is the storm center of a fierce struggle.

The Nixon Administration and the big oil companies that control most of the gas are calling for complete deregulation, taking away the authority of the Federal Power Commission to put a brake on prices the major producers can charge. The argument backed by oil company scare propaganda on the energy shortage is that deregulation will make it possible to bring in new gas reserves, thanks to larger earnings.

Hits Homeowners

The challenge comes from Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson 3d of Illinois. He proposes to deregulate all but the 70 largest producers out of the total of 4,700 in the industry. With the lid entirely off, Stevenson contends, the Big Four would come in for $8 billion in windfall profits in a relatively few years. For the consumer it could mean a rise from the average price of 24 cents a unit to 75 to 80 cents. The householders' bill would be doubled and then some in short order.

The impact of this is measured against the fact that nearly one-third of all energy uses are derived from natural gas. The cost to industry would zoom and that cost would inevitably be passed on to the consumer. For all the pious platitudes about controlling inflation here is a primary source with the blessing of an Administration putting out these platitudes.

One indication that the votes may be there for passage of the Stevenson proposal is the volume of propaganda from the oil companies and the intensity of the lobbying on Capital Hill. Actually, the Stevenson bill calls for modified and streamlined regulation of the big producers. The Senator contends this would make for quicker action and be an insurance against windfall profits.

Long Against Bill

The big boys have powerful friends on The Hill. Chief among them is Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, who has had the candor to describe himself as the darling of the oil industry. Chairman of the Finance Committee, he wields great influence on all matters concerned with business and industry. Long opposes the Stevenson bill.

The House has just passed a sweeping measure cailing for allocation not only of natural gas and propane but of crude oil, gasoline and virtually all petroleum products. The Nixon energy czar, former Colorado Gov. John A. Love, came out against such broad regulation. He argues that only a limited allocation such as he has put into effect for heating and diesel fuels can be workable.

Granted that the production and distribution of petroleum products in a nation wedded to the internal combustion engine is so complicated as almost to defy regulation, which is Love's point, nevertheless the failure to confront the shortages and the price spiral seems inexcusable. With gasoline prices rising and certain to go much higher in the near future, there has thus been no effort to distribute the burden equitably.

Unequal Loads

This means that the owner of a gas guzzler, a Cadillac or a Lincoln Continental, pays the same price as the driver of a battered Plymouth. Figures show that car owners in the income range from $3,000 to $10,000 a year do more driving than those in higher income brackets. That is partly because of the necessity to commute long distances to jobs in remote areas.

Last summer Love's office considered imposing a 10-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax, which would have meant a 25 percent price increase. That was abandoned because of the obvious inequity. Now task forces are considering the possibility of a tax on horsepower or on the weight of a car. That could put a limit on the gas guzzlers.

But in the interval between the report of a task force, a high-level White House decision and the response of the House Ways and Means Committee, the political weather—not to mention the climate—can get very cold. The answer calls for more than sweaters.

This Week's Best Buys

Courtesy Massachusetts Department Agriculture

Turkey prices are up, beef is down . . . and where it will all go by Thanksgiving is impossible to predict, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA) this week.

Frozen turkey prices have been rising almost daily, and are up ten to fifteen cents a pound in the past week, with little consumer demand right now. Beef prices, on the other hand, have been receding steadily as the meat-packing industry tries to woo buyers back. At this point, one can only watch for sales and hope to be able to afford a Thanksgiving dinner.

The trimmings, however, are quite affordable. Native cranberries are still in good supply, and priced reasonably. The winter squashes are plentiful, and most economical. Carrots from nearby farms are starting to come to market, are of excellent quality and quantity, and priced well. Native cabbage is a good buy. Yellow turnips have been on sale at good prices. Prices are beginning to stiffen on other vegetables as the harvests end. All in all, one can continue to feed the family well without floating a loan at the bank . . . though certain items remain out of balance.

Butter and bacon are coming down from the stratosphere. Bacon that sold for up to $1.79 a pound a few weeks ago is now down around $1.19 to $1.29. Butter, for a while over $1.00 a pound, is now easing, with at least one brand advertised last week at 87 cents. Native eggs are easing, too, from their dollar-and-up levels of a few weeks ago. Large eggs are this week's best buy, holding steady from 69 to 87 cents a dozen.

It is beef, however, that makes the most market news currently, says the MDA. Since the end of "Phase 4" ceilings, wholesale prices in the midwest stockyards have dropped some 25 percent, and retail prices have followed. The meat packers are in the middle of a nationwide campaign to get consumers back in the habit of buying beef, and most prices are down to pre-shortage levels and below. With some top sirloin under $1.80 a pound, who knows what lies ahead?

Time To Put Garden To Bed

By RUTH FOSTER, ECOLOGIST
Boston Parks & Recreation Department

Fall is the time to prepare plants for their winter rest and a beautiful spring.

October is bulb planting time. Daffodils should go in first, planted with grape hyacinths which bloom at the same time. Try some Emperor tulips which bloom just after the crocuses, as well as the May blooming Darwin variety. Plant just six inches deep in a cluster, not a skinny line. (Most sales outlets have instructions with the bulbs.)

Divide spring blooming perennials and replant in soil that has been enriched with leaf mulch or an organic soil conditioner. Throw away the foliage of plants that are subject to disease such as peony, phlox, and columbines. (When planting peonies, make sure the bud is no more than an inch under the soil or it will never bloom.)

Don't fertilize perennials, evergreens, rhododendrons or roses in the fall. Chemical fertilizers can induce soft new growth, which will winterkill. New trees appreciate fall fertilizing, but only after the leaves have fallen. Grass likes to be fed in early fall and spring. Mow it regularly and reseed the bare spots now or in early spring.

Prune roses in the spring. For now just remove unruly branches and tie the other canes so they do not whip around in the wind.

Now is also the time to clip unruly hedges. Cut them way back for neatness during the winter. They will leaf out again in the spring.

Fall is planting time for trees and evergreens. Pick the variety to fit the size of the space. Remember that little Colorado blue spruce will grow to 80 feet. Buy low growing varieties for foundation planting (spreading yews, junipers in sun, japanese holly, mountain laurel and andromeda.) Buy trees that have flowers (magnolia, crabapples) znd berries (hawthorne, mountain ash) or fall color (maple, ash) and majesty (oak, spruce, beech, pine.)

Write down what you want to change next spring while it is still fresh in your mind. Treat yourself to a few chrysanthemums and plant them in the garden when they have finished blooming.

The best gift you can give your garden for next spring is organic mulch, made by you, free, from all the leaves, grass and weeds you are lucky enough to have. Make a mulch pile. If space is limited, dig small holes all over and bury it. In the spring, the roots will appreciate the return of nutrients to the soil and grow better for it.

Cover the plants for winter protection? Not now! Wait until Christmas when the ground is frozen. A good material is the cut up branches of the Christmas tree and pine branches to cover the beds.

Social Security Information

A fall bride's list of "things to do" should include changing her name on social security records, according to Anthony C. Chiota, social security manager in Roslindale.

When she changes her name, the new bride is keeping her social security earnings record accurate and up to date. "Any earnings she had under social security before her marriage, as well as any earnings after her marriage, can be correctly credited to the same record," he said.

"Her earnings record determines the amount of her cash benefits—and not just for when she retires," Chiota said. "The disability and survivors program also provide protection for the young bride and her growing family during her working years."

A new bride can change her name by calling, writing, or visiting any social security office. Or, she can get a form at any post office and many employer personnel offices, he said.

Ford Appears To Be Shoo-in For VEEP

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two days of nationally televised hearings on Rep. Gerald R. Ford's nomination for vice president left the House Republican leader today an apparent shoo-in for confirmation but scattered opposition continued to be heard.

The Senate Rules Committee finished two days of grilling Ford Monday.

A parade of House members from both parties praised and endorsed Ford as the panel prepared to go behind closed doors on Wednesday to hear additional witnesses. The committee did not schedule a meeting today.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., told the committee Monday he had planned to vote against confirmation prior to Ford's appearance at the start of hearings Thursday.

"I am prepared to say now that if this committee does not reveal anything new, other than what you have already covered, I am prepared to go along with the nomination," said Bayh. "I was very pleased with the way he discussed executive privilege."

Says He Would Comply

Ford had said that if he were president and a court wanted White House documents such as the Watergate tapes to prove or disprove allegations of criminal violations he would comply with the court order.

One House member who thinks Ford's voting record should disqualify him said today Nixon should withdraw Ford's name and nominate instead former Attorney General Elliot Richardson.

"Congress would confirm Richardson immediately. Then the President should resign," said Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., in a statement he inserted in the Congressional Record.

"The people have no confidence in the present administration, and any individual as closely identified with President Nixon as is Gerald Ford will suffer from that lack of confidence," said Waldie.

Other House members, appeared in person before the Senate panel to endorse Ford and urge early action on his nomination.

They Call Ford Competent

Reps. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Calif., and Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., both bitter critics of many Nixon policies, said Ford was competent not only for vice president but to succeed as president if necessary.

Brookline Youth Concerts Open 24th Season Saturday

On Saturday, Nov. 17 at 2 p.m. at the Brookline High School Auditorium, Brookline Youth Concerts opens its 24th season with a program featuring the Boston Ballet's production of "Peter and the Wolf."

Paul Benzaquin, noted radio and T.V. personality, will be the narrator, and John Corley, former director of music in the Brookline public schools, will conduct the orchestra.

Future programs in the series of three offered by Brookline Youth Concerts will include the New England Conservatory orchestra conducted by Gunther Schuller on Saturday, Jan. 26 and the Pickwick Puppet Theatre of New York in "Alice In Wonderland" on Saturday, April 27.

For tickets for the Nov. 17 performance or for the series of three concerts, call Mrs. Norman Sherman at 566-7694. Purchase of the student series will result in the saving of the price of one concert.

Steven J. Aronson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Aronson of 180 Wiswall Rd., Newton, is president of the student government of Boston University's College of Business Administration (CBA).

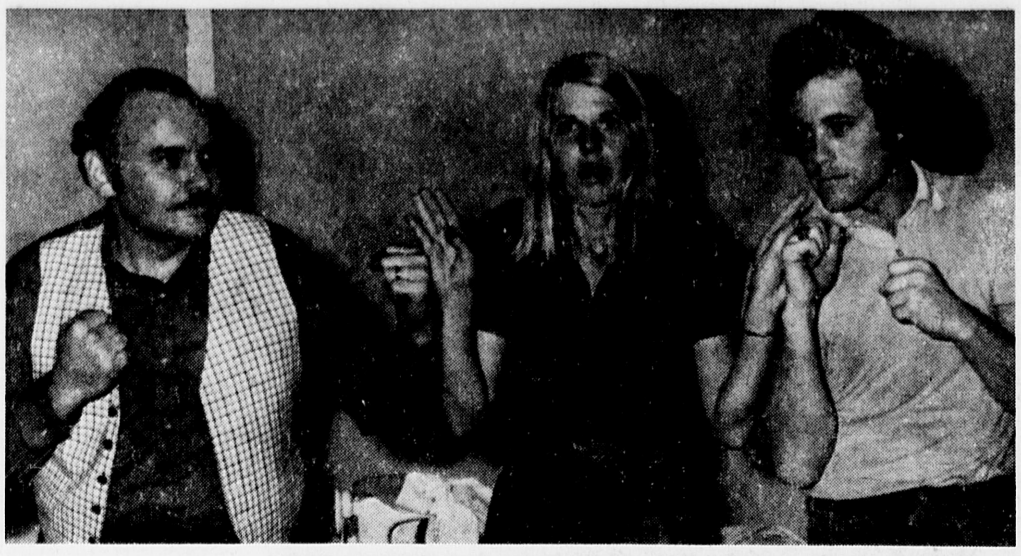
A 1970 graduate of Newton South High School, Aronson plans to attend graduate school after graduating from CBA.



Musical

Newcomers Shine In Comedy Classic

The talents of eight bright and sparkling new personalities will be introduced to local community theatre affectionados in the Newton Country Players forthcoming production of the popular Broadway musical comedy classic "The Pajama Game."

Director of the entire production is Liz Bruce of Newton.

With book by George Abbott and Richard Bissell, music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, the show features such show-stopping tunes as "Hey There," "Steam Heat," and "Hernando's Hideaway."

Performances are slated for Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 16-17 and 23-24, at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton. Special discount prices are available to students on Friday nights only, upon presentation of identification. Cabaret-style seating with tables and chairs is planned for the hall, with its seating capacity of 150.

Cast in the romantic lead of Sid, the Sleep-Tite Pajama Factory superintendent, is Jay Murphy of Newton Centre. A 1969 graduate of University of Miami's School of Msuic. Included in his college resume are the feature role of Conrad Birdie in "Bye Bye Birdie," appearances in three original college musical comedies and membership in the school's vocal ensemble, "The Swinging Hurricanes," with two U.S.O. tours abroad.

While in Miami, Jay performed for two years as a member of the Don Muller Singers with the Jackie Gleason TV show, and for CBS-TV, in the Miss America, Miss USA and Miss University Pageants.

He served as musical director for high school productions of "Little Mary Sunshine" and "Gypsy," and has done commercial vocal and instrumental work in Boston, New York and Miami. For the past two summers, he was a member of the Tanglewood Festival Chorus in Lenox, singing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Playing his vis-a-vis is Marcia Massimo of Waban in the part of Babe, head of the Union Grievance Committee. Prior to her sole appearance with the Players last Fall as Charity in "Anything Goes," she had performed on stage as Lex in "The Bishop's Mantle" and as Elizabeth in "Pride and Prejudice."

A graduate of Depauw University in Indiana, she has performed as a vocalist with a professional singing group and, as a dancer, travelled Europe with a Fine Arts Performing troupe.

A June graduate of Boston College, Randy Mudarri of Newton Centre will be featured as Prez, the union president. A newcomer with the Players, he performed under the BC banner in the lead roles of Bob in "The Still Alarm," Gambler in "Hello, Out There," Husband in "Plaza Suite" and in a number of sequences in "Oh What a Lovely War."

His other credits include the lead role of Matt in "The Fantasticks," Johnson in "South Pacific" and Julio in "Paint Your Wagon."

A dialogue-dancing part will be handled by newcomer Phyllis Zieff in the role of Brenda, a stitcher. In addition to portraying the role of Julie in "Showboat," she has performed both as a vocal soloist and dancer in many Lee Daniels presentations, temple shows and community theatre productions. Backstage, she has worked as assistant producer in a number of shows.

After serving as a member of the chorus in the Players' 1972 production of "Anything Goes," Linda Lourie has been elevated to the supporting role of Mae, a factory worker. Among her credits are producer for "Guys and Dolls" and stage manager for "Stalag 17."

Besides her chores as a member of the dancing corps, Barbara Yarchin will play the role of Poopsie, another sewing room girl. Previous credits include Miss Stanley in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and chorus work in "Mame" and "Bells Are Ringing." She performed also in many Lee Daniels offerings as a vocal soloist and as a dancer.

The voice of the announcer in the Players' presentation of "Gabriel Ghost" last season, youthful Howard Cohen of Newton Centre moves up a notch in the role of a factory helper. This summer he received notable reviews for his portrayal of the title role in "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown," with the Hampton Playhouse, N.H.

Other credits include the parts of Dwight Babcock in "Mame," Baby John in "West Side Story," Mr. Sowerberry in "Oliver!," the Prince in "Cinderella" and Charlie Brown in a second production of "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown."

For Richard Moberger in the dual parts of Charlie and Joe and Mark Buchine of Auburndale in the role of the Salesman, "The Pajama Game" marks their stage debuts.

Now entering their 18th season, The Country Players of Newton is a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

For information concerning backstage involvement in the production, phone producers Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Pinkofsky at 444-1987. For membership information or theatre party sponsorship data, call Jimmy Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Martin Gould, son of Lawrence Gould, 6 Summit Dr., Reading, and of Mrs. Susan Gould, 71 Sevland Rd., Newton; and Stephen M. Salny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Salny, 162 Fuller, West Newton, are among the 169 men and 158 women who have enrolled as freshmen at Lake Forest College this fall.

Newton College Presents Faculty Member Concert

The concert, to be held in Chapel Hall on the Centre St., Newton campus, is open to the public and free of charge.

Jones, who holds a bachelor of music degree with honors from the New England Conservatory of Music, has performed as soloist in a number of concerts in the New England area.

He has appeared as soloist with the Boston Pops Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler, in the Windham College Young Artist Series in Putney, Vt., and at faculty recitals at the Governor's School of North Carolina.

Jones has also served as accompanist with the New England Conservatory Chorus, the MEMC All-Eastern Division Chorus in Atlantic City, and with the All-Student, U.S.A. Chorus on their European Tour in 1968.

His program will include: Bach, "A-minor English Suite"; Chopin, "Mazurkas, Op. 67" and "Polonaise, Op. 26, No. 1"; Beethoven, "Variations, Op. 34" and Brahms, "Short Pieces, Op. 116."

Among the 500 parents attending Parents' Weekend at Franklin Pierce College were Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Sollee of West Newton, Mass. They visited their son, Brand.

Moving Day Comes

Liz and Lynn Brown have just moved into the large white house at 14 Newtonville Ave.

If the house were theirs, and the furniture were theirs, there would be plenty of time to do the painting and wallpapering and furniture arranging.

But 14 Newtonville Ave. is the new home for the retarded.

Six retarded adults now living in Wrentham State School, one from Bethany Home, and one more presently living with parents are waiting to move into their new home.

After nearly two years' effort to find and buy a suitable home, the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Community Residences for the Retarded, Inc. expects today to become the official owner of the former nursing home.

Early December was originally the date by which the committee expected to house the new residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, the new houseparents, came into the former nursing home to find everything "as is," and have been trying to pile the old furnishings, mostly hospital beds and commodes, into a couple of rooms while they work on the others.

The budget does not allow much in the way of professional house decorating, and the generosity of some wallpaper wholesalers in Boston was gratefully accepted.

Most acceptable of all has been the voluntary help of two boys from Weeks Junior High, Roger Hassol and Eddy Meltzer, who have been released from school on Wednesdays to work at the home.

More help is needed to help clean and refurbish the home. And comfortable sofas and chairs are needed for the living rooms.

Eddy and Roger are trying to get more of their schoolmates to join the work crew, but so far have located only kids "who would only want to help to get out of school, and those are the ones who wouldn't be any good here," one of the boys said.

Liz Brown, who is a teacher by profession, and Lynn Brown, who has been manager of nursing homes, are a little tired but not discouraged.

They are looking forward to getting their "family", which includes the Browns' own two small children, settled into their new home.

But they do need help. Their phone number is 527-6671.

Eddy Meltzer (foreground) and Roger Hassol, Weeks Junior High students, help prepare the new residence for the retarded, 14 Newtonville Ave., for occupancy. They need some help.

Revaluation Starts Monday

The task of revaluing all property in the city begins Monday in West Newton.

Cole-Layer-Trumble, the appraisal firm hired to do revaluation of all Newton property has opened an office in the basement of City Hall, according to Paul J. Reinhard, supervisor of the Newton project.

Inspecting each property and recording all pertinent information on property record cards will take until the fall of 1974, Reinhard said.

The project supervisor explained that the firm will begin its work slowly, with "two or three listers," and gradually work its way up to a total of 25 men in the field.

"Listers," the official term for the property inspectors, will carry identification cards that are signed by Milton M. Manin, chairman of the Newton Board of Assessors. The cards will include the signature and picture of the bearer. Each lister's name, make of car and license number will be on file in the assessors' office and with the Newton Police Department, Reinhard added.

Reinhard also said that the listers who will be talking to the property owners during the inspection phase of the project do not set values.

"That comes later with professional appraisers," he said. "The listers job is to record pertinent information about the land and buildings on a specifically designed form. This includes a sketch of the main building and the outside measurements."

Asked why the firm decided to begin the project in the West Newton area, Reinhard explained that weather was a factor.

He said that with weather approaching, the firm thought it best to choose a section of the city that is relatively flat and easy to negotiate in bad weather.

Reinhard stressed the fact that when the property is visited will have "no effect on when a property owner receives a change in his tax bill."

He went on to say that appraisers do not just "create" property values but rely on research into actions of people in the community.

School Committee Works On Fuel Problem

The Newton School Committee began discussion last week on ways to combat a possible fuel shortage this winter.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink announced that schools have been advised to set thermostats at 68 degrees while school is in session. School buildings will be kept at 60 degrees when not in session.

Fink added that gym temperatures will be 65 degrees and the pool at Newton North High School has been set at 78 degrees.

The School Department is in the process of making an analysis of fuel usage and savings which could be gained through different actions.

One proposal is to alter the dates of the Christmas vacation. Scool is scheduled to reopen on Wednesday, Jan. 2. It is possible that fuel and money could be saved if the schools remained closed all of that week rather than reopening for the three days before the weekend.

Fink suggested that the January to March schedule of the adult school be deferred to a March to May session. This was motioned and approved by the School Committee unanimously.

The School Department has made a study of the October use of school buildings other than regular instruetion. The study found that 190 groups used the buildings during 1132 hours.

Fink remarked that the School Committee is going to have to make a decision about the advisability of such usage. Fink especially urged thought about the usage of Newton North High School and Weeks Junior High, two of the larger school buildings.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann disclosed that the city's supplier of no. 2 fuel oil has reduced allotment 20 per cent from last year's total, effective this month.

"We have to make plans to cut back consumption 20 per cent," commented Mann. "We can experiment with cutting every other light bulb or restricting the night use of City Hall to two nights a week."

Other suggestions from Mann included: keeping all windows closed, people bringing lunches to school and unplugging electrical appliances when not in use.

Mann has already ordered that some of the lights for city tennis court be turned off. Mann suggested that citizens send ideas concerning fuel conservation to Box 911, Newton Police Department.

A further recourse for citizen action was mentioned by Fink. The state Department of Education is sponsoring six regional meetings on Saturday, Nov. 17 for discussion of fuel conservation. A meeting for Newton citizens will be held at 55A Chapel St. at 10 a.m.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell offered several other alternatives for conservation. Mandell suggested a uniform termination time for schools and a possible waiver of the no-standee law on school buses. The School Committee passed a motion to request the Board of Aldermen to investigate the feasibility of easement or repeal of the no-standee regulation.

The School Committee also emphasized that free school bus rides will continue to be available for students through next Jan. 31.

In other action, the School Committee voted to reduce the equipment allowance for the construction and alteration at the Davis School from $58,000 to $45,000.

The cut was in conjunction with a similar reduction by the Building Commissioner Gene Larsen in the contingency funds.

The reductions were necessary because the lowest construction bid for the Davis School was $95,155 more than the amount allotted by the Board of Aldermen in a recent bond issue approval.

Larsen plans to ask a joint aldermanic Finance and Public Buildings committees meeting for an additional $70,000 bond issue to pay for construction costs.

Construction at the Davis School will include a new gym, roof construction, a new library, storage space, dressing rooms, an office, kitchen and faculty lunch lounge. There will also be alteration of existing space.

Assistant Superintendent Henry Atkins responded to a letter from Mrs. Florence Osman complaining about alleged restricted use of the Newton North High swimming pool.

Atkins explained that advanced girl swimmers are presently using the pool three days a week for a nine week period. Following this, the advanced boys will have similar usage. Beginning in Febraury, the pool will be used for instruction to less advanced girl swimmers for a seven week period.

Fink stated that "our primary interest is particiption of as many students as possible. If a choice exists between competitive activity and maximum participation, we'll choose maximum participation.

The School Committee also voted ratification of contracts with the school custodians and school secretaries.

Ratification of the contract with the Newton Teacher's Association (NTA) was postponed at the request of NTA President David Gelkie. Gelkie stated that minor alterations in the contract still have to be made.

Dudman Quits

Public Works Director Richard Dudman Wednesday submitted his resignation to Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

The action has been expected for some time.

Dudman was brought into the city administration by the mayor last fall to reorganize the Public Works Department.

He was appointed acting director of Public Works in November, 1972, when it became apparent to Mann that the controversial Dudman would not gain the approval of the Board of Aldermen as permanent director at that time.

Many aldermen opposed Dudman's appointment on the grounds that he was not qualified for the position of director of Public Works, the city department with an $8 million budget.

Dudman's background included teaching

Former Member Attacks NRA

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Former member and Chairman Robert G. Davidson brought new controversy to the Newton Redevelopment Authority (NRA) last week when he submitted four letters to present Chairman Cecil Cadwell questioning the legality of past and present NRA actions.

Davidson, a member of the NRA from June 16, 1970, until July 27, began his unscheduled presentation by asking Cadwell to allow all citizens of Newton the right to speak at NRA meetings.

After a brief debate, Cadwell ruled that this privilege would be granted. "I would expect people to conduct themselves properly," Cadwell commented. "I will allow full participation until this proves untrue."

Davidson proceeded with three additional letters after this ruling. The second letter stated that "without prejudice to the members involved and with respect to the process with which new members have been appointed and confirmed, I doubt the existence of a quorum."

When asked to be more specific, Davidson said that he doubted the existence of a quorum at meetings "both last week and in the past."

Cadwell responded, "My understanding is that we have three bona fide members of the NRA." Cadwell was referring to members Richard Clarey, Margaret Smith and himself. Mrs. Smith was confirmed by the Board of Aldermen as a replacement for Davidson Aug. 6.

Otis Robinson of Waban has been nominated by Mayor Theodore D. Mann to be a fourth member of the Authority, but Robinson must be confirmed by the Board of Aldermen before becoming a voting member. Robinson is a replacement for Mario DiCarlo, who resigned Sept. 25.

A second vacancy exists on the NRA due to the resignation two weeks ago of Lawrence Sullivan, the governor's appointee.

Donald Budge, president of the Newton Lower Falls Improvement Association (NLFIA), suggested that Davidson's challenge of quorum may refer to possible conflict between the appointment processes of the City Charter and state statutes.

A check with Assistant City Solicitor Jason Rosenberg revealed that appointments to the NRA are governed by state statute requiring a confirmation vote of a majority of the voting members of the Board of Aldermen.

Davidson would not be more explicit about why he doubted an NRA quorum. He suggested that the NRA seek an opinion from counsel.

Davidson's third letter challenged the NRA vote last Oct. 15 which rescinded a June 11, vote designating Woodland Realty Trust as developer of parcel C (state aided portion).

Davidson stated, "I wish to appeal that decision on the grounds that the notice and the call of the meeting did not state such action would be undertaken or considered."

"I believe that under these circumstances such action is null and void and contrary to Roberts Rules of Order and conceivably would be considered arbitrary and capricious," Davidson continued.

Election Perspective

Some Campaign Tactics Questioned

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Slate cards, close votes, and old Phoenixes rising are among the flotsam from last week's municipal election.

The slate cards, at least five different varieties of which have been reported, were the source of much ill-feeling, as usual, but this time people are asking seriously what can be done.

It is generally understood that a slate card endorsing members of opposite parties is designed to trick the voter into believing the card is a nonpartisan one, since Newton by law has "nonpartisan" municipal elections.

But the name of the candidate for mayor is usually the tipoff.

According to Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission, there is no law to prevent the Republican and Democratic City Committees from publishing their own slate cards, identified as such.

In behind-the-scene maneuvering this year Democrat Ethel Sheehan, who ran unsuccessfully for alderman-at-large in Ward 6, won out in her objection to having incumbent Republican Michael Lipof share the endorsement and appeared alone on the Democratic card.

One of the Republican cards, this one labeled "Ward 5 Citizens Committee," endorsed two Democrats in the Ward 2 alderman-at-large race along with Barbara Schiller, a Republican.

Mrs. Schiller objected bitterly to being endorsed third after two Democrats, and is even opposed to the whole practice of issuing deceptive slate cards.

Mrs. Schiller is also in favor of banning all electioneering within 1000 feet of a polling place.

Democrat Mark White registered strong objections to this same slate card on different

Happening For Children

John Langstaff, one of America's leading concert artists, the author of numerous children's books and currently executive director of Young Audience of Massachusetts will lead a "happening" for children on "Shimmy Shimmy Coke-Ca-Pop Day," outdoors, at the Boys' and Girls' Library, 126 Vernon street, Newton Corner, Saturday, Nov. 17, at 10 a.m. (rain date Sunday, Nov. 18, at 2 p.m.).

"Shimmy Shimmy Coke-Ca-Pop Day is the culmination of the Newton Free Library's celebration of National Children's Book Week, November 12-18.

Landstaff's first book for children "Frog Went A-Courtin' " won the 1956 Caldecott Medal. Since then he has done a number of books for children including "Over in the Meadow," "The Swapping Boy," "The Golden Vanity," "Jim Along, Josie," "The Two Magicians," and the most recently "Shimmy Shimmy Coke-Ca-Pop!"

John Langstaff has been the host of television programs for NBC and BBC, taught music for four years at Shady Hill School in Cambridge and is on the faculty at Simmons College, Boston.

National Children's Book Week is celebrated by libraries, by schools, and by book people everywhere to emphasize the wonder and importance of books, explains Mrs. Beryl Beatley, supervisor of children's services for the Newton Free Library.

Children's books will be featured this week with special displays of brand-new books available for borrowing at the Boys' and Girls' Library and at Children's Rooms throughout the city.

Special story hours, films, and creativity programs are in progress at all Branches during November.

Recycling Program Outlined

A comprehensive recycling program in the city has been outlined in a resolution submitted to the Board of Aldermen.

Proposed by Alderman David Cohen, the resolution calls for separate collection by the city of newspapers, clear glass, green glass, and cans, one category each week.

Ernest Lowenstein, representing the Newton Conservators, Inc., at last week's meeting of the Public Works Committee spoke in favor of the resolution, adding that "reuse, not only recycling, is needed."

Recycling costs as much as making new bottles, Loewenstein said, but commented that he realizes the issue of reuse is beyone the scope of the Board of Aldermen. State and national pressures are needed, Lowenstein said.

Loewenstein called reclamation centers "the great American technological fixit that we come up with for problems we don't like to think about."

"Any proposal for a reclamation center should be viewed with a jaundiced eye," Lowenstein added.

A recent report on solid waste management by the Arthur D. Little Company recommended reclamation as the ultimate solution to solid-waste disposal.

Betsy Lewenberg, chairman of the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Environmental Affairs, told the committee that in her opinion the proposal for recycling is entirely feasible, and quoted current prices for glass ($20 per ton), cans ($15 per ton), and paper ($20 per ton).

Cohen reported that he had discussed the proposal with members of Local 800, the Street Department union, who seemed favorably disposed.

Alderman David Jackson pointed out that breaking even financially should not be the goal of any recycling program. If the costs of collection and distribution of the material are less than the present cost of collection, incineration, and rapid loss of landfill space, that should be the point, Jackson said.

Written into the proposed resolution is $5000 for continuous advertising of the recycling program.

One of the faults of the current newspaper-recycling program being operated by the city, Mrs. Lewenberg suggested, is that few people know when their collection days are, and little effort is made by the city to remind them of the program or when their collection days are.

Even with so little encouragement from the city, Mrs. Lewenberg said, there is about 25 per cent compliance in the paper-recycling program.

A special subcommittee set up by the Public Works Committee to work out details of operation of the proposed program includes Alderman David Cohen, Eliot Cohen and Michael Antonellis, plus Mrs. Lewenberg and one more Newton resident yet to be named.

Finance Committee Talks Rubbish

By DANIEL BARKIN

The Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen reached an impasse Thursday night over a determination of a new tonnage rate for rubbish burning at the City Incinerator on Rumford Avenue.

Assorted land offers monopolized the remainder of the Committee meeting, with two petitions coming under review.

With Aldermen Edward Uehlein and Wendell Bauckman absent, the six remaining members of the Finance Committee were unable to agree upon a single figure amenable to both the advocates of the small, private rubbish collectors, and to the proponents of fiscal autonomy for the incinerator.

Figures ranging from $6 to $12 per ton of rubbish burned were mentioned with neither group able to gain a majority. Reached for later comment, Ald. Thomas Concannon (Ward 2) predicted that the matter would be resolved at the next full Board meeting, with the committee membership being polled at that time.

John Moran, a West Newton landowner, offered to exchange 16,659 sq. ft. of his land for city-owned land containing approximately 6,180 sq. ft. on Pine St. The result of this proposed swap would give Moran a buildable parcel of land, and would permit access to a previously land-locked city dump. The proposed land exchange was remanded to the Planning Department for additional study.

An offer of $8,000 for 16,168 sq. ft. of city-owned land on Rumford Ave. was made by Bresci Pentabone, who stressed his need to obtain the land parcel in order to provide sufficient parking and loading zones for a building he proposes to erect on abutting land.

Planning Director Charles Thomas pointed out to the committee that the sale of the land to Pentabone would sharply reduce in width one of only two access roads leading into 49 acres of city-owned land there.

Thomas added that the city should not limit its options with regard to development of its open space, by hindering future access for vehicular traffic. Selling the land would squeeze the access road dangerously, Thomas warned.

Lasell, Residents Meet Again

By DANIEL BARKIN

President Kenneth Greene of Lasell Junior College last week informed the neighborhood members of the Lasell Community Relations Committee of approval of a grant of funds for construction of the proposed student union on Maple St. James Broderick, a member of the Lasell Neighborhood Committee, informed Dean James Pollock of his intention to bring legal action against the college, pursuant to HUDs approval of the grant, Pollock said.

Gail Denzler, a Lasell area resident, expressed her astonishment at this, having had, in her recollection, no prior knowledge of Broderick's legal plans. Sheila Farnese, attending the meeting in her capacity as president of the Auburndale Community Association, labeled Broderick "a committee of one."

Student input was evident, with four Lasell student representatives present at the meeting. Ms. Nanci Cameron, a first year student, expressed her concern over the "unfair attitude of the neighborhood representatives."

A thread weaving its way through the course of the meeting was discussion of a petition now before the Land Use Committee of Board of Aldermen, recommending the extension of the requirement for site-plan approval to all educational and charitable or non-profit institutions who plan to construct new buildings, or modify or expand existing structures. Introduced by Ward Four Alderman Louis Egelson, this petition, if enacted into an ordinance, would apply site-plan review procedure to all educational facilities.

The college could not be enjoined from use of the site on Maple St., however, the Planning Board and-or the Land Use Committee would be empowered to place certain conditions with regard to density of development, special requirements for offstreet parking facilities, the approval of a submitted landscaping plan, and with regard to other aspects of the site development and its effect upon the abutters.

Should a college or non-profit institution find the city-imposed stipulations unacceptable, the only other recourse would be legal action. Two such cases cited by the Law Department as precidents tend to confuse the issue — Radcliffe College vs. City of Cambridge — resulting in a decision for the academicians and the other suit — the Sisters of the Holy Cross vs. the Town of Brookline — having been found in favor of the municipality.

Nursery Schools Get Lead Poison Testing

The lead screening team at work testing young children in all of Newton and Wellesley will go directly into nursery schools on Nov. 13 as part of its testing in the Newton Corner–Nonantum area of the city.

Letters alerting parents about this test session will be sent by R.S.V.P. volunteers directly to parents of children enrolled in the following nursery schools: the Eliot Church Nursery, the Newton Day Care Center, the Montessori School of Newton, and the kindergarten of Our Lady Help of Christians. Underwood School children who have not yet passed their sixth birthday will also be tested, and parents will be notified.

For the Nov. 27 and Dec. 11 screenings, also in Nonantum and Newton Corner, R.S.V.P. volunteers will be reaching the community at large in this area by contacting parents of young children not enrolled in any school.

Nonantum and Newton Corner are considered high-risk areas for lead because of their great number of older homes, where lead-based interior paints are likely to be found even under more recent coats of safe paint.

The Sept. 25 screening in Newton Upper Falls showed that nine out of 144 children tested — or seven percent — had sufficiently high lead levels to need retest.

The testing is free, and 100 percent participation is urged by Dr. John M. Cohen, chief of pediatrics at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. The innovative community-wide testing is a joint project of Newton–Wellesley Hospital's Comprehensive Child Care Service, the Newton Community Center's R.S.V.P. program, and the Newton Health Department.

School Board Tables Action On Newton Jr. College

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

The Newton School Committee voted this week to table a recommendation from Newton Junior College President Charles W. Dudley to extend the tentative date for withdrawing financial support from the school from June 30, 1975 to June 30, 1976.

The School Committee voted last Jan. 2 to declare its intention to terminate financial support for Newton Junior, proposing that a final review of the question be made in September 1973. This week's meeting was the delayed review.

Dudley first presented a report on enrollment and its implications. He reported that overall enrollment is down from what it was a year ago, and cited causes such as a nationwide decrease in demand for post-secondary education, unfavorable and negative effects of publicity given to the possible termination of Newton Junior, and Newton Junior's relatively high levels of tuition cost for a public institution.

An increased enrollment was noted in the nursing program. Dudley revealed a 25 percent increase in the size of this year's entering class. Forty-one members of this year's 46 entering nursing students are Newton residents, he said.

Referring to the entire school, Dudley stated, "There is a better balance now between level of staffing and the number of students it serves."

There are presently 445 day students at Newton Junior College, of whom 302 are Newton residents.

Dudley stated that the recommendation of extension of financial support for Newton Junior was supported unanimously by those members of the Board of Directors who voted on it. The tally fell one vote short of a quorum. The recommendation was also supported by the school's faculty.

Dudley asked for quick action from the School Committee so that Newton Junior may know how to deal with applications from students for next year.

Dudley's status report and recommendation contained several reasons for extending the life of his school. Dudley stated that there do not appear to be other schools in the immediate area which could absorb students who would normally go to Newton Junior in future years.

Dudley cited a recent correspondence from William G. Dwyer, president of the Board of Regional Community Colleges. Dwyer reported that he cannot forsee Mass. Bay Community College being able to expand substantially past present enrollment figures until 1980. Mass. Bay is planning a move from its Watertown campus to a Wellesley campus in September 1975.

Dudley acknowledged Dwyer's support for the continuation of Newton Junior as a viable institution which can be a valuable resource in fulfilling known needs.

Dudley's report also mentioned the inappropriateness of University of Massachusetts-Boston for meeting the needs of students who would normally attend Newton Junior.

"Their backgrounds, educational maturity, motivational drives, and their needs are unique and will not likely be congenial to a university-level environment, at least during the first two years of undergraduate study," Dudley stated. He also commented on the geographical remoteness of UMass-Boston.

Dudley also commented on moves by Newton Junior to limit spending. He reported that the number of staff allocations have been reduced from 39.7 in 1971 to 31.9 in 1973.

Dudley predicted that the school would underspend its budget this year by $6,000. He added that the preliminary planning for the next calendar year holds in prospect the possibility of a zero increase in the cost of the total college operation.

Dudley cited three studies which will soon present conclusions about future higher education in the state. "We ask for at least one more year to see what the possibilities are," Dudley remarked. Newton Junior's accreditation is next scheduled to be reviewed in the fall of 1976.

School Committeeman Herbert Regal motioned that the School Committee adopt Dudley's recommendation, opening up debate on the School Committee.

School Committeeman Richard Douglas questioned whether Newton Junior is going to need additional funds to improve its physical plant.

Dudley replied that "there is no longer a pre-occupation with grandiose physical plants."

Philip J. McNiff, vice-chairman of the Newton Junior College Board of Directors, commented that there has been talk with the state about taking over the college.

"If we can maintain Newton Junior, we will be in a better position for having a community college for Newton youth in future years," McNiff remarked.

"We witnessed in the past week an unfortunate attempt by the state to relocate Newton Junior at Woodland Golf Club, but it did indicate concern by the state for Newton Junior College," McNiff added.

"We're dealing with a question of whether the city can afford Newton Junior College," commented School Committeeman Franklin Frazier. "I see no possibility that the state is going to come to the rescue as long as Newton is going to pay for a junior college."

What good is it to wait for a year," Frazier continued. We'll be in an identical position a year from now."

School Committee member Eleanor S. Rosenblum questioned Dudley about whether there is clear evidence that specific recommendations are soon to be made by the state concerning Newton Junior.

Dudley replied that although there is not going to be the proliferation of public institutions that was anticipated, there do seem to be indications that the state will move in the direction of aid to private institutions; especially two-year schools. Newton Junior, as a non-private independent school, would probably be cast with the private schools according to Dudley.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell commented that as of last August a Boston newspaper report claimed more than 100,000 openings in Massachusetts colleges.

Slow Down

The new 50 mph speed limit on state highways, announced by Governor Francis Sargent this week, has our unqualified support.

The difficulty in finding gasoline stations open on Sunday and at night attests to the fact that a real shortage of gasoline exists, no matter what its basic cause. "Sorry, out of gas" signs are appearing at some gas stations even during daylight hours now.

At 50 mph, a 30-mile trip will take only 10 minutes longer than at 70 mph and will consume 30 per cent less fuel, according to federal transportation studies.

The additional safety factor should not be ignored, either.

How many of us cannot spare an extra 10 minutes?

To those whose response is, "I can't," we suggest reconsideration. The same goes for anyone assuming that things will be okay because "everybody else" will observe the new rules.

We owe it to each other to all cooperate, or else we will surely all be walking together some day soon.

Now that elections are over here and bumpers are once again free of stickers, we have a suggestion we'd like to toss out to some willing manufacturer.

To help us all get into the spirit of things, how about a bumper sticker that looks exactly like a regulation speed limit sign and that says "Speed Limit 50 M.P.H."?

Not only would it serve as a constant reminder and identify those of us in accord with the idea of pitching in and helping out, but it would make sure all of our fellow drivers would understand, as they come bearing down on us at the speed of 80 MPH, that we are not just dawdling along, we're creeping for a purpose.

Newton's city administration has responded to the energy crisis by ordering that there be no idling of city vehicles and by imposing limits on the use of vehicles.

The mayor's office has ordered that heat be reduced in all public buildings to 68 degrees during the day and 60 degrees at night, and the use of City Hall at night be curtailed when possible.

Hallway and outdoor lighting will be decreased in public buildings, and the mayor has asked merchants to eliminate unnecessary outdoor lighting.

Recreation areas in the city will be dark

Homeowners are asked to follow similar measures, such as turning off unnecessary lights, making sure storm windows are installed tightly, keeping temperatures in the home at 68 degrees or less.

The only real hardship involved in any of these steps, which must be taken, may be to the children — outwardly, Christmas may be a little less bright this year.

Nuremberg, Germany has the most varied collections in the country's museums running the range from soup to wallpaper, and bread to dollhouses . . . In fact, the German National Museum at Nuremberg features the best group of dollhouses anywhere . . . Some of the minihouses are over 300 years old, stand six feet or so and are completely furnished down to the most minute detail . . . Because Germany is full of people who could not resist the temptation to display the objects of their hobbies, it should not come as a surprise to learn that there are museums devoted entirely to tin soldiers, to violins, to tobacco, to beer, to liquor, to horses, and to cuckoo clocks. . .

Editor's Note

Due to circumstances beyond our control, we briefly interrupt the weekly presentation of the column, "Completely Black."

Completely Black will be back.

And that reminds me. In Green Bay Packerland, where I come from, that's pronounced

"The Pack Will Be Back." It reminds me because the Green Bay Packers are here at the Marriott this week preparing to meet the New England Patriots in something resembling a football game Sunday.

Packer fans like to consider themselves unique and over the past few seasons have developed a number of interesting ways to show their current sentiments about their own team. None can top the latest.

Rumor reaches me from home that in view of the fact the Pack has decided on a losing season this year, Packer fans are wearing black armbands to all games.

My only other comment is that I fully expect the editorial page will be back to normal next week.

Last week, the new editorial page that appears in the Daily Transcript was inadvertently used. This week the situation is obvious and needs no further comment. — Black.

Critical Of Coverage

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The Nov. 1, issue of the Newton Graphic outlined the answers of candidates to a list of questions. However, those who put this information together left out some important information for Newton voters which would have enabled the electorate (which is poorly informed at the very best!) to have become much better informed by your paper.

The questions which arose as I read this issue of the Newton Graphic were:

1. Why did you not print on page 1 the QUESTIONS which you asked the candidates, and whose reply you so helpfully printed? I searched through the whole issue and never did find these questions, and some of the answers were so varied that I could not discern the scope of the question.

2. Why did you not write your continuation of candidate's comments in the same order as the original candidate listing?

3. Why did you not print the entire city ballot on a half or full page spread so that each voter could see the picture and plan his review of the candidates?

As a village newspaper, you have a real opportunity, and some obligation, I feel, to get out the vote. I think you "blew" this opportunity this time.

In future elections, may I suggest that you print statements from the political clubs, League of Women Voters, etc., and suggest that ministers and priests discuss the candidates. Also, perhaps yourself or these agencies might solicit ads from suppliers about the rights, obligations and privileges of selecting by ballot instead of gun! Above all, I suggest that you would make it easier for voters to know their candidates by printing their answers to your more searching questions like those in Nov. 1.

No one I talked to, including an ex-Alderman, knew answers to many questions I asked about the candidates and about the voting system this year. I think it is a crying shame to waste this unique privilege of the private ballot so wantonly.

The Campaign Reform Aspirin

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The passage of a campaign reform bill by the House of Representatives this past week is like giving aspirin to a patient who needs major surgery.

Public officials have to prostitute themselves to raise funds. As a candidate for United States senator last year, I found it abhorrent to the dignity of man.

True campaign reform will only become a reality when total contributions are limited and expenses strictly controlled.

I favor a pledge by candidates for statewide office next year to eliminate all TV, radio, billboards, newspaper and direct mail advertising.

They should further pledge that campaign funds will be spent only for travel expenses and holding public informational meetings.

I would also like to see candidates for Statewide office in 1974 limit their spending in the Primary to the following:

Governor...$100,000.
Lt. Gov. ... $20,000.
Atty. Gen. ... $20,000.
Auditor ... $20,000.
Sec. State ... $20,000
Treasurer ... $20,000.

The aggregate of campaign contributions would not exceed the outlined limitations.

The time has come to stop kidding the public. We should remove the root causes of electoral corruption by severely limiting contributions and expenses.

This is the only way to take campaigns for public office out of the market place.

Thanks From Chelsea

(Editor's Note: Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr. received the following letter and forwarded a copy to the Newton Graphic)

"Dear Chief:

Our heartfelt gratitude to the members of the Newton Fire Department for your superhuman efforts in protecting and saving the Williams School in Chelsea during the disasterous holocaust on October 14, 1973.

In 1970, we had fires at the Williams School and the Shurtleff School. That same year, conflagration took a portion of our high school, which hopefully will be repaired soon.

A few months later, in March, the Carter School was completely demolished in a blazing inferno at which time 912 displaced students were sent to the Williams School. After an amazing adjustment, due to the efforts of our administrators, these children finally felt a sense of belonging again. We shudder to think of what might have happened had these same children and more been displaced a second time.

By saving the Williams School, which is the largest in the city, you have helped to avert an even greater disaster than we are now faced with in Chelsea.

On behalf of our school children, we shall forever be in your debt.

Students To Get Taste Of Business

A "real business world" experience for 95 students in Needham and Newton high schools is taking place this week under the leadership of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce's Career Orientation Committee.

Students from both communities are taking part in a meaningful student observation-work experience program devised by the committee of guidance counselors, community and business leaders. Richard F. Kaerwer, 3 M Company, is chairman of the career orientation committee and project leader.

Unlike student tours of business, the program is designed to enable students to closely observe and in many cases perform work of a particular occupation during the program. Orientation sessions and de-briefing discussions in which students describe and discuss their reactions to the program with business and community leaders are another feature of the Career Orientation program.

Typical occupations and career choices being explored include architecture, hotel management, nursing, mechanic, food service, medicine, banking, dentistry, broadcasting, personnel relations, accounting, civil engineering, retailing, special education, and interior decorating, among many others.

Career Orientation Committee members include in addition to Kaerwer: William C. Benedict, Bentley College; Richard Dermody, Newton Public Schools; Loren Eaton, GTE Sylvania; Richard Foot, Boy Scouts of America; Hugh Gallagher, Needham Public Schools; Harriet Goldin, Organization for Rehabilitation Training; Ben Golini, Needham Public Schools; Margaret Hunt, Newton Savings Bank; Brian Kennedy, Calvert's, Inc.; Frank Lambert, Newton Public Schools; Louise Proctor, Zenith Products; Myra Trachtenberg, Newton Public Schools; and Lewis B. Songer, Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Newton Flames Gain Easy Wins

The Charles River Flames of Newton moved into third place in the New England Junior Hockey League recently with a pair of convincing victories.

The Flames, now 7-3-0, scored 8-3 and 11-3 victories over the Hobomock Chiefs and the Tri-Valley Squires, respectively.

The Newton team is now two points behind co-leaders Tyngsboro and Weymouth in the standings. The Flames have played one game less than Weymouth.

Forward Chris Traverse of Newton is sixth in the league scoring race with eight goals and 13 assists for 21 points. Flame Mark Chisholm has 20 points on 12 goals and eight assists.

Relocates Office

Benjamin Lipson has announced his move to larger quarters in the First National Bank Building at 100 Federal St.

Lipson began his career with Max Lipson Insurance in 1953, and has been national sales leader for several life insurance companies for the past several years. He specializes in handling high-limit and high-risk life insurance. He also serves as insurance editor of the New England Real Estate Journal.

Speaking recently to a conference of insurance executives in Acapulco, Mexico, where he was honored for producing more than $10,000,000 of life insurance during the year, Lipson chided his industry for concerning itself too much with self-serving tax legislation and not enough with investing in the effort to stamp out heart disease and cancer, major causes of human mortality.

Lipson, his wife, and three daughters are residents of Newton, where he is vice chairman of the Mayor's Financial Advisory Commission, has served as a director of the Centennial Commission, and is active in Congregation Mishkan Tefila. He is past president of the temple's Brotherhood, has served as a temple vice president, and is currently a member of the presidential cabinet there.

Opera Party

New England Chamber Opera Group of Newton is presenting an Opera Party Benefit Concert of arias and ensembles Sunday (Nov. 18) at 8:15 p.m. at 65 Grey Cliff Rd., Newton Centre.

Refreshments will be served.

Child Anxiety Discussed At Longfellow School

Mrs. Frances Perkins of Roxbury was the discussion leader at a recent meeting at Longfellow Nursery School on the campus of Mount Ida Junior College, in Newton.

Mrs. Perkins is a member of the faculty of Wheelock College. She was formerly director of the Brandeis Nursery School.

The discussion related to children's anxieties and parents feelings about the beginning days at nursery school and the separation process.

Preparations for the meeting were made by Mrs. Caryl Hurwitz, Mrs. Anne Stanberry of Newton, and Mrs. Arlene Sternburg and Mrs. Marilyn Prensky of Needham. Refreshments were baked by Mrs. Hurwitz, and Mrs. Rita Lombardo of Needham.

Longfellow Nursery School is in session five mornings a week, for children 3½ to 4½ years of age. Families from the inner-city, as well as the suburbs send their children to the school, and are encouraged to participate in many aspects of the program.

Some of the experiences offered the children are arts - crafts, dramatic play, music, science, woodworking, storytelling, as well as time for outdoor play and exploring the wooded areas of the Mount Ida campus. Students from the child study program assist in the program, along with taking courses related to early childhood education.

Mrs. Elaine S. Reisman of West Newton is the teacher-director. Mrs. Reisman has a B.A. in early childhood education afrom Antioch College, and M.Ed. from Lesley College. She has had many years of teaching and directing Nursery Schools in the Mid-West, and has been at Longfellow since its opening in the fall of 1970.

Mrs. Eunice Perry of Oak Hill Park, is teacher for the younger group. Mrs. Perry has an A.A. from B. U., and received a C.A.S. from the University of Ghana at Fordham in 1970. She has been director of the Roxbury-Mount Ida Language Arts Day Camp for the past five summers and has been at Longfellow since its opening in the fall of 1970.

Mrs. Harriet Kahn, of Waban, is chairman of the department at the college. She has a B.A. from B. U. in child study and an M.Ed. from Tufts in early childhood education. For further information about the program, contact Mrs. Reisman, 969-7000, Ext. 44.

Weaving Show At Local Library

"Forms in Fiber", a show of decorative and functional weavings by Sally Graham and Marty Holmer, is on view at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, now through early December.

Ms. Graham, who teaches on and off-loom weaving at the Boston Center for Adult Education and at Cambridge Center, also teaches weaving at different Newton Schools under the auspices of Newton's Creative Arts Artists in Residence Program.

Ms. Graham, first interested in the more practical aspects of weaving as a result of making fabric, is now as involved with design and form as with function.

"Stars over Bethlehem," a large macrame and weighted warp weaving of forest green, pink and maroon is purely decorative, as is her "Flying Boot," of macrame, stitchery, weaving and beads, built up on an old boot from a Goodwill Shop.

Other works by Ms. Graham include a linen and juite pastel-colored pocket book, with the purse enclosed by a cage like structure, and a heavy man's vest done in warm earth tones.

Ms. Graham, who has been weaving for eight years, studied with Alfreda Russell. Her works have been exhibited in the "Fibrething" Show at City Hall, at the Prudential Center, and with the Massachusetts Association of Craftsmen.

Marty Holmer, a young woman who has been weaving for only three years, has already been invited to teach a weaving course at the Boston Y, a spot well known for its crafts' courses.

She also works both on and off-loom, and the variety of her pieces indicates her skill and imagination.

Ms. Holmer's other pieces include another large work, "Medal" which is tubular woven and stuffed, a solid piece made out of wool and cotton; "Study of a Cathedral Floor Plan," a double woven stuffed linen, cotton and rayon; and "Van Der Weyden Lady," a delicate looking piece created with cotton, linen, wool, mohair, and rayon fibers, a wonderful adaptation of a Van Der Weyden portrait.

Ms. Holmer brings the skills of a graphic design to her work. She also is interested in the techniques of coiling, which is used primarily in basket work. However, Marty is adapting the technique for decorative rather than just functional pieces as shown by "Basket" a wall hanging.

Main Library hours are Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. - 9 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. and Sunday 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Girls' Skating Program

An Ice Skating Program for girls 8 years and older is being offered Wednesday evenings from 5 to 6 p.m. at the Newton Daly MDC Rink.

The classes are being conducted under the professional instruction of Carol Butterworth, working in conjunction with the Newton Recreation Department. Registration will take place at the rink and a $2 fee per session will be charged.

Parents' Roles Explored

Dr. Norman R. Bernstein, director of the Newton Guidance Clinic, and Dr. Thomas Peebles, associate professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School and pediatrician at Massachusetts General Hospital, explored with parents of the 9 to 11 year-old child at the Ward School the "Opportunity of Parenthood - How To Enjoy It In Order to Survive."

Dr. Peebles defined parenthood as a "second chance at reliving one's life with an expectation to get nothing out of it except another opportunity to grow through one's own children."

He traced the general development of children from birth to adulthood, emphasizing the importance of kids being prepared in advance for the physical changes to take place, particularly prior to puberty. The necessity of parents recognizing their own feelings and being honest about them, particularly in their sex roles, was pointed up inasmuch as they are absorbed, adopted and mirrored by children very early in life.

"Clarity begins at home" added Dr. Bernstein. "Kids can see through their parents' duplicity when they say one thing and do something else; we can't pretend to be something different than we are."

Even though parents are expected to have an answer to everything, it is not necessary that they have an answer to every life experience, he said. Kids today are more informed because of television and "have a special mixture of sophistication and apprehension with a level of anxiety underneath."

Bernstein continued that it is necessary to set guidelines, but not as absolute, and to keep revising the guide lines.

If too many unenforceable ultimates are given, the parent becomes ridiculous, he said.

He suggested that parents "plot" together and agree on what their child should or should not be doing before he does it. However, it is important for parents to trust children with full knowledge that the trust is going to be broken sometimes.

It is also necessary that kids have the experience of being wrong.

Bernstein stressed the need for a parent to recognize if a child is not doing well or is disruptive and the importance of handling the problem immediately before rejection sets in and the problem becomes magnified.

In response to a question, Bernstein explained that there is nothing wrong in children seeing parents disagree, that is the way of the world, however, they must also see a mechanism for making up and a deep underlying agreement and relationship. It is more important that parents get back to the negotiating table with their kids, he said.

In explaining sexual development, Dr. Peebles felt that books with descriptive illustrations are not necessary, but used linear line drawings and explained that the way of talking with kids is what is meaningful.

When questioned about the fuzziness of sex roles, both Peebles and Bernstein agreed that in spite of the superficial change in "looks" and language, deep changes are not as widespread as we are led to believe; and on "Women's Lib" they felt that the female role is changing very appropriately in most instances, but the danger lies in forcing change or allowing someone else to decide what "being female means to you."

In conclusion, they both agreed that being a parent is a balancing act of exposing children to a variety of experiences and trying to encourage, not push, them to pursue the field of interest of their choice.

AUTO FACTS

By JOHN NAJARIAN

Statistics prove that a large percentage of accidents are caused by a small percent of drivers. Accident reports identify these accident-prone drivers and afford the opportunity to improve bad driving practices. In extreme cases, these reports can even help to remove a really dangerous driver from the highway. Location of an accident is also important in helping officials identify and fix dangerous stretches of road.

NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 wants to remind you that it is important that you bring your car into your local service station or garage for any necessary repairs. We can supply them with the best quality parts. For example, we stock the complete United Delco line. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8-7, Sat. 8-5.

HELPFUL HINT: Never move an injured person after a car accident unless it is absolutely necessary, but do take steps to stop severe bleeding.

Book Review

The Gilded Age:
A Tale of Today
By Mark Twain and Charles Dudley Warner
By BARBARA NADEL

The distance between 1873 and 1973, everyone knows, is 100 years. But The Gilded Age: A Tale of Today negates that fact. Change the names, update some locales, and you've got all the elements and morals of a Watergate.

The Gilded Age refers to the "peaceful" era following the Civil War. The economy surged forward, carrying with it the institutions and values of the industrialized North. Expansion was the word of the day as the West opened up. Political and other schemes abounded, making fortunes and breaking people in their wake.

This combination of geographic and economic expansion provides the backdrop for the novel. It is, at heart, a powerful expose of the politics of the Gilded Age and of all gilded ages.

We follow Squire Hawkins as he moves further westward and makes a fortune through hard work. Spurred on to farfetched schemes by his old friend Colonel Sellers, speculator extraordinaire, he loses his fortune; at his death, the Hawkins family is left in dire financial straits. Their only hope is the Tennessee Land which squire Hawkins hoarded, thousands of acres of it, and the individual efforts of the children.

Laura Hawkins, adopted as a child into the family following a steamboat wreck during which her own parents seemed to be lost, blossoms despite the family's poverty. She marries Colonel George Selby, and is a changed woman after he deserts her to return to his Southern and first wife. As a protegy of a local politician, Senator Dilworthy, she goes to Washington and becomes a successful lobbyist for a development scheme that would make the family rich from the Tennessee Land. There she once again meets her desertor husband, and the major plot of the book thickens.

The subplot of the book, about a hard working and good hearted Quaker family, skillfully juxtaposes the positive values of the Protestant work ethic against the politics and get-rich-quick schemes of post-Civil War America.

For both Warner and Twain, The Gilded Age was the first novel that either had attempted, and their only collaboration. It is a most successful joint effort — smoothly written and cohesive, it is impossible to distinguish the 35 chapters written by Twain from the book's 63 chapters.

The authors apparently thought it was not enough to write a novel that is enjoyable to read as well as chocked-full of political insights that are still relevant — to this they added a wealth of frank philosophy.

Particularly memorable is a scene where one of the Hawkins children visits the optimistic, boastful, but unsuccessful speculator Sellers and his family, only to be greatly shocked as he finds them so impoverished that a candle is set in the stove to give the visitor the illusion of a fire where none can be afforded. Even in the midst of this obvious poverty, Sellers has a hard sell: "What you want is the appearance of heat, not the heat itself — that's the idea!" But the reader knows, as does the Hawkins boy, that nothing can replace a fire in the winter.

Warner and Twain continue to entertain us as they make similar points throughout the book about credit and cash, speculation and hard work, political corruption and legislative honesty. You can only think, in light of today's headlines, how much of a shame it is that we didn't take these lessons more to heart during the past 100 years.

"Tats Tommy" Top NewportMe.Tattooist

By ARTHUR FREDERICK

NEWPORT, Maine (UPI) — Tom Breitweg can chrome your bumpers and tatoo a battleship on your belly while you wait.

Breitweg runs a chrome plating shop a short distance from his home here. But it's in the room over the kitchen that "Tats Tommy", Maine's only tattoo artist, does his finest work.

"I learned years and years ago in New Jersey," Breitweg said. "My uncle taught me. He was one of the oldest down in Jersey; did a lot of handwork, you know, like Japanese handwork. I've yet to find anyone who can do handwork like he could."

The Japanese, apparently, are revered in the tattoo artists' ranks. Or at least by Tats.

"Some of those Japanese pieces take months," he said. "They're all over the body. When they die they take the skins off."

The apprenticeship to his uncle ended in 1939, and Breitweg wnt into the Navy where he polished his craft and collected a few tattoos of his own.

"I twirled the needle in the Navy. And I had some done on myself, too. I had one done just about every time I stopped." he said.

Bretweg said he has between 30 and 40 tattoos, including a huge eagle and American flag flanked by roses on his chest. "Fellow did that for me in Australia," he said.

Tattooing was never ooutlawed in Maine, but several years ago many shops were closed for violation of health codes. Tats Tommy's place, with a huge eagle-and-battleship sign on the front lawn, is the only tattooing parlor left.

"They weren't going to put the okay on that sort of thing," Breitweg said about the disreputable shops, "which is understandable. It's like a doctor's office; you don't like to see a lot of dust or dead mice around."

Business is less than brisk, Breitweg said, and the customers have changed a good deal over the years, with women coming in more and more often.

"There's a lot more women coming in today than 10 years ago," he said. "You wouldn't believe it. There's about as many women now as men."

Most of the women are between 18 and 33, Bretweg said, and most prefer "the small cameo type —zodiacs, roses, butterflies, things like that."

It wasn't always roses and butterflies.

"Some years ago it could be pretty rank," he said. "People wanted dirty tatoos or they wanted designs in, ah, unusual areas."

Maine does not allow tattoos on the hands, face or below the waist.

Breitweg's fees are low, he says, compared to tattooists on the West Coast. He says his charge for a large eagle on the chest is $50.

"There's a guy out on the West Coast I know about who tattooed a pair of fishnet briefs on a girl, and got $1,000 for it," he said. "You just don't get those prices around here."

But Bretweg's clientele comes from all over to get their skin pictures.

"I got a fellow coming up from Pennsylvania this weekend," he said. "A couple of months ago I did a couple of spiders on his shoulders. Now we're gonna do a dragon on his back. Later on we're gonna try to work up some bats around it and maybe a web around the whole thing.

"Eventually," he said, "it will be a good back piece."

WIDOE and WIDOWER

Q. My friend is a widower born April 27, 1913 and I am a widow born on October 5, 1920, Seeing him, I wonder what you can tell us about each other? — M.E.

A. In addition to the year, month, day of the month, the time of day and city of birth are necessary to calculate a horoscope. Your letter contained neither for your birthdates.

On your friend's date of birth the Moon was in Capricorn early that day and then moved into Aquarius. The Moon position and its aspects in a male horoscope is indicative of his attitude towards women in general and a wife in particular. Without his exact time of day of birth the indications of your planets to his Moon position cannot be determined.

The amount of information available from the limited birth data you supplied would be subject to alteration by the Ascendents, etc. of a complete chart.

With this in mind, you appear to be adaptable, able to sense conditions in your environment, are rather touchy, can be easily offended and need to be shown appreciation for what you do.

You are inclined to try to avoid arguments and discord and may try to please others for the sake of peace. Especially when emotionally involved you may please others to your own detriment.

Your friends birth position of the planet Uranus is in "aspect" to your Sun indicating his ability to stimulate your romantic feelings and interests. Other comparisons from the available data indicates care is needed of these stimulating and exciting feelings you experience if they are not to end suddenly.

Since the above is based upon insufficient birth data supplied it should be considered in that light.

For questions to be answered in this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered through this column.

Fabric Research Now FRL

DEDHAM — Fabric Research Laboratories has announced the change of its name to FRL. The research and development firm states the reason for the newly adopted designation is the changing character of the company's operations. The laboratories were founded in 1942 and had as their original objective the application of scientific and engineering principles to problem-solving in textiles. More heavily engaged in this work today than ever before, the organization has also expanded into other areas. FRL regularly conducts research in paper, plastics, and related materials and furnishes such management services as technical-economic feasibility studies, market analyses, technical support for legal counsel, and audits of R&D capabilities. In addition, over a year ago, FRL became a part of Albany International Corporation (AIC).

Census Bureau To Survey Unemployment

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will interview a number of households in this area the week of Nov. 19-23 to obtain information on employment here. The Bureau is part of the U. S. Department of Commerce's Social and Economic Statistics Administration.

Arthur G. Dukakis, director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in Boston, in making the announcement, said the households are among 50,000 across the country that have been scientifically selected to represent a cross section of the American people.

The survey, which the Bureau conducts each month for the U. S. Department of Labor, provides a continuing measure of employment and unemployment for the nation. For example, overall employment rose sharply in September, while unemployment remained unchanged. Total employment increased by 700,000 to a seasonally adjusted level of 85 1 million, the first monthly increase since June. The unemployment rate was 4.8 percent, essentially the same as in the preceding three months but well below the 5.5 percent level of September, a year ago.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept confidential by law and results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Agency Head Fights Modeling Rackets

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Nina Blanchard has run one of Los Angeles's leading model agencies for the past 12 years. Whether it be for fashion, advertisements, live fashion shows or TV work, if it's being done on the West Coast you're likely to find a Nina Blanchard Model on the job.

But Nina knows that not all of modeling is glamorous. She's also a leader in the constant fight against rackets in the modeling field.

"Despite all one hears about youth today, the overwhelming majority of young girls still want to be models if they think they have any chance at all, and many who have no chance keep hoping. With so many eager neophytes, there's a fertile field for rackets."

Nina got first-hand experience when, some years ago, she unwittingly found herself involved in a racket. It was the standard "modeling school" racket. Nina had bought a franchise from a chain set-up to open a modeling school. She discovered she was being taught all kinds of questionable selling tactics which she didn't want to use.

"Result, bankruptcy. I lost my money but stayed honest!" she said cheerfully. "The usual angle is to promise that graduates will get work as models. However, the modeling session—they usually promise only a "start"—is a fake and the pay minimal."

Legitimate schools usually name themselves as "charm" schools and never make promises of modeling work. Even worse, perhaps, are phony agencies.

"You see an ad: 'Models Wanted!' That's phony right away. No real agency has to advertise for models. We're fighting off would-be models every day. Of course, the phony accepts all comers, but tells them they must have professionally taken photos. The victim is steered to photographer who's in on the racket, and she pays several hundred dollars for her pictures.

A real agency never requires a model to pay any fees nor for any photos. Agencies get paid when their clients are employed.

"I get about 75 letters a week from girls wanting to be models." Nina explained. "An ordinary home-taken photograph plus the proper height and other measurements are enough. Out of the 75 I might find one possibility. Then this girl will be sent to several professional and student photographers for testing. If one or more of them thinks she has possibilities, they will take a series of shots."

The aspirant gets the profits free and shows them to the interested agency. Again, if she's lucky as a photo subject—many pretty girls don't photograph well enough—she's told to get a composite made.

"That's a single sheet combining several varied poses." said the agency head, herself a striking woman who photographs well but was never a model. "The girl gets that done herself with no hanky-panky. One of the ways I spot a phony agency is by sending them an undercover girl who refuses to go to their photographer.She comes back with top professional photos, but the phony agency tells her they're not good enough."

Others besides Nina Blanchard are fighting model rackets on the West Coast, including the Screen Actors Guild. the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the Federal Trade Commission. But naive hopefuls keep turning up in glamourland, all ready for fleecing, and Nina is jealous of the reputation of her field.

"Modeling is a tough business. Even if you happen to hit it big, you can be out after a few years of dizzy success. Your 'type' is no longer the look of the moment, or you have been so successful that you have been seen too much. It's better to be middling successful than a superstar of modeling."

One trouble is that a girl has to start so young. Nina noted that 21 is already too old as a starting age. A girl of 16 is often not prepared to meet the hope-rejection-hope-rejection pattern of modeling. Today a model must be an actress, too, if she wants to do TV commercials, as she must be able to speak her own lines.

"Modeling is so competitive that only a very special kind of person, man or woman, is going to succeed without self-damage," Nina said firmly. "I hate rackets because the field and the work are hard enough without some kid getting rooked."

2 pounds ground meat
2 eggs
1 onion, grated
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
½ cup cooked rice
2 tablespoons molasses
Juice of 1 lemon
½ cup white sugar
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup raisins
1 can (11 oz.) tomato sauce with mushrooms (Manischewitz)
½ can water

Wash and seed peppers. Pour boiling water over them and drain. To ground meat add eggs, onion, salt, pepper and cooked rice. Add a little of the sauce and mix well. For the sauce: Combine tomato sauce, water, molasses, lemon juice, raisins and both sugars. Loosely stuff meat mixture in peppers. Place in fairly large pot so that they are standing upright and close together. Pour sauce over peppers. Cook slowly, basting often, until peppers are very soft . . . about 2 to 2½ hours. Don't waste the sauce. It's marvelous with rice.

Mrs. E. P., Walpole, shares with us a recipe she was given on her recent trip to Indiana. (Thank you!)

MEAT WHIRL

1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 egg
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1½ cups (6 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon dill seed

In a bowl lightly mix meat, crumbs, egg, mustard, salt, horseradish, pepper and ¼ cup tomato sauce; reserve remaining tomato sauce. On wax paper pat meat into a 10 x 14 inch rectangle. Sprinkle with cheese. Roll from shorter side as for jelly roll; press ends to seal. Carefully transfer to baking pan, seam side down. Bake for 45 minutes in preheated 350 degree oven. Pour remaining tomato sauce over meat; sprinkle with dill seed. Bake 15 additional minutes. Let stand for 10 minutes. Remove to warm platter. Serves 6 to 8.

Question: I've often read that you can make your own bread crumbs with a blender but now that I own a blender I'd like to have the method, please. — K. M., Norwood

Answer: Easy as can be! This method works best with stale bread; however, fresh bread can easily be dried out in an oven or toaster. Just break one slice of bread into 8 pieces into the blender container; cover and process at high speed until finely crumbed. Empty and repeat with remaining bread. Use the bread crumbs for stuffings, for coating foods for frying and for buttered crumbs.

Question: Would you please print a recipe for Fried Eggplant. — Mrs. D., Dedham Answer: Hope you enjoy:

FRIED EGGPLANT

1 eggplant (about 1½ pounds)
2 eggs
1 tablespoon milk
2 cups fine dry bread crumbs (ap.)
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Salad oil

Pare eggplant and cut crosswise into ¾-inch slices. Cut each slice into 3 or 4 strips. Mix together eggs and milk. Combine crumbs, salt and pepper. Dip eggplant first into eggs; then coat with crumbs.

Fry in ½-inch heated salad oil about 4 minutes, turning occasionally, until browned on all sides. Drain on absorbent paper. Serves 4.

Question: We are planning on a very special party during the Christmas holidays and my in-laws are visiting us for the first time, from France. I am practicing many French dishes and would love to make croissants as a surprise for them. So that I may have time to practice, would you please publish a recipe for this delicate breakfast roll? Many thanks. — Mrs. T. W., Needham Answer: Rich, flaky and tender, Croissants are worth the extra effort they take. The recipe calls for 1 cup of frozen butter, used one-third at a time during the preparation of the dough. To save time and extra steps, divide the butter into thirds before freezing it; then remove the premeasured amounts from the freezer as needed. The repeated use of the shredded frozen butter in the folding of the dough assures an irresistible flakiness.

CROISSANTS

5½ to 6½ cups enriched flour
2 pkgs. yeast
1 cup milk
1 cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup butter, frozen
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons milk

(Spoon flour into dry measuring cup; level. Do not scoop.)

Stir together 2 cups flour and yeast. Heat 1 cup milk, water, sugar and salt over low heat only until warm, stirring to blend. Add liquid ingredients to flour-yeast mixture and beat until smooth, about 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 300 strokes by hand. Add 1 cup flour and beat for 1 minute on medium speed or 150 strokes by hand. Stir in more flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface and knead until smooth and satiny, about 8 to 10 minutes. Shape into ball and place in lightly greased bowl, turning to grease all sides. Cover and let rise in warm place (80 to 85 degrees) until doubled, about 1½ hours. Punch down. Let rest for 10 minutes. Roll out to 12 x 18-inch rectangle. Shred one-third of butter crosswise over center third of dough. (Keep remaining butter frozen.) Fold one-third of dough over butter and remaining third of dough underneath. Press down gently and seal in buttered area. Wrap in plastic wrap or waxed paper, keeping buttered layer up; refrigerate for 30 minutes. Place dough lengthwise on lightly floured surface. Roll out to original size. Repeat procedure for buttering, sealing and chilling, using the second and third portions of butter. Cut dough in half; seal cut edges. Shape each portion into a circle 18 inches in diameter. Cut each circle into 12 wedges. Starting at the wide end, roll up triangles; seal. Place on greased baking sheets, sealed side down. Curve into crescents. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Combine egg and milk; brush on rolls. Bake in preheated 425 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes, or until golden brown. Cover with foil, if necessary to prevent overbrowning.

Mrs. A. M., West Roxbury, tells us the following was found on a tombstone dated 1825:

Here lies a poor woman, who always was tired;
She lived in a house where help was not hired.
Her last words on earth were: "Dear friends, I am going Where washing ain't done, nor sweeping, nor sewing;
But everything there is exact to my wishes;
For where they don't eat, there's no washing of dishes.

Across The Kitchen Counter

by Ruth Lenson

Thanksgiving dinner is an occasion when memories are made. Families gather around the table and there is much rejoicing and giving of thanks. The modern homemaker who conscientiously prepares lighter dishes for her active calorie-conscious family, throws caution to the wind and prepares a wonderful traditional menu.

This is the only day in the year when most people eat the same thing for dinner, and for good reason. Turkey is high in protein, riboflavin and niacin. The meat is the lowest in cholesterol of all popular meats.

Although the seasoned homemaker takes roasting a big turkey in stride, some of the new generation of young women will be tackling their first turkey, and it's really a very easy procedure.

THAWING: 1. Defrost on tray in refrigerator in partially opened or punctured plastic bag for 2 to 4 days, or 24 hours for each 5 pounds of turkey. When turkey is pliable, take off bag, remove giblets and neck, cover with damp towel, and refrigerate until ready to roast. OR: Thaw in cool water 6 to 8 hours in unopened plastic bag, changing water frequently, or turkey may be placed under running tap. (NEVER use warm or hot water.) When turkey is pliable, remove plastic bag and proceed as above.

2. Remove giblets and neck from both openings of turkey. 3. Rinse bird inside and out and pat dry. 4. Salt cavities. Stuffing is good, but not necessary.

5. Tuck legs under skin band; tie wings to body with twine. 6. Place turkey on rack in shallow open pan, brush with melted fat, roast in preheated 325 degree oven using the following time table:

8 to 12 pounds, 3½ to 4½ hours. 12-16 pounds, 4½ to 5½ hours. 16-20 pounds, 5½ to 6½ housr, 20-24 pounds, 6½ to 7 hours. When light golden brown, shield dark areas with lightweight foil to prevent excess browning.

6. When turkey is done, remove from oven and allow to "rest" for 20 minutes before carving.

For those who prefer an alternative to turkey, we offer Rock Cornish hens with to 6½ hours, 20-24 pounds, 6½ to 7 hours. menu, we hope you are with your loved ones and we wish you a HAPPY THANKSGVING!

CRANBERRY SAUSAGE STUFFING BALLS

1 pound bulk sausage
1 onion, chopped
2 pkgs. (8 oz. ea) seasoned bread stuffing mix
1½ cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
1 cup chopped celery
2 eggs, well beaten
1 can (13¾ oz.) chicken broth
½ cup melted margarine

Fry sausage and onion until brown and crumbly. Do not drain fat. Add bread stuffing and toss. Cool. Stir in cranberries, celery, eggs and chicken broth. Mix well. It may be necessary to add more chicken broth or water to make stuffing stick together. Shape mixture into large balls, about the size of large plums. Roast turkey as usual. The last half hour of roasting time, place stuffing balls on a shallow pan in a single layer. Brush balls with melted margarine. Bake for 30 minutes along with turkey.

ROAST CORNISH HENS WITH PORTED CHERRY SAUCE

3 Rock Cornish game hens
Salt and pepper
¼ cup melted margarine
1 cup port wine
¼ cup wine vinegar
1 (1 lb.) jar or can light or dark sweet cherries
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water

Season hens with salt and pepper. Place in shallow baking pan with legs tied together. Pour half of margarine over hens. Roast in 375 degree oven one hour, or until hens are browned and tender, basting frequently with pan juices. Keep hens warm while preparing cherry sauce. Drain cherries, reserving syrup. Add syrup and port wine to pan juices Place over high heat for two minutes, scraping drippings from bottom of pan. Add vinegar, sugar and remaining 2 tablespoons margarine. Combine cornstarch with water and stir into mixture. Cook stirring constantly, until thickened. Add cherries and place over low heat for 5 minutes. Pour half of sauce over hens. Serve remaining sauce on the side. Serves 6.

JELLIED WHOLE BERRY CRANBERRY SAUCE

Rinse 2 cups cranberries and place in saucepan. Add ½ cup water and cook until berries pop, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in 1 cup sugar. Let stand, covered, at room temperature until mixture jells. Chill. Makes about 2 cups sauce.

CINNAMON PINEAPPLE SLICES

To syrup drained from 1 (1 lb. 4½ oz.) can pineapple slices, add ¼ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons red cinnamon candies and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Heat until candies dissolve and boil for 5 minutes or until syrup thickens. Pour over pineapple slices and bake uncovered in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

FABULOUS PECAN PIE

1 unbaked 9-inch pastry snell
3 eggs
1 cup dark corn syrup
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup pecans

Beat eggs slightly. Mix in corn syrup, sugar, margarine, vanilla and salt. Then add nuts. Pour into unbaked shell and bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 15 minutes. Reduce to 350 degrees and continue baking 30-35 minutes. Filling should be slightly less set in center than around edge. Chill and serve with sweetened whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

Cranberry sausage stuffing balls with bright red cranberries provide an elegant and festive garnish for the holiday bird.

Highlands Business Meeting

Newton Highlands residents, concerned about the direction the Highlands shopping district may take with the closing next month of a large five-and-and-ten-cent store, have called a meeting for 7:30 Friday, Nov. 16, in the Hyde School gymnasium.

A flyer distributed in the neighborhood expresses fears that if the character of the district changes, existing businesses will suffer and residents be forced to use cars to shop elsewhere.

The concerned citizens hope the meeting will provide an opportunity to make some long-range plans for the area.

Merchants, landlords and employees in the area have been invited to attend.

NRA—

mented later in the meeting that, "Davidson may have a point about an illegal meeting. The recission was not on the agenda."

This prompted Clarey to motion that the NRA vote again to rescind the vote of last June 11 which designated Woodland Realty Trust as the developer of parcel C. Mrs. Smith seconded the motion.

Clarey and Smith voted in favor of the motion and Cadwell abstained, the same vote as that at the Oct. 15 meeting. Their reasons remained the same as previously stated.

Davidson's fourth letter claimed that the NRA had no right to rescind its vote designating Woodland Realty as developer.

Referring to the June 11 vote, Davidson stated, "I believe it mandatory upon the Authority to press for fulfillment of that action and to delay, or otherwise act to not carry out that action, is action contrary to the statutes of the Commonwealth and contrary to the obligations of the Authority to conduct its business."

Davidson added that failure of the NRA to act officially may constitute grounds for a law suit to be initiated by the citizens of Newton and others.

Cadwell responded to all the letters by saying, "these are grave issues; they are matters that ought to be cleared up soon."

Davidson revealed that he called the NRA's Attorneys, Jaffe & Stimpson, prior to submitting the letters to ask if they would answer questions about eligibility and other matters if requested by the NRA.

Davidson said that he called as "a potential member of the Authority." He would not elaborate on what this meant.

The NRA had voted earlier in the meeting to extend its legal aid contract with Jaffe & Stimpson, but disclosure of Davidson's phone call aroused doubts about this action in Clarey.

Clarey also expressed qualms about Jaffe & Stimpson's possible connection with 14 firms linked with the family of DiCarlo. Davidson, DiCarlo and Sullivan were the three NRA members who voted to designate Woodland Realty as developer last June. All three are no longer on the Authority.

Clarey motioned that the NRA reconsider its vote to extend the contract of Jaffe & Stimpson, and the motion passed 3-0.

Clarey also asked permission to speak to Jaffe & Stimpson before the Davidson's letters are to be submitted to them for legal opinions. Cadwell granted this request.

Clarey then motioned to designate Spaulding & Sligh as the developers of parcel C.

Cadwell responded, "I'm not really in favor of passing the motion now after the events of this evening."

After Mrs. Smith admitted similar doubt, Clarey withdrew his motion.

Spaulding & Sligh was the first choice for developer last June of both LOPAC and NLFIA.

Vermont An Automobile Capital?

By CHARLES BUTLER, Jr.

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — A young attorney here dreams of the day Detroit will recognize Vermont's capital as the nation's automobile capital.

John M. Kilmurry left his law practice this fall to devote all his energy to the development of an electric car.

Building cars isn't new to Kilmurry, who has a Masters degree in engineering. Whe he was in college, Kilmurry developed an electric car and sold the design to General Motors.

The car he's building now, however, won't be sold to any of the major car manufacturers. The orignal, he said, "never saw the light of day." This time he wants to see the fruits of his labor and is concentrating on manufacturing the electric car.

Kilmurry has invested $60,000 in the project and has commitments from investors for another quarter of a million dollars, and a promise of $6 million to build a factory if the prototype is satisfactory.

He originally planned to have the car on the road by Christmas, not necessarily to sell as a present for "the person who has everything" but as a means of transportation when the fuel crisis hits the country.

The car won't be ready now for some time due to problems with what Kilmurry calls the "large industrial bureaucracy" and trouble getting parts, machines and "just things like that."

Kilmurry envisions himself as the Henry Ford of the electric car era, and hopes someday his name will be in the spotlight along with those of Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth at the nation's car lots.

Kilmurry expects to complete the prototype of his electric car by January, and if successful, he and the financial backers will build an assembly plant for their new low cost vehicle on a 100 acre site in Barre Town, a few miles from here.

"I think there's going to be a breakthrough in battery technology in the next few years," he said when asked why he'd give up a prospering law practice to build and market a new car.

The fuel shortage predicted for this winter and the future also has had a bearing on his plans. "The oil crunch is coming and gas prices are getting out of hand," he said. "Also people are getting tired of dirt and grime and the expense of running a car."

The Kilmurry, if it's called that, will sell for around $1,800, and will have a maximum speed of 70 miles per hour. The car he designed while in school would only do 48.

The new car will have a travel range of between 100 and 150 miles at speeds of 60 to 70. But, he says it won't be a cross country vehicle, until the major manufacturers get involved and support it.

The electric car runs on battery packs which must be recharged often. The charger he's designed takes four hours to boost a battery to run the car, which he points out could prove a problem.

But a group in California and scientists around the country, he says, are working on other charges which could reduce the time. If there's a breakthrough in that area, Kilmurry sais he has no qualms about using someone else's product.

Kilmurry isn't the only one in the country working on an electric car for the future. He says a firm in Bedford, Mass., is marketing one, but that the car's speed and range is well under the minimum he's set for the Kulmurry.

Japan has several companies producing electric cars and the Japanese government has financed the development of the inexpensive car. The British have been using electric automobiles for more than a century, Kilmurry said.

He said the American car manufacturers won't market the electric car because "they have an economy car to satisfy the market and an electric car would only provide competition."

But that hasn't put a roadblock in Kilmurry's plans for the future. He says once there's a market, "the big companies will open their doors to the electric car people."

When they "open the door" Kilmurry plans to be standing in line. He says his car will have no trouble meeting Ralph Nader's on federal safety standards, and will be safer than the average automobile because it's centdr of gravity will be lower.

For Kilmurry it's only a matter of time, he hopes, until he's recognized as one of the country's new wizards in a new car era.

(Massachusetts Audubon Society)

It's easy to give thanks if you're looking at something beautiful.

Looking at the whitecaps on a dark blue November ocean. . watching the cold wind blow the last yellow leaves off the maple tree. . .seeing the salt march grass waving like a Western prairie. . .it's easy to give thanks.

It's even easy to give thanks in a beautiful city. . .in Boston Public Garden looking towards old Beacon Hill. . .or in the Museum of Fine Arts. . .or along the Charles River in Cambridge where the sycamores still stand.

It's not so easy to give thanks when you're looking at ugliness. The marsh dredged and the spoils heaped on what is left. . .a street lined with neon signs and crisscrossing wires over a disorganized jumble of run-down stores and used car lots. . .a fertile farm levelled and turned into identical match-box houses on identical postage-stamp lots.

This Thanksgiving, search for a place where you can give thanks naturally and simply. . and in the places where thanks do not come easy, resolve to work towards a more beautiful world, where man does not build ugliness or desecrate the works of nature, where people can live joyfully in a spirit of peace and thanksgiving.

Jewish Education Talk Planned For Temple Mishkan Tefila

Jewish education will be the center of attention Tuesday evening, Nov. 20, at Temple Mishkan Tefila in Chestnut Hill for the fifth general lecture of the Combined Adult Education Program of the Newton area Conservative Temples.

Louis Newman, the newly appointed director of the Bureau of Jewish Education will speak on "Conservation and Innovation in Jewish Education," a discussion of the current challenges to Jewish values and educational institutions.

Before his recent arrival in Boston, Newman spent ten years as the director of the Melton Research Center of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

In that capacity, Newman supervised the creation of books for learning and teaching in the religious school. He organized and taught courses for the use of these materials in the Teachers Institute of the Theological Seminary of America, and in-service training courses for teachers in the United States and Canada.

Newman has also been active in the Hebrew summer camp movement and has published a wide number of books for both teachers and students.

This is one of the first opportunities for members of the general community to discuss matters of Jewish education with Newman. The mini-course segment of this adult education program begins at 8 p.m. The general lecture and discussion by Mr. Newman is scheduled for 9:15 p.m. The cost for this single lecture is $1.50; all students are admitted free.

Music will include contemporary tunes by Bob Dylan, Ian Bruce-Douglas, George Harrison, Carole King, John Lennon, Galt MacDermot, Joni Mitchell, Melanie Safka, Paul Simon, Cat Stevens, and Bill Tewson.

"Serve the Lord with Joy," is the Biblical concept followed by the Hassidic Jews, and will be the subject for discussion at the joint meeting of the Brotherhood and Sisterhood of Temple Beth Avodah, to be held Sunday, Nov. 18, at Temple Beth Pinchas, 1710 Beacon street, Brookline.

Temple Beth Avodah will provide bus transportation from Puddingstone Lane, and always welcomes interested guests to join them. Call the Temple office, 527-0045.

The combined choirs of the Cambridge Motet and the Church of the Redeemer will present the work which was commissioned by the Cathedral of Chichester, England, for its Festival in 1965. The world premiere took place in Philharmonic Hall, New York later that same year.

Dr. Alastair Cassels-Brown, professor of music, organist and choir director of the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, will be the director of the concert. The program will include works for organ and trumpet by Albioni, Bach and Martini, and for the harp, by Bach, Couperin, and Salzedo.

Today In Education

By DR. WILLIAM H. HEBERT
Exc. Sec'y, Mass. Teachers Ass'n

Recent eforts to offer equal educational opportunity to all children through a variety of schemes such as tax reform, bussing, or metropolitanization have raised the question in many minds of whether it matters very much what goes on in the schools.

Furthermore, unreliable studies by critics of education are having an increasingly negative influence on the job teachers are trying to do in the classroom. Christopher Jencks, for example, associate professor of the Harvard Graduate School of Education and co-author of the controversial book "Inequality" has concluded that equality of educational opportunity has little to do with how much students learn and later learn. Jenks appears to have based his conclusions, according to many experts, on limited research, yet his work is raising havoc with educators.

Jencks' conclusions are being seized upon by anxious budget cutters who are sayng that because school doesn't make any difference it's nonsense to spend any more money on education. Opponents of desegregation and those who would deny children from poor communities a better chance are also exploiting Jencks and his associates.

Yet James Coleman, world famous sociologist, is in decided disagreement with Jencks. Coleman has stated that every research project ever done indicates that the level of education is the strongest and most powerful determinant of income and occupational prestige.

Jencks himself has said that his study is being misused and misunderstood. It is true that he has never advocated cutting school budgets, abandoning desegration, or giving up on reform but if he is responsible for a project that has not carefully examined available information or is making guesses, he must bear the responsibility of those who will suffer because of his work

John E. Coons, law professor at the University of California and a recognized authority on school finance and equal opportunity, says something very different from Professor Jencks about extra funding of schools. Coons cites "light house" school systems as important examples of how extra money has made a significant difference in learning achievement.

Coons claims that Jencks draws on narrow evidence and that his study amounts to little more than a comment about scores on standardized tests which tell us nothing about the affect of money on such cultural skills as astronomy, the dance, or studying the violin—areas of study generally available only to children in wealthy districts.

One of the great tragedies of Jencks' study, according to Professor Coons, is that it came just in time to influence the Supreme Court's decision in th Rodriguez case, thus denying once again a fair chance to children who happen to live in poor cities and towns.

I am angry that Jencks and others like him do not turn their guns on an arena so vital to the health of American Education. That arena is the liberation of the American teacher. Until the teacher has the same or similar kind of control over his profession as the doctor, the lawyer, and the plumber, teachers will remain paralyzed and so will the schools.

For generations teachers have not been allowed to teach while frightened parents and rigid school committees functioned as though their only concern centered on obedient children educated at the least possible cost to the taxpayer.

People for the most part are getting the kind of schools they want and deserve. Teachers must be allowed to teach, to innovate, and to stimulate. Teachers must also be paid commensurate with the job they do, and teaching is a tough job requiring a high degree of skill and maturity.

It is not unusual for doctors and lawyers, wo are treated with respect and who control their professions, to earn 10 times as much as the average teacher, yet doctors and lawyers are no better trained and certainly no more qualifed.

The time for significant change in the teacher's role in society has long since passed. The critics and tinkerers of education would do well to consider once and for all granting teachers the right and the time and the room to teach. Perhaps then schools will begin to make the kind of difference Mr. Jencks seeks but despairs of finding.

Musical Instruments For Christmas

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there's a pear-shaped package for you under the Christmas tree, you may be in for a "plucky" Christmas.

There will be thousands of fretted instruments given to amateur musicians of all ages in the Yule. Frets include not only guitars, but banjos, ukuleles, mandolins and the almost forgotten dulcimer, currently making a comeback.

The American Music Conference says Santa's helpers have a wide variety of instruments and accessories from which to make a selection.

In addition to the full range of fretted strings, music stores carry a full complement of instruments and accessories.

Musical stocking stuffers for the small fry include harmonicas, flutaphones, melodicas, rhythm sticks and claves. For the practical amateur the choices include recorder, lute, harpsichord and lyre. Also the dulcimers, horns, and other old world instruments.

There also are electronic instruments, organ and electric piano, ranging in price from $200 to about $4,000.

For the musician who already has an electric guitar there are sustainers, wha-wha pedals, fuzztones, and a variety of other rhythm sounds.

Prices range from about $50 to $600 for these accessory items. A small portable synthesizer costs about $500.

Sheet music, a welcome gift for young and old musicians, starts at about $2. Almost every song imaginable—from the earliest Christmas carols to the newest pop hit—can be found in print.

Along with sheet music, there are self-instraction aids for almost every instrument and such items as piano lights, metronomes, music stands, carrying cases, new mouthpieces for brass and woodwind and new bows for violins and other strings.

Grandest of all, of course, are the keyboards—from upright pianos to baby grands and pipe organs to electronic marvels with three keyboards and synthesizer controls.

Whatever musical gift is selected this Christmas, it will be a present the recipient will enjoy for many Christmases to come.

"Wheeling Thru Boston" Is Now Available

In answer to public demand, the Easter Seal Society has reprinted the guide, "Wheeling Through Boston," as a public service. The booklet indicates accessibility of public buildings to the wheelchair confined and other physically disabled and aging persons.

Volunteers made the building surveys and compiled the date covering more than 200 facilities described in the guide. Although it was impossible to include every local establishment, the guide includes many of the city's facilities which have a minimum of barriers and assists the reader in anticipating obstacles. Facilities included are bowling alleys, museums, night clubs, restaurants, churches, shopping centers, outdoor recreation spots, historical sites and hotels.

An architectural barriers guide to Cambridge, the volunteer contribution to the physically disabled and aging, has been printed and also is available through the Easter Seal Society. The Cambridge booklet was made possible by the Alpha Chi Chapter, Alpha Phi Omega of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Copies of the guides are available by writing to the Society, 14 Somerset Street, Boston, Ma. 02108

Third "Master Mechanics" Is Opened In Watertown Square

A Newton resident who believes there "is no such thing as an automobile that's a real lemon" has embarked on a newly formed automotive diagnostic and repair business that he promises will take the despair out of car repair.

That man is Arnold Gorsky who adds: "The real lemon in this business is often the person who takes care of your car."

There is no room for lemons in Mr. Gorsky's new operation that opened under the name "Master Mechanics, Inc." The first Master Mechanics center opened in Quincy just before Christmas. Business there has been non stop ever since. Master Mechanics has serviced in Quincy over one-third of the total amount of cars registered in the Quincy area since then.

The second center in the expanding chain opened in Dedham Plaza off Route 1 last February and has services over 25 per cent of the total amount of cars registered in Dedham, Norwood, West Roxbury and Roslindale since they have opened. The third center will open in Watertown at 430 Main street next week. Other Master Mechanics centers to open this year are in Hyannis and in Lynn, and three more are on the planning board for other openings this year.

Master Mechanics is a combination of highly sophisticated equipment, professionally trained repair people, wholesale equipment purchasing and bottom line savings and safety for costomers, according to the firm.

The enterprise is doing something many car owners certainly don't encounter every day. Like having new parts on the premises so you don't hear: "We'll have to order it. Your car should be ready in a week or two."

If the center finds trouble in your car they tell customers exactly how much time the repair should take. If they twll a car owner it will take 37 minutes to fix his car, that's all the labor rime he is billed for. If it turns out the job takes two hours instead of 37 minutes, don't worry. You have only to pay for labor charges that were estimated. Ordinarily customers won't find a labor charge that is three or four times the cost for parts. When the centers at Quincy and Dedham for st opened, it was planned to offer free diagnosis to anyone wh brought his or her car in during the first week.

Master Mechanics offered to examine the cars. It was up to the customer to decide if he wanted the corrective work done there or take his car someplace else.

Gorsky got into the automobile supply business in his early 20s and has maintained a hectic pace ever since. He set up automotive centers for large stores and then moved into establishing a large chain of centers that were eventually bought out by a large manufacturer in the car supply field.

Then, a little over a year ago, Mr. Gorsky took a trip that brought him to car repair places and suppliers from one end of the country to the other. He moved around, asked countless questions, examined name brand diagnostic equipment, made notes and moved on. The end results of his trips and experience are the new enters that are opening under the Master Mechanics sign.

He has hired experts in the automotive and related fields. Some of the key supervisory personnel were drawn from the aeronautical and nuclear fields, others had participated in automotive racing.

The new centers are immaculate. "If you bring your car into a grease hole," says Mr. Gorsky, "That's the type of sloppy work you can expect.

T e centes claim to have the most dependabile diagnostic equipment that can be made. Front ends can be checked in seconds. The same with brake systems. Muffler installations take a little longer at Master Mechanics than at other service centers, but Master Mechanics claim that the thoroughness of their work means a savings in dollars and a plus in more safety.

Guarantees apply to everything.

Machines are also used to road test cars without backing them out of the clean, well lighted bays. Road testing, reduced to minutes means,

Newton High Grid Teams Ready For Turkey Battles

North Pick Over Brookline At Northeastern's Stadium

By BOB LOW

Northeastern University's Parsons Field will be the sight of this year's traditional Thanksgiving Day football game between Newton and Brookline.

Newton with a record of 6-2 will enter the game as the favorite. So far this season they have displayed a solid running attack and good defense although they have been victimized by costly errors in their games this season. They have lost only to Brockton and Waltham and between those losses rolled up a five game win streak.

Brookline on the other hand has had a dismal season and boast a 1-6-1 record. They were embarrassed by Brockton early in the year and most recently were defeated by Peabody, ranked one spot ahead of Newton, 19-6.

However past wins and losses mean nothing when these two teams take the field. Last year the Tigers entered the game with an 8-1 record, were Super Bowl bound, and were favored to defeat Brookline, However, Brookline played an inspired game and broke open a close 7-6 contest in the final quarter to defeat Newton 20-6.

At the time the Tigers thought that the loss had cost them a shot at the Super Bowl, but with a bit of luck they still managed to make it. This year, with the Super Bowl apparently out of reach, the Tigers are looking for revenge.

The game will start at 10:30 on Thanksgiving Day and in case of bad weather will be moved to Saturday, Nov. 24. All seats are reserved and the game is usually sold out so get your tickets early. Like everytime Newton and Brookline meet it ought to be a good contest.

Tiger Soccermen Edged In State Tournament

BY BOB LOW

The season came to an abrupt end for Newton High's soccer team last Friday night, as they dropped a tough 2-1 decision to top-seeded Masconomet Regional at B.C.'s Alumni Stadium. The Tigers dominated the play, but Masconomet took full advantage of their superior speed to set up both their goals while somehow keeping Newton scoreless until the final four minutes.

The ninth seeded Tigers had shut out St. Johns Prep 5-0, and Brookline 1-0 to reach the tournament quarterfinals, while Masconomet after a first round bye had defeated Cambridge Latin 2-0. Both teams were riding long unbeaten streaks going in to the game. Masconomet had won all 16 of their games this season, while the Tigers had gone 17 games without a loss.

Newton played a bit cautiously in the opening moments, but they soon took control. Joe Moussalli got the game's first big scoring bid, but his shot hit the top crossbar and bounced away. Moments later Rudi Viscomi sent a shot toward the far corner that was picked off.

However, it was Masconomet that scored first. Taking a clearing pass, Masconomet's forwards used their speed to get a break started. A Masconomet player moved the ball into the goal crease where he knocked the ball across to a teammate who beat two Newton defensemen to the ball and rolled it into the net.

That goal was the only score until the fourth quarter. In between however, the Tigers had many great chances. Twice in the first half Rudi Viscomi set himself up and then fired the ball just wide. In the third period Viscomi almost had a breakaway but a Masconomet fullback beat him to the ball, and late in the quarter Ronnie Brown sent a pass that rolled by everyone through the goal mouth.

While Mark Wasserman was not as busy in the Newton nets as his Masconomet counterpart, he still was forced to come up with some key saves. On one, two Masconomet players tried to duplicate their earlier goal but Wasserman with some great support from his fullbacks managed to cover up.

Finally, midway through the last period, Masconomet put another goal home. A long, desperate clearing pass came out to Newton's Matt Berry who trapped the ball and wheeled to shoot the ball back upfield. However, a Masconomet forward raced in and blocked the shot and dribbled the ball downfield and tried to center the ball. Wasserman slid out and knocked the ball away, but an opponent was in the right spot for Masconomet and simply rolled the ball into the net.

With only 8:35 left to play, The Tigers began a desperate try to tie the game. With less than four minutes to play Newton finally broke through. After a Masconomet foul, Doug Giron drove a perfect pass to Viscomi who headed it home from just outside the far goal post.

That was as close as the Tigers could come however, and so they were eliminated from the tournament while Masconomet advanced to the semi-finals.

It was a frustrating evening for the Tigers, who had kept the pressure on Masconomet the whole game and outshot their opponents 19-14. They had numerous excellent scoring opportunities but were off target with their shots. Masconomet's fullbacks were able to clear the ball away from the goal mouth in some key spots and Newton had numerous fouls called against them. Most of the foul calls met with heavy protest from the Newton side and the referees handed Assistant Coach Bernie Flanagan a warning in the first period and kicked forward Steve Forte out in the final seconds of the game.

Rudi Viscomi as usual played an outstanding game for the Tigers as did Doug Giron and Joe Moussalli.

In Semifinal Game

The Newton Athletic Association Lions will be traveling to Swampscott High School Sunday, to meet the Swampscott Blue Devils in a semi-final game in the Youth Football Conference of Eastern Mass. Championship.

The game is scheduled for 1:45 p.m., and the Lions will assume the role of underdog for a few reasons. Swampscott carried a record of 9-1-0, and has been the North Shore Champs and defending Eastern Mass titlest for four consecutive years.

This is only the fifth year of existence for the N.A.A. Lions and they have never competed in the tournament. The experience factor should favor Swampscott.

The Blue Devils' only loss came at the hands of West Lynn, who was defeated by East Lynn who in turn got beaten by Swampscott. This resulted in a three way tie for first place.

Earlier last week, East Lynn defeated West Lynn by a score of 6-0. It was on Sunday that the Blue Devils defeated East Lynn 14-6 for the league title and the right to meet the N.A.A. in a semi-final match.

The Lions will be slightly bigger than Swampscott, but fear the overall quickness of the team. Swampscott is a well coached team that makes very few mistakes. This game should be a good one. The Lions will leave Newton Highlands playground at noon.

The following is a listing of the playoffs to date, and the schedule for this weekend:

(Middlesex) Somerville 30, (Merrimack) Winchester 6.
(Nor Shore) Swampscott 14, (North Shore) East Lynn 6.
(Tri-Valley) Billerica Bye, (West Suburban) N.A.A. Bye.

Semi-Finals

Friday, Nov. 16 (Middlesex) Somerville (10-0-0) at (Tri-Valley); Billerica (10-0-0).

Sunday, Nov. 18 (West Suburban) Newton N.A.A. Lions (10-0-0) at (North Shore) Swampscott (9-1-0).

Lions Upset Wayland 8-0

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

Last Saturday, the Newton South Lions stunned the Wayland Warriors by a score of 8-0.

The Lions' defense was just tremendous all afternoon. The Lions' defensive backs, Art Murphy, Kevin Hoban, and Pete Nathanson played excellently throughout the game as they completely shut off Wayland's passing attack. Linebackers Aaron Moynihan and Greg Moan also played great for the Lions.

But the most encouraging thing to watch was the defensive line. They definitely played their strongest game of the year. Players who stood out here were. Paul Torney, Dennis Anastasia, Gerry Freid, Bob Taglienti, Haskell Kingston, Peter Maples, and Rick Taranto.

The first half ended in a 0-0 deadlock with both defenses controlling the game. Outside of some strong running by halfbacks Kevin Hoban and Peter Nathanson, the offense failed to move the ball again. With inexperienced quarterback Matt Sabetti, the Lions have no passing attack. When they do pass Kevin Hoban gets the call to throw from the halfback option.

The second half started with Wayland moving the ball down to the 27 yard line where they were stopped by the tough Lion defense. From that point, Wayland attempted a long field goal which backfired for them and cost them the game as Greg Moan blocked Bruce Paige's attempt from the 35 yard line. Alert Joe Donlan picked up the ball from there and raced all the way down to the Wayland 20 yard line.

The Lions were seemingly short of a first down on a third down run by Pete Nathanson but they got a big break as a Wayland defender pulled Peter's face mask. That gave the Lions a first down on the Wayland 11 yard line.

On first down from the eleven, Kevin Hoban took a handoff from Matt Sabetti and darted around end for the touchdown. Hoban was aided by an excellent block from runningmate Peter Nathanson. Nathanson, who played a superb game, bulled his way over for the two point conversion giving South an 8-0 lead.

From that point, the contest turned into a tenacious battle of the defenses.

With less than three minutes left in the game, the Lions seemed to have the game wrapped up. They had the Warriors all the way back to their own 15 yard line where disaster "almost" struck as an apparent 83 yard pass from quarterback Steve Rier to fullback Nick Galanakis was called back due to an offside penalty on the Warriors.

The Warriors still managed to reach midfield after the costly penalty. But Captain Art Murphy thwarted their final bid to score with a perfectly executed interception.

The play of the day had to be the big booming punt of Scott Groper in the fourth quarter. Groper's punt sailed 58 yards and it just about iced the victory for South as it put the Warriors in a big hole.

Coach George Winkler was ecstatic to say the least, after the victory. The Coach stated, "I'm really proud of all my players. They played with many injuries and they never quit. They're the most dedicated football players that I've ever coached."

Wayland Coach Joseph Lucas was far too overconfident before the game. He was quoted as saying before the game, "I feel in a way, sorry for Newton, it seems they always play us after we've lost a game. Last year we played them after we lost to Algonquin and we beat them 30-0. A Wayland team coming off a loss is a very dangerous team." I bet Coach Lucas doesn't feel sorry for the Lions now!

By far, this was the most satisfying win of the year for Newton South for many reasons. One of the reasons was that it was the first time in many years a Newton South team has beaten a Wayland team. Another reason is that it will give all the sophomores and juniors a lot of confidence for next year. But the most important reason is that the Lions showed they could beat a good football team. It was also a game which the Lions did not expect to win.

Next Thursday on Thanksgiving will be the Lions' last game of the season against the hapless Lincoln-Sudbury team. My prediction is that Newton South will not only win the game but win it decisively. The Lions will win this game by 14 points. Probably, in a shutout fashion!

Tigers Beaten 29-13

By BOB LOW

Newton High's dreams of making a return trip to the Division I "Super Bowl" were dashed last Saturday at Dickinson Stadium. Waltham High took advantage of some key Newton errors and defeated the Tigers 29-13.

Newton turned the ball over five times during the game and on the first three occasions Waltham capitalized by scoring touchdowns. Waltham also managed to shut out Newton's passing attack until they were comfortably ahead in the final quarter.

Newton opened the scoring early in the first quarter. On the third play of the game Waltham committed their only turnover of the afternoon, fumbling on their own 40. After Peter Waxman made a key fourth down run, Gerry Keleher capped the nine-play drive by scoring from the three yard line. Newton's conversion attempt failed when a high snap from center forced holder Pete Berquist to try to run with the ball. Berquist was stopped well short of the goal line and Newton's lead stayed at 6-0.

Waltham retaliated quickly to take the lead for good. On their first play from scrimmage after receiving Newton's kickoff, George Cappadona raced 42 yards to put Waltham deep in Newton territory. Several plays later, on a fourth down play, Tom Gettings scored from the one yard line to tie the score. Cappadona then put the Crimson ahead by running for a two point conversion.

After holding the Tigers, Waltham was also stopped. Their punt, however, rolled down to Newton's one yard line. On third down, trying to carry the ball around right end, Gerry Keleher had the ball ripped loose and Waltham's Fred Smerlas recovered in the end zone for a touchdown. Mike Gaudet kicked the extra point to make the score 15-6.

Waltham kept the play in Newton's side of the field for most of the remaining minutes of the first half but could not add to their lead. A roughing-the-kicker call prevented them from getting the ball inside Newton's 40 and then time expired just as they moved the ball inside Newton's 30.

Newton opened the second half by driving 70 yards in nine plays. Gerry Keleher scored his second touchdown of the game with a 36 yard sprint off tackle. John Connolly booted the point after to close the gap to 15-13.

Turnovers, however, came back to haunt the Tigers once again. After the defense got the ball back for Newton, Cal Moffie fumbled on his 27 yard line and Tom Hernandez recovered for Waltham. Aided by a disputed personal foul penalty against Newton, Waltham drove in 4 plays for a touchdown. Dave Poirier's pass to Doug Gray finished the drive off and Gaudet's extra point made the score 22-13.

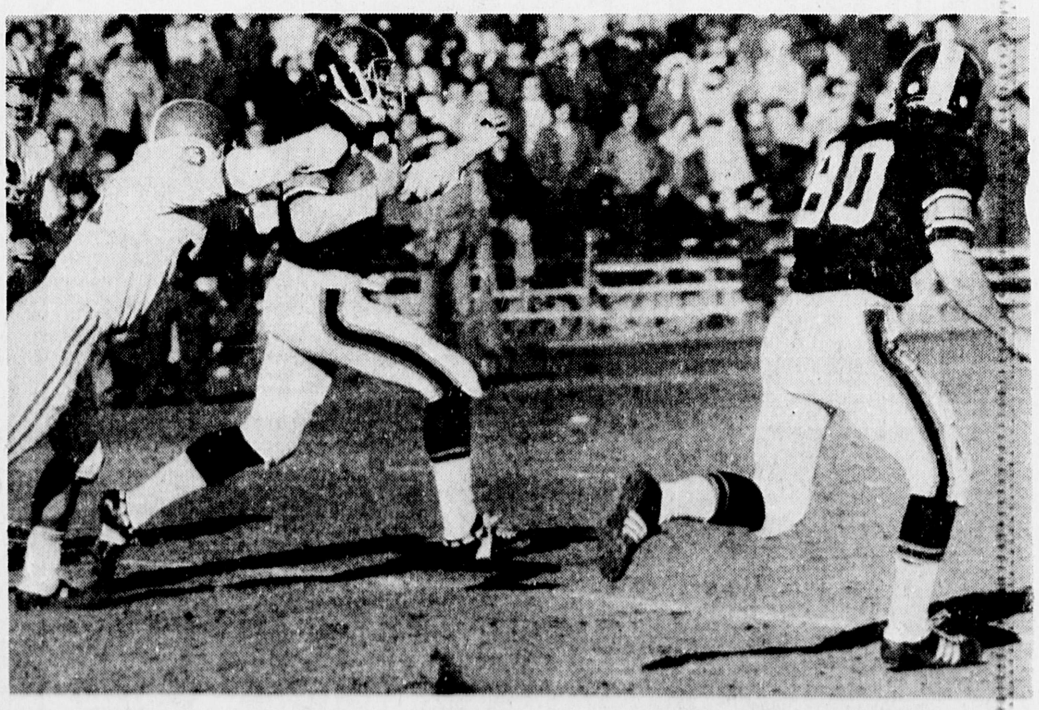
No sooner did the Tigers get the ball back than Waltham forced another fumble, this one recovered by Ed Logue on Newton's 24. Cappadona scored from two yards out to make the score 29-13.

The Tigers desperately tried to recover but they had two drives, one as far as Waltham's 14, halted on interceptions. Waltham was content to kill time by running the ball and the game ended with no further scoring.

While turnovers hurt the Tigers badly, they were also just outplayed by the bigger Waltham team. The Tiger offensive line had trouble opening holes in the Waltham front line, while Waltham's blocking was superb. They gave their running backs plenty of open field and protected their quarterback and kickers perfectly.

Unlike the game against Boston Latin the week before, not much went right for the Tigers. Against Latin the Tigers came up with a successful goal line stand; against Waltham they tried another stand but were scored upon on a fourth down play. The reverse which had worked for a touchdown against Latin accounted for losses each time it was tried against Waltham.

The loss snapped the five game win streak of the Tigers and dropped them out of a second place tie in the Suburban League. They have two games remaining, both on the road. Hopefully they can turn around and take them both.



The Great Escape

South Favored Over Lincoln-Sudbury

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

On Thursday, November 22, the Newton South Lions will play their annual Thanksgiving Day game against the hapless Lincoln-Sudbury Warriors. The game will be played at Dickerson Stadium in Newton.

Both teams have had very disappointing seasons, and are situated in the bottom of the Dual County League standings. The Lions enter the game with a mediocre 3-5 record while the Warriors have a poor 1-7 record.

The bright point for the Lions this year his definitely been their defense. The defense has been so good that with any offense at all they would have had a 6-2 record. Their only bad games occurred against Weston where they lost 27-0 and against powerful Stoughton, where the score was 35-0. The big 'D' only allowed 3 points against Maynard but that's three more than the offense scored and even though the defense played well enough to win, the Lions bowed to Maynard 3-0.

Against Bedford, the defense held their opponents to a touchdown but again the offense failed to score and Bedford lucked out to a 6-0 victory. Acton-Boxboro with tremendous aid from their hometown referees edged the Lions 14-6. The three Lion victories were Rindge Tech, Concord-Carlisle, and Wayland.

The Lions' last victory over Wayland was a real shocker. The game was played at Wayland last Saturday. It was the Lions' last game before Thanksgiving. Wayland, if they had won the game, would have clinched the Dual County championship. Wayland was a 15 point favorite and they were expected to win the game without too much trouble.

Again it was the defense. They just simply stopped Wayland's offense all afternoon. The final score showed the Lions on top 8-0. Their touchdown was scored by their able halfback, Kevin Hoban, as he scooted 11 yards for the score.

There have been many players who have played very well for the Lions this year. Players who have excelled for the offensive and defensive lines are Dennis Anastasia, Rick Taranto, Haskell Kingston, Bob Taglienti, Hal Bennett, Gerry Fried, Peter Maples, Joe Donlon, Paul Torney and Matt Sabetti. Linebackers Greg Moan and Aaron Moynihan have been doing great jobs for the South team all year.

Defensive backs Art Murphy, Tony Lombardo, Pete Nathanson and Kevin Hoban have done good jobs also. Punter Scott Groper has had a great year including two boomers of 47 yards and 58 yards.

On offense, outside of halfbacks Kevin Hoban and Peter Nathanson there have been hardly any players at all who have looked good. Fullback Walt Fatini has played well, but injuries have kept him out for most of the season. In the four games Walt has played, he has scored two touchdowns. The Lions have scored only seven touchdowns in seven games and Kevin Hoban has scored five with Walt Fatini scoring the other two.

The quarterback situation has been a big problem all season. Coach George Winkler started the season with Kevin Hoban at quarterback. The next week Coach Winkler decided to use Jeff Lawson. He stayed with Lawson for three weeks but after he also failed, he chose Captain Tony Lombardo.

Coach Winkler, after seeing that Tony wasn't qualified, elected sophomore Matt Sabatti as his fourth quarterback of the year. Sabatti isn't better than the other three but he's a sophomore and Mr. Winkler feels he has a lot of potential.

Anyway, the Lions will whip Lincoln-Sudbury in their season's finale. Coming off their smashing victory over Wayland, the gridders are more than hungry for another victory. I will even predict the final score. My prediction is that the Lions will trounce the Warriors by a score of 22-0. If you're not doing anything Thursday morning, come watch the Lions slice the Warriors, then go slice your turkey.

Suzanne Cole Weds Thomas McManmon

Miss Suzanne Lynne Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cole of Michigan, was the recent bride of Thomas McManmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. McManmon, 42 Howland Rd., West Newton.

The ceremony was held at the Marsh Chapel of Boston University where Rt. Rev. John Joseph McManmon, cousin of the groom's father, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father at an altar decorated with bouquets of crysanthemums. The reception was held at the Tennis and Racquet Club in Boston.

The bride wore her mother-in-law's wedding gown of ivory slipper satin. Short sleeves and a square neckline were outlined by an open lattice work to a long full length train. The ivory lace mantilla had been in the family for generations. White phalaenopsis made up the bouquet carried by the bride.

The maid of honor was Miss Cynthia Anne Cole of Ohio. She wore a long, full sleeved wine colored jersey gown with a v-neck and empire waist. The bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Mrs. Joseph Collins, Miss Ina Broeman, Mrs. George d'Arbeloff, Mrs. Richard Kaneb and Miss Barbara Osborne. Their gowns and flowers were the same as those of the maid of honor.

The best man was Barry Thomas McNamara of Chicago. The ushers were Robert Cole, the bride's brother, Prescott Crocker, Richard Kaneb and Slater Smith.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan and is presently working on a master's degree at Boston University. The groom has attended Notre Dame and the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration.

Miss Dwyer Bride Of Mr. Kulesza

Miss Nancy A. Dwyer, daughter of Mrs. Barbara Dwyer and the late Daniel A. Dwyer of 61 Chester St., Newton Highlands, became the bride of Richard F. Kulesza, son of Mrs. Terry Kulesza, 38 Mechanic St., Newton Upper Falls, and Mr. Frank Kulesza of Somerville.

At Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church, Father Robert Connors officiated at the candlelight ceremony, where the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Daniel Dwyer. The reception was held at Sidney Hill Country Club.

The bride was lovely in her gown of ivory organza with reembroidered alencon lace and matching full length mantilla. She carried a bouquet of miniature apricot and yellow roses with babies breath and pom-pons.

Miss Robin Tracy of Newton was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Maureen Dwyer, Nanci Kulesza, Debbie O'Hara and Joan Eisenberg of Newton. The nieces of the bride, Carol and Lorie Somerville of Butler, Pennsylvania carried the flowers.

Serving as the best man was Kenneth Ulass of Newton, and ushers included Barry Dwyer, Thomas Gordon, John Hoilo and Joseph Melnick of Newton.

After the wedding trip to Nassau, Mr. and Mrs. Kulesza will reside in Newton and both work for Cramer's Electronics.

Hadassah Donor Luncheon Nov. 19-20

Prof. Allen Pollack, N. Y., a member of the World Zionist Organization and the board of governors of the Jewish Agency, will be the featured speaker at the 47th annual Donor Luncheon of the Boston Chapter of Hadassah on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 19 and 20 at the Copley Plaza.

Over 1500 members and guests are expected to attend the two-day luncheon to hear Professor Pollack's timely topic: "The Jewish People in a World of Crisis."

Educated at Columbia, The University of Stockholm and Princeton, Pollack, an expert in Mideast affairs, is one of the founders of the American Professors for Peace in the Middle East and currently serves as vice-chairman of its National Executive Committee.

He has participated in several study missions of the American professors which were invited to visit Israel, Jordan and the United Arab Republic as guests of the respective governments.

Currently on leave from Yeshiva University, where he is a professor of Russian history, Pollack has also taught at Brooklyn College and the University of Pittsburgh.

Long active in Jewish communal affairs, Pollack is president of the American Histadrut Cultural Exchange Institute, on the Executive Committee of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry and chairman of the Young Leadership Cabinet of the United Jewish Appeal.

Proceeds from the Boston Chapter's Donor Luncheon will benefit Hadassah's medical emergency fund as well as its multi-million dollar healing, teaching, research and building projects underway at its two solely-supported hospitals in Israel: The Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center in Ein Karem and its new general hospital atop Mt. Scopus, which will become fully operational by the end of 1974.

Among the invited dignitaries who will be among the head table guests are the Israeli Consul General in Boston and Mrs. Shimshon Inbal.

grounds. He felt that listing three candidates for two positions was misleading to the voters and might result in confusion, if not invalidated votes.

The Ward 6 Democratic-card endorsement of Republican incumbent Ernest Dietz for ward alderman instead of Democrat Ted Gross caused raised eyebrows.

Close votes in Wards 4, 6, and 7, as well as the unseating of the ward alderman in Ward 5, demonstrated to many observers that some incumbents did not campaign as much as they should have, and suggested that in the next municipal election, when there will be no mayoral contest, aldermanic candidates will have to do a lot of work to get the attention of the electorate.

In Wards 4 and 6 some incumbents barely kept their seats. Ward Alderman Richard McGrath came out only about 550 votes ahead of Leonard Frisoli, while Alderman-at-Large Louis Egelson was looking worried at City Hall when results showed a very close contest with Nick Nardone.

Egelson won by slightly more than 700 votes. With 7,676 votes, his tally was the lowest of any alderman elected.

Incumbent Michael Lipof in Ward 6 came in behind newcomer Joan Saklad by nearly 500 votes and less than 300 over Ethel Sheehan, and in Ward 7 Jason Sacks, another incumbent, ran more than 1,100 votes behind Mark White, a young law student running the first time.

In Ward 4, the locale of Newton Redevelopment Authority operations, many residents found a year-old copy of the old Phoenix newspaper at their doors the day before election. Many did not realize that the story on the authority was a year or more old.

The story mentioned Mayor Theodore Mann and former Mayor Monte Basbas in connection with land dealings between the authority and the Garden City Trust Co., of which Mann was once a director.

Sources close to the Carmen campaign admitted this week that Phoenixes had been stockpiled since last year in anticipation of the mayoral campaign.

and consulting, the latter for the firm of Arthur D. Little in Cambridge.

Opposition continued until May when a motion to reject the appointment failed in the Board of Aldermen. Dudman's permanent appointment became effective June 4.

Mann said Wednesday, "Mr. Dudman has, over this period of time, been of invaluable assistance to the city in formulating new directions and goals for the Public Works Department."

"His expertise in the area of consulting and systems has provided the city with a strong base for expanded improvements of the revitalized Public Works Department," the mayor continued.

Several aldermen have consistently criticized Dudman's operation of the Dept. of Public Works, especially since the resignation of John Carroll, Dudman's assistant, last April after only three months on the job.

The expectation had been that Carroll, with previous long experience in the public works field, would supervise implementation of Dudman's ideas.

Dudman said Wednesday, "when I came, I had a specific thing to do — to make the transition between the previous administration and this one."

"I have done this. I have brought the Public Works Department from the fifties to the seventies," Dudman said.

Asked what he thought he had accomplished in his year of tenure, Dudman said, "Three major things.

"I began the restoration of the administration's trust in the men that do the work.

"Second," Dudman continued, "we have improved services." The Public Works Dept. does more for the people than it was doing when I came."

"Third, we have gained control of the budget and budgetary problems," Dudman said.

Dudman also worked hard and long with citizen groups, ranging from those concerned with road salt through those interested in recycling, composting and tree planting.

The 38-year-old Dudman would say of his future plans only that he expects to "continue basically the same thing — implementing change in local government."

No effective date of resignation has been given.

Revaluation -

"Real estate sales and rental information are researched so that in the final analysis fair market values are established by local property owners themselves," he said.

After the values are finalized, he said, the city will notify each taxpayer of the new value placed on his property. The appraisal company will then hold informal hearings for any owner who feels his property has not been appraised realistically in terms of fair market value.

The new tax rate is expected to go into effect citywide in 1975.

Reinhard is available for presentations to groups, service clubs and other organizations. Arrangements can be made by calling 244-4700, Ext. 235. He requests two weeks notice to allow for scheduling.

City Honors Marrocco

Gerard "Jerry" Marrocco was given a banquet of appreciation recently by 400 Legionnaires, friends and city officials for his efforts in the planning and construction of the new Nonantum Post 440 Community Center on California Street.

Marrocco became general manager of the Legion Post 10 years ago and assumed a responsibility to overcome a $9,000 deficit, which was accomplished, and with an aroused membership, a fund of over $100,000 was realized and was the financial foundation for the new legion home.

Head table guests were: Hon. Theodore D. Mann and Mrs. Florence Mann, Hon. Arthur C. Clark, mayor of Waltham, Chief William F. Quinn and Mrs. Anne Quinn, Ex-Governor Foster Furcolo, and Richard Furcolo, Roger Marrocco and Mrs. Ruth Marrocco, Commander Post 440, George Anderson and Mrs. Jean Anderson, Msgr. John Quirk of St. Bernard's, West Newton, Msgr. John M. McManmon, Our Lady's Help of Christians Parish, and the guest of honor, Gerard "Jerry" Marrocco and Mrs. Mary Marrocco.

Msgr. Quirk gave the Invocation, and Benediction prayer was offered by Msgr. McManmon. Mann presented Marrocco with a scroll from the City of Newton and paid tribute to the immigrants that came to Newton and offered so much to the City of Newton. Honorable Arthur Clark, Mayor of Waltham, extended the greetings from Waltham and welcomed Jerry as a new resident of Waltham. Chief William F. Quinn thanked Jerry for the assistance rendered to his department. Foster Furcolo extended the best wishes of an old friend and Dick Cronin, dressed as Uncle Sam, presented the Marocco's with a color portrait of Jerry and Uncle Sam. William Carmen, Past National Com., presented a scroll from the Jewish War Veterans. The Committee Co-chairmen, John Murphy and Richard Kelly, presented Jerry and Mary with a color television set. Other members of the committee are: Robert Burke, Treasurer, Roger Marrocco, Anthony Pellegrini, Patrick Panaggio, Violet Panaggio, Richard Cronin, Edward Boudreau, Conrad LaRosee, Donald MacAdams, Joseph Pasquaraso, Joseph Dunn.

Highlight of the evening was the visit of Mr. Pasquale Marrocco, 88, who made the trip by ambulance from the Don Orione Home.

Israel Bond Maccabee Campaign Opens Nov. 18

The War of Yom Kippur is the costliest war in Israel's history. To insure Israel's domestic economic stability, the Israel Bond Organization has proclaimed the period Nov. 18 through Dec. 20 as Maccabee Month to bolster Israel's depleted domestic economy with a vital infusion of funds through purchases of additional Israel Bonds. Congregations, country clubs and leading Jewish organizations have joined with the Greater Boston Israel Bond Committee in the conducting of the month-long intensive campaign.

The Israel Bond Maccabee Month campaign will focus on maximum enrollment of Shomrei Yisrael . . . Guardians of Israel . . . with an additional emergency loan of one month's income or not less than $1,000 in new Israel Bond purchases from every family in the community.

"We must face reality," stated George Shapiro, general chairman of the Greater Boston Israel Bond Committee. "As long as there is a need for the Israeli army to remain in place along the cease fire lines; as long as there is a need to maintain armaments at the battle ready; as long as there is a need for the Israeli Air Force to remain on alert; there will be a constant drain on Israeli government development funds."

"It would be impossible for even an affluent, well-established nation to bear such a burden without feeling the tremendous impact on its domestic economy. For Israel, a fledgling state still deeply involved in nation-building and still deeply engaged in constructing a sound economic base, the burden of defense spending poses the threat of economic disaster . . . unless massive amounts of loan funds are made available from her friends."

Shapiro announced the appointment of Mervin D. Gray as Maccabee Month Coordinator. Gray emphasizes, "It is imperative that during the next month, massive amounts of monies are loaned to Israel through the Israel Bond program. Maccabee Month will focus on this goal. Israel asks every friend of Israel — every family — to become a Shomer Yisrael and to enroll a minimum of two additional families as Shomrei Yisrael. We have been given a tremendous task, but we cannot fail if the Jewish State is to survive.

"Every Synagague and major Jewish organization has a Maccabee Month chairman, but we need an army of modern Maccabees to stand squarely with our volunteer leaders," Gray continues. "Our campaign will be launched with Maccabee Mobilization Breakfasts throughout the Greater Boston area, Sunday, November 18. We are also asking friends of Israel to open their homes for Israel Bond sales meetings."

To initiate the Greater Boston Israel Bond Committee Maccabee Month campaign, each new Shomrei Yisrael who purchases an additional minimum $1,000 Israel Bond between now and Sunday, Nov. 18, will be invited to meet General Yitzhak Rabin, former Israeli Ambassador to the United States and Chief of Staff of Israel's Army during the Six-Day War, at a special meeting this Sunday afternoon (Nov. 18). Purchases may be made at Kehillath Israel in Brookline where the meeting will be held. Announcement of the special meeting for Founding Shomrei Yisrael was made by Israel Bond Maccabee Month Coordinator Mervin D. Gray.

"Each individual who becomes a new Shomer Yisrael during Maccabee Month will be awarded a pin designed especially for this vital Israel Bond campaign," Gray announced.

"In addition, each new Shomer Yisrael will be entitled to two free tickets to a gala Chanukah Festival in December, with celebrities and special entertainment, he concluded.

Nursery School Openings Exist At Community Center

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., is most pleased to announce that a few openings now exist in the Monday through Friday morning nursery school.

This activity which runs each weekday from 9 a.m. - noon, runs quite similarly to the school calendar year. Headed by Mrs. Herbert Stearns, the program is arranged to include a variety of activity, both formal and informal.

The basic objective of providing a wholesome environment with creative activities with an opportunity to explore new media, is all inclusive. Field trips, story hours, music, creative arts and crafts, movement, are among the program's offerings with a rest and snack period provided.

A vast facility provided by the First Unitarian Society, makes it possible to offer a flexible program based upon the needs of each individual child on a daily basis.

Parents and potential nursery school youngsters, ages 3 through 5 are encouraged to visit the program.

For information contact Mrs. Stearns or Mr. Gardner at 969-2906.

Symphony Concert Set

Pianist Tedd Joselson will perform the Prokofiev Piano Concerto No. 2 in G. Minor with the Newton Symphony Orchestra Nov. 18 at 8 p.m. at the Meadowbrook Junior High School auditorium in Newton.

Joselson made his Detroit Symphony Orchestra debut in June of 1972 at the age of 21. The Detroit Free Press declared, "The real discovery of the weekend was Tedd Joselson. Joselson's performance brought him 'bravos' and a standing ovation."

Since then he has been soloist with the Houston Orchestra and at 19 concerts with the Cologne Chamber Orchestra, playing Bach and Mozart concerti. He was Arthur Fiedler's soloist at eight concerts with the Syracuse Symphony Orchestra.

In the spring of 1974, he will be the soloist with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Student Government Struggles To Survive

By PAULA BARRY
Correspondent

Student government is struggling for survival at Newton North.

There is the social branch which includes the six house councils, the Senior Class Committee, the Open Campus Committee and the Parent Teacher Student Association and there is the political branch which includes the Student Senate and the Student Faculty Administration Board (S.F.A.).

The first group raises money for political causes and scholarships through such activities as picnics, dances, hayrides, donut sales, lectures, and movie shows. Many students participate in these activities because they are getting pleasure from them but when that pleasure's gone, what's left?

The second group is plagued with the problem of student apathy. The S.F.A. is a board of elected members from the faculty and student body who meet with two administrators to attempt to solve the problems which confront the school community. Part of the cause of the apathy lies in the bureaucratic minutes and motions which are a part of every meeting. However, great things are accomplished after the weekly session with red tape is concluded.

Last year the group passed proposals for independent study in physical education, for the elimination of late slips; for the establishment of a Student Union; for the early dismissal of the sophomores and juniors so that the move to the new building could proceed with more facility and for the early dismissal of seniors who are pursuing full time employment after high school.

This year, among the proposals of the new members are: solving the problems of transportation and abolishing the long homeroom period on Wednesday.

The way the board is going, these proposals have a good chance of being passed but it will be a lot easier if there's student support behind them.

In recognition of the need for student participation, the Student Senate has been reestablished to pose as a lobbying force behind the S.F.A. At the first meeting however, there were only 40 students.

Posters to announce the meeting were placed at strategic locations throughout the school so the excuse of not knowing doesn't hold. It's vital that the Student Senate remain because it serves as a forum for the debate of student issues which individuals wouldn't bring before the S.F.A. It's vital that the S.F.A. remain because it's the only forum for change in the school.

The meetings may not be all that interesting, but it's the results that count and the S.F.A. has given us plenty of them.

Woodland Development Threat Averted

Woodland Golf Club, threatened again by development, has apparently been saved by a phalanx of Newton citizens and city and state officials.

During the four-day crisis, which began last Thursday when it was learned that the state planned to buy the 130-acre site for Boston State College and the Massachusetts College of Art, all Newton's legislators and aldermen went into action to prevent the loss of open space.

A meeting called by Mayor Theodore Mann Friday morning, attended by aldermen and representatives who opposed any sale or landtaking of the Woodland Club, resulted in plans to meet with State Senate Majority Leader Joseph Di Carlo and House Speaker David Bartley the following Monday and to marshal local citizen opposition over the weekend.

At the conclusion of the Monday conferences Bartley told the Newton contingent that he was opposed to the sale of the golf club, and if the people of Newton did not approve of the location of two colleges there he believed the sale would not be pursued.

State Representative David Mofenson commented that the final decision may not be made until some time Wednesday, but all the members of the General Court involved had indicated that the proposed purchase would not go through.

State Senator Irving Fishman of Newton was on vacation in Greece at the time of the unexpected Senate action.

Reached by telephone by his aide, James Barron, Fishman expressed his "outrage" that the Senate Ways and Means Committee waited until he was absent to insert the Woodland amendment.

Fishman said that before he left he had been assured that nothing controversial was to be taken up during his absence.

Fishman also dictated a statement to be read at a public meeting of citizens and government officials at City Hall on Saturday, expressing his wholehearted opposition to the "surprise purchase."

The proposal for purchase of Woodland by the state was first reported by State Representative Lois Pines and relayed to the aldermen by Board President Eliot Cohen at an informal meeting of most of the aldermen at City Hall.

Reaction was primarily dismay, since the city has been working on proposals to protect the city's golf courses by a variety of means.

The Planning Department has worked for months on an ordinance for planned unit development, which could be applied to preserve open space while still permitting some development of large parcels.

The Conservation Commission has recommended city acquisition of golf courses that are threatened with development.

Not only the loss of open spaces but also the extra costs to be incurred by the presence of more educational institutions in the city were of concern to Mayor Theodore Mann and the rest of the city and state officials.

Educational institutions are not taxable. Woodland Country Club, currently valued at $318,750, returns about $45,000 in taxes per year.

Beyond the loss of taxes, the MBTA assessments, based on the number of passengers boarding the trolleys, would increase.

Still unclear in the scare about Woodland is why the State Senate tried to purchase Woodland, which officials of Woodland have denied is for sale, and how Newton Junior College got mentioned as part of the deal.

In the Senate amendment to the capital-outlay budget appropriating the money for purchase of land in Newton, which was not at first identified as Woodland, only Boston State College and Massachusetts College of Art were mentioned.

By the following day somehow 30 acres were mentioned in the amendment were described as "land for Newton Junior College," to be donated by the state.

Apparently Newton Junior College was never really considered in the amendment.

Maybe the impetus to do something for the nearly defunct junior college came from the fact that although the School Committee voted last year to phase it out by 1975, there was to be a reconsideration in the fall of 1973.

Reconsideration was tabled at this week's School Committee meeting.

Another mystery is why if, as the vice-president of Woodland said this week, Woodland is not for sale, the author of the Senate amendment, Sen. James Kelly, proposed its purchase.

At least four times in recent years Woodland has been under consideration for one sort of development or another. The three other proposals have been for a football stadium, a medical center, and a shopping center.

Two Alarm Fire Damages West Newton Dwelling

A two-alarm fire ripped through the two-and-a-half story wooden frame home of the Robert F. Gilfillan family, 52 Hillside Ave., West Newton, Saturday morning and caused in excess of $20,000 damage according to a Newton Fire Department estimate.

No injuries were reported. Police responded to the fire, but no ambulance service was needed.

The Gilfillan family was awakened by a home fire alarm shortly after 8 a.m., and Mrs. Gilfillan heard crackling in the cellar. The family called the Newton Fire Department, and firefighters arrived at the scene at 8:27 a.m. A second alarm was sounded at 8:29 a.m.

The fire started in the basement and travelled through partitions up to the attic according to Newton Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr. The probable cause of the blaze was rubbish which was close to an oil heater in the basement.

The fire was reported under control at 9:02 a.m., but firefighters remained at the scene most of the morning. Firefighters had substantial mopping up to do. Ceilings, walls and floors were reportedly damaged.

Engines One, Two, Three, Four, Five and Eight, Ladders One and Three, and all five assistant chiefs, Harvey D. Preble, Lawrence J. Smith, Edward B. Reilly Jr., William M. Dwyer and Philip K. Coakley responded to the call.

Newton police had a large detail at the scene and rerouted traffic. Watertown, Needham, Waltham and Wellesley firefighters covered at various Newton stations.

Legislature Passes Bill To Aid Young Offenders

Legislation providing for the pre-trial diversion of youthful offenders with cases pending before the district courts, has been approved by both branches of the legislature. The differences in the House and Senate bills must now be agreed upon before going to the Governor for signature

The bill received initial approval from the Social Welfare Committee chaired by Sen. Jack H. Backman (D. Brookline). Subsequently, through a bipartisan effort of members of the Senate and House, as well as the Chief Justice of the District Courts and the Massachusetts Bar Association, the legislation passed both branches of the legislature.

Sen. Backman stated, "I view this legislation as a means of salvaging young offenders before they become trapped in the cycle of crime and imprisonment.

"This legislation is based on a project which has been operating in the Boston area district courts more than two years. Funded by the federal government's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), pre-trial diversion has been very successful, according to the lawyers and judges who have worked closely on the project.

"Pre-trial diversion will enable district court judges to refer eligible defendants who are between the ages of 17 and 22 years old, with no prior records, to concentrated counseling and assistance services in the community," Backman continued.

"Court approved programs will include educational and vocational training as well as job placement. The cases of defendants who successfully complete the basic 90 day program will be dismissed."

Outstanding Teacher Named

Charlotte F. Wall, instructor at the Lincoln-Eliot School in Newton, has been named an Outstanding Elementary Teacher of America for 1973.

Mrs. Wall is one of five educators selected from the thousands of teachers nominated for this year's Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America Awards program.

Nominated for this honor by Mr. Robert C. Jackson, Mrs. Wall received her silver award at a special presentation ceremony on Oct. 15. At this time, an unrestricted grant of $500.00 was presented in Mrs. Wall's name to her school.

Mrs. Wall's complete biography and accomplishments will be featured in the 1973 awards volume, "Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America."

Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguished men and women for their exceptional services, achievements and leadership in the field of elementary education. Guidelines for selection include an educator's talents in the classroom, contributions to research, administrative abilities, civic service and professional recognition.

When a Boston television station and the Massachusetts Department of Education selected Charlotte Wall as Teacher of the Week, they added one more award to a distinguished taching career. A highly successful third grade teacher, Mrs. Wall's accomplishments extend well beyond the classroom.

She organized and designed a multi-media center for her school and serves as its coordinator of instructional materials. These interests have led her to publish a number of articles in professional journals, including "Three R's Stimulate Through Maple Sugar" and "Fantails Popular in the Classroom."

Recently Mrs. Wall has been working on a project to apply modern computer programming and data retrieval techniques to produce a directory of multi-media materials.

Through her efforts the definition of "instructional materials" has been expanded from slide projectors and tape recorders to include a wide variety of unusual educational experiences for her students. These have included a demonstration of glass blowing, a reading by a visiting poet, the cooking of an international meal, and various speakers from the community lecturing on subjects of special interest plus much more.

Mrs. Wall's fellow staff members recognize her complete dedication to her work as an elementary school teacher. A former superintendent of Newton Public Schools has aptly characterized her as "thoughtful, warm, generous, sensitive and purposeful."

Who's A Dumb Animal

By RICHARD W. BRYANT,
Director of Education
Animal Rescue League
Of Boston

Animals have been known to tell time without clocks, travel hundreds of miles without maps, and even spurn brand X pet food without being able to read the label.

Why then are they referred to as "dumb" animals? Only because they lack the power of speech, which is Webster's first definition of the word "dumb." Are they handicapped by being unable to talk? Not in the least. Anyone familiar with animals knows that they can communicate a wide variety of messages - to their owners and to each other - through body language.

By becoming alert to these non-verbal communications, you can quickly learn to read your pet's mind and moods. Some messages are easily understood: a purring cat is presumably contented; a growling dog is obviously not delivering a friendly greeting!

Posture can be an indication of a cat's state of mind. Head down, paws tucked under and tail curled around the body means contentment. The same pose with the head raised and the eyes like slits means he's meditating, according to most cat communication authorities.

Cats also have tattle-tails - one fluffed up to twice its normal size means hostility; tail down means caution, and a tail held straight up like an exclamation point shows pride and self-assurance.

Dogs spend a good deal of time enthusiastically sniffing spots visited by other neighborhood canines. By watching their reactions to the scent, you can learn their opinion of the previous visitor. If a male dog scratches the ground and growls, he has smelled the mark of another male that he considers a potential challenger. If he whines and then trots away, the scent was that of a female. If he neither growls nor whines, he considers the animal unimportant - probably a smaller male that poses no threat.

When strange dogs meet, their hackles rise, tails go upright and ears flatten as they circle each other within sniffing distance. One dog will show dominance either by wagging his tail slowly, thus inducing tail-wagging on the part of the other dog, or by curling his lip and choosing to fight.

A fight can be avoided if the other dog assumes a posture of submission, standing perfectly still and exposing a vulnerable part of the body - usually the throat - to attack. According to author William Evans, in his "Communication in the Animal World," the victor always honors this act of submission.

Thus, without speaking a word, animals convey their feelings clearly and even settle their hostilities peacefully, a task that humans despite extensive vocabularies, still find difficult. . . so who's a dumb animal?

Museum Of Science Offers Peek Into "Unseen World"

Stare a housefly in the eye. Compare your teeth to those of a snail. Gape at a flea's leg.

A temporary exhibit in Washburn Gallery at Boston's Museum of Science zooms in on the minute body parts of these and other animals, including mites, chiggers, beetles, and fish. A collection of startling photographs taken with the extremely powerful scanning electron microscope gives visitors a look into a world never before seen by humans. The exceptional power of this instrument focuses on the hair of a mite, a flea's claw, the amazing foot of a fly that allows him to cling to the ceiling and numerous other tiny subjects.

Prepared by the Field Museum of Natural History and circulated by the Smithsonian Institution, the exhibit, "Below Man's Vision: Electronic Windows into Unseen Worlds," also includes several everyday objects seen from a completely new vantage point. Grains of sugar and salt, nylon, linen, and paper seem unfamiliar in an examination that reveals their true texture and makeup.

In all the photographs, the viewer is struck by the intricate beauty, fidelity, and detail of nature's work. Through the exhibit, he is able to share some of the excitement felt by researchers as they explore this new world. The contrast between manmade objects and natural ones is striking - the symmetry and perfection of nature overwhelms the crudeness of everything made by man.

A final section on current studies gives testimony to the fast-growing field of scanning electron microscope research. The panels in this area depict recent discoveries made with this microscope, from minute pits in fishes' teeth to sucking organs on the ptillid beetle.

Visitors may supplement this exhibit with a stop in the Museum's Lyman Library, where scanning electron microscope photographs of the anatomy of a bee are on permanent display.

The exhibit will remain at the Museum through late Jan. It is open after 2 p.m. weekdays and all day Saturday and Sunday. There is no entrance fee above Museum admission.

VA Newsletter

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q—I was just discharged from service where I worked in a medical laboratory. How do I go about getting a similar job with the Veterans Administration?

A—Contact the personnel office of the nearest VA hospital for information on employment opportunities at the agency's hospitals and clinics. You may qualify for a Veterans Readjustment Act appointment, which would eliminate much of the paper work usually connected with Civil Service appointments.

Q—I'm thinking of going to school under the GI Bill. Will the Veterans Administration pay me education assistance to attend any school, or pursue any course?

A—Not quite. In order to receive VA assistance the course or program must not be barred by law, and must lead to a recognized educational, professional or vocational objective. Also, the school you select must be approved by a state approving agency.

Q—The adaptive equipment that came with a car I purchased four years ago with a grant from the Veterans Administration is wearing out. Will VA replace this equipment?

A—Yes. VA since enactment of PL 91-666 in January 1971 has been authorized to repair or replace adaptive equipment for eligible service disabled veterans. Suggest you apply to your regional VA office.

NOT JUST BEACHES

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida ranks 12th in the nation in agriculture production and is also the fastest growing agricultural state in the nation. It has 30,479 farms, representing a total capital investment of more than $8 billion. Florida's gross agricultural product brought $2 billion to farmers but retailed for $6 billion.

MOZARD LIBRARY

BERLIN (UPI) — If you want to read the original scores of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" or Beethoven's Fifth Piano Concerto, the Music Department of East Berlin's State Library is the place to go.

The archives include original manuscripts and scores by many of the great masters, including Johann Sebastian Bach, Mozart, Betthoven, and Schumann. The library includes 60,000 books and manuscripts and 15,000 long-playing records as well as 78.

You can compact garbage without a electrically-operated compactor. Just put little things inside big things. Those half-gallon milk cartons can hold an awful lot of garbage.

SLIPPING AND SLIDING

BONN (UPI) — The West German housewife may have some of the most advanced household remedies in the world, but she is still accident-prone inside the four walls of her home.

More than 1.4 million women suffered injuries in the kitchen, bathroom or other places at home in 1972. Of them, 600,000 were temporarily incapacitated and 15,000 suffered permanent injuries, according to the Ministry of Family Affairs.

Wrap those Christmas parcels going through the mail properly. There's nothing so disappointing as standing in line for a long time, getting to the head of the line and having the postal clerk tell you the wrapping makes the package unacceptable for mailing.

DUTCH FATALITIES

THE HAGUE (UPI) — The number of persons killed in road accidents in Holland rose to 3,246 in 1972 from 3,167 in 1971, the Central Statistics Office announced.

The Ptolemaic theory of the universe was laid down by Ptolemy of Alexandria, who fixed the earth in the middle of the system.

Nutrition Survival Kit Designed To Help Parents Teach Children

A Nutrition Survival Kit designed to help parents educate their children away from highly sugared TV advertised snacks and cereals will be published Nov. 17 by Action for Children's Television (ACT).

Children see up to 24 ads a minute on Saturday morning network TV and the majority of them are for sugared candies, snacks and cereals and none of them for fresh fruits, vegetables, cheese or other recognized nutritional foods.

The kit suggests alternative snacks including carrots, tomatoes, biscuits, crackers, cheese, pop corn, pretzels, peanut butter and nuts of all kinds. There's also a special section for children with jokes, riddles and puzzles.

ACT representatives throughout the country are distributing the pamphlets and 32 ACT Contacts will be giving them away ouside local supermarkets. They will also be collecting signatures requesting equal time on the air for good nutritional information, warning parents about the excessive quantity of sugar-loaded food ads addressed to children.

"We are most concerned that the familiar cartoon characters and the friendly super-stars on Tv all entice children to try the latest gooey, munchey, sweet snack and to ignore much healthier foods," said ACT President Peggy Charren.

"The Kit is ACT's response to the heavy advertising campaigns on Saturday children's TV programs. We're helping parents to make wiser snack-buying decisions."

The Nutrition Survival Kit is the first step in a continuing nutrition education campaign which ACT is launching.

Kits are available from ACT, 46 Austin St., Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

Temple Emanuel Group Plans Monthly Breakfast

On Sunday, Nov. 18, at 9:30 a.m., the Temple Emanuel Brotherhood, Newton, will hold the second of its monthly breakfasts and its annual tribute to the Jews of Soviet Russia in recognition of their struggle to achieve the freedom to emigrate to the State of Israel, the land of their heritage.

The guest speaker will be Deborah Lipstadt, a doctoral candidate at Brandeis University and Director of New England Federation of Temple Youth. Ms. Lipstadt has visited Russia several times, and on the occasion of her most recent visit she received the rather unique distinction of being asked not to return. Her talk promises to be most interesting.

Rabbi Samuel Kenner, executive director United Synagogue of New England, leader of the annual rally of solidarity with Soviet Jewry and focal point of the efforts to ease the plight of the Jews in Soviet Russia, will be the other guest speaker.

Dr. Louis Kassler, President of Brotherhood, announces that at this meeting all the past presidents of Brotherhood will be honored for their service and dedication to the ideals of Brotherhood, spanning a period of 25 years or more.

Breakfast Chairman is Max Katzeff, and in charge of reservations is Sydney Rosenburg.

Library Camera Club Continues Lecture Series

The Newton Free Library (NFL) Camera Club continues its lectures in basic photography, Monday, Nov. 19, at 7:15 p.m. at the Nonantum Branch of the NFL, corner of Watertown Street (Route 16) and Bridge Street, Newton.

This second lecture in a series of three special photography programs will focus on methods of developing and processing, including a discussion of negatives, prints, and enlargements.

The cost for each of the remaining two lectures, including handout materials, is two dollars and is payable at the door. Please make checks payable to the Newton Camera Club.

Leo Myers, president of the Camera Club, Phil Coyne and Jim Saret, past presidents, and Jay Saret are instructors for the course.

Registration begins at 6:45 p.m. for each lecture, and the lectures begin at 7:15 p.m. Participants should bring their cameras.

The next regular meeting of the Camera Club is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Nonantum Branch Library. Photo fans of all abilities from junior high school age and up are welcome to attend the Newton Free Library's Camera Club meetings.

Recreation Talks By Commission

The Newton Recreation Commission will hold its monthly meeting on Monday, Nov. 19 at 7:45 p.m. at the Recreation Department offices at 70 Crescent St., in Auburndale.

Items on this agenda will include a request from the Board of Aldermen for the Recreation Commission to undertake a poll, ward by ward, of recreation, civic and neighborhood clubs and organizations, soliciting community response as to priorities for capital projects, equipment or general improvements; Halloween reports; result of Traffic Commission meeting regarding the bike paths in Newton; School Department response concerning land transfer for Davis School; plans for indoor tennis and fiscal 1975 budget considerations.

A wealth of homespun philosophy sprinkled with delightful humor will be enjoyed by the members and guests of the club.

Dessert and social hour will open the meeting at 12:30 p.m. with hostesses Mrs. Harold D. Hockridge, Mrs. William A. Eagan, Mrs. Martin P. Luthy, Mrs. Daniel P. Murphy, and Mrs. Bernard N. White.

The president, Mrs. John F. Jenkins, will preside at the business meeting at 1:45 p.m. The program which follows will be introduced by Mrs. Harold L Burrill, Program Chairman.

Local School Plans Fairs

The annual Beethoven School PTA Book Fair-Food Fair will take place Monday and Tuesday Nov. 19 and 20 in the school gymnasium on Beethoven Street, Waban.

The sale will run from 12:30-5:30 p.m. and in the evening both days.

Books will be available for all ages. There will also be a variety of other gift items.

Foods will include homemade cakes, pies, cookies, breads, gourmet delicacies, candies and preserves.

Ms. Gloria Shapiro, chairman of the Book Fair, and Ms. Diane Koretitz, chairman of the Food Fair, invite the public to attend.

There will be grade level meetings for parents of children attending Beethoven School. Parents of children in kindergarten through grade 3 will attend on Monday, Nov. 19 at 8 p.m. Parents with children in grades 4-6 will meet on Tuesday Nov. 20 at 8 p.m.

Jews And Christians Topic

On Tuesday, Nov. 20, the Newton Community Relations Commission will sponsor a public forum on the topic "Two Cultures, One Community: Jews and Christians in Newton." The meeting will be held at Newton South High School at 8 p.m.

The program will begin with a slide presentation entitled "The Distorted Image." This slide show, furnished by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, deals with the role that images and stereotypes play in contemporary society.

After the slide show, a panel composed of local Jewish and Christian participants, both clergymen and laymen, will begin a discussion of the evening's topic. Two high school students also will participate. A general discussion will be held, with everyone present invited to participate.

William Ramsey, chairman of the Community Relations Commission, and Rev. Robert Griesse, the commission's vice-chairman, are responsible for organizing this program.

Artists Plan Sketch Night

A unique and different Newton Art Association meeting has been planned by the Newton Art Association "Informal Sketch Night with Model" for Nov. 15 - a veritable first! This meeting will be held at the Workshop-Woman's Club, 72 Columbus St., Newton Highlands, at 7:45 p.m.

The Newton Art Association urges all members to attend as there will be a model, plus an attractive still life set up for the artists. Participants are requested to bring their own equipment including easels.

This meeting will provide members a rare opportunity for active participation in painting together in a congenial atmosphere.

Since the Newton Art Association was organized to stimulate and promote the appreciation of arts and crafts among its members this innovative evening should promote great interest.

Guests, relatives and friends are welcome to view the artists working in their various medias.

Refreshments will be served by the hospitality committee.

Masons Meet

The next afternoon meeting of the Newton Masonic Club will be Wednesday Nov. 21, snack bar at 1:30 p.m. meeting at 2 p.m.

Fellow Club member, Prescott B. Morse, of the Needham Retired Men's Club will present a slide illustrated cruise on the Motor Ship "Mount Hope" from Rhode Island via New York through the Erie Canal, St. Lawrence Seaway.

Return trip via Lake Champlain and the Hudson River back to Warren, R.I. Visit with him nearby N.Y., Canada, and part of New England with beautiful views of this section of the country.

The Masonic Music Men will also entertain with popular songs.

Deadline Approaches For Aid To Chelsea Fire Victims

November 16 is the deadline for applying for disaster unemployment assistance for persons who became unemployed because of the October Chelsea fire, according to Richard C. Gilliland, director of the Division of Employment Security.

The period for taking initial claims for disaster unemployment assistance began on Oct. 15 as designated in an announcement by Governor Francis W. Sargent that the special aid was available under the Federal Disaster Relief Act of 1970.

Self-employed persons and employees of firms in the disaster area, who became unemployed because of the fire, may file applications for disaster unemployment assistance at the nearest claims office of the Division of Employment Security through Nov. 16. Applications filed after that date will not be considered timely, unless it can be established that the applicant had good cause for late filing.

Persons qualifying for disaster unemployment assistance will be paid the greater of the following: an amount equal to the average weekly regular unemployment compensation payment of $63, or the weekly amount to which their wages would qualify them under the Massachusetts Employment Security Law.

Parking Ban

Chief William F. Quinn announced that the Newton police are reemphasizing the ban on all-night parking on city streets.

The Chief stated that his night officers will issue warning cards for a few days, except in the cases of complaints, and then rigorous enforcement will be in order.

"The ordinance governing parking for not more than one hour between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. was designed to keep the streets free of parked cars, in order that snow plow crews could clear the streets efficiently," Chief Quinn said.

The Chief continued, "Parked cars block the plows and as a result, the plow crews have to return repeatedly, increasing the cost to our taxpayers, and causing great inconvenience to other residents."

In addition, the Chief stated, "Streets clear of automobiles contribute to crime prevention. We hope all citizens will cooperate in this matter."

Citizens For Life Meeting Tonight

Newton Citizens for Life, a group opposing unlimited right to abortion, will meet tonight (Nov. 15) at the auditorium of Our Lady's Church, 575 Washington St., Newton, at 8 p.m.

A slide presentation will be made by Dr. Joseph Stanton, and Dr. Mildred Jefferson will speak.

The public is invited.

Camp Fire Candy Sale Beginning

Camp Fire Girls from second grade Blue Birds through high school Horizon Club members will begin ringing doorbells Friday, Nov. 16, as their annual Candy Sale fund-raising drive gets under way.

This year's candy comes in boxes of assorted chocolates, mint parfaits, and fruit-flavored slices. Proceeds primarily benefit the Camp Fire Council for Greater Boston, half of whose operating budget is thus provided.

The council is the central organization for approximately 10,000 Camp Fire Girls. Smaller percentages of the proceeds are returned directly to the individual groups and to the Town Committees.

Newton's Candy Sale coordinator for 1973 is Mrs. Henry Hall, who is also town chairman for Camp Fire Girls. Assisting her are depot mothers Mrs. James Doyle, Mrs. Irving Malick, Mrs. David Bull, Mrs. Stephen Werbinski, Mrs. Lewis Simons, and Mrs. Louis Dragon, as well as Mrs. Alan Springer in charge of store sales and Mrs. Robert Daly co-ordinating sales outside school areas.

The Camp Fire Girls help to fund their organization each year by turning to the public and trying out their abilities as salespeople. They look hopefully for the generous support of past years to be repeated.

DEAR SANTA,

I live in a small apartment and I want enough room so I can go fishing — and play football, hockey & soccer and have a lot of fun. I need a house in a neighborhood with other kids but no busy streets. More than anything, I want to live in a Raised Ranch but my mom says we can't afford one.

Please help me,
Scott

DEAR SCOTT,

If you go see my elves at STERLING REAL ESTATE they will look in their magic book and find your home. They will also show your mom how she can afford it and how you can move into it just in time for me to visit.

UNICEF Cards Going On Sale

The 1973 holiday collection of UNICEF Greeting Cards and gifts is now on sale at Stop and Shop, Route 9, Chestnut Hill, it was announced today by Mrs. Andrew L. Warshaw, greeting card chairman for Chestnut Hill.

Like the age-old wishes these cards bear, the paintings and artifacts reproduced in the UNICEF collection span the past millenium. From pre-Columbian times, a golden raft from the Museo del Oro in Bogota bears a gilded "El Dorado" to an eternally distant lake, while in a 20th century painting by renowned United States artist Georgia O'Keefe, a mysterious black bird soars through endless blue. Five musicians in a boxed set, each from an 18th century Spanish decorative tile, play their instruments, and in a Renaissance "Nativity" reproduced from the Vatican Collection, Mary and Joseph admire the infant Jesus amid a blaze of gold.

Snow scenes from seven countries include a Turkish artist's merry vision of reeling snowflakes, a Swiss Santa Claus astride a bicycle, and a Frenchman's rendition of the joy of a snowman for children in Tehran. Other highlights are paintings by two 14-year-old boys, one from Burundi, West Africa, the other from the United States; a Peruvian folk art creche; a mother and child by a noted Black American sculptress now living in Mexico; and the intricate lace of a Swiss papercut nativity story.

Whatever their message - "Seasons Greeting," "Merry Christman," "Peace on Earth," or a personalized note - this year's cards help the United Nations Children's Fund send better health and well-being to children in 111 developing nations. The proceeds from a single card can pay freight costs on enough donated dried milk to make 35 glasses of liquid milk. A box of 12 cards can buy three baby chicks for an applied nutrition program.

Cards range in size and price from the conventional Popular Edition at $2 for a box of 12, to the larger, specially printed Special Editions at $3 for a box of 12, and the extra-large Collectors Editions at $2.50 for a box of six. Informal-size Mini Notes cost $2 for a box of 25, and the Spanish tile reproductions are also available in pads of post cards at $1.50.

UNICEF's 1974 Engagement and Desk Calendar has 52 full-color reproductions of popular past cards and two previously unpublished designs. At $3 each, they are welcome gifts in self-mailing cartons. Spiral binding and back-to-back printing permit removal of date pages at the year's end, leaving only the art in a permanent book.

UNICEF's 32-page Wall Calendar, at $1, has a child's painting from a different country for every month. Major national, religious, and school holidays around the world are noted, and some are also described in full in a special section.

The sales booth will be open weekdays from 9:45 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursday evening till 9 p.m., and Saturdays from 9:45 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Dial 911 In Emergency

Newton residents will have to dial only "911" to reach police and fire departments in an emergency starting Friday (Nov. 23).

Paul C. Duncan, local manager for New England Telephone, said city officials arranged to have the company provde this new emergency system for Newton residents whose telephone numbers begin with 244, 332, 527, 965, and 969.

"By calling just the three-digit number "911," Duncan said, "the caller will be connected to a centralized emergency bureau which will alert the appropriate police or fire agency."

Duncan stressed that the bureau is set up to handle emergencies only. Residents should continue to dial the regular police and fire administrative numbers for all other calls.

"In this way," he said, "the 911 lines will be kept open to handle emergencies faster."

Duncan said one feature of the new "911" emergency number is that it is faster to dial and easier to remember than standard emergency numbers.

Since 1968 the 911 emergency service has been introduced in communities across the nation. Newton brings to 25 the number of Massachusetts communities with the 911 service.

Happening

There was a "happening" for children Saturday at the Newton Free Library in celebration of National Children's Book Week. Led by John Langstaff, one of America's leading concert artists and children's author, the event drew a sizeable crowd of Newton youngsters to a variety of fun filled events. Arraign Sherter Murder Suspect

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

A 38-year old Tewksbury man was charged this week with the 1972 slaying of Leon Sherter of Newton.

James Doherty of Tewksbury was arraigned Monday on the murder charge and charges of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and armed assault in a dwelling house before Special Justice Monte G. Basbas in Newton District Court.

Doherty was arrested at his home at 1 a.m. Monday morning. The arresting officers were Det. Robert Whelan and Sgt. James B. Cox of the Newton Police Department, and State Police Lt. William C. Nally.

The arrest was a result of a continuing investigation by state and Newton police which, according to Newton Chief of Police William Quinn, accelerated during the past six weeks.

Judge Basbas set Nov. 30 as the date for a "probable cause hearing." If probable cause is found, the case would then move to a Middlesex Superior Court grand jury.

Judge Basbas set no bail on the murder charge. Bail for the armed assault charge was set at $50,000. The bail for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon was set at $10,000.

Attorney Frank Marchetti, Doherty's counsel, stated that he does not intend to appeal the bail decrees at this time. Doherty will be detained at the Billerica House of Correction until his Nov. 30 hearing.

Middlesex County Assistant District Attorney Richard Steinberg at the hearing Monday asked Basbas to rule that a state police photographer could take additional pictures of Doherty's right hand while in custody of the Newton police.

Marchetti disputed this request, claiming that sufficient photographs had already been taken when Doherty was booked.

After Steinberg referred Basbas to several legal precedents and claimed the pictures were needed as evidence, Basbas ruled that the pictures could be taken.

Chief Quinn revealed that police believe that there were four assailants involved in the Sherter murder. Police have been searching this week for Robert Stuart of Gloucester as a possible suspect.

Sherter, of 11 Pembroke St., Newton Corner, was shot to death shortly after midnight on June 19, 1972. Police believe intruders cut telephone wires and broke into Sherter's home through a back door.

An autopsy showed that the 78-year-old Sherter, father-in-law of Ald. Jason Sacks, died of a .38 caliber gunshot wound after being beaten.

Sherter's wife, Jeannette, 76, was beaten around the face and required 68 stitches at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Police theorized that the motive for the illegal entry and attacks was robbery. Sherter operated the Chester Music Co. from his home. The company sold and serviced juke boxes.

"An important thing about this case is that it involved breaking into a man's home," commented Newton Police Sgt. Charles Feeley. "This strikes terror in suburban people."

Highlands Working To Save Area

By ELIZABETH MCKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Nearly 200 residents of Newton Highlands met last week to respond to the departure of the Woolworth store from the shopping area, and to other changes occuring in the village.

The meeting was called as somewhat of an emergency gathering, as residents see the economic viability of the shopping district threatened as retail stores move out and service establishments take their place.

As a result of the meeting, the first test of the viability of a neighborhood area council as a legal entity of Newton municipal government may be under way in Newton Highlands.

Newton Highlands is one of only a few of Newton's villages without an "improvement association," a citizen group that in addition to planting flowers and providing trash barrels usually is the first to respond to threats to the community.

The neighborhood area council is seen as a possible solution to both improving the business area and giving residents some recognized voice in the planning and development of Newton Highlands.

The new City Charter adopted in 1971, explained at the meeting by former Charter Commission Chairman Florence Rubin, contains a provision by which, upon petition of at least 20 per cent of the registered voters of a definite area and following a public hearing, the Board of Aldermen may approve the establishment of the requested "neighborhood service area."

The purposes of the area and the powers of the council, which would be elected to represent and administer the area, are somewhat loosely defined.

The purpose may be purely advisory to the city or it may be for implementing various self-help projects. such as beautification of the area, cultural activities, recreation programs, and other services the Board of Aldermen may permit.

Council members shall be elected from among the registered voters of the area.

Encouragement Given To Newton Junior College

A meeting of city officials with state education leaders Wednesday created new hope for the future of Newton Junior College.

Newton School Committeeman Herbert Regal and State Senator Irving Fishman received encouragement from State Secretary of Education Joseph Cronin for a plan which would have the state operate Newton Junior for an interim period beginning in September, 1975, as a campus of Mass. Bay Community College.

Mass. Bay presently includes 1,750 students at a Watertown campus. The school is planning a move to a campus at Elizabeth Seton in Wellesley in 1975.

It is projected that the Elizabeth Seton campus will include up to 2,500 students in 1980. There is presently one building which can accommodate 600 students, and another building is being renovated. Elizabeth Seton will have 1,750 students in 1975.

Mass. Bay's lease in Watertown expires in June, 1975. The facilities at Newton Junior could be used as an interim campus until the Seton Hall construction is completed. Students at Newton could then be moved to Wellesley as part of the 2,500 projected enrollment figure.

Sen. Fishman questioned community college officials about the possible usefulness of Newton Junior.

"Why couldn't the Newton Junior College campus be incorporated as part of Mass. Bay, with an ultimate shift to Elizabeth Seton?" Fishman queried.

"We favor a solution for Newton Junior College which links it with Mass. Bay Community College," Cronin remarked.

"We're offering the plant rent free," stated Mayor Theodore D. Mann. "All the state has to do is pay for operations."

When questioned about appropriations for such a venture, Cronin replied that the legislature would have to act on the plan as part of the total community college budget.

Theodore Chase, chairman of the Mass. Board of Community Colleges claimed "that a great deal of support from area legislators would be helpful for approval."

Sen Fishman and Representatives David Mofenson and Paul Guzzi have indicated interest in the plan. All three attended a special School Committee meeting Monday night where the plan first was suggested.

The fact that the state would not have to pay rent was especially appealing to William G. Dwyer, president of the Board of Regional Community Colleges. Mass. Bay's Watertown campus presently costs the state $200,000 a year for rent.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink was hopeful about the venture. "I'll recommend at the next School Committee meeting that Newton Junior College be extended for another year to keep the possibility of incorporation into the state system alive," Fink commented.

Fink added that he is sure the School Committee will want some indication in the near future from Secretary Cronin that the proposal will be realized.

Newton Junior is presently costing Newton taxpayers $508,000 a year. The School Committee voted last January to declare their intention to terminate funding for Newton Junior on June 30, 1975.

Newton Junior President Charles W. Dudley has asked for a one year extension to June 30, 1976. It is expected that the request will be voted on at Monday night's School Committee meeting.

Pellegrini

Suspended Sentence For Pellegrini

Anthony "Fat" Pellegrini, of Clinton Street in the Nonantum section of Newton, received a four months suspended sentence and was put on three years' probation Tuesday at Middlesex Superior Court in Cambridge.

Judge Vincent Brogna imposed the sentence and probation after Pellegrini pleaded guilty to four charges related to gambling and one charge of assault and battery on a police officer stemming from arrests in Newton in January and March, 1973.

Pellegrini was represented by Attorneys John Zamparelli of Medford and Michael Antonellis of Newton.

White But Not Bright

It may be a white Christmas, but it won't be a bright Christmas in Newton Centre Square this year.

The traditional outdoor decorations have been put in place but businessmen in Newton Centre have agreed not to light them at all.

Normally, the Christmas decorations are put up just before Thanksgiving and remain illuminated through the month of December and until after New Year's.

According to Newton Centre Businessmen's Association spokesman Cliff Mosher, the group contemplated lighting the decorations for "a short period," but then decided to just leave them off throughout the season.

Mosher said the association's main consideration was the conservation of energy.

Inside

Newton students spent time last week with local business men, and the word from the North High correspondent is that they enjoyed their visits. See page 30.

The first Tay Sachs screening was a success and an estimated 400 couples participated. See page 14.

The Newton Country Players have a hit on their hands and it's quite an interesting production. See review page 4.

Legislator Seeks Aid For Chelsea Fire Victims

State Representative Peter F. Harrington (D—Newton) has offered amendments to provide direct aid to victims of the Chelsea Fire, which have been accepted by the Senate.

For the first time in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts residents displaced as a result of the fire will receive a cash grant of $100 per adult and $25 per child.

The second proposal would change Chapter 117 to allow the Welfare Department to replace household furniture and clothes of disaster victims. Income and other welfare requirements would be temporarily waived to provide assistance to all resident victims.

The proposals were initially rejected when presented to the Urban Affairs Committee. Harrington continued to press for acceptance of the amendments.

"The Welfare Department has determined that 139 family units have been displaced by the fire," commented Harrington "of these, 47 are entitled to welfare help in replacing furniture and clothes. The other 92 must rely on the Red Cross (which has distributed one cot–bed, 1 bureau, and 1 chair per person), or other charitable organizations, or family."

Harrington is a member of the Legislative Joint Committee on Urban Affairs which is examining the needs of Chelsea residents and businessmen resulting from the recent fire. On October 30, the Committee held a hearing at Chelsea City Hall and listened to testimony from federal, state and city officials.

Harrington said, "I am shocked to learn that there is no Legislation (state or federal) to provide immediate, direct, free financial assistance to all residents is a disaster area.

"It is appaling to discover that millions of dollars will be spent to revive the City of Chelsea and reestablish burnt out businesses, but there were no plans to give direct aid to families that lost personal possessions and furniture accumulated over a life time."

"The only agency designed to give direct relief is the Welfare Department," Representative Harrington said.

By law, Welfare can only give disaster assistance to welfare families with minor children. The law excludes elderly and non welfare recipients." He continued.

"As a result of our hearing and interviews with Chelsea residents, we found that state and federal agencies are vieing with each other for credit and the job of providing assistance to individual families is forgotten," Harrington added "Other examples of bureaucratic red tape include the fact that there is substantial doubt about the possibility of receiving any federal housing aid because of the inability of federal agencies to determine the environmental impact of Logan Airport.

"There is a serious legal question concerning the confiscation of hundreds of thousands of dollars of personal property damaged by the fire and claimed as salvage by government contractors," Harrington continued.

"The Chelsea City yard was in the direct path of the fire and most snow fighting and street equipment was lost. Replacing this with surplus government equipment is also delayed.

"The problems go on and on, from the loss of two per cent of the tax base, to the question of replacement housing, to the determinination of what relief, if any, Chelsea is entitled to.

"Now that the fire is out, the land cleared and the emergency needs resolved, many agencies cease to provide service, Harrington remarked. "The moral obligation to help the disaster victims has escaped the public purview but there are still homeless victims.

"The press and the public are impressed with talk of 'millions of dollar,' 'rebuilding the disaster area,' 'reconstituting lost business,' 'building low and moderate income housing,' and 'replacement of lost city equipment.'

"The fact that families displaced by the fire-storm will be permanently relocated or otherwise eliminated from the New Housing is not considered."

"The fact that replacement of lost city equipment is a benefit to the remaining taxpayers of Chelsea and not the victims of the fire is not considered."

Representative Harrington went on to say, "Further, we have been unable to determine the loss to individual businessmen. The magnitude of the fire-storm is immense.

"The area damaged by the fire encompassed 22 acres of Chelsea's two square miles. In addition to the housing, 97 businesses employing 600 people were lost."

The 13 blocks destroyed by the fire is composed of three separate elements: two and a half blocks are in a proposed state urban renewal project that is still in the planning stages; nine blocks are in the "Murray Industrial Park", a federal urban renewal project; and two blocks are just outside the proposed state project and used for a multitude of business and residential purposes.

Representative Harrington concluded, "The enormity of the disaster and the extent of unreimbursible personal loss clearly indicates the absolute necessity for re-vamping legislation to provide immediate, no-strings attached financial relief for resident disaster victims.

"We hope that this legislation is a start in that direction."

Lead Screening Goes On In Newton Corner

A team from the Newton-Wellesley Hospital assisted by members of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program will be available at Rebecca Pomeroy House Tuesday (Nov. 27) from 9 a.m. to noon to test 1 - through - 5 - year - olds in the Newton Corner area for blood lead levels.

Some 310 families have been asked to cooperate with the program, which recently tested some 200 Newton Corner youngsters enrolled in local nursery schools and kindergartens.

To daye the program, which is the first total suburban testing in the country, has uncovered 17 positive responses out of 500 chldren evaluated. Another 200 tests are now awaiting analysis by the state laboratory.

Those whose lead levels are being monitored register "in the 40s or above," according to Irene Lamb, pediatric nurse practitioner for Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Comprehensive Child Care Service. These youngsters, who live in various sections of the city, were all retested after the initial findings to verify the results. Hereafter they will be retested every six weeks to be sure the level goes no higher. In the interim, efforts will be made to detect the sources of lead which can lead to serious retardation if the level reaches into the 80s or higher.

When a level of 40 or more is detected, according to Mrs. Lamb, a member of the State Lead Prevention Program, accompanied by a member of Newton Board of Health, goes to the child's home with very sophisticated machinery to help parents find the source of the potential poisoning and advise how to best treat the problem, possibly by stripping the paint or covering the problem area with plywood or similar materials.

With Tuesday's testing, more than 10 percent of all eligible children in Newton will have completed the finger prick test. When all Newton youngsters have been tested, the hospital and R.S.V.P. crew will move to Wellesley where a similar community-wide effort will be set in motion.

The test is free of charge ad takes but a few minutes. Parents in the Newton Corner area who were not contacted by an R.S.V.P. volunteer are asked to call the Community Service Center at 969-5906 to make an appointment to come to the Pomroy House, located on 84 Eldredge Street (corner of Church and Eldredge).

Testing to date has taken on a primarily preventative function. "If children with a level of 40 continued to consume lead at the same rate they are now ingesting," according to Mrs. Lamb, "Their levels would reach the danger zone relatively shortly.

"This way we can keep track of them and hopefully eliminate the source of lead while at the same time being sure that if they need treatment they will get it at one," she said.

Treatment involves administering three injections a day over a five-day period to help the body detoxify itself. If the source of lead is removed from those children registering in the 40s, it is possible that their levels will decline without treatment, by relying on the slow excretion of lead through the urine.

Parents are reminded that the objective of the whole program is prevention. This can be accomplished only by 100 percent participation followed by 100 percent cooperation with the lead testing team.

In December the Hospital and R.S.V.P. team will move to the Nonantum area with tests being conducted Dec. 11 at the Branch Library there.

South Commons Rooms Need Furniture, Rugs

No school has all the comforts of home, but Newton South High School has none of them.

Kids have no place in which to congregate during their "free blocks," senior Roger Cibella says, and consequently end up in the library to talk, not study quietly.

Roger is trying to get the commons rooms in the three houses at South refurnished with some confortable chairs and sofas and other furniture that would be useful in a recreation room. There is nothing there now, he says, but tablet desks.

When South was built, the commons rooms were equipped with places to sit, but over the years the furniture was vandalized or just wore out, and there seems to be no money in the School Department budget for replacement.

Roger and the student-body Environmental Aspects Committee have approached the School Department, where they were given the bad news about the budget, and the Newton South Parent-Teacher-Student Assocaition, which tabled their request until another meeting.

Now they are appealing to the public.

Roger wants to start the refurbishing with Cutler House commons room, which already has a mural on one of its walls. Student art and photography will be displayed.

The project has the approval of Cutler Housemaster Harold Hawkes and the blessing of librarian Mrs. Tony Nelson, who feels the library would be freed for students to work in.

If you have any confortable chairs, sofas, or carpets in reasonable condition, Roger Cibella will find a way to pick them up. He may be reached at 965-4228 after 6 p.m.

Committee Seeks Replacement For Public Works Director Job

By a vote of 14 to 9 the Board of Aldermen passed, after long debate, a resolution asking Mayor Theodore Mann to form a committee to find a replacement for Public Works Director Richard A. Dudman, who resigned last week.

The resolution, submitted by Joseph McDonnell, chairman of the Aldermanic Public Works Committee, which works closely with the Public Works director, stipulates that the committee be composed of six members, three to be appointed by the mayor and three by the president of the Board of Aldermen.

Among the aldermen opposed were Louis Egelson, who said he was not against the resolution because of the concept but rather because he felt that such a demand on the mayor violates the charter, and "the mayor will do it anyway."

Michael Antonellis argued that the Bd. of Aldermen can only reject, not approve, an appointment, and thought the Board should not go on record to wish to participate in the selection of a new Public Works director.

(The mayor appointed a committee to find a replacement for departing Public Buildings Commissioner Charles Herbert last summer. Emil G. Larson, who was recommended by the committee and hired in August, has been called the find of the past ten years by one alderman and has pleased the Board beyond expectation with his knowledge and approach.

In other business of the meeting, which lasted less than two hours, the Board took the following actions:

—Approved $6,500 for a secondary access road to the new Day Junior High School.

—Denied by a 15-9 vote a proposal to light "certain municipal areas" to be called "youth recreation areas" for use at night.

—Approved the mayor's appointment of Otis B. Robinson of Waban to the Newton Redevelopment Authority to replace the unexpired term of Mario DiCarlo (until April 12, 1974).

—Passed by a 19-5 vote a resolution to urge the Massachusetts congressional delegation to work for impeachment of the President.

—Passed by a vote of 18-6 a resolution to urge the appointment of a special prosecutor for the Watergate grand juries independent of the President.

—Denied the installation of a traffic light at the intersection of Dedham and Parker Streets.

—Denied permission to install a coin-operated amusement device at the Holiday Inn.

—Set Dec. 10 as the hearing date for hearings on the revised site plan for Chestnut Hill Towers.

—Approved the installation of three conduits, one manhole, and 21 lamp posts or poles.

NRA Meets In City Hall

Meetings held recently by the Newton Redevelopment Authority, the Planning Department, and Mayor Theodore Mann in various combinations have been directed toward getting the Redevelopment Authority moving.

The Authority has been slowed down in past months by the Department of Community Affairs' disapproval of the selection of a developer last June, a threat of lawsuits, and the resignation of two members.

Last week the Shipley Company made a presentation to Planning Director Charles Thomas on its plans for the riverbank side of Washington St. in the Lower Falls redevelopment area.

Thomas said this week that the plan "caused concern" to himself, City Engineer Ulderico Schiavone, and Conservation Commission Secretary Helen Heyn because of the Shipley Co.'s intent to fill land adjacent to the river and build out over a portion of the river.

Thomas said, "The Planning Department and the Newton Redevelopment Authority are not in agreement on this point," noting that the Metropolitan District Commission probably would not approve such a project.

The Planning Department, Thomas continued, wants a different approach to the riverbank, and prefers that it be opened up, especially near the footbridge.

Other merchants on the south side of Washington Street presented changes from the original plan, which will also have to be reviewed by the Planning Department.

At a Monday morning meeting in the mayor's office, the mayor asked the Redevelopment Authority to give him a timetable on the development of the state-aided portion of the redevelopment land, the south side of Washington Street, and the widening of Washington Street.

The prospect for the building of housing in the federally aided portion of the project was discussed in relation to the possibility of getting funds from the Massachusetts State Finance Agency, since funding by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has been cut off.

Energy Cutbacks Begin At Kings

William F. Kenney, president of King's Department Stores, Inc. (NYSE) has announced the adoption of several energy conserving measures that will take effect immediately at King's.

During the Christmas season all King's stores will be open two hours less per day than normal. The new store hours will be 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Last year King's was open daily from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. from Thanksgiving to Christmas.

As additional energy saving measures, overhead fluorescent lighting in all stores will be reduced by 25 per cent, 50 per cent of King's external identification signs will not be lighted and in-store heating will be cut back to 65 degrees.

"We respectfully request the cooperation and understanding of all our customers as we endeavor to do our share to ease the nation's energy crisis," Mr. Kenney said.

Laminated glass is the safest material for automobile windshields, and the law requires that all new cars in North America be so equipped. The laminated glass yields and cracks more easily at point of impact, and the plastic core stretches. At lower speeds this elastic action reduces injury by absorbing some of the shock. Tempered glass will stand harder blows, but when it does break it shatters into thousands of pieces.

Dental Screening Underway Dec. 3

A school-based screening program to identify potential patients for the Newton-Wellesley Hospital's children's dental clinic gets undeway Dec. 3 in the kindergarten grade of the Davis School.

The program, being run by the Newton-Wellesley Hospital for the first time this year, was formerly conducted by the Health Department of the City of Newton.

Following Davis, children in kindergarten grades at Emerson, Lincoln-Eliot and Memorial Schools will be the next examined by the Newton-Wellesley team of dentist and hygienist. Ultimately, of course, all elementary schools in Newton will be covered.

The clinic has the capacity to handle some 250 patient visits a month, according to Dr. Mark M. Roseman, director of pediatric dental services at the hospital and assistant professor of pedodontics (children's dentistry) at Boston University School of Graduate Dentistry. Residents from the Graduate Dental School will be among the regular staff available to Newton students meeting the eligibility criteria.

Among the services available at the clinic are examination, diagnosis, radiographic and clinical services, restorative treatment and surgery. The screening of all children in even-numbered elementary grades (kindergarten, 2nd, 4th and 6th) will be conducted annually, along with examinations of new admissions to odd-numbered grades. Screenings are limited to those students who fail to hand in evidence to the teacher of satisfactory dental examinations from private doctors.

Students from the junior and senior high school levels seeking dental care must apply to the hospital clinic directly where their cases will be evaluated for evidence of financial need.

Housing Authority Chairman Leaving

The chairman of the Newton Housing Authority, Anthony J. Medaglia, Jr., this week announced that he will not accept reappointment to the authority.

Citing the time demand of the position of chairman, Medaglia indicated he will stay on until the four housing projects currently planned have reached the contract stage.

Medaglia, a lawyer, has served on the Housing Authority since 1968. He was appointed by then Mayor Monte Basbas and elected chairman by the authority.

Medaglia's appointment expired in September of this year.

Mayor Mann said on Tuesday that he had wanted to reappoint Medaglia, and that he is grateful to have Medaglia remain long enough to get the four projects to the contract stage.

Bids received earlier this fall were turned down by the state Department of Community Affairs as excessively high. The projects will be advertised for new bids in early December.

The housing will include the first low-income family housing ever built in Newton. Four low-income family units will be built on Victory Field in Nonantum, 20 on Beaconwood Road, Newton Highlands, and four on Thurston Road, Upper falls.

In addition, 50 units for the elderly will be built on the Upper Falls site.

Resource Guide Is Coming Out

An updated 1973 Community Resources Guide for Newton, Wellesley and Weston compiled by the Area Office of the Department of Mental Health will be published in the December issue of the Newton-Wellesley Quarterly scheduled to arrive at area homes next week.

Once again, production costs for the guide have been contributed as a public service by the Newton Savings Bank.

Included in the guide are lists of area services availalbe for problems related to alcoholism; adolescent and drug treatment; financial, health and home help needs; mental health and counseling; children's and adolescent services; adult services; retardation and general counseling.

The Community Resources Guide not only catalogues the pertinent agencies but also privdes a one-paragraph description of the facilities, staff and type of care involved. Also provided are the address, phone number and names of the director and major officers of the agency.

A typical description, such as that of the Visiting Nurse Associations, with offices in Newton, Wellesley and Weston, might read as follows: "The Visiting Nurse Associations provide the following services under the direction of a physician: home nursing services bedside care, instruction on health care to the patient's family, and speech, physical, occupational and rehabilitation therapies. The Visiting Nurse Associations provide pre-natal and post-natal services and guidance in promoting good physical and mental health. There are no age limitations and fees are on a sliding scale."

Seat Belts Stay In

A bill filed by State Representative David J. Mofenson of Newton and Newton Centre resident Sally Barnett to prohibit removal of automobile seat belts except for repair purposes was signed into law last week by Governor Francis Sargent.

Under federal law, seat belts are required in all new cars sold in the United States, but there is no prohibition at either federal or state level against removal of the seat belts.

Mrs. Barnett contacted Mofenson in November, 1972, about the matter.

Mofenson said the legislation was "a result of a citizen exercising her right of free petition."

"In Massachusetts, citizens generally file hundreds of bills each year," the Newton legislator said. "Many ideas are excellent ones and legislators are happy to throw full support behind the effort to secure passage."

Mofenson said Mrs. Barnett cited "sufficient evidence to show that seat belts reduce the number and extent of injuries."

"The federal law is fine as far as it goes," Mofenson said. "But its strength has been somewhat diminished by the removal of seat belts after sale of the vehicle."

"Even if the owner-operator thinks seat belts are of little worth," the representative stated, "They should at least be at hand for the protection and benefit of passengers."

Community School Ordinance Discussed

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Members of the aldermanic Education Committee and the Newton Recreation Commission met last week to discuss a proposed ordinance relative to the Community Schools Program.

The proposed ordinance would establish a Community Schools Commission to oversee policies at participating schools.

The commission, as it stands now, would consist of nine members. Two members would be chosen by the president of the Board of Aldermen, two members would be appointed by the chairman of the Newton School Committee, and one member would be appointed by the mayor.

The additional four members would include the director of Human Resources, a member appointed by the chairman of the Recreation Commission, either the superintendent of schools or someone appointed by the superintendent, and a member chosen by a Community Schools Council.

The ordinance establishes a Community Schools Council consisting of one delegate from each community school.

The council would function as a local representative group, developing programs and reviewing local budgets before forwarding them to the commission.

Recreation Commissioner John Penney expressed concern that a newly formed Community Schools Program might usurp traditional functions of the Newton Recreation Department.

Alderman Eliot Cohen placated Penney by suggesting that the Community Schools Commission co-ordinate activities with the Recreation Commission.

Cohen added that the Recreation Commission should have priority over the Community Schools Commission in matters relating to gym and pool activities.

Alderman Jason Sacks complained that under this system, the Community Schools Commission would have to check out many of its programs with the Recreation Commission before implementation.

Cohen responded that a schedule and deadline could be set up. The Recreation Commission would not have the right to usurp Community Schools Commission programs at the last moment.

The proposed Community Schools Commission would receive funds from several sources. Its budget would be submitted concurrently every January to the mayor, the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee for review and revision.

The revised budget would be approved by appropriations in equal shares from the municipal general government and the School Department budgets.

The commission would also be able to raise supplementary money by soliciting grants and accepting gifts. The ordinance allows the commission to maintain such money in separate accounts, apart from the general treasury.

The commission will set a scale of tuition fees for community school activities. The ordinance also gives the commission the right to award tuition grants to needy residents.

The Community School Program presently exists on a $15,000 yearly budget. The School Committee provides $10,000 and the mayor's office contributes $5,000 through the Community Relations Commission.

The Recreation Department also expends $17,500 yearly through fees for custodians and recreation leaders. The cost of school personnel used comes to an additional $18,000. These figures added to the program's budget make a total figure of approximately $50,500. The program is governed by a local representative council.

The motive for establishing a restructured Community Schools Program is to centralize and co-ordinate existing activities.

Education Committee Chairman Louis I. Egelson, Jr., hopes to present a final draft of the ordinance to the full Board of Aldermen for approval in December.

Court Costs Bill To Senate

A bill co-sponsored by State Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) to set up a comprehensive statutory scheme for waiver, county-payment, or obviation of court costs for indigent litigants in both civil and criminal proceedings has been recommended by the Joint Judiciary Committee, the House Ways and Means Committee and the House of Representatives.

The bill now moves to the Senate for further action.

"The legislation," according to Mofenson, "Implements constitutional requirements assuring that low-income persons obtain equal justice." The United States Supreme Court in 1956 ruled that "there can be no equal justice when the kind of trial a man gets depends on the amount of money he has."

The principle of public takeover of such court costs has been recognized by statute in 15 states where waiver of public payment is automatic if a litigant is represented by a public defender.

"But, Mofenson siad, "Massachusetts has continued to handle such problems in a kind of erratic, hit or miss, case-by-case basis. This bill established uniform procedures."

Officer Killed In Accident

A funeral mass was to be celebrated in St. John's Church, Wellesley Hills, at 9 a.m. Friday (Nov. 23) for Police Officer Stephen J. Madden.

Officer Madden, a 36-year veteran on the force, died Tuesday (Nov. 20) in an accident at his home at 19 Hallron Rd., Newton Lower Falls. He was 64 and was planning on retiring after his next birthday, Jan. 1, 1974.

According to Police, Officer Madden was on duty directing traffic at Newton-Wellesley Hospital and had received permission from his patrol supervisor to change to a warmer uniform coat.

He went home, parking his car in the driveway and was standing on the sidewalk with his back to the car talking to a 9-year-old neighbor when the car began to roll down the driveway toward him.

The child got out of the way, but the car struck Officer Madden, knocked him down and rolled over him.

The officer was pronounced dead on arrival at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Officer Madden was well known in Newton and was particularly skilled with firearms.

Police Chief William F. Quinn said: "It is a tragic end to an excellent career as police officer. He will be sadly missed by his brother police officers and the citizens of Newton whom he served so diligently for 36 years."

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Human Resources And Personnel Heads Resign

The resignation of two more heads of city departments has been announced by Mayor Theodore Mann, bringing to three the number of high-level resignations since Mann's re-election.

Director of the Department of Human Resources Jerald Stinson and Personnel Director Alfred DiBenedetti both will be leaving next month.

Richard Dudman, director of the Department of Public Works, resigned last week. The date of his departure has not been announced.

Rev. Stinson came to Newton city government about 18 months ago, when he was selected by the Community Relations Commission as their executive director.

He was appointed by Mayor Mann to be director of the Department of Human Resources when that department was created by ordinance as the "umbrella agency" to include the Council on Aging, the Youth Commission, and the Community Relations Commission.

Rev. Stinson, who was ordained during his term of office here, is going to be minister of a church in Almyra, Wash., a small rural town 80 miles from Spokane.

Rev. Stinson said that he had never planned to stay in the East, since he and his wife are both from the West and wish to make their home there.

Rev. Stinson is leaving Dec. 14. A committee of the three agencies in the Human Resources Department will interview candidates for the position.

DiBenedetti has been employed by the city since the summer of 1972 under the federal Emergency Employment Act. He established the city's first Personnel Department in an unofficial capacity and has been responsible for setting up consolidated record-keeping procedures and labor grievance procedures.

DiBenedetti also inaugurated and directed the city's first two annual job Fairs, designed to bring representatives of local and neighboring industry and business together with job-seekers in the area.

DiBenedetti, who has accepted a position in private industry, will be a member of the committee appointed by the mayor to select his replacement.

Other members are Chairman Mrs. Fern Marx; Murdock Fraser, president of City Hall Associates; Aldermen Richard Bullwinkle and Louis Egelson; and Melvin Sandler and Ivan R. Samuels, personnel consultants.

Republican Club Plans Dinner

Plans are underway for Newton's 14th annual Lincoln Day Dinner to be held in February, it was announced by President John L. DiSabato of the Newton Republican Club.

Several committees are developing plans, and details as to date, place and program will be announced as soon as they are available.

Mrs. G. M. (Gussie) Swift has been designated general chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The Newton Republican Club is the principal sponsor of the event in cooperation with the Newton Republican City Committee, Newton Women's Republican Club, Newton Italian-American Republican Club, and the Newton Young Republicans.

Waban Woman In Campaign

Portia Pantages is working as a loaned executive for the United Way of Massachusetts Bay in Waban, according to Marshall Balter, United Way West Division Chairman.

Miss Pantages is responsible for organizing and coordinating employee campaigns in small businesses throughout eighteen western communities.

Miss Pantages is a staff specialist at Honeywell. She is also the Supreme President of the Pan Laconia Federation, a member of the Board of Administration of St. Demetrios Church of Weston, and of the Executive Board of the Hellenic Nursing Home in Canton. Miss Pantages lives in Waban.

Inexorable Time

Time has caught up with Newton Highlands.

People move to Newton Highlands because of its nearly unique character - a stable, cohesive, friendly neighborhood with a healthy blend of old and young, low and high incomes, and different ethnic and religious backgrounds.

Residents stay in Newton Highlands for the same reasons and because they appreciate the excellence of the neighborhood school.

There have been no major problems in Newton Highlands, at least not enough to require any concerted political or civic action.

But now residents feel threatened by the gradual change in the Highlands shopping district - an ordinary collection, with a few exceptions, of shabby stores on an ugly, treeless street.

Highlands residents want to keep and improve their shopping district, where they can ride a bicycle or walk to do daily errands, where children can buy their own candy and birthday presents.

It may be too late for the residents of Newton Highlands to control what kind of business becomes a part of their community now, but it is not too late for Newton Highlands to exert some influence on the future of the village itself.

Planning Director Charles Thomas has suggested taking advantage of the charter provision allowing the establishment of the neighborhood service area and council.

As a recognized unit of government, the council and the area it represents would be able more effectively to work with City Hall.

Newton Highlands would gain some control over its destiny.

There are issues hanging over Newton Highlands, such as the development of Cold Spring playground, policing of the Square, parking, zoning, and creeping commercialism, that could be dealt with on a long-range basis, using well-thought-out plans originating in the community instead of crisis response.

We encourage and will watch with interest this first effort to engage a community in its own operation and perhaps preservation.

STILL THANKFUL

No Envy

This week marks the 10th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Although that dark day is, for many, part of the long-ago, the tragic happenings that stalk the Kennedy family is as imminent and immediate as today.

It flings itself upon the family once again. Major surgery for the boy of 12, the oldest son of the senator. It was Ted Kennedy himself who wondered aloud on national television about the fates that follow his family. And now, it is as if the question can be answered in no other way but "Yes."

The unbelievable litany of events that have surrounded all the Kennedys is staggering to any and all families, your's and mine and his.

It was another assassin and another time and it was a Kennedy. Bobby Kennedy was the victim.

It was World War II and a super secret strike in a flying bomb. And Joseph Kennedy, Jr. the eldest son of the former Ambassador never returned.

His sister lives in a convent. She is retarded.

While a Kennedy was President he was father only briefly to a son named Patrick. The infant died soon after birth.

There was the stroke that made the strong father cry. And the accident this summer that caused serious injury to a companion of Robert Kennedy's son. It was the arrest of younger Kennedy on charges of possession of marijuana.

And it was the event at Chappaquiddick that resulted in the death of a young woman.

The list continues on and on.

No one now can honestly envy any Kennedy.

Kennedy Assassination News Etched Indelibly

Many prominent public leaders have trouble remembering what the errand was their wives asked them to have done as they were leaving home this morning.

But they recall precisely where they were, what they were doing and saying and whom they were with at the exact moment 10 years ago on fateful Friday, Nov. 22, when they received the tragic, shocking news that John F. Kennedy had been shot in Dallas. That memory is etched indelibly in their minds.

For almost all, the initial reaction was the same — one of disbelief, a feeling that he probably had been wounded slightly, an instinctive unwillingness to accept the fact that the handsome, dashing, young President might have been killed.

An exception was Kevin H. White, now Mayor of Boston, then Secretary of State, who read the first bulletin that three shots had been fired at the Kennedy motorcade in downtown Dallas and sensed immediately that his friend, John F. Kennedy, had been assassinated.

"Although it is difficult for me to remember events that occurred 10 days ago, much less 10 years ago, the moment of President Kennedy's assassination is an event that remains vividly in my mind," White declared somberly the other day.

"I was at my desk in the Secretary of State's office talking to Harold Reddish, a State Police sergeant, when I received the dramatic news," Mayor White continued, his voice almost breaking, as he went a full decade back down memory's lane and realized much of the shock still remains.

"I cannot recall the content of our conversation, but I will never forget the shocked and pale look on the face of my secretary as she came through the door with the announcement that John Kennedy had been shot.

"Somehow, without further fact or verification, I sensed that it was fatal. The ongoing reports verified the fact that the bullets had, indeed, taken his life. I shared the universal reaction of shock and sadness, but, surprisingly enough, not disbelief," White recalled.

Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight, whose family owns the Holyoke Transcript Telegram, the leading newspaper in western Massachusetts, was attending a meeting of newspaper editors in Portland, Me., and to him the circumstances surrounding his receipt of the news of JFK's assassination left a feeling that it was unreal, a sensation shared by many people.

"Three news shocks are indelibly etched in my memory — Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt's death and John Kennedy's assassination," Dwight said.

"On Nov. 22, 1963, I was in Portland, Me., attending a meeting of the New England Society of Newspaper Editors," he reports. "The luncheon break was ending at about 1:45 when one of the editors came into the hotel lobby and almost nonchalantly said that he had heard a radio report that Kennedy had been shot," the Lieutanent Governor went on.

"It was unreal. There we were, all professional newspapermen, standing around talking among ourselves and not quite believing what we had heard. I repeated the news to one man who said only, 'You're joking.'

"We milled around for a few moments, and then I bolted for the telephone to call the Holyoke Transcript, realizing that the paper was heading for its 2 p.m. deadline. The desk had the situation well in hand and had a remake of page one underway. My call succeeded only in interrupting them," Dwight reminisced.

"One note of amusement," Lieutenant Governor Dwight smiled. "I next called the Concord (N.H.) Monitor where we had a news editor whose only concern was meeting the deadline, no matter what the breaking story. Yup. He had the story. He was giving it a five-column head.

"So it was for me on hearing that shocking news. A hundred or so newspapermen, stranded miles from their newspapers, with only themselves to talk to. The meeting never reconvened," Dwight concluded.

Speaker David M. Bartley of the Massachusetts House of Representatives was having lunch with a banker from Holyoke named John F. Kennedy when he received the stunning news that the President of the United States had been assassinated.

Even now Bartley becomes emotional as he recalls the sensation of emptiness he experienced. "It was a sad day for Massachusetts and for America," he adds.

State Senate President Kevin B. Harrington was chatting with his wife in the kitchen of their Salem home when a neighbor knocked on the door and told them she had just heard on her radio that President Kennedy had been shot. "She did not have any more details than that, but she thought I would want to know," Harrington recalls.

Harrington remembers that he immediately turned on his television set but couldn't find anything unusual as far as the TV programs were concerned and switched on his radio as well listening to both his radio and his television set at the same time.

"After about five minutes, I did hear a bulletin stating that the President had been shot but that no one knew how seriously," Harrington remembers. "About this time the television networks were picking up the story, and I stayed with television as the bulletins increased, switching from one station to another and then back.

"When I heard he was reportedly shot in the head, my first thoughts were not of his death but rather of his incapacity, and I wondered quickly what the Constitution said about an incapicated President who was still alive.

"I sat glued to the television set as the details started to come in until finally the dreaded bulletin reporting John Kennedy dead. I remember a feeling of depression mixed with anger and that I jumped to the conclusion that since the assassination occurred in Texas, it was possibly the work of a right-wing individual or organization, perhaps someone in the civil rights field, and I felt a sense of overpowering sadness," Senate President Harrington relates.

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, who supervises the operation of the State Lottery, was a State Representative from Brighton a decade ago. He was on his way back to the State House after lunching with John T. Driscoll, now the chairman of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, when he learned John F. Kennedy had been shot.

"Norman Lookner, the then Governor Endicott Peabody's chief secretary, came along with an expression of mixed sorrow and panic on his face," Crane asserts. "He told us of the tragic news.

"We went immediately to the then Treasurer Driscoll's office and began the vigil to await the feared news. It was one of the saddest and most emotional days in my life, as it was in the lives of so many other people," Crane declares.

Like Mayor White, Lieutenant Governor Dwight and the other public officials, you probably can remember the exact circumstances when you were startled and shocked by the numbing news that John Kennedy had been shot in Dallas.

Children not yet born will be studying in their classrooms 50 years from now about that fateful Friday in Dallas and the events that are still fresh in the minds of those who lived that sorrowful day — ten years ago this Thanksgiving.

Our European Friends Swooned To Russians

Whatever the United States is doing to help Great Britain, France and Germany should be stopped.

At best they are a fickle lot whose friendship is not worth saving.

NATO should be dismantled and discontinued. The money being spent upon it could be put to better use.

If Great Britain, France and Germany need to be defended against Soviet Russia, let them defend themselves. The money we're wasting to do it could be spent to advantage here at home.

When the dangerous confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union developed over the Middle East crisis, we found out who our friends are.

Holland was one and Portugal was another.

But Britain, France and Germany were not among them even though our action in standing up to the Soviet Union was a protection to Western Europe.

West Germany, a defeated enemy which we rebuilt from the rubble and whose economy we made at least as strong as our own, forbid — forbid, mind you — an airlift of American owned arms to Israel which had been maintained at tremendous expense to protect West Germany itself.

We fought at the side of Great Britain in two wars. We sacrificed American lives to invade France from the sea in World War II and rescue the French from tyranny of their Nazi conquerors.

You might have expected that Great Britain, France and West Germany would have shouldered each other out of the way in their anxiety to stand up, be counted and at least give us moral encouragement when we moved to stop a war in the Middle East which could have spread to engulf Western Europe.

Of course, they did nothing of the sort. They were too anxious about their oil supplies and too cowed by the blackmail of the Arab pooh-bahs.

Our great friends, the French, who make American tourists feel unwelcome in their country and who get their oil from the worst Arab aggressors against Israel, were openly happy that we might be in difficulty.

The British, for whom we have done so much, were icily cold because we didn't consult with them before standing up to the Soviets — consulted with them about what!

We might still be consulting with them about an undertaking of which they would not approve and in which they would not participate for fear they might offend some blackmailing oil sheik.

The craven, cowardly attitude of the English, French and Germans and their action in turning their backs upon the United States when the Arabs almost touched off a world-wide conflagration by their attacks upon Israel, have greatly increased the number of isolationists in this country as far as most of Western Europe is concerned.

Nostalgia Reigns At Pomroy House

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Remember the 1950's?

If you do, you'll probably love the Newton Country Player's version of "Pajama Game."

I, as your friend and former theatre critic will review "Pajama Game" here just as I did in the old days when, as a theatre critic, I reviewed an average of one play per week . . .

"Pajama Game" is a hit.

Last week, it played to cheering, standing room only crowds at Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, and will probably do the same this week.

The Newton Country Players have produced a polished staging of the 1950's hit musical, tackling one of the most difficult elements in amateur, community theatre, choreography, and carrying it off successfuly.

Completely Black

There were no rough edges left last Friday night when the Players opened their production of the musical. It was just one smooth show.

With book by George Abbott and Richard Bissell and music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, "Pajama Game" is a piece of theatre fluff about contract negotiations, liberally sprinkled with romance, in a pajama factory.

The show features such well known tunes as, "Hernando's Hideway," "Hey There," "Steam Heat," and "Small Talk," and varies only slightly from the standard form for a typical musical.

But this is the era of new Broadway turkeys and aging hit revivals, and "Pajama Game" can still demonstrate what the musical comedy theatre on Broadway used to be.

The first bright move made by the Players' was deciding to retain, and capitalize on, the 1950's setting of the show.

The costumes and lingo survive in the local production, and make "Pajama Game" fit into the era in which it belongs.

And no one in the cast capitalizes on this fact better than Randy Mudarri, playing the dated, lecherous and playful union president, "Prez."

"Grease" has nothing on Randy. His characterisation is perfect and provides some of the lightest and most fun moments in the production. He, scratching in his "I Phelta Thi" sweatshirt, wins hands down in the nostalgia category.

Overplayed? Not at all. Mudarri is the most delightful person to watch in the production.

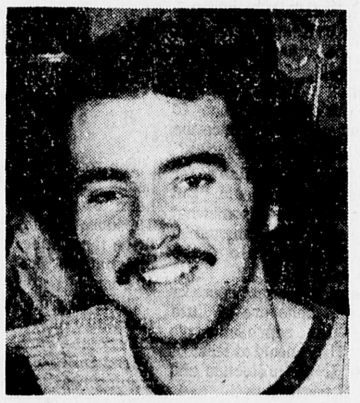
While the Players' succumb to theatre's propensity for staging dancing in the aisles, they score a direct hit with the choreography of "Hernando's Hideaway" black costumes, flashlights and all. The rest of their nicely executed dance routines could well have remained on stage.

The cast has been through their paces, probably over and over, and offer the audience a credible production.

Amateurs?

Perhaps.

But none of them look amateur on the stage. They look like actors and performers.



Our Hero — Randy Murdarri

Witness a virtual sell-out crowd.

Next on the list are leads Soni Tick and Jay Murphy. Miss Tick plays Gladys, the boss' secretary, the love light in the eyes of the shop time expert; a lady, as Miss Tick plays her who is an agile dancer, good actress, and a woman marvelous in the classic parody of the drunken broad.

Murphy, as the male love interest and combination shop foreman, not only sings well but carries off what amounts to one of the toughest roles in a standard musical.

Opposite him is Marcia Massimo, the head of the Pajama factory's grievance committee. Miss Massimo is also adept at her role.

The rest of the performers are good; or, better tan good.

Performances of "Pajama Game" will be presented Friday and Saturday nights. At last word, tickets were available for the Saturday performance. Friday night was also a sellout a long time ago.

Reflections On Elections

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Thank you citizens of Newton for giving me a wonderful day on November 6, 1973.

The wind, and the cold did not spoil election day. I was at Hyde School at 6:30 a.m. so I could park and vote at 7 a.m. Thirteen and a half hours later, I went to Newton City Hall for the election results.

I was happy to see lots of my old friends, neighbors, Board and School candidates, but the best was yet to come. Every time Mr. Alan Katz got votes, I just laughed. He could not answer any questionaires, or attend any candidate nights because he had moved to New York. 3,597 people voted for Mr. Katz. I have only one regret, I wish he had won, so we could have had another election.

A few thoughts . . . four years from now watch Eliot K. Cohen become the next Mayor of Newton.

Mrs. Schiller is in favor of banning all poll workers within 1,000 feet of a polling place. Years ago, I wanted to file a bill to have all poll workers banned. I felt that if a voter does not care to know and investigate a candidate before he gets to polling place, then we all just deserve what we elect.

Please do not take away all the slate cards. If slate cards are sent out in the mail, isn't there a law about using the mail to defraud? Have pity for Mr. Edward C. Uehlein and his slate card. He forgot the name of Melvin Norris, the Republican warhorse from Ward 7, and put Democrat Mr. Taglienti's name on instead. Mr. Uehlein must have really confused the voters in Ward 5, because he not only lost his own seat after 10 years, but Mr. Taglienti was also defeated.

All Republican candidates keep up the fighting, keep knifing each other, do not work together, and soon the entire Newton Board will be Democrats. Mr. Mann was the last Republican Representative from Newton, and he will be the last Republican Mayor.

Farewell Newton Republicans, you will either have to move to Dover or Weston, or change and become Democrats, if you want to back a winning team. It is so funny that it is a little sad, but do Newton voters still think we have nonpartisan elections?

Congratulations to a group that put out a slate card under the title "A Recommendation For Good Government." What a score! 15 out of 16 people they endorsed won. Melvin Norris was the only person on this card who did not win.

Yet this man is NOT a loser, the citizens of Newton are the losers. Mr. Norris is not a politician, he is a statesman. The difference is that a politician thinks of the next election, and a statesman thinks of the next generation.

Thank you Mr. Norris for running, for trying, for campaigning, for caring enough to get involved, for paying all the expenses that a campaign costs. I hope that the law student who will take your place on the board will someday be as honorable man as you.

If he is as good a son, and as fine a husband as you, and as swell a father, and if he will be as honest an attorney as you, then he will be a very successful person and alderman; and then and only then, will he be a real winner.

Mr. Norris is not my blood relation, but I am proud to be one of his clients, friends, and campaign worker. Now Mr. Norris would you please be a good neighbor of his, and tell him that I tried to call him on the phone to congratulate him, but found that there is NO phone number for Mark White. Maybe you can help him get a phone, or can you let him use your phone???

What If You Are Wrong?

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am writing this letter from Israel after a four months stay as a new immigrant and professor of the Hebrew University, as a religious agnostic, a socialist of long standing and as an active (twice imprisoned) opponent of the kind of imperialist war that was waged in Vietnam.

I am writing this letter to the members of the academic and intellectual community who stand at the Political Left and who have begun to equate the position of Israel to that of the United States in Vietnam and worse and to act politically on that supposition.

What I have seen in these four months has confirmed my beliefs. Israel is a Democratic State which is acting responsibly and humanely to improve the conditions of its disadvantaged citizens, particularly among the Sephardic Jews and Arabs. It is the fitting repository of an intellectual, spiritual and ethnic tradition that has remained viable for thousands of years and within the space of one century produced a Marx, a Freud, and an Einstein.

It is forging unbreakable links with the people of the occupied territories - Gaza and the West Bank - and with Jordan itself, through encouragement of industry and trade, training in scientific agricultural methods, organization of trade unions, and encouragement of unrestricted travel through territories and cultural horizons. Given the gift of Peace, they would inevitably lead to a harmonious community.

But now we are at war. The governments of Egypt and Syria played an elaborate charade with the Russians. They mobilized in October of 1973 just as they had mobilized in June of 1967 and as they were ready to attack then, they were ready now and did attack.

We are at war against the governments of 100 million Arabs backed by the Russian Monolith. On the side lines sit several cynical European governments who watch the ticket tape of oil prices and equally cynical African governments who trade Jewish lives for votes in the U.N.

We say that the leaders of Egypt and Syria, Iraq and Libya, Algeria and Saudia Arabia really do want to dismember Israel, wipe its name from the roster of nations, kill its people and scatter the survivors—as Jews have been killed and scattered through the centuries. We say that they mean every word of their rhetoric.

What if we are right and you are wrong?

If they succeed, how will you live with yourself?

Save NJC

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I would like to tell the people of Newton my thoughts about Newton Junior College.

Primarily, the school has an excellent academic rating for degree students and with other colleges and universities across the country, outside the USA, too. The national trend is toward community schools to try to finally end segregating our students from the adult population.

Although some places, even Newton's own public schools, are experiencing trouble with this concept, NJC has been and is currently making it work, and very well. Just about every class at NJ has age and experiences variances to the nth degree.

It is an atmosphere of total rapport and openness with no patronizing from any quarter. We are 800 people taking advantage of learning and I suspect many citizens do not know there are so many students.

NJC is accessible, so that if a person could only manage a couple of courses a semester, it is near either home or work and in my three part-time years there I've met very few students who do not work. NJC, even though more expensive than other comparable schools is the choice of these 800 (travel is time and cost).

There seems lately confusion in the public's mind with regard to other sites for the school but it is not an issue at this time and must not be confused with state schools' problems. This is Newton's only public college. The taxpayers know definitely that any savings ($1.50 on the tax rate) is not to be refunded but applied in other areas.

May I use this letter to ask the people to write to the School Committee volunteer members to let them know they believe NJC is a necessary asset here. Ours is a non-militant institution with positive goals. The final vote is Monday, the 26th and after that it will be post-mortems.

Thank you,
Newtonville Reader

A United Community

Editor, Newton Graphics:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation and thanks to your newspaper, the editors, reporters, photographers, workers and all others involved in giving us such excellent coverage in the recent city election. The constant coverage and cooperation were most helpful.

Also, my most earnest words of thanks and appreciation go to the voters of Newton for their support in the election. We now project as a united community for the continuing betterment of our city with the good of all residents as our main objective. We in government are involved in some very exciting and challenging years ahead but we face the future with complete confidence, knowing that men and women from all walks of life can and do work together in behalf of the common good.

I am most grateful for the opportunity to work with all the residents of Newton and the elected officials of their choice.

Pierrepont Rd. Needs Immediate Attention

Editor, Newton Graphic:

During early October the Newton Public Works Department saw fit to remove some of the curbstones on Pierrepont Road, among them mine at 34 Pierrepont Road and Crehore Drive.

Incidentally, part of the curbing had previously been replaced last spring after being damaged by the snowplows; thus they were removing curbing which had so recently been installed.

For three weeks the trenches alongside were left open awaiting delivery of the curbing. On the day of Halloween I requested of the City Engineer's office that something be done to protect the children who crossed the sidewalks on Halloween as there was also an open drain in one of the trenches. (They sent a small wooden horse with a blinking light on it).

Now I have appealed for help in having the fill put back after six weeks of the prevailing hazard to neighbors and ourselves in crossing the sidewalks on their way to Grove Street each morning and evening and to the children crossing on their way to and from school.

The open gulleys or trenches (from lack of replacement of the fill after destroying the lawns which are between the sidewalk and the curbing which I have had to pay to maintain) are ankle-deep and contain many large round boulders and broken pavement. I have had to remove bolts, rubber sheets as large as 72" square all folded, and other materials, and have had to sweep the sidewalks several times to get the dirt and many stones off the sidewalk itself.

The City Engineer, Mr. Schiavone, and the contractor on the job have been approached, as well as Mr. Antonellis, representing the Mayor's Office.

I was told by telephone that it will have to wait until next spring to have the fill put back after the curbing contractor tore up the sidewalk itself as well as the lawn edging between the sidewalk and the curbing. The mail box was torn off its supports and jagged metal supports are sticking up where children loiter after school.

The sidewalk of concrete was very badly smashed and repaired with hot top.

In each instance I pleaded my case of having to go to business and leave a handicapped brother at home. His whole right side is paralyzed; he has epilepsy and vertigo and has suffered a broken paralyzed leg twice in one and one-half years.

If the leg is broken again, the muscles will be further atrophied; he has to try to walk for circulation. His walk is uneven and he could step into the unfilled holes which continue for about 100 feet. The same condition is true in front of 4 Pierrepont Road.

I too have stepped on some loosened stones and have had a foot strapped for the last three weeks because of stone bruise.

This whole matter is entirely illegal to have a contractor leave these hazards, particularly during the winter snow cover when accidents can happen to neighbors.

If the city cannot engage a proper contractor, they should have the Street Department fill the open trenches. Why must I accept the one-person decision of not filling these holes until next spring — this work should have been required by the City of the contractor in October.

Only Men Assessors?

Dear Mayor Mann;

It is my understanding that Cole-Layer Trumble Co. is planning to hire only men for assessors of Newton property.

I question the wisdom of this decision for two reasons.

First, if the assessors work during daytime hours, they will more than likely find women at home who may be hesitant to allow an unknown man in the house (with every justification), thereby hampering the assessment process and possibly adding costs to taxpayers.

Second, discrimination based on sex is illegal and unjust.

Thanks Ald. Uehlein

Editor, Newton Graphic:

We three residents of 1110 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, hope that you will make it possible to thank Alderman Edward Uehlein for his 10 years of constant service to his district in the City of Newton.

There are many others who wanted to vote for him. We were surprised to find ourselves in Ward 6.

The Whole Truth About War

In this day and age, people still fight their problems out by war.

My opinion is, if a country is able to be a nation unto itself and have a name of its own, that should be a great privilege for them.

The problem is, why does the country want more land than they deserve? Because they are greedy and selfish. The way they start the war is that on one planned day they will start attacking, then the war breaks out.

Most people in this world want world wide peace, but the only way that we can get it is if we can prove to all the national leaders that the world is here so that humans and other animals can survive, but they think of it as to have most land under their control and to have the most powerful country.

If we can convince them that they're wrong, we may get a chance to have world wide peace.

Youth Drama Workshop Plans Plays

The Youth Drama Workshop of Newton is planning to produce five one-act plays beginning early in January. The Youth Drama Workshop is sponsored jointly by the Newton Recreation Department, headed by Commissioner John B. Penney and the Newton Free Library, directed by Mrs. Virginia Tashjian.

The winter program includes the production of "The Man in the Bowler Hat," "The Romancers," "Passion, Poison and Petrification," "Overruled," and "Curse You Jack Dalton." Admission is free to these shows.

The featured players in these comedies will include David Frutkoff, Christine Bresnahan, Linda Tafapalski, Clarke Teixeira, David Stephens, Carol Mandel, Terry Sheingold, Debbie Klugerman, Lindy Annis, Ray Ethier, Celia Bishop and Mary Moore.

The group is under the direction of Dick and Carol Power.

"The Man in the Bowler Hat" was recently presented at the Boston Globe Book Festival in the Hynes Auditorium, Boston, playing to a standing room crowd.

Newton residents are invited to plan on attending the production of these five comedies. Donations of production materials are always welcome. These may be made by contacting Dick Power at 444-1178.

The Newton Recreation Department's Women's Volleyball League will begin league play on Monday, Nov. 26, at Day Junior High and the Burr and Carr Elementary Schools. The 14 teams will play their games from 7-9 p.m.

The swimming pool at Newton North High School will be open Friday, Nov. 23, from 2-10 p.m. for regular general swimming. From 7-8 p.m. there will be water polo and special activity, while from 8-10 p.m. there will be co-ed general swimming. General recreational swimming will be in effect from 2-7 p.m. Saturday the regular weekend schedule will be resumed.

Pat Savage will direct a general gymnasium recreation program at Hawthorn on Wednesday afternoons from 3-4:30 p.m. The program for junior high girls will include basketball, gymnastics, floor hockey and other team sports.

Ms. Savage is also directing women's basketball activity at Day Junior High on Tuesdays from 7-9 p.m. She is presently holding practice sessions for women 18 and over, and Pat suggests that interested women come ready to play. League play is scheduled to get underway in two weeks.

The mini-bike facility on Winchester Street, Newton Highlands completed its season this past weekend and is closed for the winter, according to Recreation Supervisor Bill Barry.

Barry reports that the Recreation Tag Football League has completed its season and playoffs are now in progress, with the finals scheduled for Friday, Nov. 23rd.

The four teams making the finals were last year's champs, the Art Carroll Packers, with a record of 9 and 0; the Stumblebums, 7-1-1; Rogans Sporting Goods, 6-2-1; and Capello Bros., 5-3. Art Carroll Club allowed only 13 points in nine games.

Recreation Supervisor Robert Doherty says that the Newton Centre Playground House Winter Season Bowling League directed by Bob Worden is now underway.

Some 35 boys meet at the Riverside Bowling Lanes Saturday afternoons from 3-6 p.m. At the conclusion of the season, trophies are awarded to the winning teams and outstanding boys.

Doherty also notes the beginning of Hockey Programs for the boys from the Newton Centre Playground. The games are played at the MDC Reilly Rink at Cleveland Circle from 7 to 9 a.m. on Saturday mornings. The program for junior and senior high boys will continue through the winter months.

Governor Signs Legal Assistance Legislation

A bill providing for legal assistance to mentally ill persons and their families was recently signed into law by Gov. Sargent.

Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), a member of the Judiciary Committee which heard and supported the bill, said that the legislation will serve to insure that the rights of the mentally ill and their relatives will not be compromised.

In citing the four principal provisions of the law, Mofenson said "It is imperative that all citizens of the Commonwealth have access to the legal process."

The Bill provides first, for the establishment by the Supreme Judicial Court of a Mental Health Legal Advisors Committee consisting of 14 attorneys, with each mental health region to have at least one attorney from that region; second, the compilation by the committee of a list of all lawyers in the Commonwealth willing to advise and represent indigent mentally ill persons and their families, with the advisor to be compensated by the state.

Third, the development of a continuing program of information distributed to patients, their relatives, state mental health employees, members of the bar and other interested persons, pertaining to the legal rights of patients and residents at mental health and retardation centers; and fourth, authorization to the committee to develop a volunteer legal assistance program, under which program, volunteer lawyers, professional and non-professional aides would advise patients and their families as to their legal rights.

In hailing the bill, Rep. Mofenson said, "This law will close the gap between the two rights of the mentally ill and those rights which they have been allowed in practice.

"An indigent patient need only petition a district court in order to be provided legal services," Mofenson continued.

"The law stems from the conviction that it is desirable to provide access to the legal process for all citizens of the Commonwealth," he concluded.

Authority Rebids In December

By DANIEL BARKIN

The Newton Housing Authority voted last week to resolicit bids by the first week in December for the construction of 20 units of low-moderate income family housing slated for a Newtn Highlands site.

The 20 units were originally part of a three-site, five-option package offered for bid to contractors in September. The Department of Community Affairs (DCA), exercising its veto power as a function of its role as the funding agency, had dismissed the original bids as excessive.

The DCA veto sparked a series of meetings between the Authority's architect, David Sheffield, and DCA's representative, Stephen Demos.

According to Sheffield, who is a member of The Architects' Collaborative (TAC), Demos invited a private contractor into the consultations who had built projects similar to those proposed by the Housing Authority in an effort to pinpoint areas of potential cost reductions. Sheffield added that the consulted contractor "practically fell on the floor" when he heard the actual bid prices for the 78 family and elderly units slated for construction.

Authority Chairman Anthony Medaglia expressed his desire to "move on Beaconwood Road," the Newton Highlands site, pointing out that the owners of the site have persisted in their offorts to obtain a permissive use grant from the Board of Aldermen for construction of 24 townhouses. The petition for permissive use of the Beaconwood Road site, submitted by the Ciccone Realty Trust remains on the docket of the Land Use Committee, and aldermanic patience is wearing thin, according to Medaglia.

Donna Berman an Authority member, echoed Medaglia's comments, and submitted a motion to advertise for bids for construction of the 20 Beaconwood Rd. units. Sheffield appeared to be satisfied with the Authority's initiative, saying that "I'd like to have one (project) out there as a test case."

Newton College Gets Grant

R. JAMES HENDERSON

Newton College has been awarded a $67,500 grant from the Exxon Education Foundation, according to an announcement this week by the college's president Dr. James J. Whalen.

The Resource Allocation Management Program grant will support a planning project for the college which will be directed by R. James Henderson of Newton, vice president for business and administration at Newton College.

The Resource Allocation Management Program (RAMP) of the Exxon Education Foundation provides funds for selected colleges that wish to develop effective systems for managing their resources.

Applicants for RAMP grants, according to the Exxon Education Foundation, must be four-year, degree granting private colleges and universities which are academically strong and which have a potentially sound financial base.

With the funds provided by the grant, Newton College will set up a system that will provide a variety of data for those who make the educational decisions. These data will include projection of trends (e.g. enrollment), consequences of alternate choices, analyses of costs, physical plant use, and personnel requirements.

"The objective of the project is, briefly, to establish both short-range and long-range plans of resource allocation to meet the goals and the objectives of the college," explained R. James Henderson.

Highlands -

(Cont. from page 1)

While the charter specifies that no city money may be given to a neighborhood area, the area may raise money privately.

A meeting to pursue the establishment of the neighborhood area was set for Nov. 30 at 7:30 at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church.

The immediate problem - to try to keep the Newton Highlands shopping district one that serves the needs of the residents - elicited a variety of responses.

Several residents pointed to the lack of adequate parking as a cause of the downward direction of retail business in the area.

One suggestion offered was a cooperative store to be operated by Newton Highlands residents. Another was to divide the large store into several boutique-like concessions.

Landlord Philip Bram, who said at the meeting that he had been charging Woolworth's only $333 a month for the store, later said the rentwill be going up to $1000 per month.

Bram said he would not rent portions of the store to concessionaires, but would go along with such a plan if he cold deal with "one responsible party".

Many residents spoke of the personal services offered by the present storeowners and hoped to continue the same type of store operation in the Square, although it was recognized that the outlying large shopping centers have changed patterns of shopping.

Newton Highlands residents have long been apprehensive of deterioration of first the shopping area in their village and then the neighborhood itself.

The Newton Highlands Merchants Association, once quite active in the community, has become inactive and ineffective over the past several years.

One store owner thinks that some merchants "are just finishing out their time." Others may be fearful of spending money on improvement of their stores because of the uncertainty of the economic outlook for the area.

Rumors that Hyde School has been considered seriously by the School Department for closing have added to residents' worries.

School Committee member Joan Needleman at the meeting denied that Hyde was being given any more consideration than any other elementary school. Because of declining enrollment in the city's schools, Mrs. Needleman said, all schools are being considered for closing.

Attempts of "Concerned Citizens" co-chairmen Mrs. Barbara Kaplan and Mrs. Jean Artin so far have not yielded any concrete results.

Planning Director Charles Thomas said this week that he sees no role for the Planning Department at this stage except to offer advice to the residents.

It was through Thomas' suggestion that the possibility of forming a neighborhood service area is being considered.

Members of the long-dead Newton Highlands Improvement Association who were present at the meeting included Harold Band, former president.

Band said after the meeting that he feels enough interest was shown by the large attendance at the meeting to rejuvenate the improvement association, which could deal with the day-to-day problems of Newton Highlands now.

The establishment of the neighborhood area as another level of government, Band believes, will be too time consuming, taking up to three months after the petition is submitted to the Board of Aldermen.

The feasibility of the attempt to establish the neighborhood service area may be gauged by the attendance at the Nov. 30 meeting.

Results of another meeting scheduled for this past Tuesday among a few merchants and residents to discuss possible replacements for the Woolworth's store will also be announced Nov. 30

Encouragement -

A major part of Dudley's argument has been that Newton should maintain the school with the hope that the state will soon absorb it intact into the community college system.

Cronin stated that it is presently unclear whether a new community college in the Newton area is feasible, but added that the idea of making Newton Junior an interim campus will be given serious consideration.

It is necessary that the School Committee resolve the question of Newton Junior's immediate future soon so that the admissions department can know how to deal with student applications for September, 1975.

It is conceivable that the School Committee could declare intended funding for the 1975-76 school year which would be payed by the state instead if Newton Junior became a part of Mass. Bay.

Mrs. Jessie Hersh of Dorcar Rd., Newton, has been commissioned a notary public. Her term runs for seven years.

Increase Library Aid, Congressman Urges

Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton called upon the federal government to increase its assistance to our nation's libraries this week.

Speaking before the Bay Path Library Club in Fort Devens, the congressman urged the House of Representatives to support the Library and Instructional Resources provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Amendments of 1973 when it comes to the floor in the next two or three weeks.

"Two months ago, with the assistance of Solomon Rosenbaum and Arthur K. Kissner of Fitchburg, I sent a questionnaire to all the libraries in the Fourth Congressional District, seeking their advice on the priority needs of our libraries," Drinan said.

The two specific questions were:

1. Briefly state the principal need of your library that would have to be met to enable you to provide library service adequate to meet the needs of the people of your community.

2. Please suggest what you believe the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science can do to help you improve library service for the people of your community.

"The overwhelming response to the first question was the tremendous need to expand existing facilities or construct new ones," Congressman Drinan said. "One librarian pointed out that their 'main building is 103 years old - antiquated and ill-equipped to serve our 20th century concept of quality library service.' Another librarian indicated that several of their programs have been curtailed because of the lack of space.

League To Explore Funding Changes

The League of Women Voters has supported legislation to provide services in the fields of housing, employment, job training and public assistance. At four unit meetings on November 28-30, these programs and the impact of changes in federal funding and general revenue sharing will be discussed.

The expected fuel shortages this winter dramatize the fact that we face a period of economic readjustment which will bring an increased need for supportive services for the unemployed, retraining as job markets change and low income housing.

The United States and other developed countries have been using limited natural resources as though they could expand indefinitely and we now face serious shortages. We are aware that gasoline and heating fuels may have to be rationed but there are many other shortages. Copper, zinc, steel, lumber and other scarce materials are slowing production which will result in unemployment, underemployment and smaller pay envelopes.

The meetings will be held at the following times: Wednesday, Nov. 28, at 9:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre (Babysitting available); Wednesday, Nov. 28, at 8 p.m. at 50 Charlotte Rd., Newton Centre; Thursday, Nov. 29, at 8 p.m. at 28 Fredrick St., Newtonville; Friday, Nov. 30, at 9:30 a.m. at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock St., Auburndale (babysitting available). The public is invited.

Win Costume Awards

Among the members of the square dance class of the Garden City Squares who received awards for their costumes at the recent Halloween party were Mrs. Madelyn Ellis, who came as a bottle of Geritol, accompanied by her husband impersonating Bobby Riggs; Louis Rufo, as a two-faced dancer; Roger Harris, as a hurdy-gurdy man; Sally McCool as a hobo; Nancy Coleman as Baby Jane; and Anne Marie Fleming as Aunt Jemima.

The party was held at the F. A. Day Junior High School in Newtonville, where the beginners' classes started in September and are continuing every Monday evening from 8 to 10:30 p.m. Round dance instruction is given from 7 to 8 p.m. on Mondays. Archie Howell is the teacher and caller for both classes, as well as for the club dances which are held every Friday at 8 p.m.

There will be a fashion show modeled by members of the Garden City Squares with square dance costumes by the Double W shop of Framingham at the class session Nov. 12.

The club will hold its Harvest Party Friday, November 16, at the F. A. Day Junior High School, Minot Place, Newtonville. Further information may be obtained from the Banner chairman, Warren Garrepy (332-9795).

Robert B. Daniels, Jr., 5 Willard St., Newton, has been named an investment officer in the Old Colony Trust Division of the First National Bank of Boston. He joined the bank in 1966 and became an assistant investment officer in 1970. Dannies is a graduate of Wesleyan University.

Fishman Supports Bill On Utilities

Senator Irving Fishman of Newton voiced his strong support of House-passed legislation which would require both the Consumers' Council and attorney general to be reimbursed by utility and insurance companies for costs incurred through their intervention in rate setting cases before administrative and judicial bodies.

He told the Catholic Sisters Coalition for Justice that the bill, H.7380, is "a modest but important step toward redressing the imbalance that currently exists between regulated industries and the consumers of Massachusetts."

In recent cases, Boston Edison and New England Telephone spent more than $1 million to justify thheir petitions. Only $75,000 was spent to represent the public.

The bill, as enacted by the House, provides for direct reimbursements to the attorney general and Consumers' Council by the utility involved, up to the amount the utility itself spends for its presentation before the Department of Public Utilities.

Fishman said he objected to amendments added in Senate Ways and Means Committee which would weaken the bill. He criticized limiting the assessment against the utilities to $250,000, instead of providing for total reimbursement. He also objected to the amendment which would exclude the Consumers' Council from reimbursement, giving the power to intervene exclusively to the attorney general, ignoring the council's statutory authority to intervene in rate cases.

"Even with limited manpower," Fishman noted, "Consumers' Council intervention has saved Massachusetts Consumers more than $79 million. With more adequate resources, it and the attorney general can give real substance to the principal of defending the public interest."

Newton Students Aid Fire Victims

The students of Warren Junior High School recently gave $26.19 for the relief of Chelsea fire victims.

The collection was initiated by Albert K. Chase, Jr., Red Cross teacher-sponsor. Leading participants in the drive were: Brendan Feeney, Brenda Phelon, Carol Norman, Sue Wicks, Susan Sgarzi, Eileen Annese, Kelly Moran, and George Hanright.

Angier School children made and filled over 75 disaster bags for the Chelsea victims. Mrs. Peggy Newman, Red Cross teacher-sponsor, supervised the project.

Disaster bags are ditty bags filled with such needed health, personal and recreational items as soap, wash cloth, toothbrush, toothpaste, comb, bobby pins, shampoo, a game or cards, pencils, etc.

Some of the 5th and 6th grade children sewed the bags in school and other children sewed them at home.

Mrs. Margolis' first grade class was especially active in collecting toilet articles and they helped load the bags into the Red Cross vehicle on Oct. 18. The items were distributed that same day to the residents housed in the Red Cross disaster shelter in Chelsea.

The Red Cross appreciates the interest and concern shown by the Newton School System for people outside their own community.

Galbraith Speaker

BOSTON—Professor John Kenneth Galbraith will be the main speaker at the fifth annual Medical Symposium at the Statler Hilton on Dec. 2. The symposium is sponsored annually by the Metropolitan Boston Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Over three hundred cancer researchists, surgeons and specialists in the treatment and cure of cancer will attend the day-long meeting.

Galbraith's latest book, The Economics and the Public Purpose, deals at length with financial inequities in what he refers to as the "Health Industry". He'll address the symposium on "The Health Industry and the Economics of Weakness."

The symposium which is entitled "Success in Cancer Management Today" will also feature panels and talks on the new techniques in the treatment of skin cancers, radiotherapy, the care of cancer patients, the role of oncology in the detection of cancer and difficult decisions in cancer patient care.

In addition to participants from all major Massachusetts hospitals and research centers dealing with cancer, speakers will include Dr. Kenneth Olson M.C., Chief of the Diagnosis Branch of the National Cancer Institute and Robert W. Murphy, Executive Director of the Tri-State Regional Medical Program.

Richard E. McLaughlin, Secretary of Public Safety and President of the Cancer Society's Metropolitan Boston Unit, will act as Master of Ceremonies at the luncheon.

Newton School Plans Fund Raising Auction

Several hundred unique and useful gifts will be auctioned at the annual Countryside School auction when the gavel calls value seekers, parents and friends of the students of the Dedham Street, Newton Highlands school to order Saturday evening, Dec. 1, in the school's auditorium.

The event, which produces funds to be used in adding to the students in-school activities and various field trips, offers a wide variety of gift items, household goods, appliances, food and ready-to-wear products.

Highlighting this year's long list of special offerings is a two-week all-inclusive trip to Spain. Several unique auctionable items will be offered, including a giant baloney, 50 feet of bagels and a super-super submarine sandwich that can feed a large group of people.

Supporting the major fund-raising event of the school will be a large contingent of parents who are currently soliciting retail dealers throughout the Newton Highlands area. The local dealers play a yearly role in ensuring that the event proves successful and fun-filled as they donate items of value and often gifts with distinct and unusual appeal. Auction chairmen are Fran and Ed Kushner.

Refreshments, served throughout the evening, are complimentary for the bidders from surrounding cities and communities.

BACKBOARD SHATTERED

DENVER (UPI) — Jim Chones grabbed a fast break pass from a Carolina Cougar teammate Tuesday night in their game with the Denver Rockets and in trying to dunk the ball, smashed the glass backboard.

The game was halted with 9:11 left in the second quarter and resumed 20 minutes later. Arena officials put up a temporary replacement for the shattered backboard. Chones was uninjured.

VA Questionnaire Enclosed

BOSTON—Commissioner of Veterans' Services, Charles N. Collatos, has advised all veterans and their dependents who are receiving Veterans Administration pensions that a very important questionnaire will be enclosed with the November payment from the Veterans' Administration.

This card is the annual income questionnaire which must be completed and promptly returned to the Veterans Administration as instructed. Failure to return this form by Jan. 15, 1974 will result in discontinuance of pension payments.

Commissioner Collatos further stated that the local Veterans' Agent in the city or town of residence will assist recipients in completing the card and forwarding it to the Veterans Administration.

It is necessary that the recipient has available the information concerning the amount of the latest social security check received in 1973 as well as the amount of all other income.

Any further assistance will be provided by the local Veterans' Agent or Veterans Service Officers.

As a visiting lecturer in Freiburg's english department, Ms. Valette will be giving courses on language testing and foreign language teaching methods as well as a course on contemporary American life.

Author and co-author of three books on language testing, Ms. Valette most recently collaborated with her French born, economist, husband, Jean-Paul Valette on France: A Cultural Review Grammar (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 1973), an intermediate test now used in some thirty colleges and universities across the country. The husband and wife team are now working on a high school series on French mastery (to be published by the fall of 1974 by D. C. Heath).

Emphasizing student self-expression as the first goal of teaching any foreign language today, the 34-year-old Ms. Valette has written numerous articles and has lectured both here and abroad on the variety of techniques suitable for teaching a foreign language in a "student centered classroom."

A graduate of Mount Holyoke (A.B., 1959) and the University of Colorado (Ph.d., 1963), Ms. Valette taught at the NATO Defense College in Paris and at Wellesley before joining the faculty of Boston College in 1965.

Rabbi Chiel Lectures

"Janusz Korczak, 1878-1942" will be the title of the lecture Tuesday evening, Nov. 27, when Rabbi Samuel Chiel, the spiritual leader of Temple Emmanuel in Newton, addresses the sixth meeting of the Combined Adult Education Program of the Newton area Conservative Temples.

Given the continuing concern of the holocaust in realtionship to its meaning for our own time, this talk - to be given at Temple Mishkan Tefila at 300 Hammond Pond Pkwy. in Chestnut Hill - should be of great and general interest to the members of the community.

In discussing the life and character of Korczak, the Czechoslovakian Jewish martyr, Rabbi Chiel will explore the psychological dynamics of the making of a martyr.

Rabbi Chiel is well known in the greater Boston area, but this will be on the first opportunities for members of the general public to hear him on this particular subject. The general lecture and discussion by Rabbi Chiel is scheduled for 9:15 p.m.

Local Hospital Joins Information Group

Newton-Wellesley Hospital is one of twelve members of the West Suburban Hospital Association which has joined the newly-formed Consortium for Information Resources (CIR).

The CIR has been established to coordinate education and training materials that are owned and will be purchased in the future by the member hospitals. This coordination will result in development of an extensive pool of resources that can be retrieved rapidly by all members of the staffs of member institutions.

Operational since Jan. 1, the program is funded by a Resource Project Grant from the National Library of Medicine, Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, Public Health Service, National Institutes of Health and by the West Suburban Hospital Association.

Federal support is for three years during which time an extensive planning and evaluation effort will be undertaken to enable the group to optimally utilize each hospital's existing library and departmental collections of materials, identify needs for additional resources, and purchase new books, journals, and audiovisual resources for each library that will reflect the specific needs of that hospital as well as the general needs of the group as a whole.

World Ski Competitions Coming Up

By GERHARD FRIEDRICH

VIENNA (UPI) — The World Ski Championships in St. Moritz and the three-month World Cup competition through Europe will give alpine skiers two goals this winter in their toughest season to date.

Few coaches like the gruelling two-tier season.

"It is a dilemma. We have get our skiers in good shape for both competitions," said Oskar Braendle, manager for the Austrian team.

Most skiers prefer the World Cup in which they get more chance to prove their class.

"In the championships you need luck to win. One mistake and you are out. The World Cup gives you justice," said West Germany's Rosi Mittermaier.

The U.S. team, relying heavily on the Cochran family, has had several training camps in Squaw Valley, Calif., the former Winter Olympic site and on the South American slopes, while teams from Austria, Switzerland and West Germany went to Chile in August.

Austria, overshadowed by the French for several years, made a comeback last season when its youngsters swept the titles in the Men's, women's and combined team competition in the World Cup.

They will be hard to beat this season again.

Only slalom specialist Harald Rofner will be missing from the team because of an injury some months ago which forced him to retire for good. But skiers such as David Zwilling, Hans Hinterseer and Franz Klammer will prove good enough.

Anne-Marie Proell is the favorite among the girls but she will have to have her best season to beat rising stars Monika Kaserer, last season's runner-up and 18-year-old Irmgard Lukasser.

Canada will field about the same team as last season, indicating its top chances will be among the girls. Judy Crawford and Betsy Clifford are good enough to beat the Europeans and Americans on their day, but have yet to show consistency.

Experts predict 16-year-old Kathy Kreiner will be the upancoming star.

Jim Hunter, 20, is expected to pick-up most of the points in the men' division.

The French sporting daily newspaper, L'Equipe, reported recently the French national team was about $50,000 in debt after last season but it could be lack of morale rather than lack of money that slows it down this season.

Jean-Noel Augert and Henri Duvillard, its two top male hopes, showed their open scorn for the French federation in the spring by staging a "go-slow" during the national championships.

Both will be in the French team again this season, however, alongside Patrick Russel, Roger Rossad-Mignod and Claude Perrot.

The women's team remains full of promising youngsters who last season never graduated to the ranks of the completely successful. Jacqueline Rouvier and Isabelle Mir will lead the downhill assault and Danielle Debernard, Christine Rolland, Patricia Emonet and Fabienne Serrat the slaloms.

Manager Gaston Perrault summed up French pessimism, by saying, "it seems we don't have a potential winner in our team. If they did not make it last year there is no reason to believe Augert or Duvillard will carry off the laurels on the strength of being one year older.

Gustavo Thoeni and his cousin, Rolando, have been the dominating forces in the Italian team the past seasons.

But this year Italy will field a more solid team which includes Piero Gros and Fausto Radici, the first winner of the European Cup last winter .

Italy, often rated behind Europe's big three—Austria, France and Switzerland—might be the surprise of the season.

Switzerland, the world championship organizers, will try to repeat its success of the Sapporo Olympics when it won three out of six Alpine gold medals — Marie-Therese Nadig winning two and Bernard Russi one. Both will be back for this season's campaign.

"Our boys and girls have an excellent chance in St. Moritz. I think we can score a lot of top places in the championships," said team official Hans Schweingruber.

Other potiential winners are Edmund Bruggmann, back in shape after injury, downhill specialist Roland Collombin and Walter Tresch.

Color For Skiing

A kaleidoscope of color - zingy reds, deep turquoise blues, cool greens and sunflower yellows will be enhancing the ski slopes this winter. So. . . when you plan your skiing wardrobe, think color because the days of the "safe" navy or black parka and tuck-in ski pants are gone.

Back when skiing was supposed to appeal only to the rugged, ski clothes also looked the rugged part, however, skiing is now the most enjoyed of all winter sports. Little tots ski from the moment they start walking and there's no such thing as being too old to enjoy the thrill of vrooming down the runs.

Times have changed in many ways - if you're the impatient type you can hire a helicopter to fly you over the long waiting lines at the base of the ski lift. The most important change in ski clothes is in fabric advances - new man made fibres have produced the slimming down sleek jumpsuit, two-way stretch pants and insulated parkas

The professional skier has long had the savvy to take a lesson from the onion when it came to dressing for action on the slopes. Many thin layers of clothing are better than two heavy garments, in terms of both comfort and appearance. Scientifically it means that the greater number of layers allow for pockets of air to take on body warmth and act as insulators against the cold.

The sheer enjoyment of color has affected the skier's equipment as well as clothing. This year, boots come in brilliant reds and blues and skis come in every color imaginable.

Clothes are coordinated, but they aren't expected to match either boots or skis. Jackets come in new fabrics that have been puckered, quilted or coated with plastic foam to give warmth without bulk.

At one time only ski bunnies would have worn fur parkas, silver helmets, and other such glad rags. . however, today the serious skier will wear anything that fits well, is functional and shouts "FUN"!

The trend is toward matching coordinates which make the short person appear taller. The latest fashions include wool, nylon and spandex ski pants specifically designed to keep the wearer warm and dry with brightly colored tops, lined warm-up jackets, colorful turtlenecks and special equipment such as boots, gloves, goggles, skis and hats.

The face mask for skiing offers protection for those with sensitive skin. Only the eyes and nose are exposed and once the wearer has adjusted to the "closed in" feeling, the mask becomes as important as skis.

The conventional knitted stocking cap topped with a pompom remains a colorful favorite. Today many are sold with matching heavy sweaters and scarves to create a coordinated outfit.

A new striped wool cloche lined with cotton may be pulled over the ears while a bill-like extension shields the face. This hat is nifty done in white with sharp green and blue trim.

The Killy style hat, a variation of the stocking cap, is shaped like an elongated triangle. This style is popular with men because it's easy to slip the hat into a pocket when the sun is high and overexertion sets in.

Jackets with attached hoods have not proven to be very popular because of the restriction of movement. Hoods that zip on when needed are practical, especially for the very young.

Ernst Engel, the sportswear designer who, more than any other, revolutionized the look of skiwear, is determined to bring a sexy look to the slopes. His line of taut pants will be anchored to your boots on the outside instead of being tucked under with foot stirrups.

Engel maintains that his first two-way stretch pants were the most flattering style for the average figure. Women wore his stretch pants doing their marketing or chauffering the children.

His new stretch pants go over ski boots and are hooked to bars nailed onto the side soles. This patented mechanical device is called "The Connection" and is licensed to 30 skiwear manufacturers, including White Stag in the United States.

A new ski goggle has been introduced by Bausch & Lomb. "Ski Goggle II" is designed to fit over prescription eye classes. They come equipped with interchangable dark gray and yellow lenses, made of Lexan plastic which is virtually unbreakable. The exceptionally good optical quality of these lenses - a new and simpler lens exchange method - flow through ventilation to prevent fogging - and a sturdy but pliable plastic frame with face-conforming inside-rim cushioning, are among the other special features that recommend this goggle. In addition, its contours will not interfere with any protective helmets now on the market.

Across The Kitchen Counter

by Ruth Lenson

If you serve turkey on Thanksgiving, you probably will have a fair quantity of it left over, sitting on the refrigerator shelf.. waiting. Of course there are some families that will not look at leftovers and it's difficult to understand why, because many foods improve in flavor on the second or third day.

With food at such a premium, it's wise to use and enjoy every morsel of that big bird, and preparing leftover turkey dishes for the freezer is like money in the bank — especially for the working mother. First a few tips:

Any leftover turkey should be removed from the bones and refrigerated. You can also freeze the turkey for later use. Cover with gravy and juices, and if you've been caught short on gravy, prepare a cup or two of chicken bouillon or use a packaged gravy mix. Workable slices for casseroles, salads and sandwiches can be stored in a plastic container and sealed tightly.

Waxed paper or foil should be inserted between turkey slices so removal is easy. Chopped turkey can be stored in small plastic containers, ready for use in special turkey recipes, and each container labeled so there's no guessing or forgetting. At night the cook decides what she will prepare the next evening for dinner, removes the package from the freezer and places it in the refrigerator; it will be thawed and ready for use in a quick casserole or salad for dinner.

Along with that delicious turkey dish, treat the family to light and tender caramel rolls with a rich caramel topping made from brown sugar and cream — a one-rise coffee roll!

SOUTHERN CELERY AND TURKEY BISQUE

¼ cup butter or margarine
2 cups thinly sliced celery
4 tablespoons coarsely chopped onion
One-third cup flour
3 cups milk
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed chicken broth
2½ cups diced, cooked turkey (or chicken)
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

In a large saucepan heat butter or margarine. Add celery and onion and saute for 5 to 6 minutes or until celery is tender. Blend in flour. Gradually stir in milk and broth. Add turkey and cook over low heat until mixture is slightly thickened, stirring occasionally. Add salt, white pepper and nutmeg. Serve hot. Serves 6.

TURKEY SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

1 cup sliced onion
2 tablespoons margarine or cooking oil
3 cans (8 oz. ea.) tomato sauce
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces, undrained
1½ teaspoons oregano
½ pound spaghetti, cooked, drained
One-third cup grated Parmesan cheese
¾ pound sliced cooked turkey

Cook onion in margarine or oil until tender, but not brown. Add tomato sauce, mushrooms and oregano. Simmer uncovered to blend flavors, 15 to 20 minutes. Place hot cooked spaghetti in shallow 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with one-half of the cheese. Spoon about two-thirds of the tomato sauce over spaghetti and arrange turkey slices on top. Spoon remaining tomato sauce over turkey slices. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Cover with aluminum foil, crimping it securely to edges of casserole. Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes. Uncover and return to oven and bake for 10 minutes. Serves 6.

TURKEY QUICHE

¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons margarine
3 eggs
1 envelope (⅞ oz.) gravy mix for turkey
1 cup milk
2 cups cubed cooked turkey
9-inch unbaked pie shell
¼ cup shredded Cheddar or Swill cheese

Cook onion in margarine until tender. Beat together eggs, contents of envelope of gravy mix and milk. Stir in turkey and onions. Pour into pie shell and sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 minutes, until knife inserted in center comes out clean.

TURKEY SWEET 'N SOUR

2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup turkey stock
½ cup brown sugar
One-third cup cider vinegar
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup catsup, or chili sauce
2 tablespoons cooking oil
¾ cup drained pineapple chunks
¾ cup carrots, roll cut
¾ cup green peppers, cut in strips
4 cups cooked turkey, cut into 1-inch cubes

To roll cut carrots, peel, then cut a small piece off the end; roll carrot one-third around and cut another piece off at an angle; roll the carrot about one-third around and cut another piece off about 1-inch down, angling back up to make a sort of triangular piece; roll the carrot another third and cut off another piece at an angle; and so on. Carrot pieces are rather triangular in shape to give a greater surface cut for the sweet and sour sauce to cling to.

Combine in small saucepan and blend cornstarch, turkey broth, brown sugar, vinegar, soy sauce and catsup; cook and stir until thick and clear. Set aside. Heat skillet or electric fry pan to medium hot, add oil, then carrots and stir-fry for 1 minute using chop sticks to stir (if possible). Add green pepper, fruit and turkey; stir-fry until just heated through. Add sweet and sour sauce, stir to heat and serve at once over hot rice or crisp Chinese noodles. Serves 6.

ONE-RISE CARAMEL ROLLS

TOPPING:
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup heavy (whipping cream) do not substitute
ROLLS:
3 to 3½ cups all purpose flour
1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup hot tap water (120-130 degrees)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1 egg
FILLING:
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ cup butter or margarine, softened

Mix brown sugar and heavy cream in ungreased 13 x 9-inch pan. (Lightly spoon flour into cup to measure; level off). In large bowl, blend 1½ cups flour and next 6 (six) ingredients. Beat for 3 minutes at medium speed. By hand, stir in remaining 1½ to 2 cups flour. Knead on floured surface for 1 minute. Press or roll dough into 15 x 7-inch rectangles. Combine filling ingredients and spread over dough. Starting at longer side, roll up tightly; seal edges. Cut into 16 to 20 rolls. Place rolls cut-side-down in cream mixture. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 35 to 45 minutes. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Bake rolls 20-25 minutes until golden brown. Allow rolls to cool in pan 10 to 15 minutes; turn onto serving platter. Makes 16-20 rolls.

RING AROUND THE TURKEY

3 pkgs. apple flavored gelatin
4 cups boiling water
9 tablespoons lemon juice (about 3 lemons)
1 teaspoon "seasoning" salt
10 thin slices white turkey
1½ cups finely chopped cooked turkey
½ cup finely diced celery
1 cup halved green grapes, seeded

Stir gelatin into boiling water until completely dissolved. Add lemon juice and salt. Chill until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white — stirring frequently if chilled over ice water or occasionally if chilled in refrigerator. Fill a nine-inch ring mold with ¾-inch of the gelatin mixture. Arrange sliced turkey in gelatin mixture across bottom and up the side. Chill until firm. Fold chopped turkey, celery and grape halves into remaining gelatin mixture. Pour over firm gelatin in mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and cut into wedges so that each serving holds a slice of turkey. Serves 10.

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

QUESTION: Recently, at a coffee klatch, my friends were discussing a dish I've never tasted and never made. It's Moussaka; and if you have the recipe, I'd really appreciate trying it—at least once. Thanks!

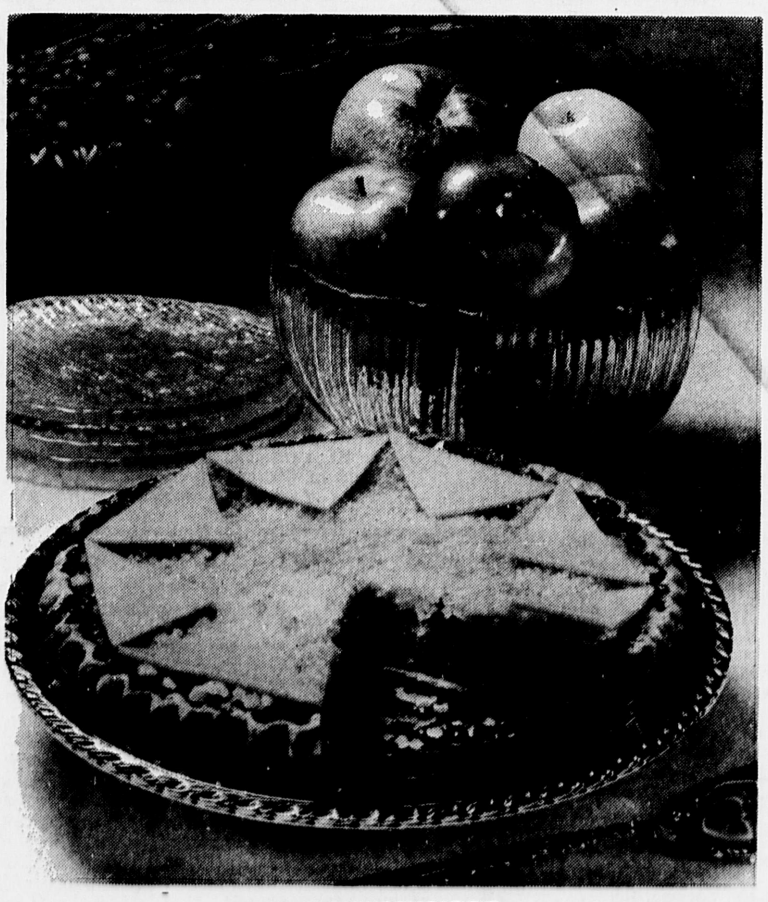
Mrs. D.A., Roslindale

ANSWER: Here it is, a delectable main dish in which the eggplant is scooped out, combined with ground lamb, garlic, onion, mushrooms and seasoning. To form the classic Moussaka shape, line a mold with eggplant skins and fill with the lamb mixture. After baking, serve with Tomato sauce.

MOUSSAKA

3 medium eggplants
1½ pounds ground lamb
1 clove garlic
1 small onion, chopped
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ pound mushrooms, chopped
½ teaspoon crumbled leaf rosemary
2 medium tomatoes, peeled and diced
3 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon MSG
½ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs slightly beaten

Bake eggplants in a 375 degree oven for 50 minutes, or until tender. Cool. Cut in half and scoop out pulp, leaving skins intact. Reserve pulp. Break up ground lamb in large skillet. Add garlic, onion and mushrooms. Cook, stirring frequently, until lamb is brown and vegetables are tender. Add eggplant pulp, parsley, rosemary, tomatores, salt, MSG and pepper. Simmer for 5 minutes. Add eggs and mix well. Line a 2½ quart deep casserole or charlotte mold with eggplant skins, placing outside of skin next to casserole. Fill with lamb mixture. Cover tightly and place in a pan of boiling water. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 45 minutes. Remove from pan of water and let stand at room temperature for 10 minutes. Turn out onto serving platter. Service with Tomato Sauce. Yield - 6 servings.



APPLE MINCEMEAT PIE

QUESTION: Last Thanksgiving I tried making a sort of apple pie with mincemeat as dessert and to my surprise the pie was a huge success . . . however, I failed to write down my great discovery and though I've tried since, I've never gotten the same results. Have you ever combined these two ingredients in a pie? Many thanks for your assistance.

G.M., Dedham

ANSWER: Look what I've found! My files yielded the following recipe, and the combination of winey apples, the tang of grapefruit and mincemeat may not be an exact copy of your "discovery" but it's sure to bring a round of applause from your family.

APPLE MINCEMEAT PIE

1 medium size grapefruit
1 pkg. (9 oz.) condensed mincemeat pastry for a 9-inch pne crust pie
2 cups chopped apples
Two thirds cup sugar, divided
½ cup sifted all purpose flour
¼ cup chilled butter or margarine
One-third cup sugar
Sharp Cheddar cheese

Grate 1 tablespoon grapefruit peel. Ream grapefruit; strain and measure juice; add enough water to make 1½ cups. Add peel and juice - water mixture to mincement; cook as directed on package; cool slightly. Meanwhile, line pie pan with pastry; flute edges. Spread mincemeat over bottom of pie shell. Combine apples and one-third cup sugar. Spread over mincemeat. Combine flour and remaining one-third cup sugar. Work in butter until mixture is crumbly. Scatter over top of pie. Bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes. Lower heat to 375; bake for 30 minutes longer. Remove from oven. Arrange thin triangles of cheese around edge of pie. Serve warm.

Mrs. T.P., Walpole shares with us a recipe she makes whenever she expects a large crowd. Our thanks for:

400 Couples Screened In Tay-Sachs Testing

A team of more than 80 volunteers including 17 doctors and four nurses conducted the first New England community screening for Tay-Sachs disease Nov. 4 at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center.

More than 400 young couples turned out for the screening.

For four hours, teams of volunteers assisted screening participants in filling out questionnaires, provided direction to 18 testing stations, assisting in taking blood samples, labeled test tubes, and organized records, all with no significant delays. Doctors, nurses, and technicians drew the blood samples and conducted question-and-answer sessions.

Dr. Robert S. Zeiger, resident in pediatrics at the Children's Hospital Medical Center, who was involved in setting up the country's first Tay-Sachs screening program two years ago in the Baltimore-Washington, D.C., area coordinated the screening in tthe Community Center gymnasium and auditorium.

According to Dr. Edwin H. Kolodny, co-director of the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program, the local screening was the second largest ever held in the United States.

"We screened 868 people in four hours, or about three per minute," noted Dr. Kolodny. "The only screening larger than that was held in Washington in 1971, when more than 1300 people were screened."

Tay-Sachs is an inherited fatal disorder which primarily affects children of Ashkenazi Jewish (Eastern European) descent. A simple blood test, using samples drawn at the community screening, can identify adult carriers of the trait for the disease. If two carriers marry, the chances are one in four that each of their children will be born with the disease. Pregnancies of carrier couples can be monitored to ensure that they will have only healthy, normal children.

Blood samples collected at the public screenings will be tested at the Tay-Sachs laboratory at the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center in Waltham to determine the presence or absence of the genetic trait for the disease.

Nancy Schwartz, coordinator of the prevention program, said that husbands of pregnant women can expect to receive the results of their tests within one week of the screening. Other couples will be notified within six to 12 weeks. A team of four consulting physicians headed by Dr. Allen C. Crocker will provide genetic counseling for persons identified as carriers.

A second community screening is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 9, at the Marblehead Jewish Community Center. Additional screenings will be held in March in Natick, in early May in Newton, and in late May in Sharon. Dr. Kolodny hopes that as many as 10,000 people can be screened locally during the first year of community testing.

There is no charge for the screening, but participants are encouraged to make a voluntary donation to support the continuation of the screening program.

One benefit of the public screening, Dr. Kolodny reports, is that physicians and rabbis are now becoming more aware of Tay-Sachs disease and the availability of testing facilities. As a result, they are now encouraging young couples to be screened.

The screenings are conducted by the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program, a joint effort of the Beth Israel Hospital, Children's Hospital Medical Center, and the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center, under the sponsorship of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston and the Tay-Sachs Foundation of New England.

Unearthing China's Past New Art Museum Exhibit

Unearthing China's Past, the first exhibition in the United States to explore the recent archaelogical discoveries made in the People's Republic of China, opened Nov. 15 at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Over one hundred works of Chinese art from Western collections are seen in a new light when compared with photographs of treasures uncovered in China since the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949. This major exhibition, complemented by lectures, slide presentations and films, will continue through Feb. 3 in the Special Exhibition Galleries.

Works of Chinese art, assembled from 25 Western museums and private collections, are compared with photographs of similar pieces recently excavated in China. This comparison demonstrates how recent archaelogocal discoveries may be applied to the objects in Western collections. The date, function , origin and complete shape of an object can now be determined from a preserved fragment.

Magnificent examples of Chinese art ranging from 1200 B.C. to 1600 Ad. form the core of the exhibition. Most of these works were removed from tombs by grave robbers in the first half of this century and information about their history was lost when intermediaries brought them to the West. Clandestine excavations stopped with the founding of the People's Republic of China, and the systematic recording of all aspects of a site began. Maps, diagrams and models based on recent Chinese archaelogical journals showthe location of tombs and of the pieces within them.

Two slide tapes, Archaelogy in China and China Today, alternate in Gallery AB of the exhibition. The first, narrated by Jan Fontein, the Museum's Curator of Asiatic Art, provides an introduction to the exhibition. In China Today, John Kenneth Galbraith shares with the viewer experiences of his recent journey through China. This presentation records Professor Galbraith's personal impressions of the people and life style in China and provides a glimpse of major historical sites such as the Forbidden City, the Ming Tombs and the Great Wall.

Two documentary films will be shown in conjunction with Unearthing China's Past at regular periods each week in the Lecture Hall. One film describes a recent excavation of an ancient Han dynasty tomb just discovered in the Hunan province. The other ranges from prehistoric pottery to architecture of the Mongol period and shows archaelogical sites including the tombs where two famous jade suits were found.

Throughout the run of the exhibition, the staff of the Museum's Department of Asiatic Art will offer gallery talks two times a week. A comprehensive and fully illustrated catalogue written by Jan Fontein and Tung Wu outlines the significance of the recent Chinese excavations in terms of both individual works and the whole history of Chinese art.

This exhibition is supported with a substantial grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.

She Never Gave Up Tennis

NEW YORK (UPI) — "She gave up piano. She gave up ballet. She gave up dancing, But when her father and I suggested she give up tennis— well, there was no way she was going to do that."

Mrs. Juanita Kemmer, her eyes sparkling, was talking about her daughter, Kris, the pretty 21-year-old who had been voted the most improved young player on the women's pro tennis tour.

Juanita had flown in secretly from her San Diego home Monday. She had been informed that Kris was the MaxPax winner, but that her daughter would not know she had won the $5,000 award until formal announcement was made on Tuesday.

"I was so excited and so very, very pleased for her," she said, "but I didn't tell a soul. My husband Warren knew, of course, but he's a tomb on secrets. I finally told my best friend, and warned her that if she blabbed, she was dead."

This first major recognition for her only child made up in a way for all the work and care and worry that go into helping a girl become a top flight player.

"Warren and I are just pretty much social tennis players," Mrs. Kemmer said. "We played a great deal when Kris was a tot, and then when she was seven she began snitching our rackets.

"We went through all the usual problems. Getting her lessons, getting her to tournaments, seeing to it that she kept up her schoolwork. We wanted her to go to college— she was accepted at USC—but she decided she'd rather try the tennis world for a while. We hope she'll go to college someday and maybe take up teaching.

"She keeps in touch with us when she's on tour. There's no rule she has to check in with us, but she does, and it's lovely."

Only the very talented few burst upon the tennis scene to become stars virtually overnightn as did Chris Evert. Kris Kemmer did not, and there was a time when she was discouraged.

"I remember about two years ago," her mother said. "She called and began crying. Her game, she said, seemed to be coming apart, and she had been beaten in qualifying play time and again.

Childbirth Film At Beth Israel

The beauty and mystery of childbirth is the subject of a unique film festival coming to the Beth Israel Hospital on Sunday, December 2 and Monday, December 3.

Four films, each focusing on a different aspect of the birth process will be shown both evenings at 7:30 and 9:30. The movies are "Childbirth at Beth Israel," the award winning documentary about Beth Israel's Family Centered Maternity Care Program, "The First Two Weeks of Life," "Not Me Alone," and "Newborn."

The films will be shown in the Sherman Auditorium of Beth Israel Hospital, 330 Brookline Avenue, Boston. Donation is $1 and the films are open to any individual or group. For further information, contact the Hospital at 734-4400.

Energy Saving Measures At King's Dept. Stores

William F. Kenny, president of King's Department Stores, Inc., announced today the adoption of several energy conserving measures that will take effect immediately at King's.

According to Kenney, during the Christmas season all King's stores will be open two hours less per day than normal. The new store hours will be 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Last year King's was open daily from 9 to 11 from Thanksgiving to Christmas.

As additional energy saving measures, overhead fluorescent lighting in all stores will be reduced by 25 percent, 50 percent of King's external identification signs will not be lighted and in-store heating will be cut back to 65 degrees.

"We respectfully request the cooperation and understanding of all our customers as we endeavor to do our share to ease the Nation's energy crisis," Kenney said.

2 DAR Chapters Have Met

On the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 13, two local chapters of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, with guests, met at Beth Eden Baptist Church, Waltham.

Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, and Dorothy Brewer Chapter, held a joint meeting, highlighted by a musical program presented by students from Hillside School for Boys, Marlborough.

A 25-voice chorus under the direction of Mr. Howard Jewell, music director of the school, performed.

Preceding the program, Mrs. Howard Wood, regent of Dorothy Brewer Chapter, extended a welcome, and Mrs. William Parsons, chairman of the Approved Schools Committee of the same chapter, gave the devotions.

Sally Johnson, also of Dorothy Brewer Chapter, led in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and in the American's Creed.

Mrs. Joseph P. Maloney, regent of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, gave the National Defense material, and Mrs. William A. Hurley, vice regent of the same chapter, read the president general's message for November.

Mrs. Howard Whittemore, Headmaster of Hillside School, was introduced, and presented with a colorful knitted afghan for the infirmary.

During the social hour following the program, Mrs. Russell Michell of Dorothy Brewer Chapter and Mrs. Hurley presided at the refreshment table, which was centered with an arrangement of candles and autumn flowers.

Emergency Fund Drive For Israel

In a major change in its fund raising schedule for the coming year, the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston announced this week that it already has launched its 1974 Appeal and Israel Emergency Fund drive. Plans are to complete the drive within the next month.

Heading up the Newton portion of the 1974 CJP Campaign are Edward A. Shapiro, chairman and Michael G. Frieze, co-chairman.

Mitchell J. Marcus, general campaign chairman stated that, "Because of the pressing human needs in Israel and in our own cities and towns, we could not wait to run our usual spring campaign."

He explained that the Yom Kippur War has caused a tremendous strain on Israel's economy. There is an urgent need to provide a vast amount of funds to keep its whole array of humanitarian services functioning - including day care centers, old age homes, immigration facilities, hospitals and clinics.

"At the same time," Marcus pointed out, "in our community we are faced with demands for increased services for every facet of our population, from the young to the aged."

Miss Barres Wed By Candlelight

A candlelight ceremony wed Joanne Barres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Barres of 132 Sargeant St., to Stephen Harrison Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shaw of Lexington.

The bride's father gave her away at the First Baptist Church of Lexington with Rev. Joseph Roberts officiating. The reception was held at the Marriott Hotel.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown with alencon lace. The empire bodice had a beaded net and lace yoke, a high collar and dresden sleeves. The three tier elbow length veil of Heath illusion fell from a matching lace headpiece.

Mr. Michael Giannone, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a gown of apricot crepe with an empire waist and V-neck. Miss Linda Meyer was the bridesmaid. She wore the same gown as the matron of honor in mango colored crepe.

Mr. Peter Sanborn of Topsfeld, was the best man. Robert Barres and Donald Shaw were ushers.

A wedding trip to Cape Cod is planned. The couple will be residents of Waltham when they return.

Mrs. Shaw graduated from the Conservatory of Music in 1973. Mr. Shaw has a master's degree from the Conservatory.

Miss Forster Marries Howard Freed

Mr. Emil Forster announces the marriage of his daughter, Susan, to Mr. Howard Freed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Freed of Newton Centre. Susan is the daughter of Emil and the late Miriam Forster of Puerto Rico.

A hush fell over the party as the bride walked down the aisle in a white lace gown and matching veil. Her father gave her hand in marriage while Cantor Hochberg chanted the vows. Her yellow roses created a refreshing bouquet contrasted with shades of fall colors worn by the wedding party.

The matrons of honor, Mrs. Gerald Cohen and Mrs. Richard Novak, and the bridesmaid, Denise Beck, along with the maid of honor, the sister of the groom, Judith Freed, wore gowns of green, brown and gold velvets. They carried sprays of dried fall flowers. The flowergirls were the bride's nieces from Connecticut. The best man was Michael Zuker, and the usher was Willie Ewing.

Mr. Freed is presently employed at the Suffolk Electric Co. The couple have made their residence in Brookline.

Solomon Schecter Day School students.

Students Begin Torah Study

At the Solomon Schechter Day School, Mrs. Aya Atid's third grade Hebrew class commences the study of Torah in a special way.

Since it is reason for celebration, they do just that.

On a recent Friday morning, parents were invited to a student presentation extolling this moment when the wisdom of ages would begin to unfold before them. Headmaster, Rabbi Herman Blumberg, warmly greeted the students and shared his joy and blessing for their simcha.

On such an occasion, bestowing gifts is customary. The parents presented their children with his-her copy of the Torah, clothed in artfully decorated fabric covers.

One grandpa, Isaac Fein, enriched the children's experience with a pertinent story from his personal stock of cheder lore. Their teacher sweetly concluded the morning with home-baked cake and chocolate bars.

The first page was turned: " . . . and so there was light."

Rabbi Miller To Give Talk

The first Adult Education Sabbath at Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, will be held Friday, Nov. 23, at 8:15 p.m. following the worship service. This year's theme is "Reform Judaism — Past, Present, Future."

The opening speaker is Rabbi Robert Miller, and his topic for discussion is "Reform Judaism — The First Hundred Years."

Rabbi Miller's talk will focus on the Reform Jewish movement in the United States. He will discuss the early reformers, the founding of some of the basic institutions of Reform Judaism, statements of basic principles of the Reform Synagogue formulated at significant Rabbinical conventions, and the great controversies which surrounded these events.

The founders of Reform Judaism labored to preserve the essence and spirit of Judaism while allowing its observance to be adaptable and relevant to each succeeding generation.

Rabbi Miller's talk will enlighten the listener on the original intent of the movement and the contributions of Reform Judaism to American Jewish life today. A question and answer period will follow.

Guests are cordially invited to worship with the congregation, and join them in the social hall for the lecture.

Church Installs Reverend

The Rev. Ernest S. Heeren became the 16th minister of the Central Congregational Church of Newton at an installation service attended by 300.

Among those participating in the ceremony in the Newtonville church were the Rev. Dr. Oliver Powell of the Metropolitan Boston Association of the Massachusetts Conference; United Church of Christ; the Rev. Edward Meury, minister of the First Congregational Parish, Durham, N.H.; the Rev. Richard W. Bauer, minister of the Second Church in Newton (Congregational); the Rev. Robert C. Mezoff, minister of the Newtonville United Methodist Church; the Rev. Baldwin W. Callahan, former interim minister of Central Church, and Miss Nancy Johnson, student assistant at the church.

The chancel choir was assisted by members of the senior choir of the Second Church in Newton and friends from the Newtonville United Methodist Church.

The organist was Marshall S. Wilkins, director of music at Central Church. Guest director was Ivar Sjostrom, director of music at Second Church.

The assistant organist was Larry Kistler, director of music at the Newtonville United Methodist Church.

After the service the congregation gathered in the Merrill Room to greet the new minister and Mrs. Heeren, and those who participated in the installing.

Broadway Has Another Thriller

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Producer Morton Gottlieb held a three-year tenancy on the Music Box with a super-thriller titled "Sleuth," which had scarcely departed, before he came back with another tingler, "Veronica's Room."

This new one, by Ira Lefin, is not another "Sleuth" —what is? —but it is a thriller of some merit and should be appreciated by most theatergoers who love this sort of melodramatic antic.

Levin is no amateur at providing entertainment shock, as witness his novel, "Rosemary's Baby." The chief drawback in this play is a slow first act. But the final stanza is packed with sufficient suspenseful thrills to make the whole recommendable.

The author gets immense help from marvelous performances by its four players — Eileen Heckart, Arthur Kennedy, Regina Baff and Kipp Osborne. Ellis Rabb's expert direction is helpful.

Can't reveal much about the story; there's an unwritten law that silences reviewers where this type of play is concerned.

However, the time is now, the place a room in a fine house near Boston. Miss Heckart and Kennedy appear as the caretaking couple for the place with a girl and her escort, whom they encountered in a restaurant. They say that the girl is a ringer for one Veronica, who lived in the house.

That triggers a traumatic experience for the girl that involves a change in the character of the caretakers and the girl's escort, a trip backward in time to 1935 and a surprise ending.

Certainly not the greatest in the suspense-thriller field but worth seeing.

Jack Palance, long gone to the movies, is coming back to the stage as the star of a new musical, "Shenandoah," based on the film success of that title. He last was here in 1951 in "Darkness at Noon." The musical is about a farmer in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley who refuses to take sides during the Civil War. The show is for early next year.

Henry Fonda, always busy with films and television, is going to devote some time to the theater early next year. He will be a one-man cast in "Clarence Darrow" by David Rintels, which is described as being a full-fledged drama and not simply one of those "readings." Fonda's impersonation of the late noted attorney is scheduled for engagements in Chicago, Washington, D.C., and New York beginning late in January. His tour will wind up in Los Angeles in June.

The Lindsay Crouse who made a stage debut in the off-Broadway "The Foursome" at the Astor Place Theater is a female with a rich theater heritage. She is the daughter of the late Russel Crouse, longtime playwright collaborator of the late Howard Lindsay. They were the "Life with Father" authors, to cite one of many. Now you know why the actress has the name she has.

Advancing The Teenage Image

DARIEN, Conn. (UPI) — Forty Darien High SChool youngsters are changing the lives of people by saving some of them and at the same time they are advancing the image of the American teenager.

Their own image was tarnished nine years ago when a teenage drinking scandal drew national attention to this affluent suburb in commuting distance of New York City.

But Bill Doble, a marketing executive, kept the faith.

He says the single most important achievement of Explorer Post 53. Rescue Squad lies in what it has done to change the image of Darien youngsters.

Reffering to the 1964 drinking scandal that pointed to widespread permissiveness, the balding, soft-spoken Doble says, "their mage was really bad."

But Doble says he was less concerned about the mage of the youth's than he was with his fear of inept emergency services.

"I must admit I set up this team for personal reasons. Thousands of people die each year because of inept ambulance service. In the U.S. the level of first aid expertise and medical rescue is a national disaster," he says.

"Just because an ambulance pulls up to the scene of an accident doesn't mean there's anybody who knows what he's doing. Chances are there's no one. Chances are their knowledge is lacking. So these people kill people," Doble says.

The Darien father of three teenagers likes to see his teenage rescue team as part of an evolution taking place in the medical rescue service.

"Post 53 has attained the highest level of proficiench possible in this country," he says.

It also has secured for Darien youths the highest esteem ever accorded them by the adult population, he says.

"When we started three years ago, people thought we were crazy. The older people didn't think kids could man an ambulance, administer first aid and run a rescue center."

But, he says, young people are cut out for this type of job.

"The truth is they're second to none in learning what has to be learned. They're in school, learning. Put them in another learning situation and they'll keep on learning," Doble says.

To qualify for Post 53, one must have completed the basic first aid training given by Red Cross. An applicant then goes on a waiting list. Because of the long waiting list, however, it has become extremely difficult to become an active member. Also due to its prestige, the squad has become a sort of an exclusive organization.

Fourteen members are Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs), a title earned by completing 81 hours of training given by hospitals for rescue workers.

Doble says he believes Darien has the youngest EMTs in the country since the training is normally not open to persons below 18. EMT trainees are required to pass an examination to be eligible to work as professional technicians.

Post 53's first ambulance was a converted telephone company van. Then through odd jobs the youngsters earned $6,500 and qualified for grants from two local foudations.

Armed with a total of $20,000 the youths brought a brand new, fully equipped ambulance which they maintain and operate under the supervision of Doble and 10 other adults.

The ambulance serves as a backup for Norwalk Hospital's two medical rescue vehicles, and is also on call from the Darien police.

The gleaming vehicle stands outside the squad's headquarters, an old renovated railroad station which the team leases from the town for $1 a year, ready to go at a moment's notice.

Doble says the squad has made over 100 emergency runs since it started three years ago. He points with pride to the team's ambulance as ample proof that Darien's teenagers are equal to adult tasks.

"I'm a believer," Doble says.

Pop Warner Lions Defeat Touted Swampscott, 26-8

When the Pop Warner Youth Football Conference playoffs began, the experts picked Somerville, Billerica or Swampscott as the contenders.

All of these teams were powerhouses in their respective leagues walloping opponents by 30-plus scores.

The Winchester Warriors and the Newton Athletic Association (NAA) Lions were not considered as serious threats. Winchester did succumb to Somerville by a score of 30-6, and Somerville in turn was ousted by Billerica 18-0.

Swampscott defeated East Lynn 14-6 in a special playoff earning the right to meet the NAA Lions of the West Suburban League.

Swampscott, with its bushels of trophies accumulated from four consecutive league and conference championships, was to host the NAA at Swampscott High School, better known as "Title Town: for both high school and Pop Warner Football.

To beat Swampscott is a major upset, to accomplish this feat on their turf is a miracle.

The Lions from NAA not only beat them, but slightly embarrassed them by score 26-8.

The victory vaults the Lions into the finals against the Billerica Indians (11-0-0) at Newton Highlands Playground this Sunday at 1:00 p.m.

Captain Rich Proia has had a super season. Proia scored all of his teams 26 points and out rushed Swampscott's Jim Gershawn 156 yards to 125 yards. Time and time again the Lions offensive unit out fired the defensive unit of the Swampscott Big Blue.

Proia has had to assume the role of work horse for the Lions. Linebacker Barry Gale returned to the lineup only to sustain a slight muscle pull of the left leg on the second series of downs. Proia had to replace Gale at middle linebacker.

Both Brian Kinsella and Proia had super days on defense. Proia also eclipsed the NAA scoring record previously held by Newton South High star, Kevin Hoban. Hoban played for the Lions in 1969 and 1970, scoring 150 points in the latter year. Proia has exceeded that figure by four points and still has at least one game to go.

Swampscott tried to surprise by opening the game with an on side kick which failed when Jim Schmidlein recovered the ball at the Lion 49.

After halfback Paul Butters picked up one yard on the first play, Proia took the ball behind the blocks of Mike Hernandez, Paul Butters, Rich Filler and Shawn Daley and raced 19 yards to the 29. Using that off tackle play as the foundation block for offense, the Lions ground their way down to the three where Proia dove in for a touchdown. Rich also got the conversion points behind the blocks of John Kane, Andy Toyias and Filler. The scoring drive covered 49 yards in 10 plays.

On Swampscott's first series, they moved the ball to the NAA 26 where it fumbled and monster back Kinsella recovered.

The Lions promptly inaugurated a five play 74-yard drive to go two up on the favorites. On the first play from the 26, Proia was stopped after a 1 yard pickup. Paul Butte then carried for no gain. This set up the biggest play of the drive.

Halfback Proia took a pitch out from quarterback Kinsella and faked a sweep. Proia then stopped and threw a 21 yard strike to end Shawn Daley for a first down at the Lion, 45. This seemed to fluster Swampscott as it started to send its linebackers from a 5-3 defense.

Newton vaulted Proia through the line into the secondary on two successive plays of 28 yards and 27 yards for the score. The conversion rush failed, but the Lions had a commanding 14-0 lead.

Swampscott then countered for its only score. Led by the power running of Jim Gershawn, the Big Blue went 53 yards in 10 plays and scored when Gershawn went around end from the one.

A highlight of the drive was the longest run from scrimmage of the day by Gershawn. The play covered 40 yards. Proia caught Gershawn from behind at the one. From there it took three cracks to score. Gershawn also rushed the conversion and at the four minute mark it was 14-8.

The Lions put the game out of reach with their third touchdown of the half. Proia received the ensuing kick off at his own 30 and behind excellent blocking returned it 36 yards to the Swampscott 34. The Lions took only six plays to go the distance; the final play being a 16-yard scamper by Proia over right tackle for the score.

The conversion rush failed, but the Lions had a 20-8 advantage going into intermission.

In the second half, the Lions were victimized by fumbles and relied mainly on the defensive unit to hold the Big Blue in check. In the fourth period, the Lions found themselves back to their own 21 via a holding call.

Expecting the deep pass, the Blue Devils put a hard rush on quarterback Kinsella. Kinsella dropped deep and executed a screen pass left to half back Proia. Rich was forced to one hand the ball but turned down the left side line with Kane, Jim Schmidlein and Joe Donoghue in front. All three blockers took a defender out of the play.

Proia played his blockers beautifully as he allowed them to execute before making his cuts. Proia completed a 79-yard play to make the score 26-8.

Kinsella had a super day directing the attack and varying the cadence. Dave Marcus and Jim Quinn were brilliant at left end, and Marcus is probably the only end-full back in the league.

Kane, Schmidlein and Toyias did an excellent job repelling the backer blitz. Hernandez and Donoghue were standouts at the tackles. Butters and Filler showed fine blocking.

Shawn Daley had a great day blocking, and an equally good one at free safety. Shawn had one interception and just missed on a few others. He also made some good hits coming up. The front four on defense had an outstanding second half after a frustrating first stanza.

Donoghue, Hernandez, Pete Boisvert, Dave McAvinn, and their replacements, Filler, Sean Foley, Dave Mosca and Marcus made numerous sole entries into the Swampscott backfield.

Butters and Quinn were excellent at their defensive half positions. Glenn Erickson and Doug Bullen alternated at the defensive left end position effectively.

The plaudits of the day for defensive efforts have to go to end Jack Forti. Forti continually broke up wide plays and short plays and was excellent as a pass rusher.

The Lions captains voted Forti as the most significant defensive player of the game.

Soccer Team Sets Impressive Marks

By BOB LOW

A 17-game unbeaten streak, a fifth consecutive league title, and a new scoring record were some of the high points in Newton High's soccer season.

The distinctive campaign ended with a disappointing 2 to 1 loss to Masconomet Regional High in a quarterfinal match of the Eastern Mass. Soccer Tournament.

This year's squad was formed mostly from inexperienced players. There were only four returning lettermen from last year's team.

The Tigers' prospects were not good when they were able to win only two of their first five games. Coach Mike Buzzi was displeased with the team's inconsistent play, as Newton would play one good half and one poor half.

Hard work on basic skills payed off for Newton. The Tigers turned around and established an unbeaten streak which extended into the playoffs.

During the streak, co-captain and goalie Mark Wasserman recorded 11 shutouts and the team gave up an average of one goal for every three games.

Newton's unbeaten stretch pushed the Tigers to the top of the Suburban League. Newton finished the season with a four point advantage over Brockton and Cambridge.

Important Newton wins were a 6-0 drubbing of Somerville and a shutout win over Brockton which avenged an earlier defeat. Newton bested every Suburban League team at least once.

Co-captain Rudi Viscomi established two team scoring marks. Viscomi averaged better than a goal a game, and in the final game of the season broke Vinnie Meglio's record for most goals in a season with his 19th tally. Viscomi also set a total points record with 24.

Viscomi scored more goals than all of Newton's opponents were able to make against the Tigers.

Newton was named the ninth seed for the EMass tourney. The Tigers whipped St. John's Prep, 5-0, in their opening game. Viscomi netted two goals while goalies Wasserman and Ricky Olin handled the four shots allowed by Newton's tough defense.

Viscomi scored a third period goal to upend Brookline, 1-0, in the second round.

Top-seeded Masconomet terminated Newton's season and unbeaten streak with a 2-1 win in the quarter-finals.

The Tigers have fine prospects for next season. There will be many returning varsity players. Gaps created by graduation will be filled by players from this year's unbeaten and untied junior varsity.

Suffering Syracuse Fan Gains Final Redemption From B.C. Loss

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Friend Bob has been suffering all fall. Sometimes silently, sometimes not so. He is a Syracuse alumnus and the Orangemen have been doing strange things on the gridiron this fall, few of them involving winning.

Ben Schwartzwalder was taking his swan song about as gracefully as a 1950 automobile streaking down Rte. 9. Huh? Yes, about that smoothly and also wondering when in hell he was going to get there.

Syracuse was 1-8 going into its game with Boston College last weekend. The one victory was not something to get all that excited about.

It was a 5-3 victory over Holy Cross, in what must have been the most yawning football game played since Bucknell-Columbia's 0-0 tie in October.

Which brings us back to friend Bob, the Syracuse grad. Bob has been saying all year, in between silences, that his boys were going to beat Boston College.

The same Boston College which bombed Temple, beat Texas A&M, Navy, Villanova, and West Virginia and almost beat Miami and Tulane.

The only irritating thing about his performance is that he was right.

Syracuse stuffed and mounted the Eagles, 24-13, and killed any post-December dreams of BC fanatics.

Four BC fumbles were the best friends that the Syracuse offense had. The rest of the time it spent running all over the Eagle defense for 339 yards.

The hosts took a 10-0 halftime lead and built that to 17-0 before BC managed to come awake in the third period.

Bob Mitch, Syracuse's unheralded running back, outshone the Eagles' Mike Esposito, beating him on yardage, 98-55. Each scored two touchdowns.

BC's offense really consisted of Gary Marangi's right arm and Dave Zumbach's two hands.

Marangi had one of his most productive days, completing 17 of 23 passes for 233 yards, but none for touchdowns. Zumbach hauled in nine passes.

But the fumbilitis disease on offense and sleeping sickness on defense are the things that did Boston College in and made it seem a rather mediocre 5-4 team.

It was not a game to write home about, unless your name was Bob and you once attended Syracuse. Bob went out for a drink last Saturday night.

\+ + +

Esposito has 997 yards with two games left and 84 points on 14 touchdowns. The school mark for yards in a season belongs to Tom Bougas, 1058.

Zumbach has latched onto 36 passes, to move within Barry Gallup's 1968 school record of 46.

Marangi has 93 completions. The record is by Frank Harris, 139, and Marangi himself is in third place with his performance last year of 117.

\+ + +

This week's foe is Massachusetts, the same Minutemen who upset the Eagles last year enroute to the Boardwalk Bowl. Revenge will be a factor as BC attempts to contain the UMass passing duo of Peil Pennington and Tim Berra.

Game time is 1:30 p.m. at Alumni Stadium.

Championship Tennis Brought To Boston

Four Newton area residents, all active in community tennis programs, are assisting the Youth Tennis Foundation of New England in its efforts on behalf of the $50,000 Commercial Union Masters Tournament, Dec. 4-8, at Boston's Hynes Auditorium.

The four are Harry Kirsch, delegate from the New England Lawn Tennis Association to the United States Lawn Tennis Association, of Auburndale; Betty Hinchey of Newton; Sybil Strong of Newton Center; and Baba Lewis, a widely known tennis figure, of Newtonville.

They are volunteering their services on behalf of the Youth Tennis Foundation which will benefit by a portion of the tournament's receipts.

The Commercial Union (CU) Masters is the final playoff for the top eight finishers in the worldwide CU Grand Prix of tennis, which links major tournaments in 23 countries with a bonus point system leading to individual cash awards of $537,000 at season's end.

This year's field is the strongest in the four-year history of the tournament. It includes defending champion Ilie Nastase of Rumania, Americans Stan Smith and Jimmy Connors, Dutchman Tom Okker, Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, Australian John Newcombe, and Manuel Orantes of Spain, who among them swept every major international tennis title in 1973.

This year, the Grand Prix finale is in the United States for the first time. Previous Masters Tournaments were held in Tokyo, Paris, and Barcelona.

The players are divided into two groups of equal strength and battle in round robin play. The top two players in each group then cross over for an elimination semifinal in which the number one player in one group plays the number two player in the other group and vice versa. The two survivors meet for the championship.

Matches are scheduled for 2 p.m. and 7:45 p.m., Dec. 4-6, leading to the semifinals at 7:45 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 7. The nationally-televised finals will be at 1 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 8.

Ticket prices are $4 and $6 for the first three afternoon sessions; $5 and $7 for the first three evening sessions; and $6 and $8 for the semifinals and finals.

Tickets can be purchased at the Commercial Union Assurance Companies headquarters at One Beacon Street or through any Ticketron outlet. For ticket information, call 725-6138.

In the 17 years since its inception, the Youth Tennis Foundation has raised nearly $200,000 to support its many grass roots development programs.

Girls' Field Hockey Team Ties For Title

BY RICHARD RAUM

Two important factors helped the Newton High girls' field hockey team tie Brockton for the Suburban League championship, a determined coach and a small squad of "never-say-die" girls.

Newton showed great hustle from the start of the season, but inexperience from not playing with each other showed in crucial situations. As a result, they tied Brookline and Cambridge, and lost to Brockton, 2-1.

"We should have won all three of them," said Coach Davis.

Newton proceeded to whip Arlington 2-0, Brookline 3-0, and Waltham 2-0. Its record at this point was 3-1-2. At this point Newton was in close contention with Brockton for the championship. Brockton was one game ahead of Newton.

Newton had to win every remaining game to stay in contention. Every game was played as if it were for the championship.

Newton beat Arlington again and in a close game, scored with winning goal with less than five minutes remaining to beat Waltham 2-1.

Brockton then tied Cambridge Latin, and Newton beat Brockton 1-0 to tie for the league championship. It was determined they would be co-champions rather than have a play-off. This marks the first league championship for Newton in the Suburban League.

The most improved player for the year was right winger, Karen O'Brien. Karen was described by Coach Davis as aggressive and a player who never gives up.

"If her attitude were reflected in every male or female athlete on a team, then that team would win every game," Coach Davis commented.

For the second straight year center forward Allyson Toney led the team in goal scoring with 10. She was helped a great deal by right inner Linda Quintiliani.

"This was an exciting season as well as an interesting one," said Coach Davis. "We had the talent all along.

"It was just a matter of putting it all together. Once we caught fire, there was no stopping us." . . . and nobody did.

Newton North Hockey Squad Hopes For Rebounding Season

By BOB LOW

Newton North High's hockey team has begun organizing itself as it tries to rebound from a disappointing season.

Last year, the team, consisting mostly of juniors, suffered through a 3-14-1 season. This year the prospects are good for the Tigers as the squad will contain many veteran skaters.

The Tigers will also have a new coach this season. Donald Crowley, a social studies teacher at Newton High, will take over from James Ronayne.

Crowley has eight years of coaching experience behind him, having spent six years at Belmont and two at Barnstable. His two assistants will be John Powers and Eliot Feldman.

Crowley acknowledges that he will have a difficult time getting his team ready for its opener against Brookline on Dec. 15. The first opportunity that he will have to see the players skate will be next Tuesday.

This means he will have less than three weeks to select his team and get them in shape. Making his job even harder is the fact that being new, he doesn't know any of the players on his squad of 80 kids.

"I will have to cut the squad down rather quickly," Crowley stated. "I'll have to put the best 15 or 20 players together as quickly as possible. There's so much to accomplish in just three weeks, It's incredible."

Crowley hopes to build his team around a solid defense, starting from the goal and building out. With last year's starting goalie Joe Steele returning, along with defensemen Frank Bodengraven and Cal Moffie, Crowley has the beginnings of a solid defense.

Crowley will also have players such as Steve Donovan, Jeff Senior, Mark Jewitt, and John Connolly back to bolster the offense. Crowley also cited the large number of players from last year's junior varsity who have come out for hockey again this year.

Football Prospects Promising For South

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

When Newton South football Coach George Winkler was asked recently to assess the 1973 football team, he had high praise for his co-captains and the progress made by the team's underclassmen.

"This year's captains, Art Murphy, Tony Lombardo and Dennis Anastasia, have given our team excellent leadership," commented Winkler.

"I was really pleased to see our juniors start to mature as the season went on," Winkler added. "Right now, as juniors, I will say that Greg Moan and Aaron Moynihan are two of the best linebackers I've ever coached at Newton South.

"Halfbacks Kevin Hoban and Peter Nathanson are just starting to come into their own. I'm looking for big seasons out of both of them next year.

"We should also be strong on the line with players like Paul Tormey, Rick Taranto, Joe Donlan and Peter Maples returning," Winkler continued.

Winkler also complimented his assistant coaches for doing excellent work. "In Aredis Kojoyan, Jim Vento and Mark Young, I have three of the best assistant coaches around."

When asked what players have really progressed since the season started, Winkler replied, "Matt Sabetti and Joe Donlan have really come on at the defensive ends." Winkler is confident that both players will make important contributions next season.

Winkler believes that he has four candidates for next year's quarterback. They include Steve Anacandigi, Phil Small, Jeff Lawson and Sabetti.

"They all have potential to be really fine quarterbacks," remarked Winkler. "The one who wants it most will be my starting quarterback."

Although Winkler did not say so, the strongest candidates will probably be Sabetti and Lawson. Both players have already gained experience as varsity signal callers this season. Lawson has a strong arm, but often overthrows his receivers.

Newton South will be losing only eight lettermen through graduation. They include Bob Taglienti, Haskell Kingston, Hal Bennett, Walter Fatini, Tom Sullivan, Murphy, Lombardo and Anastasia.

A strong nucleus of 16 returning lettermen could make Newton South a contender for the Dual County League title next season.

Returning linemen include Gerry Freidi, George Brickman, Tormey, Maples, Donlan, Taranto and Sabetti. Rich Gosman, Nathanson and Hoban will backbone the defensive backfield.

Other veterans will be punter Scott Groper, linebackers Moan and Moynihan and halfbacks Jeff Bennett, Nathanson and Hoban.

Essential to next year's hopes will be the play of Hoban and Nathanson. Both are experienced, solid running backs, and could be ready for fine seasons in 1974.

Star Gazers Can Find Answers At Museum

BOSTON—This winter, there's a lot more up in the sky than Skylab.

Star-gazers who want to know what to look for and where to look will find the answers in a special program at the Charles Hayden Planetarium, Museum of Science. "The Stars of Winter," presented one week only, points out the constellations and planets visible at this time of year, and alerts Museum visitors to this season's special celestial events.

Probably the most impressive sight this winter will be Comet Kohoutek, predicted to be visible to the naked eye during January, "Stars of Winter" will tell where, when, and how to look for this beacon in the sky.

Winter watchers will also be rewarded by the display of several meteor showers, and this season's constellations and planets can make a sparkling canopy over a dark countryside. Beginning with the constellation of Orion as a guidepost, the Planetarium program will identify the other star formations and the planets visible in the winter sky and offer hints to help locate them.

"Stars of Winter" will be given daily from Nov. 27 through Dec. 3. In addition to Museum admission, there is a 50 cents Planetarium entrance fee.

WOMEN GET LESS

NEW YORK (UPI) — European women working in the food, textile and clothing industries are earning far less than their male coworkers, the European Economic Commission said in a recent study covering 1968 to 1972.

Chemical Bank in its Report from Europe said the EEC found differences in hourly earnings between men and women vary as much as 27 per cent in Holland, 22 per cent in Belgium, 20 per cent in Germany, 15 per cent in France, and 13 per cent in Italy.

Pop Warner Title Clash On Sunday

The Newton Athletic Association Lions will meet the Billerica Indians Sunday at 1 p.m. at Newton Highlands Playground for the Pop Warner Youth Football Conference title.

Newton, the West Suburban League champion, will feature hard-running Rich Proia. Proia has scored 156 points this season.

Tri-Valley champion Billerica will counter with Gary Guarino. Guarino has tallied 26 touchdowns. Both teams are 11-0-0.

Volpe Works 18-hour Days As Ambassador To Italy

ROME (UPI) — John Anthony Volpe, the U.S. ambassador to Italy, has been in the job going on one year, plans to spend three more shaking hands throughout this land of his forebears, and then:

"I might like to teach or do some consulting work. I wouldn't want another job where I have to get up at 6:30 and work until midnight or one in the morning every day. But the President told me I'd been running for 60 years and should start walking. I'm going to tell him I haven't started walking yet..."

"If I were 10 years younger," Volpe said in an interview, "I might be thinking of something upstairs but they generally don't consider men for the vice presidency or presidency after they've passed 60 or 62."

The former secretary of transportation and governor of Massachusetts is 64, but he says, "I feel more like 45. I act more like 45 and I run my staff into the ground most of the time but the calendar still shows the year I was born."

Not Much Asked

A first-term diplomat who begins his 18-hour working day with exercises and tall glasses of orange and prune juice, Volpe also told UPI:

—"There wasn't a great deal we asked Italy to do during the latest Middle East war. I can only say we had no differences. I think had the war gone on much longer, there might have been (some)."

—"Probably no nation has been a more effective partner of the Atlantic Alliance on a more sustained basis than Italy. Despite many changes of government over the last 27 years, Italy's support for NATO has been unswerving."

—"I would not be surprised" if Italy became the venue for Arab-Israeli peace negotiations but "I have not discussed this with the foreign minister and I haven't been asked to. As far as I'm concerned, it's only speculation in the press."

Volpe became ambassador to Italy, homeland of his parents, nine months ago.

Traveling Italy

A hearty, vigorous man with an iron handshake and command of fluent Italian, he has been traveling around Italy as much as possible "so people can see what the American ambassador looks like, ask him questions and have a better understanding of what America is all about."

Wearing a dark grey suit, red tie and white shirt with American eagle cufflinks, Volpe relaxed on a cream-colored sofa in his embassy office—a massive salon fairly awash in gold leaf and other decor reflecting the building's palatial origin.

He sidestepped specific comment on Watergate and other events bedeviling his friend of 21 years, President Nixon, but spoke of "my own strong beliefs" on morality in government.

"I will say without getting into specifics that in my private and public career I have tried to conduct myself in a manner that would do credit to America," Volpe said.

"Morality, right from wrong, willingness to work were strong parts of my upbringing. I've been a firm believer that a man himself should be extremely honest and a man of integrity."

But, he continued, "one of the first things you have to do if you're in a position of responsibility is make sure the people around you are (the same) to the degree you can. Sometimes you can't. I've had it happen to me. Sometimes you've selected people you thought were absolutely honorable, hard-working. It turned out they were hard-working and very able but sometimes weren't quite what you thought they might be."

Some Good

Volpe said America's current problems may have a positive effect.

"In conversations with men in Italian political life, they indicate to me that although some people may criticize all that's going on in America, they frankly have to admire that a country our size, strength and power, notwithstanding all that, can stand and go through such crises and still be able to withstand and be even stronger as a result of them. This amazes them."

Volpe, who lost the vice presidential nod in 1968 to Spiro Agnew, recalled his thoughts at the time.

"I had thought of the vice presidency, of course, I would be very dishonest not to say I hadn't. Richard Nixon, whom I then called Dick and now call Mr. President, told me the first week I was one of the four or five men he was considering.

"At Miami I did a lot of speaking. The ball didn't bounce my way. I'm very frank in admitting I was somewhat disappointed. But sometimes I think our wives have a way of looking at things a little differently, perhaps a little more intelligently, than we men do.

"She said to me about four or five days after we got back to Massachusetts: 'You know, John, the dear Lord was really with you in Miami.'"

Volpe said he didn't understand.

"Well, John," she told me, "I've known you for nearly as long as I can remember. I've watched you start your own business. You've been your own boss practically all your life and I frankly think if you were nominated and elected, you probably wouldn't have been a very happy man. After all, history records there haven't been too, too many vice presidents who've been what you'd call extremely happy people in that job."

No Experience

Volpe said "she felt I'd be happier heading a department where I could run a show rather than being vice president, who, after all, is only able to do what the president wants him to do.

"From that point of view, my wife was probably right. The Lord was good to me."

The new self-selection Tagway family shoe store will open at 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 23 at Mal's Shopping Center on Route 1 at Dean street, Norwood. There will be more than 12,000 pairs of men's, women's and children's shoes on open display in the customer showroom.

New Tagway Shoe Store Announces Norwood Opening

Officials of Tagway, a pioneer in the growth of the modern, self-selection family shoe store, announced today that its newest store in Massachusetts is now in the final stages of construction at Mal's Shopping Center on Rte. 1 in Norwood. It will celebrate its grand opening at 10 a.m. on Friday, November 23.

Unlike conventional shoe stores where only a few samples are on display and the remainder are in boxes in a rear stockroom, this new Tagway shoe store will have more than 12,000 pairs of men's, women's and children's shoes on open display in the customer showroom. They will be grouped according to gender, size and style, and the customer is guided through the store to his or her particular selection by a series of large, tag-shaped signs. The customer simply takes the shoes off the shelf and ties them on—thereby eliminating countless and time-consuming trips to the stockroom by a salesperson.

This procedure of self-selection has furthermore eliminated any "high-pressure selling." Sales personnel are available in the store, however, for customer assistance upon request. In the words of one customer, "THIS STORE IS AMAZING. I can take as much time as I need to shop, and nobody bothers me."

Formed in 1972 as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Morton's Shoe Stores, Inc., of Boston, the Tagway shoe is designed for the family who expects a quality shoe but doesn't want to pay the high prices of the family-owned or boutique shoe store. The Tagway chain will have been expanded to 36 stores in a seven state region by the end of this year.

MDC Is Not Sponsoring Rudy Circus

"THE ERONEOUS IMPRESSION HAS BEEN GIVEN BY PROFESSIONAL SOLICITORS THAT THE CIRCUS IS AN MDC-sponsored affair or that it has the support of the Metropolitan District Police organization as a whole. Such is not the case and never has been," the Commissioer concluded.

The Rudy Brothers Circus last appeared in Boston from April 26 to May 2 of this year under the sponsorship of the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association, which had also sponsored it in two previous years to raise money for charitable purposes. A contract was signed in July providing that the 1974 appearances of the circus be sponsored by the Metropolitan Police Patrolmen's Union.

Simmons Club Looking For Used Books

The Simmons Club of Boaton is sponsoring a Used Book Sale on March 5, 1973, in an effort to raise scholarship monies for girls coming to Simmons from the Greater Boston area.

Donations of any type of used book will be very much appreciated. Donors may call the vice president, Mrs. Elaine Baar, at 738-2179 days or 738-6850 evenings.

Other executive officers of the Club are Mrs. Martha Gray, president; Mrs. Miriam Madfis, recording secretary; Miss Ruth Leonard, treasurer; Miss Ellen Marston, corresponding secretary.

Annual Bazaar At Temple Beth Am Dec. 9th

President of the Randolph-Holbrook chapter of Hadassah, Linda Nathanson, and bazaar chairmen Judy Young and Judy Tobman, invite the public to attend their major fund-raising event, their annual bazaar, which will be held on Sunday, Dec. 9th at Temple Beth Am, located at 871 North Main street, Randolph.

Free admission, ample parking, plus the opportunity to shop with the entire family for articles at below retail prices, should make this an ideal day of shopping.

Among the many booths will be: Boutiques, clothing, jewelry, toys, paper goods, plants, handknits, groceries, linens and decorations, to name but a few. All articles will be new with the exception of those for sale at Granny's Attic.

Proceeds from this event will aid Youth Aliyah, the displaced children in the State of Israel.

Grossman Absorbs Materials Supplier

Philip Heald, president of Heald Building Supplies, Inc. and Everett Grossman, executive vice president of Evans Products Company Retail Group, announced today that the Grossman Division of Evans has purchased two Heald Building Supplies' locations, in Worcester, and in Gardner.

According to Heald, his decision to sell was based on his desire to devote full time to his expanding custom shell home manufacturing business.

Heald Homes of Hubbardston was founded in October of 1970 and has successfully manufactured over 100 custom homes to date.

He added that Grossman's with its experience and reputation in the lumber and building materials industry was his logical choice as the company most capable of providing continued service to Heald customers in Worcester and Gardner.

Evans Products Company Retail Group currently operates more than 200 retail outlets, including two new stores opened in California last week.

Grossman said that the company had long been seeking a Worcester location to complement its existing store in Auburn. More accessible to the people on the northern side of the city, the Worcester location at 747 West Boylston St., will offer the same wide range of quality brand name merchandise that is available at Grossman's in Auburn.

It will be extensively remodeled, using all the latest innovations to make it one of the finest self-service building materials outlets in the country.

The Gardner location on Route 2 near the town's center, will bring the utmost in products, service and convenience to homeowners and builders in that area.

It is estimated that both locations will open in early November.

Newton Man Gives Talk

Samuel J. Golub of Newton, an international authority on fabric defects and flammability, spoke recently at an afternoon seminar of the annual fall meeting of the American Society for Testing and Materials, New England District, at the Holiday Inn in Waltham.

Golub said that the "public may soon find itself facing a future of much more costly garments, which at the same time will have drastically limited styles and greatly reduced aesthetic qualities."

Golub, assistant director of Fabric Research Laboratories, Inc., Dedham, the country's oldest and largest independent research and development firm specializing in textiles and related fibrous organic materials, suggested that this situation would "raise interesting questions, such as freedom of choice for the individual as well as how much society can afford to pay in any generation for what may be called social luxuries, however desirable they may be considered.

Bank Joins In Fight To Conserve Energy

In response to the growing energy crisis, Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Co., has announced a major effort to conserve energy.

The bank has 22 offices in 10 suburban towns and cities west of Boston.

"One of the first steps we are considering," Giles Mosher of the bank reported, "is to open many of our lobbies at 9 a.m. rather than 8 a.m. which has been a tradition of the bank for decades.

"Since we are taking away an hour's lobby time in the morning, we feel we must add it in the afternoon to 4 p.m. Since outside drive-up and walk-up facilities have already been open afternoons, we will not be using any more energy at those times, but we will be saving the morning hour. Also, with proposed Daylight Savings Time in effect, we will not be operating in the semi-dark 8-9 a.m. hour."

The bank has consulted with Boston Edison and plans to consult with representatives from New England Electric and WBZ (which created and sponsors the Commuter Computer Clubcar project to reduce traffic pollution). This consultation will enable the bank to devise the best methods possible for conserving energy while continuing to serve its customers, Mosher said.

"We also plan, wherever possible," Mosher said, "to curtail evening hours, especially in those branches which are open until 8 p.m. We plan to cut these hours to 6 p.m. and would appeal to our customers to appreciate our concern and try to adjust to our new schedule. In some instances we will conserve as much as 15 percent of our lobby time and thus the electricity needed to light it and, with lowered temperatures, some of the fuel needed to heat it."

The bank will not change its Saturday schedules, since they are confined to daylight hours.

"We are planning to turn off all electric signs by 8 p.m. at the latest," Mosher said, "and also at 8 p.m. we will turn off the time and temperature indicator and the lights on the high exposure billboard we lease on the Massachusetts Turnpike Extension.

"We have obtained educational material for our employees and plan to have speakers available to teach us wise uses of energy. We also hope to organize employee car pools."

"Being located in the suburbs, we sometimes feel that residents of the city or urban government representatives think that we are unresponsive to others' needs or problems. We plan to set an example that our industry, other industries and our customers can follow.

"All changes will be effective as soon as possible, and a major educational campaign will help to inform the public. We hope we will not offend any customers or disrupt employee schedules, and we are convinced that what we are doing is right," Mosher said.

Auto Transmission Repair Available In Watertown

A new business enterprise, Transco Automatic Transmissions, has opened at 434 Main St., Watertown, to provide expert service on automobile transmission systems.

The automobile repair center, dealing exclusively in the overhauling and rebuilding of standard and automatic transmissions in both foreign and U.S. makes, is owned by Albert J. Gardetto, a lifelong resident of Newton.

The new venture marks Al Gardetto's return to the transmission field in the same location where he had operated an Amco transmission franchise until he sold the business in 1969. Since then, he has been the successful operator of a nationally-franchised retail store for pets and pet supplies, located in South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

He continues his interest in the pet store, Docktors' Pet Center, which is managed by his brother, Stephen Gardetto.

Knowledgeable about transmission repairs and service, Gardetto has gathered together well-qualified personnel, including Foreman Donald Perry, whose transmission expertise traces back 24 years. Manager of the new Transco center is Paul Manning, who also has gained a wealth of experience in the transmission repair field in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Key to the new center, in addition to its modern equipment and technician skills, is its 19-point Diagnostic Master Check, first such service in this area and performed at no cost.

Al Gardetto was graduated from Newton High School, Class of 1950, and then served three years with the U.S. Marines in Korea. Following business courses at Boston University, he was associated as a construction superintendent for Perini Corp.

He resides at 15 Kingswood Rd. in Newton with his wife, the former Mary Driscoll of Brookline, and their four children, Gail, 12, Susan, 11, Jerry, 10, and Cathy, 9.

Plastic Society Honors Fong

Gim P. Fong, director of research and development for Sweetheart Plastics Co., Wilmington, was cited for his contributions to the 17,000-member international Society of Plastics Engineers in the October issue of "Plastics Engineering", the Society's official publication.

In a publication feature, "Special People," Fong's contributions to the Society are cited. A past president of the 69-Section Society, he is currently co-chairman of the President's Planning Committee, the function of which is to review broadly, and recommend any changes in, Society directions or activities.

Fong has held many offices in the Society, was chairman of the Society's annual technical conference when it was held in Boston, was chairman of the Credentials Committee, and vice-chairman of two technical Divisions. He was also president of the Eastern New England Section of the Society. He is a graduate of Harvard, with advanced studies in chemistry at Northeastern University.

Fong lives with his wife, Fay, on Maple St. in Auburndale. They have three sons, Conrad, who attends M.I.T. Graduate School; David, a junior at Holy Cross; and Wayne, a student at Newton High School.

Savings Bond Committee Appoints New Chairman

John J. Nyhan, chairman and president, Garden City Trust Co., Newton, has been named banking chairman of the Massachusetts State Savings Bonds Committee.

The appointment, effective Sept. 28, was announced by John M. Fox, president and chief executive officer, H.P. Hood Inc., Charlestown, volunteer state chairman for Savings Bonds.

He was also appointed by the American Bankers Association as its Massachusetts State Savings Bonds Coordinator, succeeding Joseph P. Healey, president, Middlesex Bank, Burlington.

The Massachusetts Savings Bonds Committee coordinates statewide volunteer activities promoting the sale of U.S. Savings Bonds. Leaders in banking, business, government, industry, labor, media, and the professions constitute the group.

Nyhan will serve as coordinator between the Committee and the banking community, while directing ABA activities stimulating support for U.S. Savings Bonds by bankers throughout the state.

"The ABA and the Massachusetts Savings Bonds Committee are aiming at the same goals," the new ABA Coordinator said.

"Both are encouraging people to save thereby promoting the financial security of the citizens, while helping to strengthen the nations' economy," he continued.

"Over the years, bankers have learned that good savings habits can prepare people for emergency situations, as well as enable them to meet sizeable expenses such as a College education, a new home, a vacation, or retirement," Nyhan stated.

"The Payroll Savings and Bond-A-Month Plans are excellent tools in starting good savings habits," he added.

"All of us on the State Savings Bonds Committee — and in banking as well — will encourage the widest possible participation in these plans."

"In this way we can better serve the needs of our fellow citizens and the economic stability of America," Nhyan concluded.

LESTER A. SODICKSON, has been named vice president and general manager of Damon Corp.'s Research and Engineering Division. He and his family live in Waban.

Newton Doctor Made Chairman

The Northeast Congress each year presents post-graduate education for New England optometrists who have an interest in Optometric Vision Training.

Georgia Prisoners Compose Rock And Jazz Band

REIDSVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — Seven prisoners trudged slowly in single file down a white hall at the Georgia State Prison, hands crossed and folded in front of them.

An armed guard followed them through barred gates and into the office of a deputy warden.

They did not speak, or smile at first. They were clothed almost identically, except for their shoes, in white prison uniforms with blue strips of cloth on the legs. Five were black, two white.

They are the Soul Touchers, members of the prison's rock and jazz band. They have recently cut a single, "Living in Hate," and have a part in the film "The Longest Yard," starring Burt Reynolds and filmed at the prison.

The Soul Touchers had just come from their practice room, a converted chapel with a stage bearing the inscription "But for the grace of God" in the recreational area of the prison.

What it Means

The men became eager as they described what the band meant to them.

"This is the first time that I've ever gotten a chance to express myself in any kind of way," Herschell Thomas said. "In the streets, you know, it's hard times all the time—always bumped around, bumped around, bumped around. Coming to the penitentiary helped me out some by giving me a chance to express myself."

Thomas, 29, a trumpet and saxophone player from Atlanta, said he believes the prison's band has done more to rehabilitate prisoners than any other program at Reidsville.

His dark hands fingered the braids in his Afro, which was neatly parted and sectioned. He said the Soul Touchers have proven that changes can come, and good things can be accomplished within the penal system.

"The system doesn't always have to be down on you," Thomas said. "They'll give you some help if you help yourself first."

"On the Streets"

The band practices about six hours a day, often without the suprvision of guards or prison officials. It is their assigned duty in the prison. The band takes about two trips a month out of the prison, or as they call it, "on the street", to perform for schools and other activities.

Gregory Sparks, 24, a rhythm guitarist and bass player from Statesboro, Ga., sat at the end of the row of wooden chairs, his chin propped in his hand. He said it is important to the band members to demonstrate that all inmates are not alike and do not fit a stereotyped image.

"There are lots of creative guys here, writers and painters and guys like that. And everytime we go out on the street, we are showing the people that all of us aren't running around with horns, cutting one another to death with knives," Sparks said.

Michael Syck, a quiet man with shy eyes and blond hair falling into his face, wrote the lyrics to the group's single, "Living in Hate." He said he was thinking of students being shot at Kent State and of racial troubles he had seen as he wrote the words.

"Being in prison," he said, "you find you're hating a lot more than you're loving."

Mostly, They Hope

But the Soul Touchers do not live in hate. Mostly, they hope.

"We are all trying to seek a better future for ourselves when we get out," Bobby Moore said. "I know I don't want to come back, and I feel like since I've had this opportunity, once I'm free I'll have a better chance in society." Moore, a vocalist and organist who composed the music for "Living in Hate," taught himself to play the organ six months ago.

Moore, a black, said being in an integrated band had helped him learn to make friends and mingle more easily with people. He said one of the main objectives of the members is to encourage other inmates, to stand out and set an example of prison life.

"We feel like we've earned the privilege to be in the Soul Touchers by being rehabilitated —in fact, we are rehabilitated," he said.

For a prisoner to get in the band, his record must be "clean," or free of disciplinary infractions.

Elected Leader

Thomas "Shotgun" Morgan, the band's elected leader and lead vocalist, worked a year to earn membership in the band.

"When I first came," he said, "I thought it was all over for me."

But his eyes were shining. "When you're in prison, you can make the time easy or you can make the time hard. If you show them you are trying to do good, some good will come back to you."

The Soul Touchers are the first prison band in Georgia to cut a record, and they are among the first in the nation to do so.

Kinny Lillard, who at age 43 is the oldest member of the Soul Touchers, arranged "Living in Hate," and the instrumental flip side, "Soul Explosion." He has helped with work on six other original songs.

Larry Youngblood Randall, 22, of Atlanta, always wanted to play the drums. But he never got the chance until he came to Reidsville.

Great Success

Prison officials say the band has been a great success in motivating and changing the lives of the men, and to prove its support, the prison has spent more than $27,000 for amplifiers, microphones, guitars, horns and other equipment during the past four years.

Bruce Brown, an assistant warden, said band members create fewer disciplinary problems than other prisoners and are a great moral booster for the entire population.

Jim Goodwin, athletic director and band supervisor, said, "We're giving them a chance to show us they are changing, that they are rehabilitating, and at the same time giving them a chance to make a contribution to society."

The interview was over. The Soul Touchers stood quickly and prepared to re-enter the prison corridors with their guard.

Thomas, almost as an afterthought, turned and said, "At the end of that article, could you say that the GSP Soul Touchers send their love to the people in the streets?"

"Yeah," several voices echoed. "We send our love."

Reservations Pouring In For Roche Bros. Parties

As hundreds of requests for reservations arrive daily in the mail at Roche Bros Supermarket, it is hoped that dates and locations for individual towns are clarified for senior guests.

The Westwood party will be held on Dec. 12th. This will be the only party of the series held in the evening, by the request of the senior citizens themselves, who wished once again to be entertained at Westwood High School and requested Sal Sava, the accordianist who was as popular with the young volunteers, as with the senior guests.

The volunteers once again will be from the National Honor Society at Westwood High School, and are in touch with the Roche Bros. staff through Gary Love, president of the Society. Seniors from Westwood, whether part of an organized group or not, are welcome and may make reservations with the council on Aging, or by writing directly to Rita Sanford, Box 282, Westwood, Mass. 02090.

The parties for Norwood and Walpole will be held at the fabulous new Americana Restaurant and Echo Lounge, about three minutes drive beyond Walpole Center. Norwood is scheduled for Dec. 2nd and Walpole on Sunday, Dec. 9th, both parties to begin with a happy hour at noon. Guests ae requested to note that the door of the Americana will not be opened before 11:30.

It will be necessary to make known intention to attend and esire for transportation with the Council on Aging, drop in Centers or to Roche Bros. attn. Rita Sandord.

The newly redecorated and restored Americana should be an added treat to the senior guests. Mrs. Chastanet, new owner of the Amricana has very generously donated the facilities to the Walpole Seniors and has made it available to Roche Bros. to host the Norwood Seniors.

Once again Joe Castignetti and Louis Melchionna f Moseley's-on-the-Charles has donated their beautiful ballroom to the seniors of Dedham for a party on Dec. 3rd, also beginning at noon with a happy hour, Dedham seniors may call Cal Neill, secretary to the Council on Aging, 326-1650.

Busing schedules for Dedham will be announced within the next few weeks, by Francis O'Brien.

Students of Dedham High School will offer "red carpet" treatment to the guests

Moseley's will also be the scene for the West Roxbury Senior Citizens Club and the Parkway Seniors Party on Dec. 3rd. Those wishing t make reservations are asked to contact Mrs. Greta Higley of the Senior Citizens or Mr. Meyer of the Parkway Seniors, Junior hosts and hostesses will serve the West Roxbury party from Catholic Memorial High School and St. Clare High.

Parties are also planned for Framingham and Natick senior citizens, the community of the new home of Roche Bros Supermzrkets soon.

Second Time Round For Those Flu Shots

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association (your Christmas Seal organization) is reminding people in certain high-risk groups that it is now time to receive the scheduled second vaccine against the fast-approaching flu virus.

Strains of both influenza A and B will appear in this area sometime around Thanksgiving. Immune or antigenic shifts and changes in structure of the virus render vaccines of past years useless. The first "bivalent vaccine" provided protection against current strains of Type A and old strain of Type B influenza. The second "monovalent vaccine" will contain a recently identified Type B influenza virus.

Flu lowers body resistance and tends to have a snowballing effect on people already suffering from chronic disease. The Lung Association's medical section, the Massachusetts Thoracic Society, recommends immunization for persons of all ages who have such chronic conditions as:

1. Heart disease of any origin, particularly with mitral stenosis or cardiac insufficiency;
2. Chronic bronchopulmonary diseases, such as asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis and emphysema;
3. Diabetes mellitus and other chronic metabolic disorders.

Contrary to earlier indications, the Society does not consider pregnant women as a high-risk group for influenza, unless they also have any of the above conditions. However, in all cases, the family physician can best decide if you should get the vaccine.

Influenza vaccine is produced in chick embryo and should not be given to those who react allergically to eggs or egg products. And, any acute respiratory disease or other active infection is sufficient reason for postponing immunization.

Most children and healthy adults do not necessarily need the vaccine. For them, influenza means such common discomforts as headache, muscular pains, loss of appetite, nausea and fever. By following their doctor's advice and getting plenty of fluids and rest, they almost always experience an uneventual recovery with only minor after effects.

For more information on influenza or lung disease in general, contact your local Christmas Seal organization, the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Book Review

by MICHAEL ALLISON

To look and pass was not enough for Dan Hendricks. And, not surprisingly, it will not be enough for any reader, since "To Look And Pass" is the brand new ovel of Taylor Caldwell.

At the beginning of his life, Dan Hendricks did not have much to look forward to. He was the son of the shiftless village blacksmith, and he was looked down upon by everyone except Livy Bingham, the dughter of the minister, and Jim Marcy, the doctor's son. And then there was Sarah Faire, the beautiful seamstress—and her daughter, the exquisite but hateful Beatrice.

All the children of South Kenton hated the sneering Beatrice. Except for Dan, who seemed hardly to know she was alive; he never looked at her, but only at her mother, Sarah. One day Jim MARCY, SHOCKED, REALIZED THAT Dan was in love with Sarah Faire—and, at that moment, he was shaken by the baleful glee on the face of Beatrice which betrayed to him the evil girl's wicked knowledge and hate.

It was at about this time that Dan found the phrase, "Ma guarda e passa," a Spanish phrase meanng "look and pass." Jim Marcy observed that the phrase had an extraordinary effect on Dan; but it was not for several years that he discovered that it was the philosophy by which Dan led his life. Dan did not want to become involved with petty, cruel mankind.

Yet Dan could not seem to help getting involved. He inherited a sizable amunt of money. He defended several miserable people in the face of the virtuous wrath of South Kenton—he once went so far as to carry a shotgun.

And then . . . Dan Hendricks married Beatrice Faire.

Sarah Faire, Jim Marcy, and Livy Bingham were terrified and tried to stop him. South Kenton thought Sarah was grieved because Dan was a no-good renegade. But only those three knew that Dan must not marry Bee—because of the evil that she was.

Official Opening

The American Restaurant and Echo Lounge officially opened at a festive party. Cutting the ribbon leading to the dance floor and grand dining room are Dr. Chastanet and Mrs. Chastanet as Selectwomen Mrs. John Johnson looks on. (Photo by Chuck MacPherson)

Festive Party Opens Americana Restaurant

Radiant with pride, petite and gracious Mrs. Chastanet officially opened the Americana Restaurant and Echo Lounge in Walpole last Friday evening, with formal ribbon-cutting ceremonies, assisted by Selectwoman, Mrs. John Johnson.

The program began with generous words of praise for a gallant and couragous woman from Father George Gallivan. With a brief a sincere thanks for the wonderful people who rallied to her assistance with disastrous set-backs, Mrs. Chastanet welcomed, one and all, to partake of the bubbling fountain of champagne and hors d'oeuvres, roam through the gracious rooms and dance to alternating bands, a special feature of the evening.

Like bride and groom, Dr. and Mrs. Chastanet whirled through the first waltz, as hunreds of guests were caught up in the emotional moment of triumph, brought to teality through months of incredible work and determination. The program was complete, even to a cake-cutting ceremony, with a three tier cake of appropriate red, white and blue, studded with miniature flags. Well wishers had come from far and near for this special moment, including Rabbi William Kaufman, PhD, of the Congregation of B'nai Israel in Woonsocket, Rhode Island.

The Americana Restaurant & Echo Lounge, in honor of the anniversaries that Walpole and our Country are planning, is exqusitely decorated with rich blue drapes, highlighting the rich creamy white of three walls in the grand dining hall, the fourth wall tastefully harmonizing in a crisp red, white and blue paper. The oval shaped ceiling above the sunken dance floor aglow with soft reflected light, while multi-colored globes added to the charm and elegance of the new gracious rooms.

As with many places of it's era, The Echo has known the passing fancies of time, changing from refinement to a place of the rock generation. Under the guidance of Mrs. Castanet, the flawless accoustics have been completely restored. Under her inspiration it speaks of the dawn of a new era of elegance and dignity, a reflection of her own charm and refinement. The many rooms of the Americana are impeccably decorated in a variety of sizes providing privacy for a bride's personal use, conference rooms for pre-luncheon board meetings of business groups, gracious dining an dancing or huge private parties.

FIRE FACTS

NEW YORK (UPI) — A total of 11,900 persons died in fires last year, an increase of 50 over the total in 1971, the Insurance Information Institute said.

Faulty wiring and electrical equipment were the principal causes of the fires, accounting for more than 38 per cent of the total, the institute said. The economic loss from the fires was slightly above $2 billion.

Chess Chatter

By ANDREW SCHMIDT

By way of introduction in this first column of "Chess Chatter," I will assume the obvious question that will be put forth by the reader, "Who is the writer?"

I can describe myself, as well as the type of reader that this column will be exclusively devoted to, as a chess amateur. For the few of you who know me, you might disagree. You are, you'll argue, president of the Newton Library Chess Club, a nationally certified tournament director, a Newton YMCA Chess instructor, as well as an active tournament player.

But in chess, it is different. The status of amateur is more undefined than in other sports. One can win money in chess and still be considered an amateur. Players on the olympic chess team, for instance, are chosen solely on their ability to play chess, not on their status as a professional.

A chess professional is one who almost exclusively makes his living from the game. A master, regardless of the layman's indiscriminate use of the term, is most precisely defined. He is one who has obtained 2200 points on the national scale. This writer, for instance, currently owns 1405, which classifies me as an average Class 'C' player, several notches from the top, several from the bottom.

This column will appear with an item of current interest as the topic, complete with games from local players.

I invite reader's comments or questions about the game, for the subject is indeed complicated. Whether a first grader, parent, or tournament player, I would like to hear from you. Address your letters directly to me at the Newton Chess Club, Newton Free Library. If you wish, include a stamp for a personal reply.

This week's game is a typical Master-Amateur affair, with this writer paired against a former U.S. Junior Open champion. It comes from the recently completed Sunday tournament in Boston, where your columnist finished third, and this opponent first. Jon Jacobs is a master from New York, currently studying at Harvard. White's 13th is a mistake, and after Black bores his Knight in on K6 on move 17, it is all over, for if 24 NxN then R-R8ch wins White's King rook.

BU Honors Dr. Warren

Dr. Shields Warren, world-renowned pathologist, was named Honorary Chairman of the Boston University College of Liberal Arts Centennial, which begins Nov. 2. The "celebration of learning," a series of social and educational activities, commemorates the College's opening in the fall of 1873.

Dr. Warren graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the college in 1918 with a major in biology. Son of a former dean of the college and grandson of Boston University's first president, he served as a university trustee for 31 years, eight of them as chairman of the board.

He earned his M.D. degree at Harvard and began his distinguished career in pathology in 1927 at the New England Deaconess Hospital, with which he is still affiliated. He was Harvard Medical School professor of pathology there from 1948 to 1965 and, in 1951, became director of the hospital's Cancer Research Institute.

A recent winner of the prestigious Enrico Fermi Award, he was the first director of the United States Atomic Energy Commission's Div. of Biology and Medicine and was chief of the Naval Medical Team which investigated the effects of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings. For eight years, he was the U.S. representative to the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation.

Dr. Warren lives at 301 Otis St. in West Newton.

WORKING WIVES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The working wife has added a second check to family income but disagreement on how it is to be spent can lead to dissension.

So observes W. Scane Bowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Pioneer Western Corp., who said the second income "can actually determine how well a husband and wife get along, matrimonially speaking."

With 46 per cent of the adult female population now contributing to family income, Bowler says "the husband and wife who both bring home the bacon both should have a say about how it is cooked."

Newton College Holds Health Talk

Nancy Hawley and four other members of the Boston Women's Health Collective will speak at Newton College on Wednesday, Nov. 27, at 8 p.m.

As guests of the Contemporary Social Issues Series, they will discuss their book, "Our Bodies, Ourselves," which deals with the biological, psychological, and social aspects of contemporary American womanhood from a women's liberation perspective.

The event is open to the public and free of charge.

Students Enjoy Career Day Visits

By PAULA BARRY
Correspondent

A unique opportunity recently presented itself to high school students in Newton and Needham in the form of two days of Career Orientation. For two days during the week of November 12-16, students spent five to six hours observing or participating in occupations of their choice.

The program, sponsored by the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, aimed to attract people to jobs in fields where there are openings and to acquaint poeple with the industries and businesses in the Newton-Needham area.

The planning stages of the program began last spring with the formation of a committee of chamber members and school personnel headed by Richard Kaerwer. The committee sent letters to the businesses belonging to the chamber, asking them to volunteer to have students placed in their business. The response to this letter was generally good so the committee turned to the task of recruiting students.

They expected to have 100 students, 35 each from Needham High, Newton South and Newton North.

Information was sent to guidance counselors and announcements appeared in the school bulletins. The final result was the participation of 42 students from Newton North.

The placement process began in mid-October with the actual program taking place on 2 days during National Career Guidance Week; Nov. 12-16. Among the fields chosen by students were, Meteorology, Law, Law Enforcement, Special Education, Dental Hygiene, Journalism, and Hotel Management.

Participants were briefed beforehand on the etiquette of businesses, the operation of business machines and the daily routines of employees.

The day after the program students were given questionnaires at a debriefing session at Newton North. The response was 90 percent enthusiastic about the program with suggestions for increasing the number of days spent in the businesses. Many people wanted another session of the program in the spring but due to the time involved in setting up placements, this is impossible. Interested students must wait until next year.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By Barbara Gibbons

Talking Turkey About Calories

Planning your Thanksgiving dinner? Let's talk turkey!

If you have to count calories as well as pennies, the price per pound isn't the only consideration to keep in mind when turkey-choosing. As a Slim Gourmet cook, you want the most turkey and the least calories for your Thanksgiving dinner dollar. That means a re-examination of some generally accepted notions.

Take the topic of size. It's axiomatic that the bigger the bird, the less it costs per pound. But not in calories! Superbirds—those unwieldy giants that need two brothers-in-law and a teen-age quarterback to heft into the oven—contain more fat and calories than younger, trimmer turkeys. Also, as the noble native bird puts on weight, the proportion of valuable body-building protein decreases.

If you think you get "more meat and less waste" with bigger, older birds, you're wrong. Here's how they stack up, agewise, according to data taken from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

CALORIE COUNTERS' TURKEY BUYING GUIDE
(Percentages)

	Young	Medium	Fat
Protein	21	20	18
Fat	6	16	29
Bones	27	27	27
Calories (per pound)	480	752	1,136

"Young" refers to birds under 24 weeks, "Medium-fat" birds are those 26 to 32 weeks, and "fat" refers to larger, more mature birds over 32 weeks.

As you can see, fatter turkeys have more calories and less protein, although the amount of waste remains the same!

BUTTER BASTED?

What about those premium-priced birds that imply they're basted with butter? In some cases it's not butter at all but a conglomeration of vegetable oils (including cholesterol-inducing coconut oil) plus water, salt, chemicals and phony coloring and butter flavoring. The extra cost buys you less turkey and more fat and calories! Quite a bit more, according to a study by Consumers Union.

"The extent of the fat content in some products came as a surprise," states a recent Consumers Reports. "Young birds that might normally contain six per cent fat revealed fat contents as high as 16 per cent in some test samples; in some "the fat was about as saturated as lard."

Here are our Slim Gourmet turkey suggestions:

Avoid oversize, overage birds. Choose a turkey no bigger than you need.

Look for an untampered-with turkey; read the label carefully. Don't pay a premium price for a turkey injected with grease.

Don't add fat. Roast your turkey according to the wrapper's directions. If you must baste, use water, fat-skimmed canned broth, or a broth you've made from the giblets.

Yes, you can make stuffing, but omit the fat and fatty ingredients. Add extra celery and onions, less bread.

SCARVES FOR HOLIDAYS

The holidays mean the start of the cruise season, of winter vacations by air to the islands. That means scarves, say the people at Echo, specialists in the colorful squares and oblongs that accessorize travel clothes.

For wear with pantsuits, especially on ship decks, there's the 64-inch oblong, in a pure silk print of solid color blocks and blocks of mini-dots, to tie around the neck and let the ends blow. Boarding the plane at a cold airport, take a 31-inch square of colorful plaid and tie it over the hair, with the ends knotted low in back, the front across the forehead.

Smaller squares accent a shirt-knit vest layered look in travel costumes by going twice round the neck and then being knotted at the side. Choose stripes, polka dots or an art deco pattern to contrast with the costume color.

By the way, scarves make great gifts, especially a selection of Echo styles in varied colors to cover any costume colors the receiver may wear.

SATIN RIBBON PRACTICAL

Satin ribbon makes perhaps the most beautiful of all trims, but it's always been a bit impractical because it didn't wash. Now C.M. Offray, ribbon makers since 1876, have come up with a completely washable satin ribbon, Century II-Polyester Satin. Yes, polyester does it again.

Home sewers finishing up evening dresses for the holidays can now use satin ribbon trim and know it will be compatible with all fabrics, whether to be dry-cleaned or washed. Polyester ribbon may even bring back the days when costumes were positively hung with them. Of course, that was only for the nobility; English law at one time even said so.

For a free leaflet on using satin ribbon, write Consumer Information, C.M. Offray & Son, Inc., 1411 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10018.

ROMANS MADE WOOL

Archaeologists in Great Britain have been finding well-preserved pieces of woolen fabrics in the buried remains of a Roman fortress town which was an active place around 80 A.D. Most of the 50 samples turned out to be twill, especially diamond twill, a weave still used for its durability. Most of the samples had survived in almost perfect condition.

One piece showed the broad purple stripe used in togas for those of a certain rank. As dyes are usually lost in buried cloth of such age, it makes the sample very rare. The fibers used were practically the same as those of the present day. Some were like current crossbred wool types, while others resembled merino wools.

However, the Romans evidently needed warmer clothes than we do, because they used thicker fibers. Modern heating has made such heavy woolens often unnecessary.

ST. LAURENT COSTUMES A '30'S MOVIE

The 1930's continue to fascinate movie makers. Alain Resnais, leading French director, is now shooting "Stavisky," involving the biggest scandal in the France of that period. It was easily equivalent to Watergate, since it brought down the entire French cabinet and nearly caused a revolution.

Since 'Stavisky" concerns scandal in high places, designer Yves St. Laurent is having a ball with the costumes. Bias-cut black satin evening dresses, long-skirted suits in thick tweeds, full coats with big fox collars, all have the look which is now being re-worked in fashion.

The dresses are particularly interesting, since the 1930's was a great dress era, and St. Laurent carefully reproduces the tucking, puffed sleeve tops, pleats and gores which made silhouettes so graceful. "Stavisky" will undoubtedly give another boost to the current fondness for the '30's.

MEN'S HAIR CARE

Men have always been just as preoccupied with hair as women are, but in recent years their concern has become more obvious. Among men conscious of fashion trends or of the youth image, the possession of ample, if not flowing locks, has become a status symbol.

Unfortunately, it's been so many years since men paid a lot of attention to their hair that few know much about it. Here, women can be helpful. Christmas gifts, for example, could consist of a shampoo and conditioner package geared for their men's hair. Women know all about shampoos for oily or dry hair, for dandruff, and whether a creme rinse or a protein conditioner would be right for his hair.

A hint: long-haired kids need creme rinse, that can flow easily through all that hair. Give the shorter-clipped man a protein creme conditioner.

For more important male gift giving, look over all the warm dryer-styling combs available for men. They make it possible for a man to style and control such styles as the shag cut without having to use the slickum stuff of past years. The best ones come with interchangeable comb and brush heads that comprise a complete hair grooming kit.

GIFTS FOR MEN

Men enjoy fashion gifts with a touch of novelty that says the giver cared enough to look beyond the standard tie. It's not that an accessory shouldn't be useful, but that it should be a pleasure to look at.

Key rings, ordinary enough objects, are practically works of art when styled like miniature padlocks.

Cuff links are classical in shape but unusual in their materials.

"Wallets are another class of gifts given an unusual touch. Instead of the customary leather, they come in navy faille embroidered all over. There is a selection of sizes, including inside pocket and credit card wallets, as well as such smaller items as key cases. The tapestry effect of the embroidered material lends a richly colorful effect more interesting than many leathers.

For the traveler there are flasks encased in monogrammed tapestry, with a leather bottom and flap closing. New, too, is the identification wristband, in white, navy, black or brown leather, with a silver plaque for engraving.

The Hostess With The Prettiest

It's not the hostess with the mostest so much as the prettiest these holidays, dressed in Vasarette's shirt-and-knit dress. A crepe rose-pink shirt is softly tucked. Gathered, fuzzy mohair skirt is flame, striped in rose, lavender and cream. Pink cumberbund sash is accented with white gardenia.

Diamonds Hedge Inflation

Diamonds can be for the ordinary consumer according to the Diamond Information Center, as seen in these pieces which won awards in the 1973 American Diamond Jewelry Competition. On hand, top to bottom, rings by Kurt Gaum of New York, Jo Ann Griffin of Dallas and Angel Castelo of Beverly Hills. On the stocking, hexagonal convertible pin-pendant forming an arrangement of diamond accented mushrooms.

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

When Lorelei Lee, she of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," said that "diamonds are a girl's best friend," she knew what she was talking about. Gems have traditionally been a means of hedging against inflationary times.

At the same time, gems make some of the world's most beautiful gifts. A piece of fine jewelry is one of the few gifts you can never use up and which can actually increase in value.

For Barbara Anton, one of the country's leading jewelry designers, diamonds can be used alone or with other gems. A square of platinum, all paved with baguette diamonds, makes a ring topped off with a 2-carat emerald-cut diamond, while a conventionally round gold ring features an apricot moonstone set in gold leaves and diamond drops.

Barbara likes to do "hand spectaculars," such as an S-curve ring that extends over the knuckle, with a 13-carat cognac diamond at the center, tapering curves set in emeralds and diamonds. Not that she sticks solely to diamonds.

One of her most spectacular spectaculars covers the index finger with a baroque creation of champagne and blue pearls, puts a matching ring on the pinky and swings a chain of gold and pearls between the two.

While Barbara loves rings, she designs all kinds of other pieces. A brooch is created from pearls of many hues set in varied groups amidst a baroque gold setting. Sapphires and emeralds peep from amidst swirling gold leaves on a bracelet whose 35-carat cabochon emerald center lifts to reveal a watch.

According to the Diamond Information Center, jewelers have been concentrating on creating jewelry with small diamonds that most consumers can afford. All their gift suggestions won awards in the 1973 American Diamond Jewelry Competition.

Kurt Gaum of New York links two golden triangles in a ring paved with small diamonds. Joe Ann Griffin of Dallas' zigzag ring is scattered with diamonds, while Angel Castelo of Beverly Hills likes an open free-form shape with a side cluster of diamonds.

ask Susie

By SUSIE McDOUGAL

DEAR SUSIE MAC: After six years of marriage and three kids, my son divorced his wife to marry his mistress. His wife got a pretty fair settlement—the house, the car, the insurance, alimony and child support. She was bitter and wanted to make Norman's life with this new woman as hard as possible. We don't really blame her—we both think what he did was rotten.

Now she says we should give her a regular allowance because we never liked her and drove her husband away. We can't imagine how we could have done this, but we do want to be fair. Do you think she could be right?—EX IN-LAWS.

DEAR EX: If you let this girl take advantage of you like that you've got rocks in your head. She's playing on your sympathy and your guilt for all it's worth, but this time she's gone too far.

I'd say she's pretty well set—she got everything but the gold in Norman's teeth! Tell her to take a hike.

Dear Susie Mac: We have a 16-year-old boy staying at our house, and he always does the opposite of what my parents tell him to do. They try to punish him, but it doesn't work.

Also, since he has come to stay with us, my parents have been quarreling twice as much as they used to. And this boy is always the reason for their fights.

What can I do to get them to see what this is doing to our family?

—Worried Sick

Dear Worried: Enlist the help of an adult friend of your parents. Tell him (or her) what you think, and ask him to talk to your mom and dad. Chances are they don't realize how bad things have become.

It sounds like the boy needs some professional counseling — outside help that your family is not in a position to give.

Dear Susie Mac; my wife is letting our 11-yr.-old son rule the roost. He sasses his mother and me, and only does what he wants to do. She buys him anything he demands—his room looks like a toy store.

Last night he told me to drop dead when I informed him it was bedtime, so I turned him over my knee and walloped his rear. My wife then jumped all over me, said I was killing him and to leave the boy alone.

Needless to say, I spent the night on the couch. Can you tell me how I'm going to stop this nonsense? —Had It

Dear Had It: Parental authority must be evenly divided between the mother and father. You've let your wife bear the burden of raising your son, and now you don't like the results.

Don't take it out on the boy. It's not his fault he's a mess. Join forces with your wife and get family counseling to straightn this mess out before it's too late—for your son.

Women Influence Auto Designs

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Never underestimate the power of the woman in the automotive industry.

First off, of the number of drivers in the United States an estimated 42 to 43 per cent are women, or between 45 and 50 million of them behind the wheel.

Secondly, it's estimated that 21 per cent of car purchases are made by women and certainly she influences further when she and husband shop together for a car.

"When a husband and wife go to a dealer, it's like a flip of a coin on who's the final determiner," said Gene Bordinat, vice president for design at the Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich.

More Color

And because of that feminine influence, the manufacturers have both turned to more color inside and out and also to mechanical changes women wanted.

Even so, the world of actual design still belongs to men, even though the driver may be a wife or daughter more often than hubby.

Donald F. Kopka, executive director of interior design at Ford, counted them on his fingers—two clay modelers, two in trim and color, one in exterior design, and two in the industrial design division."

"I don't think it's a case of discrimination," said Kopka. "It's just that women are not made aware of this area as a career."

Bordinat and Kopka, joined by K. David Ash, also of the company's interior designer division, spoke of women's role during a New York news conference held primarily for reporters in the fashion and home furnishings fields.

Change in Upholstery

One major change was made in upholstery surfaces in the interior because of what some fabrics did to fur. The company calls it the "minking test."

"Several years ago, we discovered that some of our seat materials were pulling the hair from women's mink coats," Bordinat recalled. "The cloth would part just enough to allow mink hairs to penetrate the weave, then snap back when the woman left the car. So we designed a test to detect problem weaves."

The influence women have had on color is one of the greatest, the three men agreed. Two generations ago, they said, the buyer had a choice of two interior colors—tan or gray-and three fabrics.

Now Ford alone has 552 trim sets and figures that, as Kopka said, "what's inside the car is the final selling point."

This Week's Best Buys

Courtesy Massachusetts Department Agriculture

It's no news, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA), that the good old American turkey has changed. Once upon a time, the Pilgrims went out to the woods and shot them wild, tough and scrawny, cooked them, picked out the shot and bones and recycled both, and ate the rest, and that's all there was to it.

Today, turkeys, like American cars, come with a multitude of options, though they all have one thing in common: they're plump, juicy and delicious, and that's all there was to it.

Today, turkeys, like American cars, come with a multitude of options, though they all have one thing in common: they're plump, juicy and delicious, a far cry - or gobble - from their ancestors.

You can buy turkeys male or female; fresh or frozen; with builtin basting, with either corn oil or butter; empty or pre-stuffed; and even with a pop-up thermometer installed to tell you when it's done.

But, like everything else, the options cost more. Every choice and every combination has a price.

Lowest-priced are the plain, fresh-frozen toms, followed by plain, fresh-frozen hen turkeys. Frozen, with a pop-up signal, is somewhere in the middle. At the high end of the scale come the self-basting, or "butterball" turkeys, and priced on a par with them are the fresh-killed, ready to prepare and roast. The price range is not huge - some 16 cents a pound between the least and the most - but that's a savings of two or three dollars for the average family-size, holiday turkey, for doing your own basting, poking, and clock-watching.

A fresh turkey should be refrigerated at once, in a plastic bag. To get it ready for roasting, soak it in cold water for about an hour (not running water, which can remove the natural oils), blot it dry, and prepare for cooking. Be sure to inspect the cavity for extra parts, like neck and gizzard, which are often packed inside.

A frozen turkey should be thawed slowly. If you have the time, put it in a pan, still wrapped, in the refrigerator, and allow about five hours per pound for it to thaw completely. That can take days for a big bird, so this news may come too late. Put it out on the counter, allowing half an hour per pound. Soak it when it's thawed.

When they develop a turkey that's pre-stuffed, pre-seasoned, with automatic basting and a built-in whistle to call you to the table, the men can do the cooking and the girls go to the morning games.

HOLIDAY PUNCH

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make a sparkling holiday punch. Place a block of ice in your punch bowl. Add one fifth each of cognac, pale sherry, sauterne and two quarts of champagne. Sweeten with sugar or syrup. Garnish with thinly sliced lemons and limes and stir only enough to chill the punch quickly.

Too much stirring reduces the bubbles from the champagne.

NEW PONTIAC DEALERSHIP IN NEWTON

UNION PONTIAC, Inc. will be the area's newest automobile dealership when it opens sometime in the very near future, Louis DeBenedictis, President, announced. Ground breaking ceremonies were held at 201 Needham Street in Newton Highlands. Construction on the new building will feature a luxurious new car showroom and complete service, parts and body department with the most modern equipment available.

Mr. DeBenedictis who has been in the automobile business for over 25 years states, "Our location at 201 Needham Street, Newton, off routes 9 and 128 will be easily accessible from all areas. The Service facility will be the most modern in the area including 26 service bays. A great deal of effort has been expended on the service function for your convenience. We look forward to seeing and serving you soon. Thank You."

Pictured at Union Pontiac, Inc., 205 Needham Street, Newton Highlands, ground breaking ceremonies, are left to right Louis DeBenedictis, President and Frank P Marchetti, Company Attorney and associate, and from General Motor's Pontiac Division R. W. Ness, Zone Manager; R. T. Miller Assistant Zone Manager and Roge Ackles, District Manager.

A CUT IN EUROPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The custom of "cutting in" originated in crowded ballrooms and somehow found its way even into polite society. Quite generally accepted in America, it is considered far from polite in Europe.

The Bath Had A High Place In History

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Current preoccupation with the bath—as a room it is second only to the kitchen in influencing home purchase—might lead you to think it an American invention, but consider:

A beautiful young queen some 2,700 years ago enjoyed virtually equal comfort in her palace on the Mediterranean island of Crete. Her palace in the ancient capital of Knossos was said to have been scientifically planned "with all modern conveniences."

Her tub was not too different from the one in your home. Her palace also had remarkably modern toilets, at least one with a wooden seat and a flushing device. The palace had an efficient underground sewage system.

Archaeologists report, too, Syrian palaces of the same period had baths and bathrooms built by civilizations as early as 2,500 B.C. in the Indus Valley, now part of Pakistan, that may have had waterflushed latrines.

"The lesson is that the bathroom is not quite the modern innovation most of us living in the 20th Century think," said Stan Koral, design engineer for Borg-Warner Plumbing Products.

Families today accept the functional bathroom as a fact of life; while many American homes still lack indoor plumbing, the two and three-bath home is becoming commononplace. Eo 6$ is now is on decor and convenience. Fixtures are available in a wide variety of design and color. Paneling and murals decorate the walls. There are baths with indoor gardens, with saunas and exercise centers, baths that serve as complete dressing centers.

The Age of Dirt

"The ancient urge for cleanliness," Koral noted, "did not endure through much of later history. It was many centuries before anything like the Cretan queen's bathroom was repeated in Western civilization."

He pointed out a parallel through the ages between standards of personal hygiene and man's outlook on life. In the early civilizations, down through the Roman Empire, personal hygiene was next to godliness. The comforts of life were valued. The ancient Greeks welcomed the weary traveler with a hot bath.

The colossal public baths of the Roman Empire were the center of social and cultural life. Their grandeur has never been repeated, but in the end they became centers of vice.

And, following the fall of Rome, through the Middle Ages, personal hygiene and the fixtures that made it possible were all but forgotten. This was a period in which people concentrated on man's lowly state, his sins and the hereafter. Dirt was a badge of honor to many early Christians. History records that medieval monks bathed only three or four times a year—some perhaps never.

"Excessive" washing was thought to be unhealthful, foppish and, by some, sacrilegious. Bathing, too, in medieval times, could be an act of penance as well as a ritualistic rite signifying ablution—hence the Saturday night bath of later times in preparation for church on Sunday.

Resurgence of Cleanliness

Interest in bathing began to revive with the return of the Crusaders bearing tales of the joys of the Turkish bath. Public baths, known as "stews," became popular in London in King Richard II's time, and eventually fell prey to vice.

Into almost modern times the fixtures of cleanliness, if they existed at all, were scattered throughout the house. The bathtub might be placed in the kitchen, or perhaps in the backyard. Because hot water was scarce, the whole family might bathe at once, sometimes adding food and drink to the festivity.

There were, of course, exceptions. Some monasteries had quite advanced plumbing. At one time there were said to have been 100 bathrooms in the Palace of Versailles. On the other hand, the first bath in Buckingham Palace, London, was installed in 1837; the first in the White House in 1851.

Koral said the resurgence of cleanliness began to gain momentum in the 18th and 19th Centuries, accompanied by a proliferation of designs for bathtubs, commodes and washstands. While kings and nobles of the Middle Ages often used their "stools" as thrones from which to hold audiences with their subjects, in later times the commode was disguised or hidden away. One model in France was disguised as a pile of dummy books, Koral said.

The Modern Bath

The concept of the modern bathroom, with all the fixtures in one room, came with the introduction of something approaching modern home water supply systems iin the 19th Century.

The flush toilet is said to have been rediscovered in England very late in the 16th Century, but at least two more centuries passed before it was "invented" still again for actual use.

Before introduction of central hot water systems, bath tubs sometimes had their own heaters, fired with wood, coal or other fuel.

The trend toward compact bathrooms, planned and built as such, was spurred after the turn of the 20th Century by construction of hotels with private baths for each room. A hotel in Buffalo, N.Y., is said to hage pioneered this trend.

It was not, however, until the great building boom of the 1920s that a bathroom was routinely included as part of each new dwelling unit. Korval added:

"One only hopes that civilization doesn't go full cycle into a new Age of Dirt."

Christmas Toys

By PATRICIA Mc CORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rich Uncle Louie sends his little nephew, seven, a 10-speed bike for Christmas. A nitwit salesman told him the lad will grow into the bike. Christmas the poor boy cries, pouts and kicks the bike.

In another living room this Christmas day there's more of same. A little girl opens a surprise package from a distant, doting relative. It's very expensive perfume, skin moisturizer cheek blusher, eyeliner. A saleslady said little girls verging on teen-age would be delighted with such a gift.

White elephant gifts to children at Christmas or any time leave no traces of delight in their eyes or hearts. To avoid being the giver of a useless gift to a child, all you out there — uncles, aunts, friends and grandparents—bone up on interests at varying ages. To wit·

For babies under 18 months. A baby needs brightly colored, lightweight toys. They should be washable, too big to swallow and free of sharp corners. When baby creeps or walks it's time for push and pull toys, musical or chime toys, animals on wheels, little wagons and the first small doll carriage.

—From 18 months to three years, the toddler age, the Toy Institute suggests; clay to poke, pat and roll. Simple musical instruments from tambourines to toy pianos. Simple phonographs and blocks of different sizes and shapes. Big hollow blocks make wonderful play houses and forts.

—From three years to six years. Children like to act out g r o w n-up roles. Young housekeepers need toys resembling the more complicated appliances such as a vacuum cleaner or cooking sets—for boys or girls, to avoid sex-stereotyping. Transportation fascinates boys and girls. Trains, trucks, cranes, planes and boats. Tractors, ditch diggers.

—The six to nine age. Suggestions: racing cars, work benches with real tools, construction sets, indoor games of chance or skill, board games of all kinds. Handicraft sts with weaving or beadwork are suitable for boys and girls. Kits of all kinds—ships, car engines, planes. These are days when sports interests bud. Anything in the baseball, football, tennis line goes over big. The same for roller and ice skates and bigger bikes. But no 10 speeds yet, please.

—Grown children are in the nine-to-12 age groups. They go for real hobbies. Science toys stimulate their natural curiosity. Careers in the making can be nurtured through model building or harder construction sets. Knitting, cooking and making clothes for themselves intrigues the girls. Painting, sculpting, ceramics, playing musical instruments, and reading from an enormous range of books are other ways older children show their deep interests.

After the age of 12, to be sure you don't fail in the role of good gift giver, ask the boy or girl for a list of things. To keep the surprise element, select one. To avoid disappointment, repeat: ask for a list.

Bill Bixby No Actor In Private

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bill Bixby and his wife of two years, Brenda, are a two-house family with a weekday home in Brentwood and a Malibu Beach hideaway for weekends.

Bixby had two houses before he was married.

He has a long lease on the Malibu pad which he has redesigned and redecorated over the past few years. A carpentry freak, Bixby shingled the entire exterior of the beach house and made most of the furniture.

The actor has built a modest shop in the garage and has fashioned some beautiful pieces from driftwood collected along the waters edge. He sands the wood carefully and varnishes the finished furniture to bring out the grain.

A former lifeguard in Detroit, Bixby doesn't have much time for the surf. Usually he can be found studying his script for the new show, "The Magician," out on the sand hoping to get a sun tan.

When Bixby and Brenda were married he sold his comfortable bachelor's house and, with Brenda at his side, went shopping for a new abode.

He says, "I figured if we were going to start a life together we should begin with a house that was ours instead of mine."

With that philosophy, he sold all his furniture and other possessions. So did she. They forgot the past and began building for the future.

Their new home has two bedrooms and is decorated in soft earth tones. Brown is the predominant color of the carpets and draperies. When they buy something for the house it is always a joint enterprise.

Early Riser

Bixby is up every work day at 5:30 in the morning. A housekeeper fixes Bill's breakfast while his wife sleeps in. She enjoys cooking and isn't put off by the unusual hours her husband keeps.

It is generally 10 o'clock or later when Bixby gets home from the studio. His wife prepares her own dinner at 5 p.m. and cheerfully cooks a gourmet supper for her husband five hours later.

Bixby has become so accustomed to the regimen that one Saturday he got up at the usual hour, showered, shaved and dictated three letters before he realized he didn't have to work.

He has lost 16 pounds since beginning the series, mostly through the expenditure of nervousenergy and performing the physical demands of the character he plays who seems to be almost always on the run.

Bixby once played golf two or three times a week. Now he has neither the time nor the desire. He relies on his work to provide him with sufficient exercise.

The Bixbys have his and her pets. His dog is a mutt who answers to Crash. His cat is named Pud. Her dog, also of mixed parentage, is C.J. and her cat is Skidoo.

The couple would very much like to have a baby. One pregnancy ended in a miscarriage.

The Bixbys are almost antisocial. Neither of them are gregarious. Given a choice of attending a chic Hollywood party or remaining at home for a game of backgammon, they would opt for backgammon every time. Brenda, incidentally, is much the better player of the two.

Next time you see someone polluting, point it out.

It's a burning dump. It's a smoking car. It's litter in our parks.
You know what pollution is.
But not everyone does.
So the next time you see pollution, don't close your eyes to it.
Write a letter. Make a call. Point it out to someone who can do something about it.

People start pollution. People can stop it.

A grade point average of 3.5 on a scale of 4.0 is required for the distinction.

Kaye is a 1970 graduate of Newton South High School, where he was a student government representative and a member of the foreign language honor society.

A senior majoring in French, he served as treasurer of his sophomore class and chairman of the foreign film club.

Arthur Miller's 1950 adaption of the Henrik Ibsen drama will be performed in the Hiram College Hayden Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 19, and again on Oct. 25, 26, and 27.

Traditionally, "An Enemy of the People" has been set in the late 19th century in a small Norwegian town. However, since the play examines several timeless and universal themes, the Hiram production takes place any time near the present in an unnamed place outside the United States.

"The play is both vastly entertaining and a compelling powerhouse of a piece," says David Fendrick, artistic director. Reservations may be made by calling Hiram College Theatre Department, 569-3211, ext. 251 or 222. Admission is $2 either by reservation or at the door.

Alex Landy, son of Mrs. Estelle Landy of 130 Dedham St., Newton, has been named to the dean's list at Boston University's College of Liberal Arts.

A grade point average of 3.5 on a scale of 4.0 is necessary to qualify for the distinction.

A sophomore majoring in sociology, Landy is a 1972 graduate of Newton South High School.

Miss Candace L. Fisher of West Newton is one of the 524 members of the Class of 1977, the entering freshman class at Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley.

A graduate of Newton North High School, Miss Fisher was a candy striper in the Newton–Wellesley Hospital. She is recipient of the Wendell Bauckman award. Also, she is granddaughter of Genevieve Clark Fisher, who graduated from Mt. Holyoke in 1910.

Miss Fisher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Champe Fisher of 43 Prince Street.

VOL. 103 NO. 48 | NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1973 | PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Intersection Plans Reviewed

Functional improvement plans and cost estimates for the first project of TOPICS (Traffic Operations Program to Improve Capacity and Safety) were reviewed by the aldermanic Street Traffic Committee this week, bringing closer to actuality the implementation of traffic improvements recommended over the past two years.

The $846,000 estimated cost will cover the installation and-or upgrading of traffic and pedestrian signals, channelization of intersections to improve traffic flow, and the installation of signs and pavement markings.

The 10 locations selected for improvement first are intersections in the Centre St.-Winchester St. area, Washington St.-Centre St., Centre St.-Centre Ave., Washington St.-Route 128, Commonwealth Ave.-Washington St., Washington St.-Walnut St., Beacon St.-Centre St., Commonwealth Ave.-Centre St., Washington St.-Watertown St., and the Crafts St.-Walnut St area from California St. to Linwood Ave.

This week's review of the plans for improvements in these locations will be followed by one or more public hearings on the project, Street Traffic Committee Chairman Matthew Jefferson said at the meeting.

At the outset Ald. David Jackson proposed that in the review of the program prepared for the state Department of Public Works by Tippetts-Abbett-McCarthy-Stratton (TAMS) be included a policy that no new signaling be approved with a flashing walk indication that misleads drivers into thinking they have the right of way over pedestrians.

There was some argument among members of the Street Traffic Committee about the advisability of improving certain intersections without regard for traffic preceding and following those locations.

Ald. David Cohen advocated the "systems approach," in which signalization of each intersection would be considered in relation to other intersections near it.

Cohen, who has been mentioned as the probable new chairman of the Street Traffic Committee in the next Board of Aldermen, favored establishing a "Green Wave" on some streets to speed traffic flow.

Paul Thorn, TAMS representative at the meeting, and Jackson explained that the TAMS plan had not been geared to the systems approach. Jackson said, "We'd have to start all over again."

The pedestrian traffic problem at Newton Corner received considerable attention at the meeting, as Newton Corner Citizens' Committee President Anton Pruckner commented that the TAMS report appeared to him to be directed toward vehicles, with little thought being given to pedestrians.

The long-held dream of Newton Corner residents for above-grade pedestrian crossings over the heavily congested area was given new impetus when Jackson said, "I look at this two ways — TAMS now and long-range solutions in the capital improvement program."

Jackson is chairman of the City Planning Committee, which is responsible for reviewing the long-term plans and financial commitments of the city.

Update Revaluation In Committee

By DANIEL BARKIN

A Revaluation update, stainless steel toilets, and a general housecleaning occupied the members of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen Monday night.

An eleventh hour visit by Paul Reinhard, revaluation supervisor from the firm of Cole, Layer, and Trumbull, drew the largest crowd of the evening, as various aldermen sought further clarification of the revaluation process, now entering its second week in the West Newton area.

None of the questions fired at Reinhard caught him by surprise, as he dispatched each query with patience. Using improvised props, Reinhard assured Board President Eliot Cohen that each "lister"–the individual charged with the responsibility of detailing all aspects of a household–would possess proper identification, easily verified by a suspicious homeowner at Cole, Layer, and Trumbull offices in the City Hall basement, or with a phone call to the Newton Police.

Reinhard cited as "false" a prevalent belief among some Newton home-owners that home and property improvements made after the visit by the revaluation lister would be excluded from the final appraisal of the property.

Assessor Phillip Waterman interjected that the revaluation team intends to maintain close tabs on the issuance of building permits during all phases of the revaluation program.

President Emeritus Wendell Bauckman touched off a flurry of challenging questions, directed at Reinhard, when he raised the issue of revaluation personnel uncovering zoning violations, and possible courses of action. Reinhard discounted the use of revaluation personnel in directly aiding municipal agencies seeking to zero in on zoning transgressions.

Extend Aid To Newton Junior

Financial aid for Newton Junior College has been extended for one more year.

The Newton School Committee voted unanimously Monday night to extend the date for withdrawal of municipal funds to the college from June 30, 1975 to June 30,1976.

An overflow crowd of 220 people at Bigelow Junior High School applauded the Committee's decision.

The School Committee had voted last Jan. 2 to declare the intention to terminate funding in 1975. Newton Junior College President Charles W. Dudley made an appeal before the School Committee Nov. 12 to allow the college one more year.

Dudley's hope and argument has been that the Newton Junior should be kept intact so that the state may possibly take over the school as part of the community college system.

School Committee members seemed dubious about the proposal two weeks ago.

A meeting with state Secretary of Education Joseph Cronin last week in the office of Mayor Theodore D. Mann appears to have changed several School Committee members' minds.

School Committeeman Herbert Regal and state Sen. Irving Fishman suggested to Cronin that Newton Junior might serve as an interim campus for Mass.Bay Community College from September, 1975 until approximately 1980.

Mass. Bay is planning an expansion from its present Watertown campus to the Elizabeth Seton campus in Wellesley. The Wellesley campus is projected to hold 2500 students, but construction will not be completed until 1980.

Mass. Bay's lease in Watertown expires in June, 1975. Mass. Bay's present 1750 enrollment will move to Elizabeth Seton in September, 1975.

It is hoped that Newton Junior could serve as an interim campus until Elizabeth Seton is completed. At that time, Newton Junior's 450 full-time students could be incorporated into Mass. Bay's projected 2500 enrollment.

Cronin stated that the proposal would receive serious consideration. Encouragement was also received from William G. Dwyer, president of the Board of Regional Community Colleges.

Regal made a three-part motion to the School Committee. He proposed that Newton Junior accept an entering class for September, 1974; that the date for withdrawal of funds be extended one year; and that city officials, state legislators, and state education leaders work together to bring Newton Junior under state control.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink stated that he thought the motion appropriate.

"I hope that the School Committee will support the motion and help incorporate Newton Junior College into the state education system," Fink commented.

Fink also added a word of warning. "It is important to note that Newton Junior College becoming a part of Mass. Bay Community College is not a certainty.

"The transition will have to be included in the state budget," Fink continued. "We will have some indication of whether the plan will succeed next fall."

Newton Junior presently costs Newton taxpayers $508,000 a year.

Dudley stated in a letter to the School Committee that June 30, 1976, may be considered a final date for municipal funding of Newton Junior. He assured the Committee that extension of the college will not become an annual request.

School Committeeman Franklin Frazier expressed new hope for Newton Junior's future.

"I was encouraged by the Secretary of Education's attitude," remarked Frazier. "I'm very cynical when it comes to money, but if Newton offers Newton Junior College to the state rent free, that is a powerful argument the state will listen to."

After the Committee voted to extend Newton Junior, Mann proposed that the college facility be offered to the state as an interim campus for Mass. Bay, rent free if necessary.

The motion was passed unanimously.

Several School Committee members reported that they had received many letters and calls from citizens urging extension of the college.

Lasell Jr. Gets HUD Grant For Student Union

Lasell Junior College in Auburndale has received a contract for a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to aid the college in constructing its new student union building.

The college will have to submit its new site plan for approval by the city, under an amendment to the zoning ordinances proposed by Alderman Louis Egelson, which was passed by the Board of Aldermen Nov. 19.

All educational and charitable institutions will now be required, under the amendment's provisions, to obtain approval of parking, access, lighting, landscaping, and waste storage and disposal, for new construction and expansion of existing facilities.

Previously all such institutions were exempt from all city controls.

While the city cannot deny a petition from a school for new or expanded buildings, according to City Solicitor Howard Levine, the Board of Aldermen may impose reasonable conditions and restrictions, such as those covered by the amendment.

The building, which has been a subject of long neighborhood controversy, will be built on the Maple street site, preferred by the college over several other alternate locations suggested by the neighborhood.

Neighbors of the college objected strenuously to the Maple street plan, fearing increased traffic and noise would result.

Since early last spring, members of the college administration and neighbors who formed a group to oppose construction on Maple street have been meeting to try to iron out differences.

The college steadfastly maintained that as far as it was concerned, Maple street is the only feasible location for the new 60-by-100-foot facility, which will house a competition-size swimming pool and an area for social gatherings.

The HUD grant will pay a portion of the interest on the mortgage during the life of the mortgage.

The letter to the college from Edward T. Pollack, acting area director of HUD's regional office, confirmed the grant agreement, pointing out, however, that HUD would approve a change in location of the building without additional environmental clearance information.

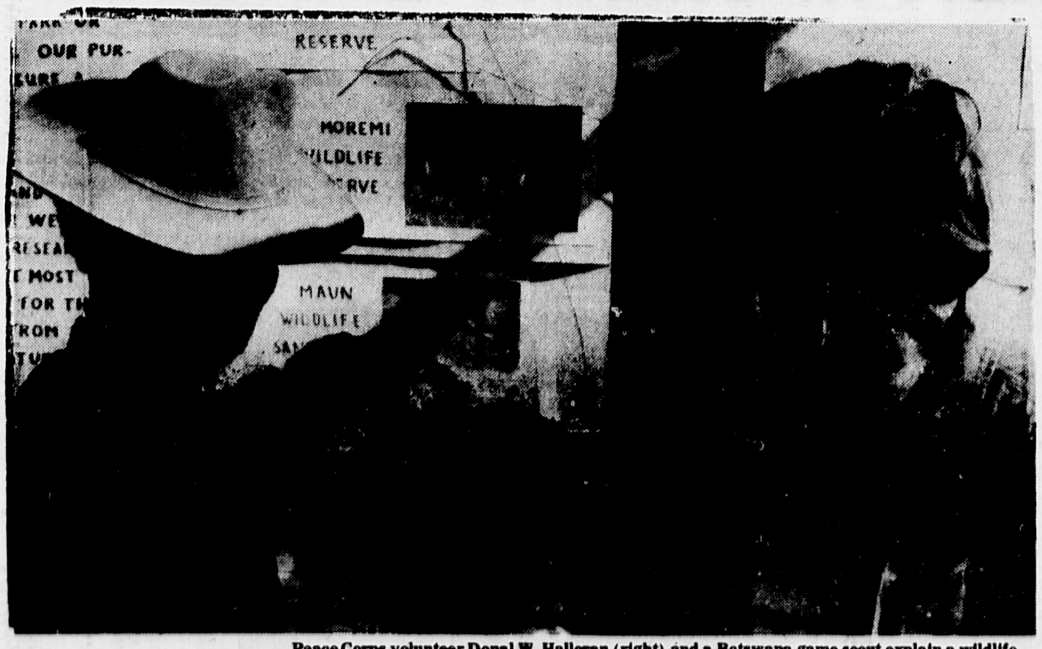
Botswana Wildlife In Hands Of Newton's Halloran



Conservation

Peace Corps volunteer Donal W. Halloran (right) and a Botswana game scout explain a wildlife education display to a youngster at one of the African nation's trade and agriculture fairs. Halloran, 40, who grew up in Newton, is spearheading a major wildlife conservation education effort in the Botswana schools.

The abundance of wildlife in the poor, sparsely-populated southern African republic of Botswana is one of the country's greatest natural resources.

Tribal hunters rely on wild game for meat, and sport hunters and photo safari tourists bring needed revenue into the country's coffers.

A fifth of the Texas-sized country–a greater proportion than any other country in the world–is set aside as game reserves and national parks.

But if Botswana's wildlife is to be preserved against the steady encroachment of man and his roads, towns, farms, cattle, traps and guns, the citizens of Botswana–and particularly the young people–must know the importance of wildlife in their national heritage and environment. Donal W. Halloran, 40, now of Granton, Wis., a conservation author and lecturer and University of Wisconsin zoology instructor, is tackling this vital wildlife education job as a Peace Corps volunteer in Botswana.

A University of Massachusetts graduate who grew up in Newton, Halloran taught high school science in the Salem, Ore.; Salt Lake City, Utah; North Adams, Mass. and Rochester, N. Y. public schools.

His job now, as a Peace Corps volunteer, is to work with the Botswana schools to make wildlife conservation an integral part of their courses.

With him in Gaborone, capital of Botswana, is his wife Mary Joyce, 36, a registered nurse who is teaching at Botswana's government-supported school of nursing. A Holyoke, Mass., native and graduate of the Holyoke Hospital School of Nursing, Mrs. Halloran also is serving part-time as the Peace Corps staff nurse for the 90 volunteers serving throughout the country.

Halloran came to Botswana early this year after more than seven years of teaching at the University of Wisconsin Center System's Marshfield-Wood County campus in Marshfield. He entered the Peace Corps under a joint Peace Corps-Smithsonian Institution program to recruit high-level volunteers in the natural sciences.

Because of his lengthy college and secondary school teaching experience and broad involvement in conservation work, Halloran was tapped to establish and direct a wildlife conservation education program in the Botswana schools under a grant from the African Wildlife Leadership Foundation.

Halloran's plans for the schools include both special programs, which he and his aides will stage for the children, and revisions in the science curriculum to include more environmental education. He has been meeting with school headmasters and teachers to learn how he can help them with visual aids, workbooks and special presentations, and to get their advice on integrating conservation into ongoing biology, geography and development studies courses.

"I'm purposely going slow because I'm trying to get a feel for what will work in this country," Halloran said. "Working with the kids should be fairly productive. They're receptive to a lot of things.

"What I'm trying to stay away from are one-shot things. I'd like to go three or four times to one school in a period of several weeks. I would give the kids some small project, like looking around for signs of erosion, and come back and see what they came up with. We're going to broaden this project out beyond wildlife, because you can't talk about wildlife in a vacuum."

A skilled photographer, Halloran has been traveling to game reserves and national parks to photograph animals and plants for his school presentations.

"The teachers don't have a chance to get out and travel around the country. We're free to do that," said Halloran, who is serving under the auspices of Botswana's Department of Wildlife and National Parks.

A planned revision in the country's secondary school science curriculum has provided another opportunity for Halloran's wildlife conservation education efforts. Botswana education authorities are interested in giving higher priority to environmental education in their new

Bag Lunches Sag

Elementary school lunches will probably improve by next January, after a meeting Tuesday of school principals, School Department personnel, and the city Health Department nutritionist.

Complaints about the cold lunches served at Newton's 23 elementary schools have been numerous since the program began in the fall of 1973.

Not so much the quality of the lunches, which consists of a sandwich made at the high schools, plus a package containing fruit and cookies from a local chain grocery store, has been the issue, but the selection of sandwich filling.

The bag-lunch program has lost 50 per cent of the children who first bought lunch at school in many schools, according to one source in City Hall.

The "new" lunches will feature more of what the children seem to prefer.

Gone will be the cheese-and-tomato, egg, and brown "tuna paste" sandwiches.

Instead, the favorites — roast beef, submarines, and sliced turkey — will be served once a week and the second-best — pastromi, bologna, and peanut butter — will get frequent replays.

The new lunches will cost the city about two cents more per meal, almost 70 cents against the old figure of almost 68 cents.

Each child pays 40 cents, including milk. The state pays 14 cents of the total cost, leaving the city holding the lunch bag for almost 16 cents per child.

One principal complained that the 16 cents per child the city was willing to spend on lunches is more than he is allowed for instructional material per child.

At Tuesday's meeting at School Department headquarters, only four school lunchroom managers appeared, apparently due to lack of notification about the meeting.

The Cholesterol study of seventh-graders, done last year, was touched on briefly. Doctors who participated are expected to reveal the results soon.

John Gilleland, director of Support Services asked when the hot lunch, which was supposed to be in all Newton elementary schools by the fall of 1972 but was allowed by the state to be postponed, would be in all schools, said he could not promise, but he is "optimistic" about next September.

Chief Perkins Receives Award

Fire Alarm Operators of Chelsea and the Mutual Aid Center in Newton were accorded high praise in ceremonies conducted during the Fifth Annual Chief's Night and Open House at the quarters of the Boston Sparks Association, Inc., last week.

Chelsea Chief Herbert C. Fothergill and Newton Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., coordinator of Fire District 13, both accepted citations from Boston Sparks Association President Dennis E. Williams paying tribute to Fire Alarm personnel from both cities during the Oct. 14 conflagration which occurred in the City of Chelsea.

These awards were presented before over 60 chiefs from Metropolitan Boston fire departments in recognition of the vital role played by communications in summoning the army of firefigters and apparatus marshalled to control and extinguish this disastrous fire.

Newton Chief Perkins was singled out for his significant contribution of being prime motavator in establishment of an inter-city radio network of comunications linking the metropolitan area for prompt and efficient operations in the event of such emergency, the value of which was so well proven in this instance.

Boston Chief George Paul commented on the assistance rendered his department by the Boston Sparks Association, particularly through its association with the Salvation Army Mobile Canteen Unit.

State Fire Marshal Joseph G. Sneider commented on the cooperation extended his office by the Sparks and other local "Buff" groups throughout the year, especially in the area of fire prevention.

Morris J. Torf of Chelsea, recently elected president of the International Fire Buff Associates, Inc., announced plans for the Annual I.F.B.A. Convention which will be held in Boston on July 10,-13, 1974. Convention Chairman Henry A Brennick of Malden presented to the Chiefs a brief outline of the convention format and solicted their cooperation for this endeavor.

A buffet was served following the showing of color slides of various scenes of the Chelsea Fire taken while in progress and the two recent aircraft accidents at Logan Airport.

CATV Group Seeks Candidates

Attorney Burton Kreindel, chairman of the Newton Committee on CATV and Cable Communications, announced that the committee is seeking the names of candidates for consideration as members of Newton's permanent Cable Advisory Commission.

The Commission, to be formed early in 1974, will be responsible for informing and educating the public regarding cable communications, for preparing a general assessment of Newton's cable needs, and for preparing recommendations for Newton's policy towards the cable.

Kreindel noted that, "as required under state regulations, the Commission should reflect the social, political, educational, cultural and economic make-up of Newton."

"We are searching for capable people in the fields of technology, finance, education, public service, and the law as well as for persons experienced in community action and social service", he said.

Persons interested in serving on the Commission should send a brief, one page outline of their background, interests and capabilities to Mr. Howard Salwen, Chairman of the Membership Sub-committee, 28 Grove Hill Park, Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

In a report submitted by Dr. Kreindel to Mayor Theodore D. Mann earlier this year, the committee maintained that "the establishment of citizen control through community supervision of cable communications is perhaps the most significant step which could be taken to assure the achievement of the cable's potential and the exploitation of its developing technology for the benefit of the city."

Attorney Krendel said that final selection of the Commission's membership by Mayor Mann will be based on recommendations made by his committee.

He urged all interested citizens to participate in the search for suitable candidates by submitting capability statements to Salwen.

Conservation Commission Meets Dec. 19

Mrs. Alexandro Dawson of the Conservation Law Foundation of New England, Inc., will brief the Conservation Commission, members of the Assessing Department, and others on assessing policies and procedures for land affected by conservation restrictions at the commission meeting Wednesday, Dec. 19, at 8 p.m.

Under Massachusetts law, assessment of land under a conservation restriction granted by a landowner to either a governmental body or a charitable corporation must reflect the decrease in value for development purposes.

The annual property tax on a restricted parcel should be less than if the restriction had not been granted.

A conservation restriction carries the intent of retaining a specific parcel of land predominantly in its natural scenic and open condition, in agricultural farming or forest use.

All Conservation Commission meetings are open to the public.

Korde Talks At Wheaton

Shirish Korde, of Perry Rd., Auburndale, and a faculty member of Boston's Berklee College of Music, will give a lecture on "Indian and Contemporary Music" at Wheaton College in Norton on Thursday, Nov. 29.

A native of Uganda, with roots in India, Korde was a recipient of a grant for research in East African music.

Korde is currently a member of Berklee's composition department and is responsible for developing and instructing a seminar in Indian music at the college.

Prior to his joining the faculty, Korde served with the instructional staff of the Maynard and Needham Public School Systems and the Cambridge Center for Adult Education.

Shirish Korde is married to the former Margaret Gleason. The couple have a son, Sanjit, 4-years old.

What To Do With City Incinerator

With the deadline for either closing the Newton incinerator or bringing it into compliance with air-quality standards only 13 months away, no decision has yet been made about what to do with Newton's 70,000 tons of solid waste yearly.

Bids soon will be invited on two approaches to solid waste management.

Letters have already gone out to 12 firms to determine their interest in taking over the city's solid waste problems, whether by building and operating small incinerators in the city, building a resource-recovery plant, or hauling the rubbish out of the city.

Before inviting bids on the incinerator, the city administration must wait for approval of the state Department of Public Health of the functional specifications for incinerator upgrading submitted by the Arthur D. Little Co.

According to a letter from William F. Cass, director of the Metropolitan Boston Air Pollution Control District, confirming the city's intentions on meeting the Dec. 31, 1974, deadline, the contractor must be selected by March 1 for whatever method of disposal is chosen.

Construction of a new facility or installation of an abatement system for the incinerator must be started by April 1.

Walter Smith of the state Public Health Department said this week that he expects to have completed his review of the incinerator specifications by the end of this week.

Smith will also have to approve the bid chosen by the city.

The decision as to which method of disposal the city should undertake will be a collaborative effort between the mayor and the Board of Aldermen.

James Salter, assistant to Mayor Theodore Mann, explained this week that the administration is "reviewing cost considerations for all forms of disposal," although bids will first go out only on upgrading of the incinerator, while proposals are being solicited on other methods.

The Arthur D. Little Co. was engaged by the city last year to do a study on the city's solid-waste management. The report, presented in final form in August, recommended shutting down the incinerator, using the transfer-haul system as an interim measure and eventually turning to resource recovery.

ADL recommended strongly that the city not undertake the building of a resource recovery plant, at a $6 million cost, by itself.

The mayor will at some point submit his recommendation on which approach to take, together with the request for the necessary appropriation.

The Public Works Committee of the Board of Aldermen will then either approve the administration's plan or suggest its own in a recommendation to the full Board.

"I think we have all been moved by the sincerity, poignancy, and authenticity of what we have heard in letters and phone calls," commented School Committeeman Richard Douglas.

Douglas urged Newton Junior students not to feel that they have been treated with indifference and inattention. "There has been continuing effort during the past six years to get state support for Newton Junior," Douglas added.

School Committee member Eleanor Rosenblum appealed to people to continue to support Newton Junior. "It is important to stay with the issue after it leaves the School Committee," Mrs. Rosenblum commented.

School Committee member Joan Needleman suggested that Newton Junior students not living in Newton also be urged to support state takeover of the college.

If Newton Junior becomes part of Mass. Bay in July, 1975, the intended funding which the School Committee voted Monday may be paid by the state rather than the city of Newton.

When School Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith asked for audience opposition to extending Newton Junior, defeated School Committee candidate Sumner Silton was the lone volunteer.

Silton stated that it was unfair for the city to continue to subsidize Newton Junior students, when other Newton college students do not get the same benefit.

In other action, the School Committee voted unanimously to extend the Christmas vacation through Friday, Jan. 4, in an attempt to conserve fuel. Depending on the number of snow days this winter, the three additional days may be made up in the spring.

Mann announced that the city has obtained a sufficient amount of no. 2 fuel for the winter after receiving notification of a 20 per cent cutback from its principal supplier.

Mann is attempting to find out if businesses in the community have room in their tanks for stand-by fuel.

Lasell Gets Grant (Cont. from page 1)

The letter says that "in view of the fact that you will face substantial community opposition to the development of this site, we want you to be aware that this office would approve a request by you for a change in the location of the project to either the so-called Hillside site or the Nason site."

The Hillside site, located within a large block of the campus and not directly on a city street, was preferred by the neighbors, but the college determined that building costs would be prohibitive.

Dean James Pollock of Lasell said Tuesday that the college will proceed as quickly as possible to file a site plan with the Planning Department.

An advertised public hearing is required to be held before the Planning Board and the Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen.

Citizens For Life Discuss Abortion

The use of social conscience and political action to control the practice of abortion were advocated at a recent meeting of the Newton chapter of Massachusetts Citizens for Life.

Dr. Joseph Stanton of Newton, associate clinical professor of medicine at Tufts University Medical School, and Dr. Mildred Jefferson, assistant clinical professor of surgery at Boston University School of Medicine, speaking to a group of about 300 persons at Our Lady Help of Christians church, both emphasized the politics of abortion.

Stanton noted that an amendment to the budget for the Agency for International Development, prohibiting the use of AID funds for the practice or promotion of abortion in foreign countries, was passed through the U.S. Senate unanimously, yet was not reported in major Boston or New York newspapers.

Stanton reported last week that the amendment is in a joint House and Senate conference committee before being sent to the House.

Pro-abortion groups are working to have the amendment thrown out, Stanton said, and "It will be a large blow to the elitist pro-abortion forces" if the amendment is defeated.

Stanton said there is an extensive abortion network in this country that is supported by foundation funds.

Stanton also criticized the American Medical Association for its policy stating that as long as doctors follow state law on abortion they will remain in good ethical standing with the association.

Referring to recent guidelines on sterilization that he said were recently printed in the Federal Register, Stanton said he fears that abortion soon will become a "function of the state."

"If the forces of population control, abortion, and sterilization persist, America will have nothing meaningful to say to the rest of the world," Stanton said.

Stanton explained his anti-abortion position on humanitarian and medical grounds.

Stanton said that if the absence of brain waves is accepted as medical proof of death, the presence of brain waves, which have been recorded at 41 days' pregnancy, should be considered as proof of life.

"Beats in the circulatory system" have been recorded at 21 days, Stanton said.

The three common methods of inducing abortion - dilation and curettage, suction, and saline injection - all are inhumane, Stanton said, "most probably" with pain caused to the fetus.

According to the Supreme Court decision, Stanton said, the unduly broad interpretation of maternal health, both physical and mental, allows abortions with no time restriction.

Laws are needed to protect the fetus in the second and third trimesters, Stanton said later, and expects the Massachusetts Citizens for Life to file such state legislation shortly.

"Respect for innocent life, perfect or imperfect, wanted or unwanted, is at once the privilege and responsibility of a civilized and humane society," Dr. Stanton added.

Dr. Mildred Jefferson questioned the selection of 21 election districts in 1972 to test the feeling for repeal of laws against abortion.

"On the ballot, repeal was favored by 55 per cent to 45 percent against," Dr. Jefferson said, "but only on the basis of 21 districts."

The question on the ballot should have been "Is compulsory pregnancy justifiable?", Dr. Jefferson said, changing the emphasis to the quality of life.

"But we cannot have a high quality of life based on violence and a willingness to kill," she said.

"For those who say abortion is just another medical procedure, I say, 'Why don't you treat it as a medical procedure?' We examine all other medical procedures minutely," Dr. Jefferson said.

Dr. Jefferson does not believe that population control is necessary. "Don't go by New York and Boston - look at Iowa and North Dakota. We should take care of the cities, the pollution, the consumption of our natural resources, and there will be no need for population control."

Blacks Seek Separate Center At South

Blacks at Newton South High School have petitioned the school administration for the establishment of a black Educational Center at the school.

At a meeting of the Black Student Union last week, attended by members and their parents, black students formally asked Superintendent of School Aaron Fink and Principal Van Seasholes to set aside a room at the school where blacks and whites would be able to learn about black culture.

The main issue appeared to be whether the school should set aside a separate room for the Black Educational Center.

The school administration was concerned that a separate room might result in something like a private club, where whites would not be welcome.

A Senior representative to the Black Student Union, Larry Benders, explained this week that black students at South High want a separate room for their Educational Center, but could not say whether they would settle for something less.

Fink commented early this week that he would favor "a place that would encourage greater knowledge of black culture, if it were shared with whites."

"I am not opposed to the idea of a separate place — but I have no judgment on a separate room," Fink said. "Anything that will eliminat hostility between the races I'm in favor of. But if a private room will separate the races, then I'm against it."

Newton North High School has a separate room for their black educational center.

Benders, who said the NSHS Black Student Union had been in contact with the NNHS about its black educational center, commented that apparently the room at Newton North "was not working."

At NSHS, Benders said, the idea would be to have the room open to whites, with the hope that they would join blacks in learning about blacks, their products and their culture.

One black parent who attended last week's BSU meeting said he "came away feeling optimistic."

The parent said he thought that Fink and Seasholes focused on two important things in the meeting — the climate in Newton South and what the school is trying to accomplish.

Several students have described the climate at the school as "unhealthy."

What is meant by "unhealthy" can probably only be described by black students, but ranges from harassment to complete lack of sensitivity to being black.

There are about 50 black students at Newton South, according to School Superintendent Aaron Fink.

At NSHS, according to one BSU source, the only black studies course is Black History.

The Black Student Union, with membership of almost all the black students in the school, was formed to meet together to discuss problems of the school as they relate to blacks, the student said.

One area not entered into officially by the BSU was the recent rejection of three black students from casting for "Look Homeward, Angel," the final Drama Department offering of the year, because of unsuitability of blacks in the 1930s Southern setting.

Seasholes said this week that a review of the policy had been carried out Tuesday, with the result that a "strong policy statement was issued that hereafter acting ability would be the only criterion" for casting in the future.

Seasholes also commented that his "first fear about the Black Educational Center was that it would not be open to whites."

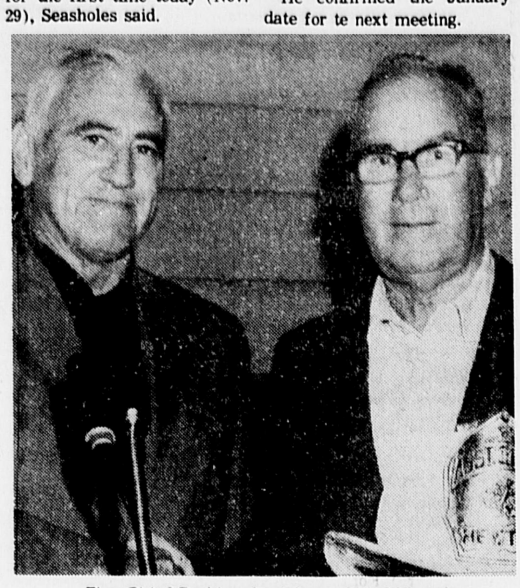
"There must be component in it that would make it attractive to white students," he added

A faculty committee set up to look into establishing the Black Educational Center will meet for the first time today (Nov. 29), Seasholes said.

According to Larry Benders, the BSU will meet with Seasholes and Fink in January, with the faculty committee meeting at times until then, when the BSU will give the administration its final suggestions.

Seasholes said Tuesday, "The kids are pushing for a quick decision. I hope we will give a fair and just decision. I'm optimistic."

He confirmed the January date for te next meeting.



Fire Chief Perkins And Asst. Chief Murphy

Chief Murphy Has Retired

Assistant Chief Henry L. Murphy retired recently from the Newton Fire Department after 42 years of service.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Chief Frederick Perkins, Chief William F. Quinn and 150 friends, neighbors, firefighters and police officers gathered to pay their respect for his lengthy term of service.

Mayor Mann presented Chief Murphy with a plaque on which his hat and shield were mounted, along with a figure of a firefighter and an inscription attesting to his 42 years of service.

Chief Frederick Perkins presented Murphy with his own white helmet, and Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department also presented the retired chief with other gifts, including a gold police badge.

When asked if he had participated in any of the big historical fires, Murphy said he had, but that he was proudest of the efforts of his men in controlling the smaller fires that were put out "before they became big and famous."

Chief Murphy entered fire service in 1931, appointed lieutenant 1938, captain, 1943, assistant chief 1949. He had, as a first assignment the old Castle Inn fire, and other major fires were the Totem Pole, Parke Snow, Elliot Church, Horace Mann School and the Newton Highlands Grain Mill.

Also present: Judge Monte G. Basbas, Ralph Garrett, former State Fire Marshall, Retired Chief John Cocoran, Chief William Hanson, Needham, Chief Edward Cloonan, Waltham, Dept. Chief Thomas Joyce, Watertown, Retired Deputy, Chief Louis Collela, Captains Larry Smith, Philip Coakly, Deputy Chief William Dwyer, Captain William Greeley and John Chagnon, all of the Newton Fire Department.

From the Newton Police Department: Captain Walter Drew, Lt. Robert Mahoney, Retired Officer Joseph Greeley, and Lt. William Nally of the Massachusetts State Police.

Parking Ban

The ban on all-night street parking is being rigorously enforced as the snow season approaches, Sgt. Charles Feeley of the Newton Police Department reminded residents this week.

Cars may not be parked on the streets between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. in order that snowplows may clear the streets.

The ordinance is generally relaxed during the summertime, Feeley said. A short warning period was announced two weeks ago, during which time warning cards were issued instead of tickets.

Violators are now being given $4 tickets.

DR. ALLEN H. STORM of Newton Centre has been appointed associate medical director for New England Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Award Given

Philip Waterman, C.M.A., of Newton, was honored twice recently at the annual meeting of the Association of Massachusetts Assessors.

Waterman was presented the Zangerlee Award by the International Association of Assessing Officers for editing the best assessor's newsletter in the United States.

Waterman was also elected to the executive committee of the Association of Massachusetts Assessors.

Traveling Meals Names Coordinator

"Traveling Meals of Newton," a nonprofit organization for the delivery of hot meals to shut-ins, has named Mrs. Dorothy Gordon and Mrs. Marilyn Wittrup as coordinators.

Mrs. Gordon, a resident of Newton Centre since 1950, has had extensive experience in social work and community service in Chicago, Minneapolis, New York, and Boston.

Since then, Mrs. Wittrup has served as Circle Chairman and Chairman of the Christian Education Board and of the Ways and Means Committee at the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre.

In February of this year, Mrs. Gordon received a Neighborhood Award from the National Conference of Christian and Jews for "outstanding service and contribution to good human relations in the community."

Mrs. Wittrup, of 47 Fellsmere Road, Newton Centre, has been prominent in many volunteer and fund-raising activities in Kentucky and Chicago before coming to Massachusetts six years ago.

Volunteers who would like to become "meal wheelers" and bring food and friendship to members of the Newton community unable to shop or cook for themselves, may call Traveling Meals of Newton, 332-3360 or 332-7691.

Those wishing information on any aspect of this program are also invited to call.

Republicans To Discuss Issues

The Issues Committee of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee will hold an open meeting in Newton Thursday, Dec. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at the Pomroy House.

Notices have been sent to members of the Republican city and town committees of Newton and Watertown, which make up the eighth senatorial district.

In announcing the meeting, State Committee Chairman Otto A. Wahlbar pointed to the complaints about the 1972 Platform hearings alleging lack of discussion and debate on the issues.

"To prevent a repetition of this situation," Wahlbar declared, "we have decided to conduct a series of issues meetings throughout Massachusetts.

"I would hope that active and interested Republicans will attend these meetings and offer their constructive thoughts concerning the great issues confronting us."

Arranging the Newton meeting are Robert Semonian and Katherine F. Bruce, area state committee members, and Mrs. Maudyea Campbell, Mrs. G. M. (Gussie) Swift, and Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury, associate members of the Republican State Committee.

"911" Calls Only For Emergencies

Newton Emergency Telephone Number "911" is now in operation is for emergencies only, Chief William F. Quinn announced this week.

The Chief stated that "911" has been inaugurated to improve emergency services and if callers on nonemergency calls use this number some person in a dire emergency may be denied assistance.

He continued, "All police business should be conducted by calling 244-1212, and at no time in fairness to other citizens and residents should an emergency number be used."

Quinn went on, "We realize that each person can and should decide on the priority of his or her crisis, and if necessary use 911, but any business not of a crisis nature should be conducted by way of 244-1212 number."

Prejudice

An audience of about 30, most of whom are connected to city government in one capacity or another, attended a "public meeting" held by the Community Relations Commission last week.

The announced topic was to have been "Two Cultures, One Community: Jews and Christians in Newton," but prejudice in all its aspects was touched on by the slide presentation and the panel discussion.

Perhaps fortunately, the many people who did not attend missed very little.

Moderator William Ramsey, CRC chairman, kept trying to get the real issues of prejudice out in the open for honest talk.

Instead, the need for "consciousness-raising" and the background of prejudice occupied most of the discussion period.

Only in a few brief sparks struck by a priest and a rabbi on the panel did some of the real feelings of prejudice come through.

The priest, who said he doesn't read a newspaper everyday or watch television news, felt it is "making a mountain out of a molehill" when Jews resent being blamed for the oil shortage.

The rabbi said that the prejudice against Jews is the only prejudice based on religion, and that all others against whites are based on nationality.

What went wrong with the meeting is hard to tell.

Maybe people are afraid to speak openly and honestly in such a relatively formal setting. Maybe there is a desire to avoid hurting the feelings of others. Maybe there is a reluctance to face prejudice in oneself.

A woman in the audience said she had heard that Newton South High School is "a Jewish ghetto."

She talked to the administration at Weeks Junior High School about this and was referred to William Geer, NSHS principal. Since Geer left his position shortly thereafter, she has not spoken to anyone there about "the Jewish ghetto," she said.

Then she asked, "How can we learn when nobody goes to meetings like this?

Lower Electric Bills?

The big thing about the four hour daily voltage reduction that started Monday is that it was not noticeable.

But it may be in the ways that benefit many the most, your electric bill might come down.

It should. The four hour afternoon-evening voltage reduction means that you are not getting the same amount of power that you formerly did.

The cutdown is part of the New England-wide electrical utilities reduction that will give a grand assist, it is hoped, to saving fuel in the midst of the energy crisis muddle.

The Boston Edison company says that the 5 per cent voltage reduction is not perceptable. But the spokesman admits some housewives may have noticed during the cutback time that it took just a little bit longer to toast a piece of bread or grill a steak if they used electrical appliances.

So if the husband complained tell him to save his energy and simmer down. Because the lower voltage should mean a proportionate cut in his electric bill. But that too, like the power reduction, might be hardly perceptable.

At least the power companies are considering applying the reduction to your bills whenever possible.

"THIS COULD BE THE DRIP HEARD AROUND THE WORLD."

Political Highlights

Congressmen See Nixon Out Within Six Months

Several well informed members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress now predict privately that President Nixon will resign within the next six months and that Republican Congressional Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan will become President.

It is possible but unlikely that Congress will follow the suggestion of Boston Mayor Kevin H. White and call a special Presidential election for next November. Experts on constitutional law say that can be done, but members of Congress do not appear disposed to do it.

Bay State members of Congress report that President Nixon is now working hard to head off impeachment but express the opinion that it's no longer possible for him to do so.

"It's a matter of too little, too late," one Congressman told the writer. "He can't turn it around now."

A Congressman who has been sympathetic to President Nixon declared Mr. Nixon is in serious trouble and that there will be more disclosures damaging to him.

He indicated that these new revelations will involve the methods used by persons close to Mr. Nixon to obtain contributions for his campaign for reelection.

The Congressmen pointed out that the House Judiciary Committee is proceeding carefully and deliberatly on the impeachment petitions and that $1 million has been appropriated to finance the impeachment proceedings.

Gerry Ford, picked by Mr. Nixon to succeed Spiro Agnew as Vice President, was among those who voted to provide the $1 million.

Some of the meetings President Nixon has held with Republican Congressmen and Senators have proved to be stormy sessions, with a number of the GOP visitors to the White House refusing to follow Nixon's leadership as far as impeachment is concerned.

President Nixon learned during his conference that his popularity and prestige are at a very low ebb in Congress even with members of his own party.

Senator Edward W. Brooke was just one of several prominent Republicans who bluntly informed the President he should resign.

Senator Barry Goldwater, who at times has defended President Nixon, used strong longshoreman-type language to tell him that the only time he calls in Republican Congressmen is when he is in serious trouble.

Some Republican Congressmen appear fearful of voting against the impeachment of Mr. Nixon lest such a vote be made an issue against them which would result in their defeat for reelection next year.

While impeachment by the national House is, in effect, a finding that the President must stand trial in the U. S. Senate, most of the Congressmen questioned believe Nixon would resign rather than go through the ordeal of an impeachment trial in the Senate.

They expect that Nixon would step out if he is impeached, and they now consider impeachment is certain.

The Democratic-controlled House Judiciary Committee, which also has held hearings on President Nixon's recommendation that Gerald Ford be named Vice President, is moving slowly, carefully and deliberately in its consideration of the impeachment petitions so that it will not be open to claims of playing partisian politics.

But the Massachusetts Congressmen and other experienced Capitol Hill observers predict that in the late winter or early spring the President will be impeached.

Some Democratic Congressmen are opposed to confirming the appointment of Ford as Vice President. They would like to see House Speaker Carl Albert become President. But Albert will have no part of that idea. He will not allow Congress to adjourn for the year until Ford's appointment has been confirmed. He does not want to be President.

If the Massachusetts Congressmen interviewed by this writer know what they're talking about —and there is sound reason to believe they do—we are living in a truly unusual period in American history.

Richard M. Nixon was elected President in 1968, and he gave a reasonably good administration. His accomplishments on the international front were remarkable. He greatly improved our relations with Red China and the Soviet Union, substantially strengthened the likelihood of peace in the world and lessened the danger of a nuclear war. He ended the war in Vietnam and brought home our prisoners.

Nixon was overwhelmingly reelected a little more than a year ago, carrying 49 of the 50 States and failing only in Massachusetts where he never has been popular, a throwback probably to his first Presidential fight with John F. Kennedy.

To be sure, many of the people who voted for Richard Nixon in November of last year were voting against George McGovern. But a vote is counted the same, regardless of the reason it is cast.

Now proceedings are underway which apparently will culminate in the impeachment of Richard Nixon for things which were totally unnecessary to accomplish his reelection.

An interesting question has been raised as to whether Senators such as Edward W. Brooke who have called for the resignation of President Nixon should be allowed to sit in judgement on him if he is impeached in the House and tried in the Senate.

Congressmen to whom we put that question replied that in their opinion it is strictly academic, that Nixon will not stand trial in the Senate if he is impeached in the House, as they believe he will be, but instead resign and return to private life.

Richard Nixon apparently waited much too long to begin the fight to save his own political life.

Brooke, Nixon Clash On Elliot Richardson

President Nixon used some rather strong language about Elliot Richardson during an exchange with Senator Edward W. Brooke at the White House.

An account of the dialogue between Nixon and Brooke sounds very much as if Nixon for reasons of his own was trying to knock Richardson down and damage his reputation.

An unusual aspect to the situation is that Brooke and Richardson have not been close politically and, in fact, were opponents for the Republican nomination for Attorney General in 1962.

The arguement between Brooke and Nixon started when the President told a group of Republicans he had invited to the White House that Richardson had been "with us all the way on the Stennis compromise until he talked to Cox and changed his mind."

Richardson has declared repeatedly that he accepted the so-called Stennis compromise on the use of the tapes but that he had opposed the White House order prohibiting Cox from taking further court action to obtain the tapes. This, of course, caused him to refuse to fire Cox.)

When Nixon told the assembled Republicans that Richardson had changed his mind, Brooke spoke up and said in substance: "Mr. President, let us distinguish between the compromise and the prohibition. I talked to Elliot, and he told me he accepted the compromise, (which I told him was a mistake), but that he could not take the prohibition."

"He did not tell the truth," answered President Nixon, drawing gasps of surprise from his GOP audience.

"That is incredible," countered Brooke. "What reason would he have for lying to me."

Nixon stood firm, insisting that his version of Richardson's original position in the controversy over the tapes was the correct one. "I haven't made this public because I didn't want to hurt him," the President declared.

At a subsequent White House meeting of another group of Republican Senators and Congressmen, Nixon not only reiterated his claim that Richardson had changed his position on barring Cox from taking court action to obtain the tapes but called on his aide, General Haig, to corroborate what he had said about the former Attorney General.

Haig, known as a sharp critic of Richardson, declared that Richardson, far from opposing the idea of limiting Cox, had actually been the author of the idea.

That was too much for Senator Mathias of Maryland. "But, Mr. President," Mathias said, "Richardson told us in sworn testimony before the Judiciary Committee that there were two proposals, one of which he could not accept. This is incredible to us."

"His memory is inaccurate," replied President Nixon who went on to say he "understood" Richardson's actions "because he wants to be Governor of Massachusetts."

There is no evidence whatever at this time that Richardson is as anxious to become Governor of Massachusetts as President Nixon intimated.

Richardson has been urged by a group of influential Bay State Republicans to come home and oppose Governor Sarget for the GOP gubernatorial nomination next year.

He turned down the idea, asserting that he would not seek the Governorship if Sarge, a distant cousin, stands for reelection.

Richardson would have become Governor if he had stood for reelection as Lieutenant Governor in 1966 instead of shifting his sights to the Attorney Generalship and helping a fellow Republican named Francis W. Sargent become the Republican nominee for Lieutenant Governor.

That was Elliot Richardson's big mistake in political strategy if the Massachusetts Governorship is his top objective, as President Nixon indicated.

Is there really going to be a massive backlash against monster cars because of the current energy crisis?

I can't answer that question, but have, as is true of most people, been reading about increased orders for compact cars and small foreign autos that have already surpassed the manufacturer's capacities.

The Graphic, firmly behind everybody pitching in and helping out as was indicated in our recent editorial, this week received further "tips" from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on greater gas mileage.

Before I pass them on, I'm curious, readers, as to how you feel about this "energy crisis" and what we in Newton can and are doing about it. How about an "opinion" for this page immediately to my right?

Completely Black

As far as the EPA suggestions go, we've already heard about 50 m.p.h. as the maximum speed, that idling is bad and that cars have to be tuned, so we'll skip those and go to a few more EPA revelations.

–Even if the frontal areas of two automobiles are the same, the one with the more streamlined shape will have less drag and use less fuel during highway driving.

–Use of radial tires results in about a 3 per cent improvement in fuel economy when compared to conventional, non-belted bias tires.

–A numerically lower axle ratio will result in a better fuel economy compared to a higher value. (Now I'm really in over my head).

–Fuel economy gains of more than 10 per cent during cruising conditions are possible with overdrives. (I give up).

–Convenience devices that have a negative effect on gasoline mileage include: air conditioning, automatic transmission, and power brakes, steering, seats, windows, sunroofs and convertible tops.

–At 40 m.p.h., badly broken and patched asphalt roads can cause a 15 per cent fuel economy penalty. Gravel causes a 35 per cent penalty. (So who goes barreling over badly broken asphalt and doesn't fall right out of their car?)

–The maximum grade on most interstate highways is about 5-7 per cent. Going 50 m.p.h. up a 7 per cent grade results in a fuel penalty of 55 per cent relative to the same speed on a level road. (I'm reaching for my slide rule).

Vehicles equipped with catalytic converters designed to meet the statutory hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emission standards are expected to improve fuel economy over 1973 vehicles by up to 12 per cent. (That does it).

EPA data on the specific gasoline mileage rates of the most popular 1974 cars is available from EPA's circulation branch, 401 M. Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20460.

If you're thinking of buying another car, maybe you'd like to check.

A $400,000 Home For Two Chinese Pandas?

CUFF NOTES:

Perhaps we don't know a good thing when we see it, but we're not enthusiastic about paying our share, however small it may be, of the $400,000 bill for building a home at the Washington, D.C., zoo for the two pandas which Red China gave to the United States last year.

If the Arabs persist in cutting off their oil supplies to the U.S. to punish us for siding with Israel in the Middle East crisis, why don't we retaliate by stopping our wheat shipments to them? We also could seize the money the Arabs have deposited in U. S. banks. We're acting like a lot of patsies while the Arabs flex their oil muscles at us. It's about time we flexed our muscles back.

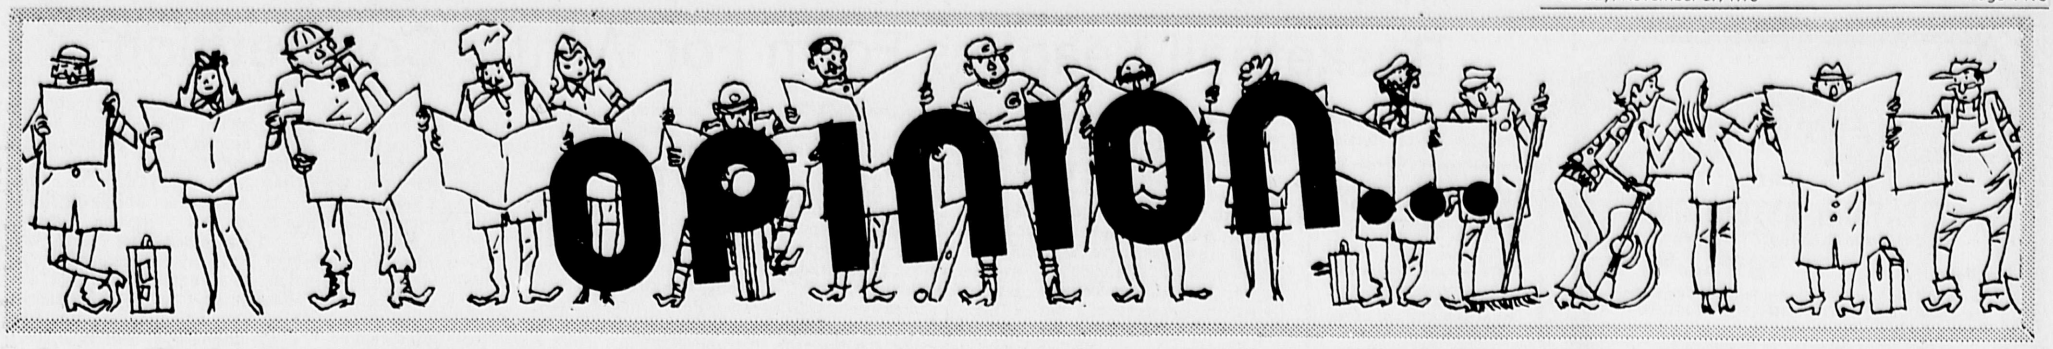
The Netherlands is being punished by the big-feeling Arabs because it was friendly to us during the Middle East crisis.

The mail being received by members of Congress is 4-1 in favor of the impeachment of President Nixon. The strongest pro-Nixon sentiment is in Texas. The mail from Texas is only 3.2-1 in favor of impeachment.

Former Senator Eugene McCarthy, who gave up his Minnesota Senate seat in 1970, has now given up his editing job with Simon and Schuster in New York. McCarthy reportedly is considering running for Congress next year in the sixth Minnesota district next year. Most political observers doubt he will work up that much energy.

Jimmy the Greek, who should stick to the football games, says the odds are 5-2 Senator Edward M. Kennedy will not be the Democratic nominee for President in 1976. He quotes odds of 3-1 against outspoken Senator Henry Jackson. Many observers believe the nominee will be either Ted Kennedy or Scoop Jackson. We might just take a short-end bet on Ted.

A Capitol Hill observer says William O. Douglas will remain on the U. S. Supreme Court for another 34 years or until Richard Nixon leaves the White House, whichever comes first.



Law Enforcement Varies Here

Editor, Newton Graphic:

My husband and I are residents of the town of Wareham and on June 1, rented an apartment in Auburndale where we spend several days a week.

Cars have been parked on the street all night throughout the summer and fall and we were unaware that this was illegal, consequently, I was surprised to be ticketed at 3:15 a.m. on Nov. 21.

I was aware of Newton's leash law even though dogs run loose throughout the neighborhood. I have walked our dog morning and evening on a leash and have had two minor encounters with loose dogs.

However, three weeks ago my dog and I were attacked by a mongrel husky-shepherd type on Auburn Street at the Lasell Bridge. My dog was badly mauled and I was scratched and clawed and had it not been for someone driving by who was concerned enough to leave her car and come to my aid with a stick, the result might have been disastrous.

My dog required hospitalization of one week at cost of nearly $200.

Officer McLaughlin came to look for the attacking dog on several occasions, unsuccessfully, and told me that when he does pick up a dog, the owner is charged $2.00 and the dog is back on the streets until another complaint is issued.

In the town of Wareham, we also have a leash law. The first time a dog is picked up the charge is $9 plus $2 a day boarding fee and on day six, the dog is disposed of.

The second offense carries a $25 charge plus $2 a day and the third offense requires the owner to appear in court. Few dogs are running loose. Chapter 140, Section 167 Mass. Law deals with muzzling and restraining of dogs.

Obviously, I disobeyed one law and paid the fine but I resent having been penalized so heavily while obeying another of your laws. The offending dog still runs loose.

Enforcement of all your laws should be of equal importance and perhaps revision of your leash laws could prevent further mishaps.

Keep An Eye On TOPICS

Editor, Newton Graphic:

As our aldermen and Street Traffic Commission members meet with the TAMS engineers to discuss the plans for the federally sponsored TOPICS program for Newton, I appeal to people who might walk or who might have family members who walk to TUNE IN . . . stay alert . . . look closely at the proposals . . . be in on the plans.

Are you ready for the latest signal, the FLASHING WALK?

Are you aware that this signal is used at intersections where the driver is given the green GO while at the same time the pedestrian sees words which flash WALK, but means look for left or right turning cars across the crosswalk?

Oh yes, according to Massachusetts law the pedestrian has the right of way. How many drivers really stop? How many drivers are even aware of this signalization? The driver is looking at the big green ball which says GO!

Remember—you can buy another car or replace the broken glass or fender. Think for a moment of the elderly limbs or the loss of a life. Are these replaceable? A pedestrian should come before metal traffic flow.

A pedestrian is really important traffic without a metal protection shield wrapped around it. A pedestrian is a taxpayer, a child, a human life. A pedestrian could be a patriotic person doing his bit to conserve fuel energy by walking. Does anyone in your home walk?

Privately, I have been concerned enough the past year to take my kids to the street corners and observe and communicate with 1500 citizens in Newton, Waltham, Wellesley, and Boston. Would you believe that about 80 percent of those interviewed didn't know what flashing DON'T WALK means, let alone this latest, FLASHING WALK.

If it is so great why is it not listed in the 1973 publication from the federal government "The New Look in Traffic Signs and Markings?" This was distributed for the public in September. Why isn't it listed in the Massachusetts Driver License Manual? Why does it not appear in the latest films and filmstrips for driver and public education?

Why are the citizens of Waltham and Wellesley unhappy with the flashing WALK?

Tune in . . . will your kids and mine be left stranded with a system which actually forces them to disobey signals, lose faith in signs, mistrust our system? Supposedly, this signalization is used in low-pedestrian volume areas. All the more reason for concern. Everyone knows there is always strength in numbers.

Across our country enough concern has been expressed for the plight of the pedestrian that a task force has been set up to further study the questions and complaints. Some of my questions and concens are being considered by them now. WHAT ABOUT YOURS???? LOOK at these plans now! Talk to your aldermen. Come to the public hearings!

Please TUNE IN. Keep this the Garden City.

Conservation Recommendations

(NOTE: This letter was sent to the mayor with a copy to the Graphic)

Dear Mayor Mann,

Congratulations on your recent reelection victory. The Newton Conservators look forward to working with you in the next four years to improve Newton's environment in many areas.

Recent events have brought into sharp focus Newton's need to assure the permanent existence of its golf course open lands. It was inspiring to see the leadership last week which you and other political figures showed in responding to the most recent threat to Woodland.

We were also heartened to see the number of citizens who came to the meeting at the War Memorial on short notice.

But, Mr. Mayor, Newton Conservators believe that we cannot keep responding to crises and threats to our open spaces on a piecemeal, last minute basis and must immediately look to finding the ways to permanently preserve these spaces, increasingly precious to us all.

There are three possible approaches we would suggest:

Full acquisition of all the courses.

Acquisition of conservation easements on all the courses, or

Acquisition of development rights on all the courses.

We speak of the golf courses lands as increasingly precious to us all because the pressures of urban life and the current fuel crisis have made them so. The fuel and gasoline shortages will be affecting the life styles of all of us for years to come. Those of us accustomed to huddling in a warm house from Thanksgiving until the robins return will find this winter fairly chilly indoors.

Many Newton residents cannot afford outdoor recreation anywhere but here in Newton. Those accustomed to taking off for week-end ski vacations or southern trips may find these sharply curtailed. All of us will be looking for recreation out of doors and right here in Newton. Because of this, preserving the golf courses and opening them up to greater public use becomes all the more vital.

support of the City Planning Committee's suggestion to make the golf courses available for public use (at reasonable fees one day per week) for golf and would hope that your imaginative administration would expand this idea to include hiking, picnicing, outdoor classrooms, family recreation and winter sports. Opening up the golf courses for use as places to cross-country ski and snowshoe would be a great source of joy to Newton residents of all ages and incomes during this long New England winter.

Finally, Mr. Mayor, the Conservators believe that in the long run Newton citizens are going to need the open spaces of those golf courses as a relief from urban pressure far more than they will need any form of development. To bring about the goal of permanent preservation of these open lands we offer our services to you in any way that you may want them.

HOUR POWER

Since 1894 we've been opening our doors at 8 am. But now, due to the energy crisis, all Newton-Waltham offices will open at 9 am or later.* We've rescheduled our business hours to take advantage of daylight hours, thus saving heat and electricity. All Newton-Waltham offices have adjusted their thermostats down to 68° or lower, and all outdoor signs have been ordered "off." We hope other businesses will join in this conservation project and the energy saved by "Hour Power" will quickly turn into Your Power. Newton-Waltham Bank doesn't want you left out in the cold. Call your Newton-Waltham office for information on new "Hour Power" scheduling. Saturday banking hours stay the same at 15 offices.

Recreation Notes

Basketball Leagues Form For Winter Competition

A joint study involving community school, Recreation Department and educational personnel is being conducted to determine the impact of the energy crisis on programs conducted throughout the city.

Recreation Commissioner John P. Penney reports that several meetings have been held to review the use of school facilities in relation to the need for energy conservation. From these meetings will come the ultimate decisions on whether some marginal programs can be consolidated or eliminated.

It has already been determined that even with after-school use of buildings there will be no increase in temperatures in those schools.

Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry announces that the Recreation Department's winter basketball program will get underway the first week in January.

There are three leagues, the Pony League for junior high school age boys; the National League for high school age boys and the two-division American League for adults.

Boys and young men interested in playing in the Pony or National Leagues should contact Recreation Supervisor Robert B. Doherty at the Recreation Department office, 70 Crescent st., Auburndale, 969-3171. Applications will be available at the office beginning Monday, Dec. 3rd.

The Pony and National Leagues play at Warren Junior High from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Last year there were ten teams in the National League and eight in the Pony League.

Barry, who directs the American League, is asking the managers of last year's teams to notify him at969-3171, if they plan to return with teams this year. Last year there were 23 teams playing in the A and B Divisions.

The games are played at Warren, Day and Bigelow Junior High Schools, with each team being in action an average of one night a week.

Barry announces again that the city's mini-bike facility on Winchester street, Newton Highlands is closed for the season. Current plans are to reopen the program next spring.

The second Toneastics course of the season is being conducted at the Newton Centre playground house Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. The classes are directed by Barbara Valinsky and interested women may attend one, or both days. There is a fee for the classes.

A junior high gym open house basketball program is being conducted by Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle. The program runs from 1 to 4 p.m. on Saturdays, and during school vacation periods.

The program for junior high age, senior high age and college age young men will be held at the Warren, Weeks, Meadowbrook and Bigelow Junior High Schools.

Junior high and senior high school age girls are invited to attend their own program scheduled to be held at the F.A. Day Junior High School.

Book Review

By ELLEN SCHWARTZ

"One has to be particularly trained to believe that to put a label on a feeling, a state of mind, a thing . . . is the same as understanding and experiencing it." Afterword, "Briefing for a Descent Into Hell".

In a sense, "Briefing for a Descent Into Hell" is a presentation of the clash between labelling and experiencing. This conflict is present even in the form of the book: the narration of one man's "inner" journey told in the language of experience is set in juxtaposition to the "naming" remarks of his doctors, nurses and family. All of these factors interplay to create mounting tension and cacophony.

Watkins, the protagonist, is picked up on the streets and admitted to Central Intake Hospital because he appears to be suffering from amnesia and to be hallucinating. In fact, he is on an "inner" journey that is also a voyage "out" into space to another planet.

The novel presents two searches: Watkins' search for a disc, a vision he knows he must find (and his frustrated attempts to bring the message back to earth), and the hospital personnel's search for his identity, their jig saw puzzle style research into his past life.

What Watkins finds on his trip is the one piece which could complete the puzzle. But the people trying to put the puzzle together will not find this piece—they cannot see it because of the limitations on understanding which their analytical approach prescribes. Furthermore, and most tragically, these people are threatened by the mere existence of that other mode of being and of understanding.

The mode Watkins discovers, or moves into, is a breaking down of categories, a flowing together of unlike things. It is not by chance that our introduction to Watkins is in sea images, and that sea imagery remains the most pervasive motif of his voyage. For the wall-less nature of sea flow is in the essense of Watkins' discovery, of the message he must bring back to Earth.

The breaking down of barriers is seen as a disease (a breakdown) by the people who seek to help Watkins recover his memory and his "sanity". They—like many other unnamed people—are fighting his trip. Ironically, he is fighting at the same time to transmit to them his message of salvation.

As the novel progresses, it becomes clear that the others will not hear—for they are so well conditioned, so numerous, so powerful and so well bolstered by the structure of our society that one voice easily (and necessarily!) dismissed as insane will hardly destroy their fortresses.

The essential question is: Will Watkins survive, or die again into his former life?

"Briefing for a Descent Into Hell" is more than a call for a new psychology. It isn't asking us to tolerate the mad nor to venerate them as gods or visionaries. It is challenging us to dare to listen, to hear the "other" voice, to transcend our tendency to fragment and categorize things and to merge inner and outer motion. The doctors Watkins sees (even the more liberal one) are threatened, because if they truly hear Watkins, then they must hear long-silenced voices within themselves and in the whole of the universe.

Watkins desperate cry to us is a plea to let speak those inner and outer voices.

Handy Hints

Don't discard liquid in canned foods. This can cause a loss of as much as one-third of the water-soluble vitamins and minerals, according to nutritionists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Store canned foods in a cool, dry place where they will not be subjected to freezing temperatures.

When washing clothes, avoid tangles. Put in a mesh bag belts, aprons, and other items with long ties.

Turn cuffs down and remove lint before washing pants.

To clean hard to get at spaces, fasten a piece of cloth to a yardstick with a thumbtack.

Cover the food chopper with a clear plastic bag. This will keep it clean and ready for use.

Store parsley in the refrigerator. Put it in water in a tightly covered container. It will stay crisp longer that way.

Save On Lights Use Natural Decorations

The Mass. Horticultural Society today urged citizens not to use electric lights to decorate their homes during the holiday season because of the energy crisis.

Instead, the society suggests a return to Christmas's old-time traditions and use of natural decorations to brighten up the home.

Many different items can be used to add color and warmth to a Christmas tree in place of electric lights. Fruits, such as lemons, limes and oranges, can be hung easily on a tree, and gourds, clusters of nuts, strings of cranberries or popcorn, or pine cones are always attractive ornaments.

To decorate an outside tree usually illuminated, try pine cones dipped in glitter or sprayed with reflective paint. Outdoor trees can also be decorated with small painted paper cups filled with suet or peanut butter for birds.

The handy homeowner can also make a wide variety of decorations for inside the house by simply sitting down with some evergreens and ribbon and using a little imagination.

The Horticultural Society is sponsoring a Christmas Fair, Dec. 6-8, at Horticultural Hall in Boston to teach people how to make decorations out of natural materials. During the fair, volunteers will demonstrate many of these decorations and give out free instruction sheets for each.

Renewal Car Registrations For December Plates In Mail

Registrar David J. Lucey said today that all computerized renewal applications for current registrations which are due to expire on December 31, 1973, have been mailed. "Please renew your registration as quickly as possible so that it won't be mislaid. Have the application processed by your insurance company or agent before sending or taking it to the Registry with your check. Putting it off until some tomorrow will profit nothing and may establish stumbling blocks," he said.

Lucey said that sufficient lead time has been given to all registrants to renew their current registrations for 1974 and he expects that those concerned will act swiftly to ensure use of their vehicles on January 1 by complying quickly with the registration procedure.

He pointed out the following:

1. If you have a plate with blue lettering on white, and you have not received a computerized renewal application, contact your insurance agent.

2. If you have a calendar year registration (a red-lettered plate with a black decal, and you have not received a computerized renewal application, contact your insurance agent.

3. If there are any errors or changes on the computerized application which you received from the Registry, other than a change of address or color of car, contact your insurance agent immediately to prepare a replacement form.

4. Remember that applications must be made in the name of the owner of the vehicle.

5. If you have a reserved number, the application must be processed at the Boston Registry office. (100 Nashua street.)

6. If you have a vanity plate, consular corps, or amateur radio operator, the application must be processed at the Boston Registry office.

7. In order for the Registry to guarantee delivery of any type of plates prior to the end of December, the signed applications endorsed by the insurance company or agent must be received at the Registry prior to the tenth (10th) of December. Please note that district offices do not have mailing facilities.

8. All registrants should check their new plates with the certificate and if the numbers on them do not match, they are asked to contact the nearest Registry office.

9. Plates expiring in 1974 will have red lettering on white and have green decals.

10. Where red-lettered plates are now in use on calendar year registrations, only green validating decals will be issued.

11. All blue on white plates (except for State vehicles) will be invalid in 1974.

12. New plates and decals on renewed registrations may be attached to the vehicle beginning at noon on the last day of December until noon of January 1, 1974, provided that the registration certificates for both years are carried in the vehicle.

Brain Damage Discussed In Quarterly

A woman who learns that her baby is brain damaged need no longer face a future of utter despair, floundering about to find if any community resources are available, operating in a vacuum without professional guidance and institutional support.

Further improvements in this area are expected as a result of passage of Chapter 766 legislation, which will become effective in September 1974. Much has already been accomplished in the communities of Newton, Wellesley and Weston, according to the December issue of the Newton-Wellesley Quarterly which arrives at area homes next week.

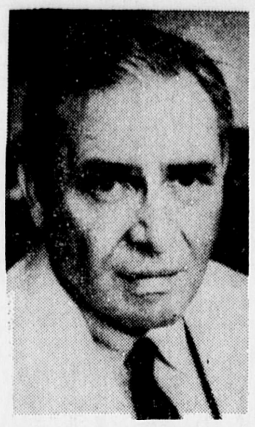
The mother of a brain damaged child today will find that "the establishment of preschool nurseries for such handicapped children, of special education programs in the schools, of sheltered workshops, of recreation programs have all happened because parents banded together to prod and poke and push and make them happen," the Quarterly reports in a two-part series on brain damage.

The normal maturation of the human nervous system as well as the types of malfunctions that can affect the system before, during or after birth are discussed with Dr. Richard E. Toran, Newton-Wellesley Hospital's chief of Neurology in part one of a two-part article. According to Dr. Toran, some 90 per cent of neurological damage occurs before birth, either because of a particular combination of genes from mother and father or because something else happens to the genes upon combination (e.g. Mongolism or Tay-Sachs Disease).

Prospective parents are advised that the most important period of any pregnancy is the first three months when the central nervous system of the fetus is being formed. And postnatal brain damage could be reduced considerably, the Quarterly article notes, if more persons learned how to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Yet another contributor to postnatal damage is lead poisoning, tests for which are now being given to all one-through-five-year-olds in the City of Newton.

Among the resources available to area residents with brain damage problems are the Community Clinic Nursery School in Auburndale, for Newton, Wellesley and Weston children; the Charles River Workshop in Needham, which operates a sheltered workshop offering vocational training and work for those who cannot adapt to the industrial environment; the Peabody School in Newton Highlands for the moderately and severely retarded from Newton, and a new residence home in Newton Corner, open to eight eligible persons from Newton, Wellesley or Weston who will be trained at Charles River.

While brain damage at present is not generally reversible, much can be done to help the afflicted person make a meaningful contribution to his family and community. Suggestions along these lines are discussed fully in the December Quarterly. As the mother of one such youngster was quoted as saying, "She has given a direction to my life."



DR. LOUIS WEINSTEIN of Newtonville, one of the world's authorities on infectious diseases, will receive an honorary doctorate in a Boston University School of Medicine convocation Friday (Nov. 30). A professor of medicine at Tufts, he served as a faculty member at BU for many years and still holds joint appointments at Harvard and BU. He is a 1943 graduate.

Skiing Program Offered

People between the ages of 9 and 17 can join the Massachusetts Junior Ski Club.

For the fifth consecutive year, the club is offering its winter ski program complete with lessons, round trip bus transportation, and adult supervision.

Each Saturday and Sunday morning buses will leave from the local area and head for the New Hampshire mountains. Upon arrival, the members will receive professional ski lessons and enjoy a day of skiing. At 4:30 p.m., the buses will start for home.

The club, which had over 600 youngsters enrolled in its program last winter, expects an even greater turnout this year due to the gas shortage and new speed limits. In anticipation, the club has added a new non-lesson touring program for the advanced skier who wants to go up to the mountains, but does not need or desire to take lessons.

Scorsese: Learn To Pronounce This Name

Capsule Critique

"MEAN STREETS" — A lot of film followers will have to learn how to pronounce Martin Scorsese's last name as a result of "Mean Streets." This brilliantly, excitingly directed picture of Little Italy in New York's East Side indicates that Scorsese has scored a cinematic triumph which pushes him to the top. Along with that recent success, Peter Bogdanovich, Scorsese has quickly attained a position in the film world which old time directors spent many years to reach.

"Mean Streets" is primarily concerned with a picture of people rather than story structure. It is a discerning and perceptive account of a group of young men living by their wits, and on the fringes of society. Their manners, their moral standards, their customs are presented with authenticity and understanding. Scorsese knew all these men himself in his days of growing up in the tenement district, and the hero, played by Harvey Keitel, represents a facet of the author and director in his early days.

Johnny Boy, played with splashy effect by Robert DeNiro, late of "Bang the Drum Slowly," is the center of the situation. He is a clown, a weakling, a liar and half mad. But his jocular indifference to the realism of paying his debts to a loan shark, arouses a protective feeling in his friend, Charley. This is the Keitel role and much of the film is devoted to Charley's efforts to keep Johnny Boy from threatened extinction. Naturally he fails, in a gangster finish.

But the chief value of the film is the recreation of how Little Italy lives, thinks and behaves. The most fascinating scenes are those connected with a local outdoor festival - and this is a true background, caught by Scorsese in its last day of activity.

Hand held cameras (for infighting of which there is considerable) and the unconventional use of lights and colors delight the younger generation of film makers. The music is particularly interesting in that it contains beloved numbers from Italian opera along with some pop music and Italian folk songs.

Comon Cause Petition Drives Near Deadlines

Common Cause-Massachusetts is now beginning the final stages of its drive to obtain 65,038 signatures on two initiative petitions the organization is circulating. It must gather all of the signatures by no later than Nov. 28.

One of the petitions would create an Office of the Director of Campaign and Political Finance to administer and enforce Massachusetts campaign finance laws. The other petition would require most elected and many appointed public servants to disclose their outside sources of income.

The Office of Director of Campaign and Political Finance would have primary responsibility for administering the laws relating to campaign contributions and expenditures. The Director would be required to initiate prosecutions and control their conduct, or institute any other appropriate legal action on behalf of the Commonwealth whenever he reasonably believes a violation of law has occurred.

The petition to require the disclosure of the sources of the economic assets of elected and appointed officials is designed to make public any potential conflict of interest on the part of public policy makers. It would also require candidates for office to file disclosure statements. All of the disclosure statements would be public records and the statements would have to be filed annually.

K. Dun Gifford, chairman of Common Cause-Massachusetts commented on the petition drive: "Adoption of these two petitions is essential to insure that the kinds of problems experienced at the national level do not take place in Massachusetts. I urge Massachusetts voters to sign these two petitions." Anyone interested in volunteering to get signatures in their area should contact Common Cause-Massachusetts immediately at (617) 523-8200.

Shopping May Be Different

WASHINGTON WINDOW
(Commentary)
By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The day may be coming when shoppers strolling down the aisle of their neighborhood supermarket no longer can find prices stamped on each can of juice or jar of peanut butter.

They may have to rely instead only on shelf stickers. This possibility is viewed dimly by some consumer spokesmen who say stickers are often out of date, hard to read and difficult to match with the food item they are supposed to represent.

An end to the practice of stamping prices on each product in a store is a likely outgrowth of electronic technology now rapidly settling on the supermarket industry. Starting next year, and increasing during the next three to four years, many supermarkets will switch to computer-backed electronic checkout systems.

Use A Scanner

Instead of a cash register, these systems use a scanner. Most products in the store will carry, on their labels, a code number and a symbol consisting of black and white bars. For instance, when the checkout clerk passes a can of peas over the scanning slot in the counter, the number and spacing of bars on the symbol will trigger from the computer's memory the exact price for that particular brand and size.

The symbols will be on the products when they arrive from the manufacturer. All the store has to do is program the computer for the price it wants that symbol to ring up. The time the shopper stands in line at the checkout will be drastically reduced but the big savings is to the supermarket in inventory information and labor savings, including an end to the need to stamp the price on each food product in the store.

Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer adviser, said recently the industry "has not thought to involve consumers in decisions that threaten the consumer's ability to compare prices"—including the practice of peeling back higher price stickers pasted over older ones to determine which brands are jumping their prices fastest.

"Outraged Shoppers"

"If the industry waits and springs a full-blown system on the consumer, they will find themselves confronting legions of outraged shoppers," Mrs. Knauer added.

The Nati .al Association of Food Chains admits that the systems—including an IBM version now on the market at a cost in excess of $100,000 for the average store—are being promoted for their ability to cut costs by eliminating individual price stamping. The trade group also said there is "no question" that consumer groups should have been brought into the planning before now.

"But if there is enormous consumer resistance to the removal of prices from individual items, then those prices will not be removed," a spokesman for the association added. "It's not going to happen all at once or even in the same company all at once, so if there is resistance shoppers will go elsewhere and competition will force stores to put the prices back on. The consumer will win one way or another."

County Solid Waste Committee To Meet Nov. 29

Bangles, Baubles And Beads

White gold chains, yellow gold chains, soft slinky chains . . . chains have become the newest status accessory.

How many to wear? The more the merrier. It's so easy to gift women with chains this year because wearing them in multiples is what counts. Lengths of fifteen inches to thirty inches and most of them are priced below ten dollars. Santa's gift problems can be solved at the costume jewelry counter.

Tinted Pearls and Pebbles by Michael Moraux

Those chains grow more interesting when you add your own personal touch to them For example, empty out your jewelry box and search for treasures that can be attached to the chains.

If you have a charm bracelet you haven't worn for some time, why not have the charms attached to a favorite chain . . . or two. Perhaps you inherited grandpa's gold pocket watch, the one that hasn't kept time in years. Accuracy doesn't count–have your jeweler suspend it from your strongest chain and it will become a conversation piece if not a timepiece.

And what about that baby ring . . . the one you can't get on your pinky? That's right, slip it on a chain. The point is, keep your neck collection very personal. Wear things that mean something to you. . . it's the sentiment that counts.

One clever girl haunts antique and second hand stores and has come up with some marvelous old buttons and buckles which she restored and now wears them as earrings and pins. Recently she put together a sparkling bib necklace by attaching crystal chandelier prisms to a silver necklace and was the center of attraction when she teamed it with a black jersey gown.

If you've already begun a chain wardrobe, it's a good idea to hang them carefully from a hook in the closet. If you don't, it can be devilishly difficult untangling them. . especially when you're in a hurry.

Nearly everyone's grandmother had a collection of beads, and this season beads in all colors and shapes will recall the jewelry rage of the 20's and 30's.

Kenneth Jay Lane, the designer who made costume jewelry acceptable among the wealthy believes in beads, beads, beads. Round beads, oval beads, graduated beads, tiny uniform beads, faceted beads – to be worn with any neckline any time of the day or night.

He also designed a line of soft slinky chains, all widths of snake chains in copper, silver and gold, fine chains, open link chains and long and short chains with a single head or motif.

His chunky chokers of silver, gold and copper color as well as the opaque deep shades of burgundy, green, brown and gray are to be worn inside an open shirt.

The longer lengths, 16 inches to the newest 43 inch length in opalescent moonstone beads, faceted crystals in clear, jet, pale jonquil to deepest amber, tournaline to dark emerald, rose to deep ruby are meant to be worn outside a shirt or dress.

Arms full of plain bangle bracelets have become another important look today. Kenneth Lane's bracelets, narrow ones to be worn in multiples, or mixed with medium widths or wide bracelets worn alone. In fact, he maintains that bracelets should be worn on both arms.

The designer explains that he likes the look of piled-up bracelets that mix wrap-around bracelets in polished gold and silver, silver and copper with inserts of natural cobra or enamel.

While the wedding bands and hoop earrings are still popular Lane and other jewelry designers predict the big button earring is the newest trend. The designs he favors are–round, square, flat,ball, oval or domed, polished and shiney or textured and satin-finished with enameled or cobra insets.

No Christmas season is complete without pearls finding themselves in some lucky lady's stocking. Regardles of what current jewelry styles may seem to be, a basic wardrobe of cultured pearls can and will accessorize your wardrobe year round.

This pearl wardrobe would include a single choker necklace or a rope of pearls, a bracelet of pearls, a cultured pearl ring and a pretty pearl pin. Sometimes you can find earrrings that double as pins.

Why cultured pearls and not natural ones? Because a natural pearl is prohibitively priced for most mortals. It's not necessarily even rounded either, but is simply one pearl that cannot be matched.

A cultured pearl is a pearl formed by a living oyster, with help from man. Irritants, a bit of polished shell, is implanted in the oyster's flesh when it is three years old and then carefully tended for three to five years.

There are five factors which, in combination, determines the quality of a cultured pearl. Size–measured in millimeters–shape varying from perfrectly round (most valuable) to semiround to baroque; color; luster, the irridescent glow that seems to come from within the pearl and the surface smoothness.

If Santa leaves you pearls, the Cultured Pearl Association suggests that good pearl care consists of having a good jeweler clean your pearls and restring them if necessary. To freshen them yourself, soak them in a solution of water and a milk soap, not detergent, for half an hour and then rub them dry with a soft cloth. Apply your hair spray or perfume before putting on pearls.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Cranberries are bitter and beautiful. Their lively shades of red range from light orangey-red to a very deep purplish red.

Because the peak season for cranberries is so short, many people are quick-freezing them for year-round use. Simply pop the box or bag, unopened, into the freezer. They will keep their plump red appearance and tangy flavor until you are ready to use them during the coming holidays or months from now. No need to thaw them before using in a recipe. Frozen berries can be ground or chopped more easily than when fresh.

A really delightful approach to cranberries is to use them in ways other than cranberry sauce or cranberry relish. Here are some cranberry recipes to add to your collection. They are easy to make, delicious to eat, nice to share with family and friends.

ROSY RED CRANBERRY RING

1 pkg. (3 oz.) cherry flavor gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup chopped fresh cranberries (about 1½ cups whole)
¼ cup sugar
¾ to 1 cup thinly sliced celery
2 cups miniature marshmallows

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add pineapple juice. Chill until thickened. Meanwhile, combine cranberries and sugar. Stir cranberries, celery, and marshmallows into thickened gelatin. Spoon into 1½ quart ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Very nice served with creamed turkey in patty shells.

DIETERS CRANBERRY FRUIT COMPOTE

4 cups raw cranberries
2 cups fresh orange sections
2 cups fresh pears, sliced
1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca
¾ cup water
4 tablespoons liquid non caloric sweetener

Prepare fruits: Pick over and wash cranberries and drain; peel oranges and cut out segments; core and cut pears into slices or small chunks. Combine all fruits with tapioca in a 2-quart casserole. Stir sweetener and water together. Pour over fruit. Cover and bake in 350 degre oven 25 minutes. Remove cover; stir cranberry mixture; replace cover and bake 15 minutes longer, or until fruits are tender. Serve warm or well chilled. This makes 6 cups; each ½ cup serving contains 55 calories.

CRANBERRY BEETS

1 can (1 lb.) diced beets, drained
1 can (1 lb.) whole or jellied cranberry sauce
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Dash salt

Combine beets, cranberry sauce, orange juice, orange peel and salt in saucepan. Heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

Sprinkle over cranberries and set aside. Cream shortening and sugar together until fluffy. Beat in eggs until smooth. Sift together dry ingredients, and add to creamed mixture alternately with milk and orange juice, beating until smooth. Stir orange peel into batter. Pour over cranberry-orange mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes, or until cake is done. Immediately turn out on platter or tray. Garnish with whipped or ice cream.

Question: I would like the recipe for the Christmas Log known as Buche de Noel...something I can serve for dessert, please.—Mrs. E. D. Newton

Answer: Long a French Christmas favorite, this cake is similar to a jelly roll, is filled with Sherry Butter Cream and covered with Sherry Mocha Frosting. You're sure to please your family with:

SHERRY CHRISTMAS LOG

¾ cup sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
4 eggs, separated
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¾ cup sugar, divided
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sherry Butter Cream (below)

Resift flour with baking powder. Beat egg whites with salt and cream of tartar until stiff. Gradually beat in ½ cup sugar, beating until very stiff. With same beater, beat egg yolks well, then gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar. Add vanilla, and fold into egg whites. Gradually fold in sifted flour mixture. Turn into shallow baking pan 10x15x1-inches lined with greased wax paper; smooth top of batter. Bake in 350 degree oven 15-18 minutes, until cake springs back when touched lightly in center. Turn out onto towel sprinkled thickly with powdered sugar. Peel off paper and roll cake losely in towel to cool. When cool, unroll, remove towel and spread cake with plain Sherry Butter Cream. Reroll and frost outside with chocolate portion. Refrigerate until served.

SHERRY BUTTER CREAM
(Yield about 2 cups cream)

one-third cup sherry
two-thirds cup water
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ cup margarine
½ cup sugar
1 square (1 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted

Combine sherry, water and cornstarch. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture boils thoroughly and is very thick. Cool. Place margarine in small deep bowl and beat until soft. Add sugar and cornstarch mixture. Beat at high speed of electric beater until thoroughly blended and very light and fluffy. Take out about three-fourths of themixture and set aside for inside of cakeroll. Add melted, cooled chocolate to remainder and beat until well blended. Use this portion to frost outside of roll.

Question: Last year a friend gave me a wonderful recipe for a Cranberry Relish salad and my family loved it. I've been looking for the recipe for weeks and can't find it–can you help me? Many thanks. —Mrs. D., Walpole

Answer: I hope this is the one you've requested–this mold is so handsome it could easily serve as a lovely centerpiece. Make it the day, or even two days before your party, then all you have to do is unmold your salad on a pretty plate and garnish with holly leaves and fresh cranberries.

CRANBERRY RELISH SALAD

6 cups fresh cranberries
2 cups sugar
2 cups water
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin mixed with ½ cup water
1½ cups finely diced peeled apple
½ cup chopped almonds
½ cup chopped celery.

Combine cranberries, sugar and water. Bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer 10 minutes. Stir in gelatin mixture until gelatin is dissolved. Chill until mixture thickens slightly. Fold in apples, almonds and celery. Pour mixture into a 2-quart mold. Chill overnight for 12 hours. To unmold, dip mold into lukewarm water, tap to loosen and invert on a platter. Serve surrounded with frosted cranberries and holly leaves.

TO FROST CRANBERRIES, dip cranberries into slightly beaten egg whites and then roll in granulated sugar. Dry cranberries in a single layer at room temperature.

Question: I've been serving my family some very nice pasta dishes and they seem to enjoy the variations I dream up...but I've heard of a dish called Chicken Tetrazzini and cannot locate the recipe in any of my cookbooks. Can you print such a recipe, please? — M.S.D., Norwood Answer: How wise you are! Pasta does a marvelous job of stretching the food dollar, and I think you will be pleased to add the following recipe to your collection.

DEEP DISH CHICKEN PIE

1 stewing hen (5 lbs.)
1½ quarts boiling water
1 cup Sauterne or other white dinner wine
1 large onion
1 stalk celery
1 carrot
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup tiny boiling onions
½ cup frozen peas
3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1½ cups broth
One-third cup undilluted evaporated milk
3 tablespoons sauterne or other white wine
Flaky Pastry

Have chicken disjointed. Place in large kettle with boiling water, 1 cup wine, onion, celery, carrot and salt. Cover and simmer 2 hours, or until chicken is tender. Cool sufficiently to handle. Remove skin and bones from chicken, leaving meat in large pieces. Skim fat from broth and save broth for sauce. Cover tiny boiling onions with water and boil 5 minutes. Drain and peel. Rinse peas with hot water. Melt butter and blend in flour. Stir in 1½ cups broth and evaporated milk. Cook and stir until sauce boils and thickens. Remove from heat and stire in remaining 3 tablespoons wine. Arrange chicken in 1½ qt. baking dish with onions and peas. Pour sauce over all. Top with Flaky Pastry, pressing edges firmly agaist sides of dish. Make a slash in top of pastry to allow steam to escape. Bake in hot oven 400 degrees about 25 minutes, until pastry is nicely browned. Serve from baking dish.

FLAKY PASTRY

2 cups flour
1 cup shortening
1½ teaspoons salt and ice water.

Have all ingredients ice cold. Sift flour and salt; blend the shortening into flour; add enough ice water, slowly, to hold dough together. Roll ¼ inch thick and top casserole.

Miss Bernstein, Dr. Homer Wed

Dr. and Mrs. Murray Bernstein of Westgate Road, Newton Centre, announce the marriage of their daughter, Diane Beth, to Dr. Marc Jared Homer, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bentley Homer of New York.

Nov. 17 marked the date of their candlelight ceremony at Temple Israel in Boston. Rabbi Boland Gittleson officiated, while Dr. Bernstein gave the bride in marriage. The reception was held at the synagogue directly after the ceremony.

Mrs. Marc Jared Homer

The bride wore a gown of English net, appliqued with alencon lace and embroidered seed pearls. A full length silk illusion veil descending from the matching juliet cap crowned the outfit. Diane held white gardenias as she walked down the aisle

The two maids of honor were the bride's sisters, Ellen and Lauren Bernstein. Their matching gowns were light blue crepe trimmed at the neck and cuff with ivory lace. They carried blue iris' and stephanotis. Hindi Lichenstein and Margorie Weinert, the bridesmaids, wore identical gowns to those of the matrons. Stuart Homer, the groom's brother was the best man. Michael Sider and Dr. Kenneth Bassian were the ushers. The cousin of the bride, Jennifer Glassman acted as flower girl.

The young couple honeymooned in Montego Bay, and plan to make their home in Boston following their return.

Mrs. Homer is a Tufts University graduate who is presently attending Boston University School of social work. Mr. Homer is a 1971 New York University medical school graduate, and is presently employed at the Beth Israel hospital as a resident in radiology

Home Wedding For Rebecca Maddox

Miss Rebecca Maddox and Mr. Andrew Steven Narva were married on Sunday, Nov. 25, at the home of the bride's parents in Rock Ridge, Greenwich, Conn., by Rabbi James Rosenberg of Temple Israel, Boston.

Mrs. Andrew Narva

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Callahan Maddox, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morton I Narva of Chestnut Hill.

The bride's sister, Miss Florence Allison Maddox was maid of honor, and Mr. William Franklin Narva was his brother's best man. Other attendants were Richard and Kenneth Narva, twin brothers of the groom.

The bride graduated from Rosemary Hall and attended Radcliffe College. Her junior year was spent in Asia, India, and Africa with the International School of America.

The groom, a 1973 graduate cum laude in biology from Harvard, was a recipient of the Russell Shaw Traveling Fellowship. He was captain of the lightweight crew, and for four years a member of the Trail Crew of the Appalachian Mountain Club. During the fourth summer he was trailmaster.

Following a year of research and travel in Europe, the Near East and Asia, the couple will return to Cambridge where he will enter medical school and she will complete her degree in English literature at Harvard.

Double Ring Ceremony For Miss Ryan

A double ring, candlelight ceremony set the scene for the marriage of Kathleen Ryan, 130 Beacon St., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan. John Vincent Murphy was the bridegroom at St. Ignatius Church on Nov. 17. John's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy of Hingham.

As the bride walked down the aisle, she was breathtaking in her floor length peau do soie gown covered with inserts of alencon lace and her cascade of sweetheart roses, stephanotis and ivy. Her father gave her in marriage as they reached the altar.

Four of the bride's sisters participated in the wedding party. Mary Gay acted as the maid of honor, while Sheila, Moira, Paula and MaryAnn Murphy, the groom's sister, were the bridesmaids.

Two brothers of the groom, Richard, the best man and James, an usher, also participated in the affair. John and Lawrence Ryan, the bride's brothers, and Mary Holland and Richard Barry were the other ushers at the Neighborhood Club of West Newton.

The town of Quincy was chosen for the couples' residence after a wedding trip to the Virgin Islands.

Liberated Pakistani Soldiers Demoralized

WAGAH, Pakistan (UPI) — Two years behind the barbed wire of a prisoner of war camp after fighting on the losing side in a war that lasted only two weeks could be expected to damage a soldier's morale.

So perhaps it is no surprise that the Pakistani prisoners who are being repatriated by India at the border here look for all the world like a defeated army.

A few manage weak smiles as they trudge across the line to freedom, and to an uncertain future, but most are expressionless.

All of them on return to their own side go through a period of "debriefing," one purpose of which is to determine if they have been brainwashed by their Indian captors.

The evidence, according to one officer who has interviewed many of the returnees, is that they have not been.

"There may have been some attempts at this early on," he said, "but, in any case, it didn't work."

Sober Working

The welcome the returning POWs get at the border here is a sober one, as befits a soundly defeated nation that lost its eastern wing in the 1971 war that created Bangladesh as an independent country and resulted in the stranding or imprisoning of hundreds of thousands of men, women and children in the three involved nations.

The civilian returnees repatriated here complain of maltreatment and poor and insufficient food in the Indian camps, but the Pakistani soldiers do not.

At the present rate of repatriation, most of the more than 90,000 Pakistani POWs will spend more than two years in captivity, and the fate of 195 of them, whom Bangladesh demands be tried as war criminals, is still to be negotiated.

Pakistan accuses India and Bangladesh of deliberately slowing down the repatriation of the POWs, while India and Bangladesh claim Pakistan is delaying accepting non-Bengalis from Bangladesh. All parties involved deny any foot-dragging.

India too Slow

At Islamabad, the capital of Pakistan, a top official in the foreign ministry expressed discouragement with progress of the exchange, agreed upon in New Delhi in August.

"It will take six months from now to complete the repatriation of our POWs at the rate India is going," the diplomat said. For its part, he said, Pakistan expects to repatriate all of about 130,000 Bengalis, stranded in Pakistan by the war, by mid-January.

"We had the most difficult repatriation job," he said, "and it appears as if we will complete ours first."

The Pakistani official said that the controversial 195 will never be tried because the New Delhi agreement precludes their being moved from Indian camps to Dacca without the consent of Pakistan. "And we will never consent," he said.

Opposes Trial

The official said India had told Pakistan privately that it opposes the trials but public opinion in Bangladesh must be considered.

"If that is correct the 195 are hostages to public opinion in Bangladesh," he said. "The question of trials is out. The question is how long Bangladesh will wait until agreeing to the release of these men."

He said Pakistan believes Bangladesh wants India to hold the 195 most senior officers among the POWs indefinitely—not actually soldiers guilty of any war crimes, as they claim.

Help Mental Patients At Christmas

Preceding the November business meeting of the Board of Directors of the Norfolk Mental Health Association, Miss Louise Bozyczko, Director of Volunteers at Medfield State Hospital, outlined personal services to patients which she directs with the help of interested volunteers from the community. She also made a plea for some assistance in some special physical needs of these troubled people.

The needs were given as much to be desired refurbishment of the drab patient canteen for which funds are lacking, warm hats and scarfs, clothing in large sizes for men and women, especially coats and raincoats, as patients have to go out three times a day to the dining room. It was decided that if anyone would like to donate such articles, they might be left at Cutler Clinic, 214 Nahatan Street, Norwood, and the Association would take care of the delivery.

The Christmas season is difficult for patients, it was pointed out, and Miss Bozyczko has made a plan for gifts which are donated to be on display for patients to choose from to give to another patient; the patient wraps it and gives it so that the personal element helps the Christmas spirit of giving. Such gifts of any kind, and which need not be costly, may also be left at the Cutler Clinic.

Volunteers, both men and women help patients on a regular personal basis for two or three hours a week, and more are always needed; others volunteer for a special one-time service such as taking a patient to visit a relative in a hospital, or to shop for a particular need. Where a patient has a foreign language problem, both teachers and students have volunteered; special education teachers have been most helpful in determining the level of functioning of each patients. Over a period of many years, and initiated by the Norfolk Association, high school students have taken a "course" at the hospital. In this way young people interested in working with people are exposed to professionals - therapists, social workers, psychologists and psychiatrists of which there is a national shortage with the idea of interesting them in careers in the mental health field. It has been a heartwarming experience for some of the Directors of the Association to see these young people working with patients with a great deal of warmth and imagination.

Miss Bozyczko would be pleased to give further information to anyone, individually or in groups. She may be reached at Medfield Hospital - telephone 359-4312.

In Hands Of Halloran

integrated science curriculum, and have invited Halloran to meet with their science revision committee to help put together an environmental unit.

"I'm thinking about a teachers' manual that would give them some background on the problems the country faces with the environment," Halloran said. "We would provide some visual aids, like slides, covering environmental problems, and send each school a set."

Under his plan, students in biology classes, for example, would study the interaction between plants and animals and the ways in which plants and animals are adapted to their environment and to each other.

Geography students would study such questions as soil erosion, poor utilization of the land and the effects of large cattle herds and overgrazing on the land.

Students in development studies courses would learn about the attractions of wildlife for tourists, the need for animal preserves and hunting regulations, and the possibilities of game ranching for meat production.

Another part of Halloran's work is to bring the wildlife conservation message to villages throughout the country. He will provide film strips and other program materials to game wardens, who will visit the villages and address local meetings in Setswana, the traditional language of the Batswana people who reside in Botswana.

In these remote areas, tribesmen hunt wild animals for meat and for cash income through the sale of skins, hooves and horns. The government restricts the number and species of animals that can be killed by tribal hunters or sportsmen in order to keep popular species from being decimated.

"In the villages, the biggest problem is getting the people to realize why there are game laws at all," said Halloran.

Halloran also is involved in staging wildlife displays at the country's agriculture and trade fairs, and in keeping government officials informed of the continuing need for wildlife conservation measures.

"When the population pressure builds up, there will be a question of how 'safe' the parks are," he said. "The problems are just beginning–it's just wide open.

"The words 'preservation' and 'conservation' are sometimes used interchangeably, but conservation actually means the intelligent use of resources," he added. "My message is quite direct–that wildlife is a resource and it can be managed and developed to a certain extent. What I'm really interested in is good sound land use and management."

Halloran is the son of John F. Halloran of 44 Walter st., Newton Centre.

Born in Boston, he grew up in Newton and graduated in 1951 from Newton High School. He majored in forestry and wildlife management at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, receiving his bachelor's degree in 1955. After two years of service in the Navy, he returned to the university and earned a master's degree in science education in 1960.

Halloran taught science at Madison High School in Rochester, N.Y. during the 1959-60 school year and at Drury High School in North Adams, Mass. the following year. He also taught science at Highland High School in Salt Lake City, Utah in 1961-62 and at Judson Junior High School in Salem, Ore. the next year before returning to graduate studies at the University of Colorado in Boulder and the University of British Columbia in Canada.

Halloran joined the faculty of the University of Wisconsin in Marshfield in September, 1965, and taught zoology there until he received a leave of absence to join the Peace Corps late last year. He has been cited twice for outstanding teaching by the university.

During summer vacations, Halloran has worked as a smokejumper and park naturalist in the West and studied grizzly bears in Canada's Yukon Territory under a National Science Foundation grant. He has lectured and written extensively on conservation subjects.

Halloran is a member of the Sierra Club, National Parks Assn., Wilderness Society, Audubon Society, Defenders of Wildlife, Environmental Defense Fund, Population Reference Bureau, Zero Population Growth and Friends of the Earth.

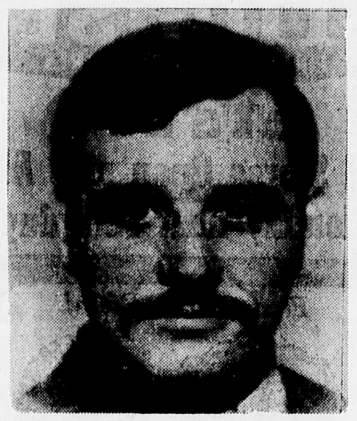
Mrs. Halloran is the daughter of Mrs. Julia C. Healey of 400 High St., Holyoke. After receiving her nursing diploma in 1957, she was a nurse at Newton-Wellesley Hospital in Newton, the Veterans Administration Hospital in Northampton, Mass. and Genesee Hospital in Rochester, N. Y. before she and her husband moved west. Later, she was a psychiatric ward head nurse at Boulder General Hospital in Boulder, Colo., and a psychiatric staff nurse at Vancouver General Hospital in Vancouver, British Columbia.

In Marshfield, Wis., Mrs. Halloran was a co-founder and nursing coordinator of Volunteers for Family Planning, a volunteer-staffed education and referral agency. She is a member of the Wisconsin Coordinating Council for Family Planning and the American Nurses Assn.

The Hallorans are two of 90 Peace Corps volunteers serving in Botswana in a wide variety of wildlife, health, education, planning and other programs. Around the world, about 7,600 Americans are serving as Peace Corps volunteers in 62 developing nations.

The Peace Corps is part of ACTION, the voluntary service agency established by President Nixon on July 1, 1971, to administer federal volunteer programs at home and overseas. Mike Balzano is the director of ACTION.

ACTION's domestic programs are Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparent Program, Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), Active Corps of Executives (ACE), Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and University Year for ACTION.



Boston Police Officer Charles Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Levine of 18 Karen Rd., Waban, has passed the Massachusetts Bar Exam. Webb, 26, a graduate of Newton High School, received his bachelor's degree in political science at the University of Massachusetts — Amherst in 1969. He then joined the Boston Police Force, working in the South End and the Back Bay areas and enrolled in the evening division of Suffolk Law School. He plans to stay on the police force nights while going into private law practice in Newton and Roslindale.

Skylab Pictures

HOUSTON (UPI) — The frustrated Skylab 3 astronauts completed tests on their various scientific instruments and said they are ready for today's picture-taking sweep across the United States, a tour delayed one day because of the weather.

Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue try to gather data on snow fields in Colorado and the Sabine Forest northeast of Houston during the 20-minute pass from Seattle to the Gulf of Mexico.

Flight planners scrubbed the first planned Earth studies sweep Monday because bad weather covered the sites to be photographed.

Pogue completed a checkout of the battery of Earth resources equipment Monday and said the instruments "worked like a champ" and were ready for the first of up to 50 passes.

Gibson got his first chance to man the solar observatory controls Monday. Before the telescopes were ready for use, Mission Control told Gibson ground stations observed a solar flare, a surge of energy from the sun's surface.

"Tell her to hold off," Gibson replied. "I don't want her to shoot it before we get at it."

"Just warming up," ground communicator Robert Crippen said.

Pogue was asked to use a special camera to photograph the ultraviolet light radiating from the comet Kohoutek. The astronauts have five special instruments to collect information on the comet during their 84-day flight. They photograph the comet twice a day to keep an accurate record on how it builds intensity as it speeds at 100,000 miles per hour toward the sun and swings around the other side about Christmas time.

The pilots will spacewalk Christmas Day and Dec. 29 to get man's best view of a comet and try to learn more about what a comet is made of.

ROYAL COPENHAGEN PORCELAIN

Royal Copenhagen's Christmas Plate has a history

It began in 1908 with the first Christmas Plate. It showed the Madonna and Child. And ever since, for every Christmas, a new plate has been issued.
We can give you a complete list of them all. But we can only sell you this year's plate. It's called "Going home for Christmas" and features the last steam engine on the Danish Railways. That is history too. The older it gets, the more historic it becomes.

Making Music

The Needham English Handbell Ringers will perform at a meeting Monday, Dec. 3, of the Waban Women's Club. The group includes (from left): Mary Jane Sawyer, director; Marion Lebourveau, Sally Nesdall of Waban, Shirley Johnson, Marge Carr and Jean Cooke.

Handbell Ringers Appear At Waban Women's Club Party

For its annual Philanthropic Day, the Waban Women's Club is sponsoring a smorgasbord followed by a performance by the Needham English Handbell Ringers.

The food Tasting and program will be Dec. 3 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. at the Windsor Club, 1601 Beacon St. Nearly 100 dishes, members' favorite recipes, will be on the menu. The recipes will be available in booklets for $1.

The purpose of the program is to raise money for scholarships for two Newton girls and for donations to some 13 organizations, such as ACT (Action for Children's Television), Community Service Centers, FISH of Newton, the YMCA Building Fund, Angier Community School, United Fund, and the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Mental Health area.

The Needham English Handbell Ringers began in the early 1950's under the direction of Irving Daniels, an original member of the Beacon Hill Ringers

The present director is Mary Jane Sawyer who plays as well as directs the other five performers.

They ring a three-octave chromatic set of 37 handbells, cast at the famous Whitechapel Foundry in London, England.

Handbells were developed in England many years ago to provide a more humane method of practicing noisy Tower Bell change-ringing. In recent times, they have become a popular means of musical expression.

In the United States, bell ringing began in New England and has spread until to the current 800 groups across the country.

The Needham group has presented concerts in churches, clubs and schools in the greater Boston area and has also appeared on television.

The Women's Club committee is under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Joseph Morog and includes Mrs. Cosmo Camoscio, Mrs. Aldrich Prouty, Mrs. John Long, Mrs. Alfred Weaver and Mrs. Henry Lambert.

Contact Mrs. Lambert (244-8236) for tickets.

Christmas Show Planned By Newton College Chorus

The Newton College Chorus, augmented by the Fordham University Men's Glee Club, will open the Christmas season at Newton College with "A Feast of Carols" on Sunday, Dec. 9 at 8 p.m.

The concert, to be performed in the college chapel on the Centre St., Newton campus, is open to the public and free of charge.

A double brass quartet, organ, and a quartet of instrumentalists playing various period instruments will accompany the approximately 85 voices.

The first selection on "The Feast of Carols" program will be R. Vaughan Williams' arrangement of "All Hail the Power," a processional complete with banners and candleabra for the congregation, chorus, brass and organ.

Carols from the 12th-14th centuries to the contemporary period will be performed by selected vocal and instrumental ensembles, including Medieval and Renaissance instruments.

Emett Windham, coordinator and conductor of the concert, is chairman of the music department at Newton College. He received his Bachelor's Degree in music education from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and his Master's Degree in chorale conducting from the New England Conservatory of Music.

Windham has served as assistant choral conductor at Tanglewood and assisted in preparing choruses for Ozawa, Steinberg and Colin Davis.

The Newton College Chorus has performed oratorios, cantatas, masses and selected works for chorus and orchestra from the Baroque, Classical and Romantic periods under Emmett Windham's direction.

A staged performance of Handel's Messiah will be presented by the Ralph Farris Chorale on Sunday, Dec. 2, at St. Catherine of Siena Church in Norwood.

This unusual version of Handel's famous oratorio will include special lighting, costuming, and instrumentation.

The stage direction will be done by Jeanne N. Armin of the Dana Hall School. Mrs. Armin also wants to break away from stereotyped Messiah presentations and hopes to use staging to help the singers bring the message to the audience more directly than they could in a conventional performance.

There are approximately twenty singers in the Ralph Farris Chorale. Accompaniment is by Nancy Doucette Farris, and among the featured singers are local residents Paul Wiggin, David Jernigan, and Hazel O'Donnell of Newton.

The admission fee is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children. The performance will begin at 7:45 p.m.

Bank Declares New Dividend

The City Bank & Trust Company board of directors recently voted to declare a cash dividend of 44 cents per share to stockholders of record Dec. 20, payable Jan. 10. This ia a 10 per cent increase over the first cash dividend paid last year.

Rubin Epstein, president of the bank, points out that dividend declarations are still limited under the guidelines established by the United States Government Committee on Dividends.

Although the bank has requested permission from the Committee to increase cash dividends, the Committee has requested that the bank remain within prescribed limits of the guidelines.

Epstein predicts that the earnings for this year will be over 10 per cent higher than last year's earnings.

Founder Of Star Market Co. To Receive Golden Door Award

Stephen P. Mugar, distinguished citizen and public benefactor, is this year's recipient of the Golden Door Award to be presented at a reception and dinner in his honor at 7 p.m. on Dec. 4 at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel.

The award which is given by the International Institute of Boston honors Americans of foreign birth who have made distinguished contributions to American life and culture.

Born in Armenia, Mugar came to America and Boston as a child in 1906. He attended the High School of Commerce in Boston and Bentley College in Waltham. In 1933 he became a United States citizen.

Mugar founded the Star Market Company of Cambridge in 1928, a corporation which today operates 58 super markets in New England.

A great believer in education, Mugar is a trustee of Colby College in New Hampshire and Suffolk and Northeastern Universities in Boston. He is an honorary trustee of Boston University and a fellow of Brandeis University. Mugar holds honorary degrees from Suffolk, Northeastern and Boston Universities and St. Anselm's and Boston Colleges.

He has contributed to the betterment of education through donation of buildings or libraries to Brandeis, Tufts, Suffolk, Boston and Northeastern Universities and Colby College (New Hampshire).

Among his awards are President Lyndon B. Johnson's "Democracy in Action Award" (1966); Brandeis University's Medal for Distinguished Service to Higher Education (1966); the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution's Americanism Medal (1966); and National Conference of Christians and Jews' Human Relations Citation (1967).

Following the reception and dinner, tributes to Mugar will be heard from Dr. Gregory H. Adamian, president of Bentley College; Senator Edward W. Brooke; Dr. Andrew J. Dadagian; Alex Manoogian, international president of the Armenian General Benevolent Union; Sidney Rabb, chairman of the board, Stop & Shop Companies, Inc.; and the Rev. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., former president of Boston College.

An interlude of Armenian music will be given under the direction of Rouben Gregorian following the Tributes.

Chairman of the Golden Door Committee to honor Mugar is Dr. Asa S. Knowles, president of Northeastern University.

The Golden Door Award was established in 1964 by the American Council for Nationalities Service, the parent organization of the International Institute of Boston. Previous recipients have been David Dubinsky, Arthur Fiedler, Samuel Goldwyn, Frederick O. Hess, Sol Hurok, I.M. Pei, Leopold Stokowski, Lila Acheson Wallace and Anthony Athanas.

The International Institute, sponsor of the event, is a non-profit social service agency and United Way affiliate which assists newly arrived immigrants and refugees, offers classes in various languages, and is a center of hospitality to the foreign born and home to groups and clubs organized along ethnic lines. Next year will be its 50th anniversary of serving greater Boston.

WEEI Radio Launches "Penny-A-Month" Drive

Hundreds of innocent children maimed and crippled as a result of the war in Vietnam will be the beneficiaries of WEEI's ninth annual "Penny-A-Month" campaign which started Thursday, Nov. 22 and runs through December.

Working in cooperation with Children's Medical Relief International, Inc., a non-profit organization, all funds collected this year will go to the Center for Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery in Saigon, South Vietnam.

Children's Medical Relief International was founded in 1967 by a New York attorney and a prominent plastic surgeon. In 1968, they founded the Center in Saigon which treated 400 children during its first year. Today, the Center treats more than 1200 children whose average age is eight years old.

Plastic surgeons, pediatricians, nurses and other medical personnel have come from nineteen countries to serve at the Center. The Center, the only hospital of its kind in the country, also trains Vietnamese doctors in the latest surgical techniques

In order to gain first-hand knowledge of the situation, WEEI sent its editorial and public affairs director Bill Shermer to Vietnam. Bill spent a week in Saigon at the Center interviewing personnel and learning about tthe hospital. He also flew out to the countryside with a special team that selects children for surgery at the Center

The material Bill gathered in Vietnam will be used during the campaign. WEEI also plans to produce one or two special documentaries based on Bill's experiences and observations.

Every penny collected during the "Penny-A-Month" campaign will go directly to Children's Medical Relief International, Inc. In addition to defraying the cost of the Center, funds will help set-up a much needed burn center.

Since 1965 when WEEI conducted its first "Penny-A-Month" campaign, the station has raised almost $600,000 for various causes including the late Richard Cardinal Cushing's charities, the starving children of Biafra, Americans for Children's Relief and Save The Children Federation.

Stars On Winter At Hayden Planetarium

This winter, there's a lot more up in the sky than Skylab.

Star-gazers who want to know what to look for and where to look will find the answers in a special program at the Charles Hayden Planetarium, Museum of Science. "The Stars of Winter," presented one week only, points out the constellations and planets visible at this time of year, and alerts Museum visitors to this season's special celestial events.

Probably the most impressive sight this winter will be Comet Kohoutek, predicted to be visible to the naked eye during January. "Stars of Winter" will tell where, when, and how to look for this beacon in the sky.

Winter watchers will also be rewarded by the display of several meteor showers, and this season's constellations and planets can make a sparkling canopy over a dark countryside. Beginning with the constellation of Orion as a guidepost, the Planetarium program will identify the other star formations and the planets visible in the winter sky and offer hints to help locate them.

"Stars of Winter" will be given daily now through Dec. 3. In addition to Museum admission, there is a 50 cents Planetarium entrance fee.

Latest Woody Allen Film At Celebrities' Night

The premiere of comedian Woody Allen's latest film, "Sleeper," will highlight the Jewish Memorial Hospital's (JMH) 24th annual Celebrities Night on Sunday, Dec. 9, at 8 o'clock at the Music Hall, Boston.

The brilliant and versatile showman directed, co-authored, and stars in the production.

A joint effort of JMH's 10 auxiliaries, proceeds from this gala fund-raising event will benefit the Hospital's on-going medical and research programs for the care and rehabilitation of the chronically ill.

The Jewish Memorial Hospital is a 250-bed, voluntary, non-profit institution providing continuing active medical care and rehabilitation for patients with a wide range of prolonged illnesses. It also engages in teaching, education, and research programs, and is open to all, regardless of race, religion or creed.

CAR COSTS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The average cost of operating a standard size automobile in the United States is 13.6 cents per mile, the Insurance Information Institute said.

The most epxensive factor is the auto's original depreciation, which the institute calculated at 4.4 cents per mile. The other five expense categories, figured on a per mile basis, were: maintenance, parts and tires 2.6 cents; gas and oil, 2.1 cents; parking and tolls 1.8 cents; insurance 1.4 cents, and state and federal taxes 1.3 cents.

MORE TO THE GALLON

HOUSTON (UPI) — Maybe it's because astronauts don't have to stop and start at red lights or worry about city traffic.

But Skylab 2, when it splashed down Sept. 25, traveled 24,423,122 miles using 192,344 gallons of propellant. That's 126.9 miles to the gallon.

POWER OUTPUT

SANTA FE (UPI) — New Mexico produced more than 18.8 million kilowatt hours of electrical power last sear, a report by the New Mexico Bureau of Business Research shows.

The figure is more than double the amount of electrical power produced in 1967 in the state. The biggest increase in production in recent years came in 1970, when the last two units of the controversial Four Corners power generation station was completed.

Red & White Ball

Members of the Newton community are busy working on this year's Red and White Ball. Their aim is to raise a record breaking sum to benefit the retarded citizens of Greater Boston. The ball will be held Dec. 9 at the Sheraton Boston. On the committee (from left) are Lou Lederman, Morris Gordon and Elmer Beers.

YMCA Seeks Members

The Newton YMCA located at 276 Church Street, Newton Corner, is currently having a membership round-up drive which will run through November.

The purpose of the drive is to encourage membership renewal and to enlist the support of local businessmen and enroll them as sustaining or contributing members.

Volunteer workers are now calling on members and businesses in order to reach the combined goal of 900 new and renewed members which includes 500 in the sustaining category and 400 active members.

Newton businessmen, especially, are asked to recognize the importance of the Newton "Y" as a community service institution and are urged to give their support as sustaining members.

The Newton "Y" program offers something for every member of the family. Many families take advantage of the family group rate. The physical fitness programs for adults and children include a complete men's physical fitness program, women's exercise sessions, adult-coed karate, adult-coed judo, ski fitness, volleyball, adult 100-mile run club and civil service strength tests.

The youth physical program includes weight training instruction, floor hockey, sports, boys judo, youth-coed karate, tiny tot gym, special aquatic programs including lifesaving, scuba diving, splash parties, family and coed swims, and an adult 100-swim club.

Instructions are in various fields of interest. There are adult classes in drawing, painting, ceramics, enameling, leaded glass, glass bead flowers, flower arranging, indoor gardening, decoupage, leather workshop, stitchery, contract bridge, dancing (beginners and advanced), yoga, golf, auto driving, introduction to investing, cooking, cake decorating, fur remodeling, dressmaking, introduction to fly tying, and folk guitar.

In the youth division there is a youth aquatic program which includes tiny tot and tadpole swim lessons, swim instruction for youth members, ceramics, arts & crafts (for boys and girls age 3-5), painting, crafts workshop, sewing, guitar, magic, ballet, creative dance and children's music theatre.

There are three summer camping programs in addition to the youth club programs which consists of the YMCA leaders' club, indian guides and hobby clubs.

Registration for adult classes begins the week of Dec. 10; youth swimming (tiny tots) for members on Dec. 10, for non-members on Dec. 12.

Youth registration is scheduled for Dec. 11. New classes will officially begin on Jan. 7. A current schedule of activities can be obtained at the "Y" or by calling 244-6050.

Free Open House At Jackson Homestead

The festive holiday season will be the theme of an open house Sunday afternoon, Dec. 9, at the Jackson Homestead.

The city-owned museum at 527 Washington street, Newton, will be open from 2 to 5 o'clock. There is no charge for admission or for viewing the exhibits.

A Christmas scene of homes in early Newton will be recreated with displays of period toys, dolls, trains as well as gifts for elders of the family in those years.

Also on display will be a hunt board arranged by Miss Dorothy-Lee Jones, prepared as it might have been to welcome early Newton men back from the hunt.

Floral arrangements for the event are being made by members of the Newtonville Garden Club. They are Mrs. Edmund Anthony, president; Mrs. Stanley Benson, Mrs. Albert Evarts, Mrs. Fred W. Hawks, and Mrs. Harold H. Lounsberry.

The general committee on arranging includes Harry L. Walen, president of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead; Mrs. William H. Cannard, director-curator of the Homestead, and members of the exhibit committee, Mrs. John Fox, chairman.

Also, Mrs. Donald Budge, chairman; Mrs. Paul Burdon, Mrs. Albert E. Burgess, Mrs. John Harney, Mr. and Mrs. George Wile, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Shattuck, Mrs. Orlin E. Skinner; Mrs. William D. Wellock and Miss Clara Ashley, hospitality; Mrs. Charles S. Butler, costumes; Mrs. Franklin N. Flaschner and Mrs. Donald Daniels, decorations.

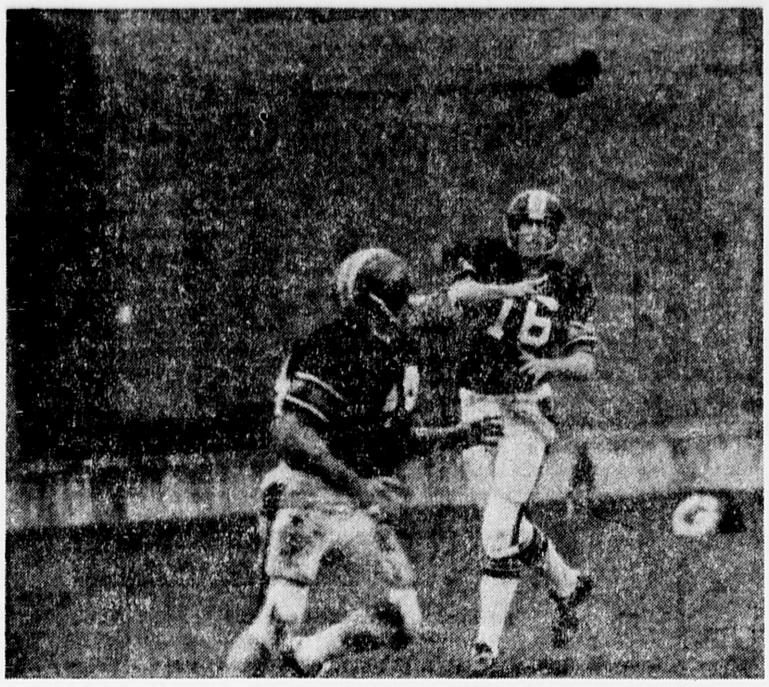
Keleher Propels Newton High To 33-6 Holiday Rout Of Brookline



Offensive Guns

Cal Moffie (16) and Jerry Keleher (44) were standouts in Newton's Thanksgiving win over Brookline. Moffie threw two touchdown passes, and Keleher rushed for more than 200 yards. (Jim Easton photo)

By BOB LOW

After allowing an early touchdown, Newton High's football team exploded for five straight scores to romp past traditional rival Brookline High, 33 to 6, at Parsons Field on Thanksgiving Day.

A highlight of the game was the tremendous running of senior fullback Gerry Keleher, who, despite a slippery surface, had his best game ever.

Keleher ran for two touchdowns and over 200 yards to become the second Newton player in history to rush for more than 1000 yards in a single season.

Brookline opened the scoring halfway through the first quarter when Louis Desantis ran four yards for a touchdown to put the Indians in front, 6-0.

The Tigers came back after the ensuing kickoff and drove 83 yards for a score.

Cal Moffie threw a 32-yard touchdown pass to John Connolly to cap the march. Connolly booted the point after to make the score 7-6.

In the second period, following a Brookline punt to the Newton 38—yard line, the Tigers drove for another touchdown.

After struggling for a first down, Keleher raced 24 yards to the Brookline 27. Moffie then found Ed Haratunian all alone on the goal line and connected for a touchdown pass. Connolly's extra point made the score 14-6 at halftime.

The Tigers received a break at the start of the third period, and took advantage of it to put their third touchdown on the scoreboard.

A personal foul against Brookline on the kickoff gave Newton the ball at midfield instead of on their 19. After a touchdown pass to Joe Rondina was nullified, Keleher drove in from one yard out to finish a 50-yard drive. Connolly kicked his third conversion to give Newton a 21-6 advantage.

Late in the quarter, Steve DiBenedetto set up another Newton tally by blocking a punt on Brookline's 38 yard line. Two great runs by Keleher helped bring the ball to the one. Keleher then ran for his second touchdown of the game.

With 16 seconds left in the game, Joe Marella scored from six yards out on a sweep to make the final score 33-6.

The win avenged Brookline's 20-6 upset in last year's meeting, and gave Newton a 36-35 lead in the rivalry between the two teams. There have been five ties.

Although Keleher was highly visible with his great running, the fact that Newton's victory was a complete team effort cannot be overlooked.

The offensive line was outstanding, opening holes in Brookline's front line and giving Newton's quarterbacks time to throw. Moffie threw for two big touchdowns as well as running for some key yardage.

Newton's defense stifled Brookline's attack. After the early touchdown, the Tigers did not allow the Indians to penetrate Newton's 30 yard line.

The Tigers finished the season with an overall record of 7-2. A league mark of 3-2 placed them in third place in the Suburban League. Their only losses of the season were to Brockton and Waltham, who finished one-two, respectively.

While their 7-2 mark didn't earn the Tigers another shot at the Super Bowl it still represented an excellent showing for a team with few veteran players. Only four players returned this year for new head coach Norm Walker. With only one player over 200 pounds and many juniors, Walker shaped a winning football team.

Next year Walker will have approximately half his squad back and should challenge once again for the Suburban League crown and a shot at the Division I Super Bowl.

Cagers Hopeful At Newton North

By RICK GORDON

"It'll be another good year," says coach Jerry Phillips as the Newton High basketball team begins another campaign.

Newton has two weeks remaining to ready itself for a Dec. 14 opener at Arlington. Between Nov. 26, when the tryouts and preseason began, and opening day, about fifteen candidates will have to be cut from the sixty or so athletes contesting for the three squads.

Although Phillips says, "We have only one starter back (Peter Laskaris)," Keith Glasser, Mark Wasserman and Steve Forte all played varsity ball as juniors last year.

"We were pleased with our junior varsity last year," notes Phillips. The coach expects eleven former junior varsity players to join this year's varsity squad. "We may have some 'walk-ons' (sophomores or juniors without junior varsity experience)," Phillips added.

Last season the Tigers finished at 14.6, losing in the first round of the EMass tournament to Taunton. This year Phillips hopes his team will go further but says, "I don't think we have to do anything different."

The Tigers have lost forward Bernie Hinterregger, who last year teamed with center Laskaris to form a strong rebounding duo. Phillips admits, "We won't be as strong on the boards."

Philips remarked that with a smaller team, "we will be able to shoot a little better."

Last season the Tigers tied Cambridge Latin for the Suburban League title. They hope to win it outright this year but will have tough competition from Cambridge Latin, Brookline and probably others.

Coach Phillips will get a first look at his team in a game situation on Dec. 5 during a preseason contest against Needham. Framingham South and Lexington will also provide competition for the Tigers before the regular season begins.

These games should show whether Newton does have the strong club Phillips expects. Phillips says this year's club "won't be able to make as many fundamental mistakes."

If the shooting is as good as expected, the careless mistakes are eliminated, and the rebounding holds up Newton should have a good season.

"We've got a lot of good ballplayers," says Phillips. "I'm very optimistic."

Prospects Bright For South Wrestling Team

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

Newton South wrestling Coach Aredis Kojoyian is looking forward to another successful season.

Last year the grapplers posted an impressive 11-3-1 record. During the last six years under Kojoyian's guidance, Newton South has been a consistent wrestling powerhouse. The Lions have lost only 10 of their last 80 matches.

Although this year's team looks promising, Newton South will miss four of last year's standouts; Ricky Hyman, Dave Berkowitz, John Staub and Mike McDonald.

A fine year is expected from Captain Paul Linn. Linn was undefeated in his sophomore and junior years. He placed sixth in the state tournament last season while hampered by an injured hand.

When asked about what wrestlers he expected big seasons from, Kojoyian remarked that it is too early to make predictions. "I can't really tell until the season gets underway," commented Kojoyian.

"This year could pose some problems because we might have trouble filling in some weights," the coach added. "Another problem is that we don't have that many people who are sure wins.

"Last year we had guys like McDonald, Hyman and Berkowitz who we could count on to win."

Returning to the mats from last year's varsity are Peter Nathanson, Mike Shockett, Peter Maples, Aaron Moynihan, Haskell Kingston, Brad Anthony, Art Murphy, Bruce Araffe, and Linn.

Coach Kojoyian has scheduled three scrimmages against Chelmsford, Brockton and Norwood to get the wrestlers in shape for the season. The regular season begins Friday night, Dec. 14 when the Lions host Walpole.

Kojoyian believes that wrestling is a great sport where the coach does not decide whether an athlete wrestles in a match.

"The coach doesn't pick who is going to be on the mat," commented Kojoyian. "A wrestler must earn the right himself by winning a wrestle-off with teammates.

"Another thing I like about wrestling is that it is not a sport just for the big guys; the light weights from 100 pounds and up are just as important as the heavyweights.

"There is a place for everyone," Kojoyian continued. "Wrestling is one of the most demanding sports in high school. To excell in the sport, an athlete has to really work hard."

For the fifth straight year Kojoyian will have assistant Chuck Hurwitz by his side. Hurwitz's brother, Bill, was a standout wrestler at Newton South, and is continuing his career at Boston University.

Boston College Reaps Vengeance On UMass

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

If they hadn't won this one the time had definitely come to pack it in. But after 365 days of pacing and fretting, the Boston College Eagles got their revenge, smashing Massachusetts, 59-14.

The Eagles played last Saturday like the Eagles were capable of playing all season — an offensive powerhouse with top 20 potential.

But dreams of the top 20 had been leveled long before and the only things left to play for was pride.

The 28-7 loss the Minutemen, David stinging Goliath, hung on BC last year hurt plenty, and you could see that memory motivating the Eagles. That, and a fear of commonplace mediocrity, 5-5, for a team many thought much better.

It began inauspiciously enough. It was only 7-0 BC after one period on a two-yard run by halfback Mike Esposito, but by halftime the UMass visitors knew the sky was falling. It was 28-7 then, 38-14 after the third quarter, and a devastating 59-14 at the end.

When the computers stopped totalling, BC had rung up 518 yards on the ground and another 66 in the air; Esposito had erased the school single season rushing record and topped the 100-point mark; and back Phil Bennett had shown he was still alive and kicking.

The 518 eclipsed a 1941 mark of 477 and Esposito's galloping netted him 135 yards and a total of 1090 on the year, 32 more than Tom Bougus rushed for in 1971.

Bennett, who has been plagued by injuries since he first visited the Heights, charged for 199 yards and four touchdowns in a New England back-of-the-week performance if there's ever been one.

Esposito contributed two touchdowns himself for 108 points on the year.

While the offense chewed up turf like a lawnmower (inappropriate now with astro-turf sandwiched between Alumni Stadium's tartan track) the BC defense had problems containing UMass' throwing game.

Peil Pennington filled the air with pigskin 34 times and 17 of them landed in friendly hands for 299 yards of moving in the right direction.

Nine of those passes nestled in Tim Berra's arms, giving Yogi's kid 62 catches on the season record. Pennington recorded a New England mark himself with 4,669 yards.

\+ + +

Boston College is 6-4, not quite the record most people expected at this point in time. Even 7-3 would have been a great deal more palatable, considering the discouraging loss to Syracuse.

Now, with only traditional rival Holy Cross hanging around, who knows what could happen. It would really be a shame if BC and its awesome offense, its victory over a southern team, finally, and Esposito's running added up to just a 6-5 season.

But it shouldn't happen. Holy Cross is only fair and tradition notwithstanding, BC could run up a score similar to the UMass outing.

That would make the Eagles 7-4, and 7-4 isn't that hard to live with, especially for a team which truly expected to be playing with not only a no-name, but no-tackle defense.

No, 7-4 wouldn't be half bad.

South Basketball Team Looms As Local Power

By BRUCE BOYNICK

The Newton South High basketball team appears ready to establish itself as a respectable power in the Dual County League.

Last year's team compiled a 6-12 record, but this could be turned around in the upcoming season.

New Coach Dick Walker will have a squad of maturing veterans and encouraging new talents.

Walker does not intend to make any major changes in the offense, but he plans to alter the defense. Walker intends to apply pressure on other teams with a man-to-man defense.

Rich Spector, a 6'6" senior, is returning for his second straight year as the team's starting center. Spector has made notable improvement since last year; more strength and an improved shot.

Joining Spector in the forecourt are juniors Bob Harris, George Thomas, Rob Lent, and new additions, senior Steve Korn and junior Jerry Antonellis.

Harris, at 6'3", is a fine rebounder and defensive player, and has a strong shot. Thomas, at 6'2", is a fine athlete and has a good shot.

In Lent, Korn and Antonellis, South has three strong rebounders.

The backcourt is formidable and has depth. Expected regulars include juniors Mark Aronson and Howie Pinderhughes, and seniors Mark Jefferson and Ricky Sharton.

Aronson is the team's best shooter. He is a capable ballhandler and a reliable performer in touch situations.

Pinderhughes is a fine ball handler and a floor general. Jefferson is an outstanding defensive player and a capable rebounder. Sharton is a fine shooter.

South will play some new teams this year (Canton, Foxboro, Franklin, and East Bridgewater). The Lions must achieve a 12-6 record to qualify for the state tournament.

Both Walker and his players believe this is possible.

Newton South Hockey Faces Rebuilding Year

By MARK COOPER

Newton South High's hockey team began tryouts this week and over 60 candidates showed up at Boston College's McHugh Forum on Monday.

The Lions, 4-10-2 last year, lost many key players because of graduation. The team will have to rebuild almost from scratch.

Returning lettermen, and many players from last year's junior varsity and junior high teams will be integral in determining the fate of South's season.

The Lions are strong in goal with Dave Satter and Bob Driscoll. Although Satter has a solid edge in the fight for a starting role, Coach Neil McPhee describes Driscoll as a "hustler."

Defense should be another South strong point as lettermen Joe Danlow and Mark Cooper return to guard the blue line. Both players gained substantial playing experience last year.

Other defensive prospects include Jeff Randall and Stuart Setter. Randall, a transfer student, has looked good. Satter is one of many sophomores who could possibly be a big help to the team.

The Lions' offense will be led by Co-Captains Ken Bianco and Steve Tresca. If South is to have a successful season, it must better last season's mark of 21 goals in 16 games.

Other offensive players include Brian Cain and sophomores Dan Ferrari and Glen McKenzie. Promising prospects from last year's junior varity include Ken and Kevin Schmiedlin.

McPhee is starting his sixth season as coach at Newton South. He is continuing to stress teamwork, conditioning and a defensive style of play.

With a lack of depth on this year's club, McPhee is pensive about the upcoming season.

"I'm a realistic person, and with many of the teams in the Dual County League (of which Newton South is a member) improved, every game will be a struggle," McPhee commented.

"Defending league champion Acton-Boxboro is still a powerhouse, and state champion Wayland is hardly a pushover," added McPhee. "In addition, Lincoln-Sudbury, Concord-Carlisle and Bedford should all be improved."

Newton South will open its season against Concord-Carlisle.

Penalties Costly To Newton South

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High upset a sloppy Newton South High team, 8 to 6, in a Dual County League finale Thanksgiving morning at Dickinson Stadium.

A surprisingly large crown saw the Lions frequently hurt by miscues South committee over 100 yards in penalties.

In the first quarter, the Lions marched to the Lincoln five-yard line, where they were stopped just short of a first down.

On first down from its own five, Lincoln fumbled the football and South recovered on the Warriers' two-yard line.

An offsides penalty set the Lions back and they could not score.

South running backs Peter Nathanson and Peter Maples ran well in the first quarter with power and quickness.

The Lions committed their most costly penalty in the second quarter. Roughing the kicker was called against South's Dennis Anastasia when he dumped the Lincoln punter in the end zone.

After the Warriors were given a first down at their own 23-yard line, Lincoln quarterback Bruce Stockwell connected with end Scott Whaltey at the Warriers' 40-yard line.

Whaltey rambled 60 yards as he outran all the South defenders for a 77-yard touchdown pass play.

Rick McNamara made a sensational catch in the end zone to make the two-point conversion. Lincoln led 8-0.

Newton South's first half highlight was a 53-yard kick-off return by Nathanson. The Lions were unable to score.

South's offense was consistently frustrated by penalties in the third quarter. Not until the final stanza were they able to tally.

A fumble recovery by Captain Tony Lombardo at the Lincoln 36 set up South's touchdown. After a 30-yard pass play from Jeff Lawson to Kevin Hoban, Nathanson scored from the one-yard line.

Nathanson attempted to tie the game with a two-point conversion. The hard-hitting fullback rushed up the middle, but was stopped by the Lincoln line.

Newton South had a final chance to score late in the game, but Whatley intercepted a Lion pass. Lincoln held the ball during the game's final minute.

Newton South's defense played a strong game. Standouts included linebackers Greg Moan and Aaron Moynihan, and defensive backs Capt. Art Murphy, Lombardo, Hoban and Nathanson.

The Lions' offense was stopped four times inside of Lincoln's ten-yard line.

The Warriors victory earned them the Danny Mendelson Memorial Trophy, which was presented for the first time. Lincoln finished with a record of 2-7.

Newton South closed with a 3-5 mark.

N.A. Lions Fall To Billerica In Pop Warner Football Final

The championship dream of the Newton Athletic Association (N.A.A.) Lions ended Sunday at Newton Highlands Playground when they succumbed to the powerful and intimidating Billerica Indians by a score of 20-0.

It was apparent from the outset that the Lions could not grasp any footing on the soggy turf. The Indians marched on it like they owned it to capture the Pop Warner Football Conference playoff final.

The N.A.A. Lions had previously captured the Garden City Cup and win their first league title ever. They are the West Suburban League Champions.

Gary Guarino the highly touted back from Billerica lived up to pregame publicity and accounted for all his teams points.

On the opening kickoff it looked as if Newton's Rich Proia was going to break one, but the last man got him. The Lions could only pick up seven yards in three carries and they were forced to punt at their own 38.

Confusion was then displayed from the sidelines to the field. The ball was inadvertently snapped and Billerica took over at the 40 yard line.

After a 15-yard penalty that sent the Indians back to their own 45, Gary Guarino turned the right corner and made a cutback that left all the Lions slipping in their tracks.

The play carried 55 yards and resulted in a Billerica score. The points after failed and the score was 6-0 .

On the ensuing kickoff the Lions fumbled the ball away on the 45. The Indians moved the ball down to the Newton 12, aided by a fourth down pass interference call.

The Lions repelled any Indian attack. It later looked like Newton might mount an attack, when they were assessed two major penalties nullifing two first downs. At the half the score was 6-0.

The Lions looked as though they had new found spunk at the beginning of the second half. Rich Filler scooped the kick and recovered the ball after it bounced off a Billerica player.

Proia carried for three yards off left tackle but when another hole was opened up in the Billerica line, disaster struck.

The Lions fumbled. Billerica recovered the ball on their own 47; took 10 plays to record their second score. The drive was aided by a major infraction assessed against the Lions.

Guarino recorded the score from the one yard line and also rushed the conversion.

The Lions did nothing after the following kick-off and ended up punting to the Billerica 35.

Billerica advanced the ball to the Lions' 48, where they punted back to the Lions. A clip was detected and the Lions were forced to start at their own 19.

On first down Brian Kinsella hit end Shawn Daley for a six yard pickup. On second down Prioa scampered for 10 yards. Then, when it looked as though the Lions offensive line opened up a hole, the Lions fumbled.

The Indians took over at the Lion 26, scoring the final touchdown on four plays. This drive also featured a major penalty against the Lions.

Later, after Kinsella threw a 11-yard pass to Shawn Daley, Newton gave the ball back to the Indians via a fumble.

The second units of both teams then took over to run out the clock. The final score of the game stood at 20-0.

Cited for their defensive efforts are Jim Quinn and Doug Bullen. All-in-all, it was a good season, as the Lions ended 11-1, their best winning percentage ever.

Inexperienced South Gymnasts Prepare For Difficult Season

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

Newton South High gymnastics Coach William Steeves is faced with a rebuilding season after losing top performers from last year's 9-2 squad.

Gone from a South team which nearly captured the Dual County League title a year ago are standouts Bruce King, Gary Franason and Mark Taricano.

"This year's team is very inexperienced and I don't expect many wins out of them," commented Coach Steeves. "We just lost too much talent from last year's team."

One outstanding Lion performer should be senior Captain Dave Williams.

"I believe there is no one who will beat Williams on the rings all season," remarked Steeves. "I think he has a good chance to be number one in the state."

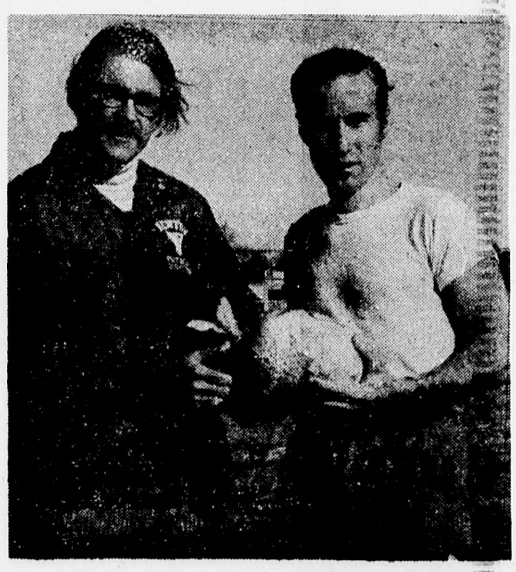
Joe Duggan and Ed Gore are the only other seniors on the team. Both gymnasts compete in the high bar event.

The team's only experienced junior is side-horse performer Dave Speilman. Promising candidates include sophomore Bruce Jennings and junior Mike Lafferty.

Jennings has been praised by Steeves for his great strength. Lafferty has been a student in soccer and lacrosse.

Steeves believes that it is important for gymnasts to begin training while in junior high school. He has been talking to students at the Weeks and Meadowbrook Junior Highs in an effort to generate interest in the sport.

Steeves stresses that the foundation for a strong high school gymnastics team begins at the junior high level.



Turkey Trot

Bruce Migell, right, of Newton receives a 10-pound turkey from YMCA Physical Director Vincent Goglia for winning the 40-and-over division of the YMCA's seventh annual Turkey Trot.

Newton Junior Set For Season

The basketball team and the cheerleaders of Newton Junior College have been announced for the 1973-1974 season.

Students on the basketball team are: William Shinick, John Stanton, David Gudejko, Hestorum Phofsky, Paul Arduino, Charles Blackington, James Mannix, Harry Sanders, Duane Jones, all of Newton, as well as Joseph Mahaney and Marc Kline. Captain of the team is Dana Gorton of Newton.

Eighteen games are scheduled for the season under the direction of Coach Jerry Ready and Athletic Director Richard G. Rollins.

Newton Junior College is a member of the Massachusetts Junior College Conference and the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Cheerleaders are Donna Gordon, Susan Sullivan, Chris Schroter, all of Newton, as well as Lynn Heffernan and Janis Jamgochian.

How do you know God exists?

Once you have felt His guidance and healing power in your life, you know.

People who have been helped and healed through understanding God's presence share their experiences at our Wednesday meetings. They tell how Christianity has become a practical, operative force in their lives.

There are thoughtful readings from the Bible and from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

As you listen, you begin to see that God is real, that He loves you, that His power can be felt in your life.

You're always welcome.

Sole Power

Walter Rinder Tailgates Love Poet Rod McKuen

NEW YORK (UPI) — The phenomenon of today's publishing world—a poet-philosopher whose books sell hundreds of thousands of copies—never aspired to be an author.

The name of Walter Rinder may not be a household word, especially in households where the likes of Robert Frost, Robert Lowell or even Allen Ginsberg are admired. But Rinder is tailgating Rod McKuen as America's most popular poet, judging from sales figures.

McKuen's "Listen to the Warm" has sold over a million copies in six years. Rinder's first book, "Love Is an Attitude", has sold nearly 300,000 copies since it was published in 1970 and continues to sell 1,000 a week. His photographic posters, which bear poetic truisms, are selling into their second million. He was interviewed here on a visit from the West Coast to promote his fifth book, "The Humanness of You."

"I use poetry and photography as tools to communicate," said Rinder, who illustrates his direct, uncomplicated verse with photographs which, by contrast, seem more sophisticated. "I have a need to express myself. I wanted to spend my life making love to people and had met so much rejection."

Rinder, who was reared in Alhambra, Calif., and lives in Brightwood, Ore., explained that "love" is the be-all of the idealistic society he promotes in his poetry, just as "money" is the be-all of materialistic, technological society in the eyes of many young people.

Young "Rejects"

That his poetry ($2.95 or $3.95 a volume), his photographic posters ($1.50 or $2) and his art photographs (up to $300) have made him a fortune is only important to him in terms of how he can help young "rejects" find identity through love and creativity.

Walpole's Joe Morgan Thrilled To Be With Red Sox Organization

By FRANK WALL
SPORTS EDITOR

WALPOLE—"It has to be a big thrill for me and I'm really happy to join the Red Sox organization. I have been a Red Sox fan since I was a kid and words can't explain how I feel about joining the Sox organization," said Walpole's Joe Morgan who was named yesterday as the Manager of the Boston Red Sox Triple A farm club at Pawtucket.

Morgan replaces Darrell Johnson, who has been named as the Manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Morgan was a three year star athlete in hockey and baseball at Walpole High School and Boston College.

Golden Opportunity

"I figured that I had gone as far as I could with the Pittsburgh Pirates. I have been with them since 1966 and hadn't gotten the top job so why not move along to this fine organization when the opportunity arrived?" commented Morgan.

"Not only will it be good for myself but my family is very happy. For years now I have been having the kids go to school away from home and now it means that they can go to Walpole schools and we can live at the same house year round. It sure will be a great feeling not having to move around with the family," said Morgan.

Joe is married to the former Dorothy Glebus of Walpole and they are the parents of Barbara Jean (6), Billy (9), Joe Jr. (10) and Catherine (15).

He has been very instrumental in the success of the Pirates. Some of the players that he has seen rise to the majors have been solid major league ball players. Richie Hebner, Manny Sanquillan, Dave Cash, Rennie Stennett, Al Oliver, Bob Mosse and Ty Clines all have played for Morgan.

This past year he was named Manager of the Year in the Minor Leagues. His Charleston club won the regular season title and lost in the playoffs to Pawtucket and Darrell Johnson. One of the big reasons is that the Pirates Major League club took 8 players from him in the playoffs. His winning the Manager of the Year Award speaks for itself.

Morgan has been a manager with the Pirates organization since 1966 with one year out as Coach of the Major League club.

He started out as Manager at Raleigh, North Carolina in 1966 and was manager of the year 1966 and 1967 in the Carolina League.

His club won the Pennant in 1967.

In 1968 and 69 he was a manager at York, Penn. in the Double A Eastern League and had another pennant winner in 1969 and was Manager of the year again . . .

1970 and 1971 it was with the Pirates farm club at Columbus, Ohio in the Triple A International League that his clubs came in second and third.

In 1972 he was a Pirate Coach on the National League Eastern Division winners and last year he was the top-flight Manager in the Minor Leagues with Charleston.

This writer was at many Pirates games when Morgan was a Coach with the club and there wasn't a more respected coach on the team, but baseball takes some funny bounces and sometimes it's not what you know but who you know.

Morgan was an all-scholastic hockey and baseball player at Walpole High School, graduating in 1949. One of the baseball players who played in the same infield was the late Johnny Turco of Holy Cross football and baseball fame.

At Boston College Morgan was outstanding in hockey and baseball and played three years of each for the Eagles.

He signed with the then Boston Braves in 1952, played baseball in the Minor Leagues and in the Major Leagues until 1966 when he became a manager in the Pirates system.

He had played on the Braves, Kansas City Athletics and St. Louis Cardinals Major League clubs.

He spent two years in the Army stationed at Ft. Sill in Oklahoma where he played baseball in 1954 and 1955.

Morgan is one of the most respected men in baseball and many ball players on the Pirates regard him as a fine baseball man.

"He's a great guy and a great coach and I know he'll do a good job with the Red sox," said Richie Hebner from Pittsburgh yesterday.

Morgan certainly will be a welcome addition to the Red Sox system and certainly what's Pittsburgh's loss is a big gain for the Red Sox Organization . . .

Attend National Assembly

Mrs. W. J. Kitchen, president of the Norfolk Mental Health Association, and its Executive Director, Ralph Golding, attended the recent National Assembly in Atlanta, Georgia, with the theme "Mental Health Strategy for action" designed to improve methods of social action, litigation and community organization.

"Buzz" Aldrin, one of the original Apollo II moonwalkers, accepted the chairmanship of the 1974 Mental Health Campaign. His new book "Return to Earth," describes the severe emotional illness he suffered following his space trip.

When he joined the Mental Health Association last year as a member of the Board of Directors, his stated purpose was "to act as a catalyst for open discussion about mental illness among the general public". In his role as Mental Health Chairman, following Miss Celeste Holm, he will attempt to reach as large an audience as possible to help dispel the myths and misconceptions surrounding mental illness and the mentally ill.

The four-day sessions in Atlanta dealth with a broad scope of mental health–more services for children, primary prevention of mental disorders with emphasis on prenatal and perinatal periods, involvement of ethnic minorities and the poor in associations, the role of associations in evaluating services provided by state hospitals, community mental health centers, nursing homes, boarding homes, development of transitional services to help patients toward independence in securing employment and housing, and a Resolution sponsored by Massachusetts and Washington on the legal rights of patients. The latter dealt with the right of a person to be treated adequately and with dignity, the right to refuse treatment, one aspect having to do with electro-shock treatment, and a critical aspect revealed that in some instances where such treatment had been refused, no substitute treatment was given.

Holiday Concerts By Handel And Haydn Society

The Handel and Haydn Society will present two concerts at Symphony Hall this December -- one of them traditional, the other not so traditional.

The Society's annual performance of Messiah will take place this year on Friday, Dec. 7 and Sunday, Dec. 9. Both performances start at 8 p.m. sharp. Soloists are Barbara Wallace, soprano; Shirley Love, alto; Richard Shadley, tenor; and Ara Berberian, bass-baritone.

The Society will also give a New Year's Eve concert on Dec. 31 at Symphony Hall, followed by a party across the street at Horticultural Hall. For the concert, the featured works are Rossini's Petite Messe solonnelle and Stravinsky's Les Noces (with ballet). For the party, the featured entertainment will be The Proposition – Boston's longest-running show.

Tickets for both events may be purchased from the Society's office, 140 Boylston Street, Boston 02116. Tel: 423-0932.

Entitled "Strategy for '74," the day will include a series of panels and discussions led by nationally known political experts.

Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware will be the luncheon speaker. Among the experts participating will be Dees, Guggenheim, John Martilla, campaign professional who recently managed the successful Democratic gubernatorial campaign in New Jersey, and James MacGregor Burns, historian and author from Williams College.

Political figures scheduled to participate in the various panel discussions include Mayor Kevin White, Congressman Michael J. Harrington, and House Speaker David Bartley. The media will be represented by WCVB-TV's Bill Harrington, WBZ-TV's Dick Flavin, WBZ-TV's Jack Cole and Boston Globe political reporter Peter Lucas.

Navigation Award Goes To Gilmore

Jerold P. Gilmore, of the Charles Stark Draper Laboratory Inc., in Cambridge, was recently presented withthe Colonel Thomas A. Thurlow Award as the individual making the greatest contribution to the science of navigation during 1972.

The Thurlow Award is presented by the Institute of Navigation, an international professional association dedicated to the advancement of the science of air, space and sea navigation.

Gilmore is the division leader of the NASA Inertial Systems Division of the Draper Laboratory, an internationally known center for the development of guidance and navigation systems. Now a private non-profit corporation, the laboratory was a division of MIT until its divestment on July 1.

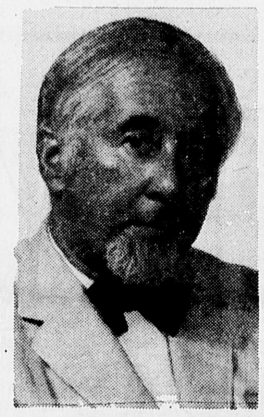
Gilmore received the Thurlow Award for his "pioneering effort in the development of a sophisticated reliable self-contained navigation system that is expected to play a dominant role in future air and space navigation."

He was cited for the development of a new system of multiple gyro and accelerometer sensors. Dr. Charles Stark Draper, founder of the Laboratory and a resident of Newton, is a former recipient of the Thurlow Award.

Affiliated with the Draper Laboratory since 1962, Gilmore graduated in 1956 with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from City College of New York. He received a Master's degree in aeronautics and astronautics from MIT in 1967.

During the early phases of the Apollo program, he was responsible for the definition of requirements and design of the Apollo Spacecraft guidance and navigation system test equipment used at all field and factory sites. Subsequently, his division was fully responsible for the development and operational use of the Inertial Measurement Unit, which is the primary guidance sensor system used in all of the spacecraft moon flights, as well as the current Skylab missions.

Gilmore is the father of three children: Susan, 10; David, 4; and Marsha, 1. Susan is in the fifth grade at the Carr School, and David attends the Eliot Church Nursery School.



DR. HOWARD M. SPIRO, former Newton resident and son of Thomas Spiro of 150 Morton St., Newton Centre, has been named "Physician of the Year" by the Connecticut Digestive Disease Society. Spiro is a professor of medicine at Yale and chief gastroenterology at Yale New Haven Hospital.

AUTO FACTS

By JOHN NAJARIAN

Fog is one of the most treacherous of driving conditions. If at all possible, it is usually best not to drive at all in a very thick fog. If driving is absolutely necessary, all you can do is reduce your speed drastically. Be prepared to stop your car within the limits of your vision, even if this is not more than a few feet. Set your headlights on dim position because fog reflects light.

NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 can help you keep your car in the best condition by providing you with quality parts. We carry the United Delco line. If there is a particular item you wish and we do not have it in stock we will be happy to special order it for you. Machine shop service available. Open: Mon.-Fri. 8-7, Sat. 8-5.

HELPFUL HINT: The rule is: If you can't see where you're driving, don't drive.

Dr. Sanders Speaks At Hospital Dinner

Dr. Charles A. Sanders, who succeeded Dr. John H. Knowles as general director of Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH) last year, will be the keynote speaker at the annual dinner of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Dec. 11.

Sanders is the 17th director of Massachusetts General with which he has been affiliated since 1958 with time out for a two-year-tour of duty in the U.S. Air Force. During his 13 years with the Hospital, he has served as director of the Catheterization Laboratory, the Miocardial Infarct Research Unit, and the MEDLAB System, a computerized means of collecting and disseminating information about critically ill patients.

The 40-year-old heart specialist decided upon a medical career early in life and in fact was nicknamed "Doc" at the age of 4. His mother recalls that "whenever there was someone with a splinter or the like, Charles was always the one who wanted to take care of him."

Although he has served throughout his medical career at Eastern hospitals, completing his internship and residency at Boston City Hospital before moving over to MGH, Dr. Sanders is in fact a native of Texas and its educational system. He did his undergraduate work at the University of Texas and from there went to Southwestern Medical School in Dallas.

An associate lauds Sanders "for his ability to assess complex medical problems in a most straightforward and penetrating way and his ability to express himself precisely and to the point."

In addition to directing three major units at MGH, Dr. Sanders also served as an associate professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School and a member of the editorial board of the New England Journal of Medicine.

"The general director of this hospital is more than just an administrator," remarked Sanders. "He interdigitates very closely with patient care, the research community, the clinicians, the medical school."

Saunders is expected to touch upon his views of a hospital's role in today's society when he addresses Newton-Wellesley Hospital's assembly at the Marriott Hotel.

Sanders, who resides with his wife and four children in Wayland, is a member of the American and Massachusetts Heart Associations, the Massachusetts Medical Society, the American College of Physicians, the Association of University Cardiologists, Inc., the American Clinical and Climatological Society and the American College of Cardiology.

Local PTA Plans Talk On Sexism

"Sexism in Children's Literature" will be the subject of the Peirce School PTA meeting, Wednesday, Dec. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Peirce School auditorium.

Ms. Carole Slattery, library consultant of the Newton School Department and librarian of the Burr and Davis Schools, will discuss this subject and illustrate her talk with slides and representative books.

Ms. Slattery, mother of two children in the Newton school system, became interersted in this subject several years ago. Her presentation represents considerable time spent in research and preparation.

She has lectured at Leslie College, in addition to many other groups concerned about their children's role in society.

All are welcome to come, listen and participate.

We live there, too.

The management of Summit Estates believes that they have a great responsibility to you. And a great part of that means being available to you if and when you need them. That's why we feature resident management. You can always find them, either in the office or in their apartment. If you need something done, we're there to do it. That way, you can speak directly to management. Not to a recorded message or an office twenty miles away. Look at it this way: Summit Estates is more than a business to us. It's also where we live. And we believe that we're pretty good neighbors. So if you're considering moving, consider us and what we have to offer. And we have a Free Housewarming Gift to those people who help us reach our goal of 100% occupancy by December 31st, 1973. They will receive a 1974 color television and a chance to win a trip for two to Florida or the Super Bowl. See our decorator model. 2 bedroom apartments from $365.

Boy Of Year Contest Opens

NEW YORK—"If we're going to save the next generation - the only one we've got - we have to encourage boys to strive for inspirational and character-building goals," according to John L. Burns, president of the Boys' Clubs of America.

Speaking as the national Boys' Clubs organization opened its 28th annual "Boy of the Year" competition, Burns stressed the need for positive alternatives to drugs, disease, violence and anti-social behavior. He described the youth-guidance organization's "Boy of the Year" program as an excellent means of attaining those goals.

Burns explained that the program offers scholarships totaling $8,500 annually to "Boy of the Year" winners through a Reader's Digest Foundation grant designed to further Juvenile Decency by stimulating interest in higher education. The national winner receives a $4,000 cash scholarship, he said, while each of nine regional winners receives a $500 award.

Nearly 1,100 Boys' Clubs throughout the country will be eligible to compete in the project, open to all Club members between the ages of 12 and 18. Contestants are judged solely on the basis of service to their home, school, church, community and Boys' Club.

The national "Boy of the Year" is annually "installed" by the President in a White House ceremony and is the guest of honor at a Congressional Luncheon during National Boys' Club Week. He also meets other government officials, visits New York for press, radio and television interviews and is an honored guest at the annual national Boys' Clubs conference. He will also be honored as a "Youth Champion" at the American Legion convention in Miami Beach in August.

All winners will be announced during National Boys' Club Week, Mar. 31-Apr. 6.

Bicentennial Commission Plans Statewide Conference

The Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission will sponsor a two-day statewide conference at the UMass-Amherst campus conference center Friday and Saturday, Jan. 25 and 26.

The conference, which was originally scheduled for Nov. 30 through Dec. 1, was postponed due to the unexpected workload placed on the Commission staff by the protracted legislative session.

Via a program of speakers and workshops, the Commission will present its tentative work program to Massachusetts residents who are concerned with planning and preparation for local Bicentennial celebrations.

Regional meetings andcoffees will be hosted to promote personal contact between Bicentennial representatives from cities and towns. Throughout the conference, the Commission will encourage feedback on anticipated Bicentennial problems so that it can help plan to alleviate those problems, including redesigning Commission policy and direction where possible to meet the needs of individual cities and towns.

There will be no charge for conference programs and workshops, but attendees will be required to pay for lunch and dinner and for accomodations. The Commission will sponsor a buffet luncheon on the closing afternoon of the conference.

New Books Reviewed

THE PLOT AGAINST ROGER RIDER, by Julian Symons.
(Harper & Row, $5.95)

Rider is an extremely successful business man who seems incapable of doing anything else right. His wife despises him, his daughter finds him laughable and his best friend hates him. They all gather together at Rider's villa in Spain for a holiday. The pace of seduction and adultery quickens and the plot twists and twists. A humdinger of a suspense novel.

THE SHOOTING OF THE GREEN, by Joe Poyer.
(Doubleday, $5.95)

Tough, ascerbic narcotics agent Cole Brogan chases down reports of a new type of marijuana and finds fields of the stuff in, of all places, rural Western Ireland. A fast paced thriller with a dilly of a chase scene, and enough crossing and double crossing to keep the reader perplexed.

I TOOK A HAMMER IN MY HAND: The Woman's Build-it & Fix-it Handbook, by Florence Adams.
(Morrow, $9.95)

Even if you're all thumbs, this book can save you money on home repair and carpentry. By learning the language and something about construction and appliances, you should at ds;

the New Astrology, by Owen S. Rachleff.
(Hawthorn, $7.95)

This is a curious mixture of mythology and popular astrological lore and jargon. The author is a New York University professor whose courses include one that combines witchcraft. magic and astrology.

Update Revaluation (Cont. from page 1)

He added that the records compiled during the revaluation would, in any case, be open for inspection by fire and police department personnel.

Alderman Richard Bullwinkle (Ward 3) pressed Reinhard at this point: "Do you mean to say that you will go to the fire and police departments if you find that these violations exist?"

"No," replied Reinhard, "the records would be available if they wanted to inspect them."

Alderman Alan Barkin and President Emeritus Wendell Bauckman both referred to 'commune'-type residences existing in Newton, in clear violation of various zoning ordinances.

Barkin specifically alluded to the case in which an absentee landlord realizes a "substantial income" by renting out the residence at an inflated rent to a fair-sized group of unrelated individuals.

Inquired Barkin of Reinhard, "Shouldn't that person's property be assessed as income-producing?" Barkin added that capitalization of income is the only fair way to assess.

Bauckman asked Reinhard if he felt that commune-residences would lower abutting property values, to which Reinhard replied, "That could be asked about the neighbor who allows his property to fall into disrepair, or the family next door with four automobiles. The market is the only indicator of this effect."

During the course of this discussion, Assessor Joseph Cosgrove disclosed that the Marriott Motor Inn, a highly touted source of tax revenue for Newton, has been derelict in its responsibility to inform the Assessing Department of its financial value. Cosgrove explained to aldermen that three requests had been made for income information, with no response from the Marriott as of Monday.

(The Marriott will be appraised in the ongoing revaluation program, but the assessors will need to consult national figures in order to arrive at an accurate appraisal figure.)

Several aldermen present at the meeting commented that should the Marriott be overassessed, those 'elusive' financial statements would jump out of thin air.

In other matters before the committee, a cost-of-living raise was approved unanimously for city workers, but a similar pay hike was stalled for department heads.

Justifying the delay of a 4.5 percent raise for department heads, Committee Chairman Sidney Small pointed out to James Salter, Executive Assistant to the Mayor, "In one case you're talking about some guy making five grand a year, and in the other case your talking about a department head who is making 22 grand."

Salter replied that his concern "was not with the department heads, per se," but "with every single bargaining unit."

Replying to Small's charge that "the Executive Department has not done this quite right," Salter said that "we've done it this way so to be consistent with other similar procedures in the past."

The Finance Committee also approved a request by City Nutritionist June Goodman for additional funds to expand her working hours, and approved a grant of funds for additional subsurface gasoline storage.

Chief William Quinn of the Newton Police appeared before the committee on behalf of Buildings Commissioner Larsen, lobbying for funds to purchase new toilet fixtures for the Newton jail.

Citing the grievous damage done to the cells, and particularly the toilet fixtures, by inmates, Quinn informed the committee members that only one cell was in use at present. Four cells were recently declared unfit for human habitation by the State Department of Public Health, according to Quinn.

Auburndale Club Opens Comedy Tomorrow Night

The Auburndale Club has chosen as its fall production "Third Best Sport" by Eleanor and Leo Bayer.

A comedy in three acts, "Third Best Sport" was first presented on Broadway by the Theatre Guild in December, 1958. It deals with big business, sales conventions, and the efforts of the young bride of a corporation executive to adapt to the "company way" of doing things, and the comical results which ensue.

Heading the cast as the young bride is Bonnie McCarthy of Wellesley, who's most recent role with the Auburndale Players was as the female lead in "Any Wednesday" last year.

Her husband, the corporation executive, is played by Paul Masse of Westboro, an Auburndale veteran with four major roles in the last three years.

John Head, of Auburndale, whose credits extend back many years, portrays the irascible corporation president. His most recent role has been that of the police lieutenant in "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Jonas Lockwood, a professor of philosophy at Michigan State, is played by Ray Norman, a Wellesley resident. This is Normand's third appearance with the Auburndale Players.

Herb and Jackie Meily, Mr. and Mrs. in real life, portray Art and Amy Underhill, Mr. and Mrs. on stage. Hailing from Auburndale, the Meilys, in addition to their work with the club, are also active with the Handel and Haydn Society, and the Boston Summer Opera Theatre.

Another husband-wife team, Howard and Betty Schuft of Newton Centre, also appear as an onstage married duo: Spencer and Myra McHenry. Betty is a real veteran of Auburndale productions, and Howard makes his debut with this play.

Also making her debut onstage with this production is Debbie Masse, who plays Marge Robbins, wife of a junior executive.

The junior executive is portrayed by Ron Brinn, no stranger to the Auburndale Club. Ron takes time out from his Massport Authority duties to undertake this role, his fourth with the club.

The bellboy is played by Jim Boyce of Lexington, in his initial appearance.

The entire production is under the direction of Peggy Bailey, who has also directed "Ready When You Are, C.B.," "Barefoot in the Park," "Harvey," and "Any Wednesday".

Co-producers Betty Schuft and Jackie Meily head up the technical staff which consist of the following: Red Rogers, Debbie Kavanaugh, Susan Smith, David Smith, Pat Woodward, Bertha and Vic Jordan, Janet and Dick Holmes, Shirley Magaw, Paula O'Dowd, Donna O'Connell, Mary Metcalfe, Dorothy Vines, Sue Malloy, Betty Ewers, Sam and Geneva Cooper, Mac Floyd, Roy Faulkner, Charles Laffin, Charles Albanese, Jack Ross, Ralph O'Dowd, Ford Waugh, Howard Schuft, Grace Corcoran, Ray Normand, John Head, Diane Rooney, Nancy Aucoin, and Marilyn McCullough.

"Third Best Sport" will be presented at the Auburndale Club, 283 Melrose St., on consecutive weekends, Friday and Saturday Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 and Dec. 7 and 8, at 8:30 p.m.

Ticket reservations may be made by contacting Diane Rooney at 332-6869.

Films Offered At Newton Library Thursday Nights

The Newton Free Library will show four films Thursday evening, November 29, at 7 p.m. at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

"The Hands of Maria," demonstrating the intricacy and artistry in the Pueblo Indian craft of pottery making, is the first film scheduled for viewing.

In "A Creation: Artist at Work," the viewer follows a noted Hungarian glass designer as he creates a large glass vase from its conception as an idea, to its designs on paper, through to its final form.

The printing process is clearly demonstrated in "Making of a Renaissance Book." The film presents one of the earliest detailed accounts of the variety of printing types.

"Blending Two Cultures," demonstrates the similarities between painting and the ancient art of Chinese calligraphy.

Ingrid Bergman and Leslie Howard co-star in "Intermezzo" on Thursday, December 6, at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

The film is a poignant love story about a violinist who leaves his wife and family for a young girl who shares his devotion to great music. The film was shot in such varied locations as Stockholm, France, Capri, and New York.

Appearing Friday

Dr. Sam Berman of Newton will be guest on "What's My Line" Friday (Nov. 30) at 7 p.m. on Channel 7.

Berman is often called "the Boston Slimmer" because of his success in slimming down the Boston police force.

Players Announce Tryouts

The Newton Country Players will hold open tryouts for their annual children's show, a musical fairy tale entitled "Suds or How to Win a Princess," Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 10 and 11, at 8 p.m., at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton.

The original and new musical fairy tale for children of elementary and grammer school level, with book, music and lyrics by Ruth Dorfman of Chrstnut Hill, had its premiere performances at the Ravencroft Summer Theatre in Rindge, N.H., during the month of August this summer.

The production will be available for programming to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising for weekend bookings the entire month of April and in early May, either as a "road show" or for performances at Pomroy Playhouse, with its seating capacity of approximately 175.

The funtastical, fantastical musical relates the tale of Suds, a palace scullery boy, who is befriended by the lonely princess and falls in love with her. Because of his lowly station, he is unable to reveal his true feelings.

The king, distressed by his daughter's lonliness and depressed by the lack of eligible suitors, decides to hold a contest throughout the land, the winner of which will receive the hand of the princess in marriage. The valiant efforts of Suds to win the contest and the princess, in the face of insurmountable odds, makes for a happy ending to this delightful fable.

The play contains ten speaking-singing roles and full chorus, including both male and female adults and teen-agers, and, if warrented, will be double-cast. Auditionees are requested to bring sheet music for vocal solos and resumes. Rehearsals will commence in early Spring.

All those interested in participating in this hour-long spellbinder of gaity and song in any capacity - producer, stage manager, musical director, designers, costumes, technical people, cast or crew - are invited to attend.

President of the players, Mrs. Sheila Deming of Newton Highlands, stressed that an earnest effort will be made to place as many as possible of those attending tryouts in some area of the production. Plays for children previously produced by the players include "The Sleeping Princess," "Mr. Popper's Penguins," "The Tale of the Donkey," the award-winning "Sam Stiller, Private Eye" and last season's "Gabriel Ghost."

Now in their 18th year of community theatre activity, the Newton Country Players are a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents, who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

For additional information concerning the open auditions, phone 232-1330, and for further data regarding theatre party sponsorship, call 969-2665 or write to P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.
